SB 30

An Act providing for the release of property in the custody of a law enforcement agency to the owner under certain conditions

SB 30 introduces within the Alaska Code of Criminal Procedure a process for victims of property crime to petition the court for relief in recovering their property held as evidence.

All too often victims of theft and robbery are victimized a second time by bureaucracy. This is particularly true in cases of property crimes where demonstrable loss occurs to the victim's person or business as a result of property being held for a protracted period of time by a law enforcement agency, usually at the direction of prosecution, defense counsel and/or other interested parties.

The law as currently written, provides discretionary authority to the prosecution for release of property, but does not clearly provide a right of hearing for a property owner to directly petition the court in those circumstances when property owners, prosecution and defense cannot come to agreement on return of property to the owner.

Victims of property theft often face the added burden of replacing stolen property. Small business owners who suffer property loss may face bankruptcy if the theft of property results in the inability to consummate a sale, continue their business operations, or the stolen property is uninsured or underinsured.

Property recovered by a law enforcement agency may be held as evidence for months or years. Property owners deserve protections in the law to ensure their property is held as evidence only as long as necessary for the prosecution and defense to physically retain the item, without jeopardizing the case.

SB 30 will provide property owners in the Alaska Code of Criminal Procedure, a clearly identifiable process to petition the court for the recovery of their property in those circumstances where they are otherwise not able to reach agreement with interested parties on the return of the property.

SECTION ANALYSIS – CS SB30 (2d JUD)

Section 1

1. Provides that a crime victim who is the owner of property in the custody of a law enforcement agency may request the agency for the return of their property through the Office of Victims' Rights (OVR).
2. OVR will file the request with the agency after conducting an investigation into the request to make an initial determination if the crime victim is entitled to return of the property being claimed under the requirements of proposed 12.36.070(c): the crime victim provides satisfactory proof of ownership, and the party that objects to the return of the property fails to prove that the property must be retained by the agency for evidentiary purposes.
3. Once OVR makes such a determination, they will request on behalf of the crime victim that the agency return the property.
4. Within 10 days after receipt of request and following reasonable notice to prosecution, defense and other interested parties, the agency will request a hearing before the court to determine if the property shall be released to the crime victim.
5. The court of jurisdiction is identified in cases involving a pending criminal case and in situations where no criminal case is pending.
6. Establishes the burden of proof to be a preponderance of the evidence, for both the crime victim showing ownership and the objecting party proving the property must be retained by the agency.
7. Establishes that if the court orders the return of the property to the crime victim, the court may impose reasonable conditions on the return to maintain the evidentiary integrity of the property.
8. Identifies the term crime victim as having the meaning given to victim in AS 12.55.185, the Code of Criminal Procedure.

Section 2

1. Establishes within Title 24, Chapter 65 Office of Victims' Rights the authority of OVR to request a law enforcement agency for return of property on behalf of a crime victim claiming property after conducting an investigation as proscribed in AS 12.36.070(c).
2. Provides that the victims' advocate may use any of the powers granted to the advocate under Title 24, Chapter 65.

CS SB30(2d JUD) - EXPLANATION OF CHANGES

The substantive changes to SB 30 since introduction on 01/19/11 are as follows:

1. The use of the term owner was changed to crime victim out of a concern that bill language would allow for defendants to misuse the return of property hearing process, and detract from the intention of the bill, to promote victims' rights by returning property to crime victims.
2. The introduction of the Office of Victims' Rights to the return of property process was done to alleviate a concern that bill language may inadvertently open the door to a significant number of requests for return of property hearings from crime victims, and that a required intermediary step be considered to vet the requests to make a pre-determination concerning eligibility of crime victims to have their property returned to them.
3. Original bill language permitted property owners to directly request from a law enforcement agency the return of their property. For reasons mentioned in #2, the current version provides that the Office of Victims' Rights files a request with the law enforcement agency on behalf of the crime victim for return of property.
4. Original bill language required the law enforcement agency to prove that the agency or another interested party is authorized to retain possession of the property. Judiciary committee members and the Office of Public Defender recommended that the party that objects to the return of the property should be the entity with the burden of proof that the property should be retained and not returned to the crime victim.
5. Department of Law requested the following changes in cooperation with the bill sponsor –
 - a. Clarification of court jurisdiction when the property in question is part of a criminal case, and when it is not part of a criminal case.
 - b. An evidentiary standard of proof be established to guide the Court with decisions of whether the burden of proof is met by the parties. The standard is a preponderance of the evidence.
 - c. The party who objects to the return of property to a crime victim shall state the reason on the record.
 - d. Clarifies the reasonable conditions the court may impose on the return of property to crime victims to maintain the evidentiary integrity of the property.
6. The term crime victim is defined as the meaning given to victim in AS 12.55.185, Alaska Code of Criminal Procedure.
7. Consistent with the changes identified in #2, the current version of SB 30 establishes within Title 24, Chapter 65 – Office of Victims' Rights, the authority of OVR to request a law enforcement agency for return of property on behalf of a crime victim.

RE Senate Bill 30

Dear Senator Dyson,

On behalf of the National Federation of Independent Business/Alaska, I wish to express our support for Senate Bill 30. The National Federation of Independent Business is the largest small-business advocacy group in Alaska.

SB 30 would provide a mechanism for businesses that have had property stolen to gain assistance in recovering the items that are often critical to the continuation of a person's business.

While often there is not a problem retrieving property from authorities that are prosecuting a case, there are times when small businesses find that they are not considered as important as other issues. SB 30 provides the person assistance from the office of victims' rights to help recover stolen property being held by a law enforcement agency.

While the problem of retrieving stolen property is not always a problem, small businesses have found themselves fighting the government who has bottomless resources. The legal cost and loss of business are a very heavy burden to small businesses.

We believe that CSSB 30 is a reasonable solution to a potentially devastating problem for small businesses.

Sincerely yours,

Dennis L. DeWitt
Alaska State Director

January 5, 2011 one of our employees was involved in a traffic accident on the Sterling Highway. Another driver lost control of her vehicle, crossed the road and ran into our vehicle. She was not wearing a seatbelt, was thrown from her vehicle, and consequently died on scene. The State Troopers confiscated our vehicle and trailer and have kept it in their impound yard in Soldotna since that time.

It has been 13 months since that accident with no police report or indication that we will be able to get our equipment back any time soon, nor are we able to make a settlement with the insurance company. If we were a smaller business than we are, we would be out of business by not having access to our equipment to continue to operate. Renting equipment to replace what is in impound until the case is settled would be a financial burden we would have to incur until the troopers complete their paperwork.

We would like to see this process improved with a timelier turnaround for the parties involved so that life and business can continue. It is just as hard on the deceased family to have to go through this again a year or more later with an insurance claim as it is for the injured parties.

If this is due to the legal system then it needs to change. If it is the political system this needs to change. We need decisions made right away when everything is fresh in people's minds, not six months or one to two years after and the file has sat on someone's desk.

BILL NO. CSSB 30 (2nd JUD)

Analysis

In the last four years, the OVR has received only a few requests from crime victims regarding the return of property held by a criminal justice agency during the course of a criminal prosecution. It is anticipated that current OVR staff and resources exist to process requests associated with SB 30. If more OVR resources are needed to fulfill the mandate of SB 30, it is believed additional funding and/or resources may be obtained in the future to satisfy the requirements of SB 30.

BILL NO. CSSB 30(2d JUD)

Analysis

This bill amends AS 12.36 by adding a new section regarding the return of property in the custody of a law enforcement agency. This legislation specifies that the owner of property in the custody of a law enforcement agency may request that the agency return the property. Further, that within 10 days of the request and following reasonable notice to all involved parties, a request for a court hearing shall be made.

Currently it is the standard practice of the department to return seized personal property as soon as possible. This legislation will not have a significant impact on the workload of the department.

FISCAL NOTE #4

STATE OF ALASKA
2012 LEGISLATIVE SESSION

BILL NO. CSSB 30(2d JUD)

Analysis

SB 30 would adopt a procedure for the owner of property to request the Office of Victims' Rights to investigate whether property in the custody of law enforcement should be returned to them. The Victims' Advocate may, after an investigation, request that a hearing about the property be held. This note is indeterminate because the department may be required to represent law enforcement agencies at the hearings proposed in the bill. At this time we are not sure how many of these proceedings will occur. The issues raised may be complex, particularly if defense counsel opposes the return.
