SCR 13

"Supporting senior caregivers and encouraging the Department of Health and Social Services to provide additional education on the effects of aging and the importance of senior caregivers."

Alaska's senior population is growing. The number of Alaskans 65 years of age or older is expected to increase by 155 percent in the next 20 years and the population of those 85 years or older is projected to double by 2050. Per capita, Alaska has the fastest growing 85 and over population in the entire nation.

While advances in medicine, technology, and assisted living practices are enabling seniors to live longer, more productive, and more comfortable lives than ever before, the fact remains that many of our aging loved ones will at some point require some form of caregiving. In fact, more than 25 percent of all seniors need some level of assistance with their daily activities.

It is critical that we as a state are prepared to meet and manage the needs of our aging population.

By supporting senior caregivers and encouraging the Department of Health & Social Services to provide additional education on the effects of aging and the importance of senior caregivers, SCR 13 draws attention to the changing demographics of aging in Alaska and highlights the critical role played by senior caregivers in helping meet the needs of our aging population.

Subject: Support for SCR 13, Senior Caregivers

Dear Chair Davis:

The Alaska Commission on Aging (ACoA) supports SCR 13, a bill that recognizes the important role of family and professional caregivers who care for older Alaskans, some of whom have Alzheimer's disease and related dementias (ADRD), by providing the assistance they need to remain in their homes and communities for as long as possible. The number of older Alaskans with Alzheimer's disease and related disorders is projected to nearly double within the next decade, based on national age-based prevalence rates, and quadruple by 2030. Fifty-eight percent of residents at the Pioneer Home have ADRD (Pioneer Home, January 2010 report). SCR 13, authored by Senators Con Bunde and Lesil McGuire, also highlights Alaska's demographic aging transition.

For the second year in a row, Alaska is the state with the fastest growing population of older adults age 65 years and older. Between 1998 and 2008, the number of Alaska seniors grew by over 50%, which is more than four times the national average.

The growth of the older Alaskan population is occurring at both ends of the senior age continuum – among the youngest seniors (age 60 to 64 years) many of whom moved to Alaska during the 1970s pipeline era, and the "oldest old," those age 85 years and older who are the most frail, the most prone to Alzheimer's disease and related disorders, and most in need of long-term support services. The graying of Alaska's population is creating substantial shifts for workforce, particularly in the health care and long-term support service sectors as demand increases and providers are becoming of retirement age.

Alaska's emphasis on caregiving performed by family and professional home- and community-based (HCBS) providers has made a significant difference in seniors' ability to remain at home; this is apparent in the increased average age of admission to the Pioneer Homes from 76 in 1998 to 86 in 2008. As a result of caregiver efforts, older Alaskans are able to continue living at home and in their communities, where they most desire to be, and spend fewer years in nursing homes when this care is most appropriate. Rates for a semi-private room in a nursing home will rise by 192% over the next twenty years, increasing from $187,815 (in 2008) to $549,662 by 2030 (Genworth Financial 2008 Cost of Care Study).

The majority of caregiving for persons with ADRD is performed by loved ones. In Alaska, there are approximately 14,539 unpaid ADRD caregivers who have contributed an estimated 12,550,265 hours of unpaid care that is valued at $139,307,943 (Alzheimer's Association 2009). Without family caregivers, the state would be paying far more for Medicaid long-term support services.

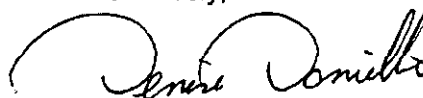

ACoA supports SCR 13 and its recommendations to regularly review state policies and programs to ensure they address the needs of Alaska seniors and their caregivers and for the Department of Health and Social Services to provide education about the aging process and the importance of senior caregivers. Please feel free to contact Denise Daniello, ACoA's executive director (465-4879), should you have any questions regarding our position. Thank you for your consideration.

Sincerely,

Sharon Howerton-Clark

RE: SCR 13 (Bunde)--Support

Dear Chair Davis:

On behalf of the members of AARP in Alaska, we encourage you and your colleagues on the Senate Health and Social Services Committee to support SCR 13, authored by Senator Con Bunde and co-sponsored by Senator Lesil McGuire.

SCR 13 puts a spotlight on the changing demographics of aging in Alaska and the critical role played by family caregivers.

The fastest growing age group in America is the eighty-five plus. Per capita, Alaska has the fastest growing eighty-five plus in the entire nation.

The eighty-five plus are the age group most likely to need some assistance with activities of daily living. The majority of this assistance is rendered by family caregivers.

Many Alaskan families will find themselves in a caregiving mode as our population ages. AARP supports the recommendation in SCR 13 that encourages the Department of Health and Social Services to provide education about caregiving to all of us and to support the efforts of family caregivers to take care of older relatives and friends.

Without family caregivers, government would face increasing demands for paid assistance for older citizens. This would significantly impact the Medicaid long term care program as well as the personal care attendant program.

Family caregivers don't "dump" their responsibilities on government. They step up to the plate and provide assistance as they are able. We often find caregivers in their 70's and 80's caring for older parents as well as frail spouses and siblings.

With a little help and support, Alaska can do much to help these caregivers continue to assist their family members. This is a legitimate and appropriate service for state and local government to render to those citizens who give so much of themselves.

We should shine a spotlight on these caregivers, recognize their efforts, and provide whatever education we can to help them maintain the independence of their family members and their own health and well-being.

AARP recommends an "AYE" vote on SCR 13.

Should you have any questions about our position, please feel free to contact me (586-3637) or Patrick Luby, AARP Advocacy Director (907-762-3314).

Thank you for your consideration.

Dear Senator Bunde,

On behalf of the Alzheimer's Resource of Alaska and the individuals we serve, I would like to thank you for introducing Senate Concurrent Resolution n.13 supporting caregivers of Alaska seniors.

Seniors choose to remain in their home and their community, with help from family, for as long as possible. Family caregivers are honoring their elder's wishes; more than 70% of people with Alzheimer's disease and related dementias (ADRD) live at home where they are cared for by family and friends. However, the demands of caregiving can come at a high cost to the caregiver's own physical and mental wellbeing. Caregiver stress is becoming a major health risk for caregivers.

Education and support services give caregivers tools and skills that enable them to maintain families' independence and are an effective mechanism for families to continue caring for a loved one in their own home and community. Families assume most of the responsibility for the care of the older family member while working, caring for children and holding other responsibilities. In the later stages, when some people with ADRD move to an assisted living facility or nursing home many family caregivers continue to assist with financial and legal affairs, medical care and emotional support. Some even continue to help with bathing, dressing and personal care needs.

Education for caregivers is a key component in the statewide infrastructure of senior care. Research shows that education and support services for the family caregivers can maintain this informal care longer and delay placement of the elder by an average of 1 1/2 years. State funding simply leverages the enormous contributions by families making education and support services highly cost-effective. We must increase our support of this informal, unpaid, caregiving network.

Thank you again for introducing SCR N. 13.

Sincerely,

Dulce Nobre
Executive Director

Concurrent Resolution

Whereas 8,000 people in the United States turn 60 years old every day;

Whereas an estimated 35,900,000 people, 12.4 percent of the population, are 65 years of age and older;

Whereas the United States population age 65 and older is expected to more than double in the next 50 years to 86,700,000 in 2050;

Whereas the 85 and older population is projected to reach 9,600,000 in 2030 and double again to 20,900,000 in 2050;

Whereas it is estimated that 4,500,000 people in the United States have Alzheimer's disease today;

Whereas it is estimated that number will increase to between 11,300,000 and 16,000,000 by 2050;

Whereas 70 percent of people with Alzheimer's disease and other dementias live at home, and these individuals are examples of individuals who need assistance in their homes with their "activities of daily living";

Whereas currently over 25 percent of all seniors need some level of assistance with their "activities of daily living";

Whereas in order to address the surging population of seniors who have significant needs for in-home care, the field of senior caregiving will continue to grow;

Whereas there are an estimated 44,000,000 adults in the United States providing care to adult relatives or friends and an estimated 725,000 nonfamily private paid senior caregivers;

Whereas both unpaid family caregivers and paid caregivers work together to serve the daily living needs of seniors who live in their own homes;

Whereas the Department of Labor estimated that paid caregivers for the year 2006 worked a total of 835,000,000 hours, and the projected hours of paid senior caregivers are estimated to increase to 4,350,000,000 hours by 2025; and

Whereas the longer a senior is able to provide for his or her own care, the less burden is placed on public payment systems in State and Federal governments: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the House of Representatives (the Senate concurring), That Congress—

- (1) recognizes caregiving as a profession;
- (2) supports the private home care industry and the efforts of family caregivers nationwide by encouraging individuals to provide care to family, friends, and neighbors;

H. Con. Res. 59—2

- (3) encourages accessible and affordable care for seniors;
- (4) reviews Federal policies and supports current Federal programs which address the needs of seniors and their family caregivers; and
- (5) encourages the Secretary of Health and Human Services to continue working to educate people in the United States on the impact of aging and the importance of knowing the options available to seniors when they need care to meet their personal needs.

Who are America's Family Caregivers?

Suzanne Mintz on YouTube

Suzanne Mintz Interview on Women's Radio

Rosalyn Carter said it best: "There are only four kinds of people in the world – those who have been caregivers, those who are currently caregivers, those who will be caregivers and those who will need caregivers". Caregivers are needed for family members of all ages. With appropriate information and support, family caregivers can help their loved ones across the lifespan.

So, who are family caregivers ... It's a complicated question and answers may vary depending upon whom you ask. Physicians may give an answer different from social workers and researchers may undoubtedly quote statistics. However, if you really want to know who America's family caregivers are, you need to ask them directly.

America's family caregivers are family, friends, partners, and neighbors. To better understand the experience and the meaning of being a family caregiver go to The National Family Caregiver Story Project. The NFCA Story Project is a collection of first-person accounts by family caregivers. It is the gateway to becoming part of a growing group of family caregivers who have reached out to share their thoughts, feelings and find solace in the words of others. As you read the stories of America's family caregivers you may find yourself nodding in recognition and find the answers to Who are America's Caregivers?

Research and Statistics:

NFCA Research and Reports have focused largely, but not exclusively, on those family caregivers who provide significant levels of care. One aspect of our research has sought to better understand how to communicate effectively with family caregivers, since so many are uncomfortable with calling themselves anything other than a spouse, a parent, or a loving adult child.

There is an extensive body of family caregiver research available on many different aspects of the caregiving experience. You can find out more about the financial, physical and emotional impact of family caregiving as well as information on family caregivers at work and in the healthcare system in the Caregiver Statistics section of this site.

Senate Concurrent Resolution No. 13

My name is Kevin Turkington. I am the CEO of Senior Care of Alaska Inc, serving senior Alaskans since 2002, the board president of the Older Persons Action Group since 2003 and the newly formed Alaska Chapter of the National Private Duty Association, NPDA. The Alaska Chapter of the NPDA is result of four private, competing companies working together for those we feel a strong passion to serve and protect.

I am testifying in support of SCR13. I believe it can be the vehicle that brings a better balance to our states legislation and support for our ENTIRE senior population. So much of our resources appear to be focused on our low income seniors; and I agree that these senior individuals need that support. However, about 75 percent of the senior population are not eligible for most of these services.

The most profound statement of SCR13 is on line 11 and 12, which states: "WHEREAS the longer seniors are able to provide for themselves, the less the public payment systems supported by state and federal governments are burdened" I believe we as a state focus more on providing for low income persons; to the tune of about $38,500<sup>1</sup> per person of the total 3676<sup>2</sup> recipients in the Medicaid Waiver program alone. These costs continue to rise as we increasingly throw more money into a system that over time seems to increase and even encourages dependence on it. There are providers<sup>3</sup> who flat out tell seniors and their families that they need to get their loved ones into a 'spend-down' situation as soon as possible so as to use their services under Medicaid.

The recent Federal Audit and Moratorium of the Medicaid program in Alaska speaks loud and clear to the problems we as a state face, including the reality that the current system seems to pay for poor management and fraud, making serving the Medicaid system very lucrative for many. Ever wonder why about 90<sup>4</sup> percent of agencies serving senior and disabled Alaskans are Medicaid providers? Guaranteed income! Add to that, it appears the state is even considering rewarding these organizations with more money through a review process if they find they aren't making enough profit providing services under Medicaid<sup>5</sup>.

I believe that the best way to serve seniors and lower the costs of doing so is by empowering both the senior and their providers whether by a family member or a professional caregiver. I believe that this can be accomplished best by filtering all current regulations and subsequent legislation through SCR13 and the powerful statement it makes on behalf of seniors and their families. I believe it says that we as a state really do care about our seniors, all of them.

I think that if we stay on a path we are currently on, throwing more and more of our resources towards a system that can't be sustained, we will not meet the challenge.

However, by recognizing seniors caregiving as a profession, by supporting the private duty home care industry and the efforts of family caregivers to provide care to family, friends and neighbors, by encouraging accessible and affordable care for ALL seniors, and provide the educational support on the effects of aging and the importance and availability of senior caregivers we will meet the challenge Alaska faces with the expected 157 percent<sup>6</sup> growth of our senior population over the next 20 years.

I believe most of us really do care about those we propose to serve. I know I do. It's why I started my company and it's why I actively serve in the community with several organizations.

I believe that by providing a means, both in education and support for people to do for themselves and encourage less dependence on the State of Alaska will we be able to meet the challenges ahead. Medicaid was designed to help those individuals who just plain fall through the cracks, whether by choice or by no fault of their own. But widening the cracks isn't the answer.

I ask that you recommend passage of Senate Concurrent Resolution 13 and pledge to help support all of our seniors, making safe, affordable and professional care accessible, whether through family, friends or organizations. I can assure you that I will be doing so both through my company as well as through the organizations I serve with.

In service,

Kevin Turkington, CSA
