HB 347 – Recovery of False Claims for State Funds

Sponsor Statement

The Alaska False Claims Act, HB 347, gives private citizens the ability to fight false or fraudulent claims for state money. Private citizens who become aware of someone making false claims for tax benefits, Medicaid reimbursement, or other state or municipal resources can take a case to court. If the case is won, the citizen who identified the fraud goes home with some of the proceeds.

The Alaska False Claims Act brings to Alaska a good idea that at least 29 other states and the federal government have implemented. The federal false claims act has resulted in $39 billion in settlements and judgements since 1986, with $4 billion of that going to private citizens who identified the fraud.

The Alaska False Claims Act provides Alaska a powerful tool to fight fraudulent use of government money by giving individual Alaskans greater ability to bring that fraud to light.

Section 2

Sec 37.10.110: Prohibits a person from making false or fraudulent claims for state or municipal resources, including fraudulent claims for payment. The section applies to claims under AS 43, Revenue and Taxation, if the income or sales of the person making the false claim exceeds $1,000,000 and the damages sought exceed $350,000. A violation of the section is punishable by a civil penalty of $6,000-$12,000 in addition to the costs of the enforcement action.

Sec 37.10.115: Provides that damages awarded for a successful false claims action shall be three times the damages sustained by the state or municipality. The damages may be reduced to two times damages if the person who committed the violation facilitates the investigation.

Sec 37.10.120: Charges the attorney general with investigating false claims cases. Prevents false claims cases from being brought against the federal government, the state, or a municipality, or against their employees. Requires the attorney general to consult with the Department of Health and Social Services before taking action in welfare or Medicaid cases, and with the commissioner of revenue before taking action in revenue or taxation cases. Requires a qui tam plaintiff to obtain approval from the attorney general before making a motion to compel the disclosure of tax records.

Sec 37.10.125: Allows an individual, referred to as a qui tam plaintiff, to bring a civil action for a violation of Sec 37.10.110 if the state or a municipality fails to do so. The state or a municipality may choose to intervene or proceed with the action brought by the qui tam plaintiff within 60 days. If the state or municipality chooses not to intervene or proceed, the qui tam plaintiff may bring the action.

Sec 37.10.130: Provides that if the state or a municipality proceeds with a false claims action, the attorney general or municipality bears primary responsibility for prosecuting the action, though the qui tam plaintiff may proceed as a party. The state or municipality can dismiss the case, settle the case, or limit the qui tam plaintiff's participation notwithstanding objections of the qui tam plaintiff. If the qui tam plaintiff proceeds with a case that the state or a municipality has declined to pursue, the court may allow the state or a municipality to intervene at a later date. The court may also stay actions of discovery by the qui tam plaintiff if those would interfere with an investigation by the state or a municipality. The state or a municipality may also seek to resolve claims brought by a qui tam plaintiff through a different proceeding. The qui tam plaintiff shall have the same rights in that different proceeding as he or she would have had in civil proceedings.

Sec 37.10.135: If the state or a municipality proceeds with an action brought by a qui tam plaintiff, the qui tam plaintiff shall be awarded between 15% and 25% of the proceeds of the action, depending on the plaintiff's contribution to the prosecution, plus attorney fees and costs. If the false claims action is based primarily on information not provided by the qui tam plaintiff, the award shall not exceed 10%, plus attorney fees and costs. If the qui tam plaintiff proceeds in an action, rather than the state or a municipality, the plaintiff shall receive between 25% and 30% of the proceeds, plus attorney fees and costs. These amounts may be reduced based on the role the qui tam plaintiff plays in advancing the case to litigation. If the qui tam plaintiff is implicated in violation of Sec 37.10.110, the plaintiff shall be dismissed from the action and receive no award. A qui tam plaintiff may be liable for defendant's attorney fees if the claim brought was frivolous, vexatious, or brought primarily for purposes of harassment.

Sec 37.10.140: A case brought under this act shall be dismissed if the case is based upon allegations subject to pending civil or administrative action, and may be dismissed if the false claim has already been publicly disclosed. An action may not be brought against a member of the legislature or judiciary, the Governor, the Lieutenant Governor, or the head of an executive department if brought based upon information known to the attorney general.

Sec 37.10.145: Neither the state or a municipality is liable for expenses incurred by a qui tam plaintiff.

Sec 37.10.150: An employee retaliated against for pursuing action under the provisions of this act shall be entitled to all relief necessary to make the employee whole.

Alaska Can Save Millions with a False Claims Act & Whistleblower Protection

“Thieves Operate in the Dark, Yet are Visible in Ways Many Can See.”

—Scottish Proverb

The federal False Claims Act, a law that operates primarily in the private sector, brought to the Federal Treasury almost $21 billion in fraud recoveries over the past five years.

The law is universally praised for its effectiveness in gaining compensation for fraud committed against the federal taxpayers and, more importantly, for its vast deterrent effect on potential fraudsters. The FCA calls for the award of treble damages and attorney’s fees and fines for the commission of fraud against the federal government. Private citizens are empowered by the law to investigate and pursue fraud litigation on behalf of the federal government.

Twenty-nine States and the District of Columbia have enacted their own false claims acts. The federal government incentivizes states to do so by expanding the state’s share of the recovery in Medicaid fraud cases. Alaska does not have a false claims act, nor a comprehensive whistleblower protection act.

A past effort in the Alaska Legislature toward enacting such a law failed on the ground the law as then written may end up enriching the Alaska Law Department far more than it does the citizens of Alaska.

Yet, there is no good reason to have an Alaska false claims act administered by the Law Department. That department has had the authority and obligation to do something along such lines for the past fifty years without yet doing so. The Law Department is governed by politics, not fraud recovery numbers, like the private sector would.

So, this year’s legislative proposal on this subject leaves most of the work to the private sector, just as the federal False Claims Act does.

The needed companion for an effective false claims act is a broad set of whistleblower protections, such as confidentiality and immunity from employment sanctions due to whistleblowing, along with financial incentives. This year’s proposal for Alaska molds the best of such laws from across the country into one law. Operating the new Alaska Hotline for Fraud will be competitively bid in the private sector.

The money provided to whistleblowers and their lawyers is typically drawn from sums that the federal and state governments would never have otherwise. Since the law only punishes fraud, not breach of contract or other theories of law, there is little downside risk by intimidating or harassing honest Alaska businesses.

FISCAL NOTE ANALYSIS

STATE OF ALASKA
2016 LEGISLATIVE SESSION

BILL NO. HB 347

Analysis

HB 347 establishes the Alaska False Claims Act (AFCA), which provides that no person may knowingly submit, authorize, or cause to be submitted, a false or fraudulent claim to the state or municipality for payment or approval. Under this AFCA, the court may impose a civil penalty of not less than $6,000 and not more than $12,000 in addition to the costs and fees associated with the enforcement under this AFCA. And if proven, the court is required to impose treble damages (three times the actual damages). Damages can be reduced if the person liable furnishes information to the state or municipality all information known to the person about the violation not later than 30 days after the information was obtained and the person cooperates with the attorney general, and no current action is pending with respect to the violation.

Under the AFCA, an action for damages due to a false or fraudulent claims may be brought by the attorney general, a municipality or by a private (qui tam) plaintiff. If the qui tam plaintiff files a complaint, the complaint is under seal for at least 60 days to allow the attorney general time to investigate the action and decide whether proceed with the action, intervene in the action, authorize the municipality to proceed with the action, authorize the municipality to intervene in the action, notify the court that the attorney general will not take the action but allow the qui tam plaintiff to proceed. The attorney general may request an extension of time to conduct the investigation.

If the attorney general elects not to proceed with the action, the qui tam plaintiff may proceed but the attorney general or municipality may move to dismiss the action over the objection of the qui tam plaintiff, so long as the qui tam plaintiff has an opportunity to object, or to settle the case, providing the qui tam plaintiff an opportunity to comment in court on the proposed settlement. The attorney general or municipality may also limit the participation of the qui tam plaintiffs under certain circumstances. If the state or municipality fails to file an action under proposed AS 37.10.120, a person who brought the action has the right to proceed and conduct the action in the name of the person and the state. If the qui tam plaintiff is allowed to proceed, the attorney general or municipality may request to serve with all documents related to an action pursued by the qui tam plaintiff. To protect pending state investigations, the attorney general may request a court to stay discovery for not more than 60 days.

If the action comes from a qui tam plaintiff, the qui tam plaintiff is entitled to damages as follows: for a successful action brought the attorney general or a municipality, the qui tam plaintiff is entitled to a 15 to 25 percentage of damages recovered, unless the court finds that the claims were based primarily on disclosures or other information by the qui tam plaintiff that arise out of a collateral source, the court may only award up to 10 percent of the damages. If the state does not proceed in the action, but the qui tam plaintiffs prevails, 25 to 30 percent of the award shall go to the qui tam plaintiff. If the court finds that the qui tam plaintiffs was part of the false claim it may reduce any award to the qui tam plaintiff. Under either scenario, if the action is successful, reasonable costs and fees are available to the attorney general, the municipality or the qui tam plaintiff, paid by the defendant.

The bill identifies certain actions that do not constitute a false claim (actions against the legislature, the judiciary, the governor or lieutenant governor) if the information was known to the attorney general when the action was brought, if the claims were publically known or if the claims are based upon a pending civil or administrative action where the state or municipality is already a party. Finally, the AFCA so provides for whistle blower protection for reporting false claims.

The Department of Law cannot estimate the number of possible violations that the attorney general may be required to investigate and the fiscal effect on the department is indeterminate.

8 involving damages to a municipality, the attorney general may provide a copy of the 9 complaint and written disclosure to the municipality. The state may elect to intervene
10 or proceed with the action, or to authorize the municipality that may have sustained
11 damages to intervene or proceed with the action, within 60 days after the state receives 12 both the complaint and the material evidence and information.

13 (d) The state may, for good cause shown, move the court for extension of the 14 time during which the complaint remains under seal under (b) of this section. A 15 motion may be supported by affidavits or other submissions under seal.

16 (e) Before the expiration of the 60-day period or an extension obtained under 17 (d) of this section, the attorney general shall

18 (1) proceed with the action, in which case the action shall be 19 conducted by the state;

20 (2) intervene in the action, as of right, to assist the private plaintiff in 21 the action;

22 (3) authorize a municipality to proceed with the action, in which case
23 the action shall be conducted by the municipality;

24 (4) authorize a municipality to intervene, as of right, to aid and assist 25 the private plaintiff; or

26 (5) notify the private plaintiff and the court that the attorney general
27 declines to take over or authorize a municipality to take over the action, in which case
28 the private plaintiff may conduct the action.

29 (f) An action may not be filed under this section against the federal 30 government, the state, or a municipality, or any officer or employee of the federal 31 government, the state, or a municipality acting in the person's official capacity.

1 (g) When a person brings a valid action under this section, no person other
2 than the state or municipality may intervene or bring a related action based on the facts
3 underlying the pending action.

4 (h) The defendant may not be required to respond to a complaint filed under 5 this section until after the complaint is unsealed and served on the defendant under the 6 applicable Rules of Civil Procedure.

7 Sec. 37.10.130. Rights of the parties to false claim actions. (a) If the state or 8 a municipality proceeds with a false claims action, the attorney general or municipality
9 shall have the primary responsibility for prosecuting the action and may not be bound
10 by an act of the private plaintiff. The private plaintiff may continue as a party to the 11 action, subject to the limitations under (b) - (d) of this section.

12 (b) The state or municipality may seek to dismiss the action for good cause, 13 notwithstanding the objections of the private plaintiff, if the private plaintiff has been 14 notified by the state or municipality of the filing of the motion and the court has 15 provided the private plaintiff with an opportunity to oppose the motion and present
16 evidence at a hearing.

17 (c) The state or municipality may settle the action with the defendant,
18 notwithstanding the objections of the private plaintiff, if the court determines, after a 19 hearing providing the private plaintiff an opportunity to present evidence, that the 20 proposed settlement is fair, adequate, and reasonable under all of the circumstances.

21 (d) On a showing by the state or municipality that unrestricted participation 22 during the course of the litigation by the private plaintiff would interfere with or 23 unduly delay the state or municipality's prosecution of the case or would be 24 repetitious, irrelevant, or for purposes of harassment, the court may, in its discretion, 25 impose limitations on the private plaintiff's participation, including

- 26 (1) limiting the number of witnesses the private plaintiff may call;
27 (2) limiting the length of the testimony of the witnesses the private 28 plaintiff calls;
29 (3) limiting the private plaintiff's cross-examination of witnesses; and 30 (4) otherwise limiting the participation by the private plaintiff in the 31 litigation.

1 (e) If the state or municipality elects not to proceed with the action, the private
2 plaintiff may conduct the action. Upon request of the state or municipality, the private
3 plaintiff shall serve copies of all pleadings filed in the action and shall supply copies
4 of all deposition transcripts at the expense of the state or municipality. When a private 5 plaintiff proceeds with the action, the court, without limiting the status and rights of 6 the private plaintiff, may nevertheless permit the state or municipality to intervene at a
7 later date on a showing of good cause.

8 (f) Whether or not the state or municipality proceeds with the action, on a 9 showing by the state or municipality that certain actions of discovery by the private 10 plaintiff would interfere with the state or municipality's investigation or prosecution of 11 a criminal or civil matter arising out of the same facts, the court may stay discovery
12 for not more than 60 days. The court may extend the 60-day period on a further 13 showing that the state or municipality has pursued the criminal or civil investigation or 14 proceedings with reasonable diligence and proposed discovery in the civil action will 15 interfere with the ongoing criminal or civil investigation or proceedings.

16 (g) Notwithstanding the requirements of this section, the state or municipality
17 may elect to pursue its claim through an alternate remedy available to the state or 18 municipality, including a criminal or administrative proceeding to determine a penalty.
19 If an alternate remedy is pursued in another proceeding, the private plaintiff shall have 20 the same rights in the proceeding as the private plaintiff would have had if the action
21 had continued under this section. A finding of fact or conclusion of law that has 22 become final shall be conclusive on all parties to an action under this section. For 23 purposes of this subsection, a finding or conclusion is final if it has been finally 24 determined on appeal by the appropriate court, if all time for filing an appeal with 25 respect to the finding or conclusion has expired, or if the finding or conclusion is not 26 subject to judicial review.

27 Sec. 37.10.135. Award to private plaintiff. (a) If the state or municipality 28 proceeds with or intervenes in an action brought by a private plaintiff under 29 AS 37.10.110 - 37.10.195, the private plaintiff shall, except as otherwise provided in 30 this section, be awarded at least 15 percent but not more than 25 percent of the 31 proceeds of the action or settlement of the claim, including damages, civil penalties,

1 payments for costs of compliance, and any other economic benefit realized by the
2 state, municipality, or federal government as a result of the action, depending on the 3 extent that the private plaintiff substantially contributed to the prosecution of the 4 action.

5 (b) If a court finds a false claims action to be based primarily on disclosures of 6 specific information, other than information provided by the private plaintiff, relating
7 to allegations or transactions specifically in a criminal, civil, or administrative hearing,
8 or in a legislative or administrative report, hearing, audit, or investigation, or from the 9 news media, the court may make an award it considers appropriate, not to exceed 10
10 percent of the proceeds, taking into account the significance of the information and the 11 role of the private plaintiff in acquiring the proceeds. The court may also award the 12 private plaintiff an amount to cover reasonable and necessary expenses, including 13 reasonable attorney fees and costs allowable under the court rules. All expenses, fees, 14 and costs awarded under this subsection must be awarded against the defendant.

15 (c) If the state or municipality does not proceed with an action under 16 AS 37.10.110 - 37.10.195, the private plaintiff shall receive an amount that the court
17 decides is reasonable for collecting the civil penalty and damages. The amount may 18 not be less than 25 percent nor more than 30 percent of the proceeds of the action or 19 settlement and shall be paid out of the proceeds, including damages, civil penalties,
20 payments for costs of compliance, and any other economic benefit realized by the 21 state, municipality, or federal government as a result of the action. The award to the 22 private plaintiff must also include an amount for reasonable expenses that the court
23 finds to have been necessarily incurred, including reasonable attorney fees and costs
24 allowable under the court rules. All expenses, fees, and costs awarded under this 25 subsection shall be awarded against the defendant.

26 (d) Whether or not the state or municipality proceeds with a false claims 27 action, if the court finds that the private plaintiff planned and initiated a violation of 28 AS 37.10.110(a), the court may, to the extent the court considers appropriate, reduce 29 the share of the proceeds of the action that the private plaintiff would otherwise 30 receive under (a) - (c) of this section, taking into account the role of the private 31 plaintiff in advancing the case to litigation and all relevant circumstances pertaining to

1 the violation. If the private plaintiff is convicted of criminal conduct arising from the 2 private plaintiff's role in the violation of AS 37.10.110(a), the private plaintiff shall be
3 dismissed from the civil action and may not receive a share of the proceeds of the 4 action. The dismissal may not prejudice the right of the state or municipality to 5 continue the action.

6 (e) If the state or municipality does not proceed with the action and the private
7 plaintiff conducts the action, the court may award to the defendant the defendant's
8 reasonable attorney fees and expenses allowable under the court rules if the defendant
9 prevails in the action and the court finds that the claim of the private plaintiff was 10 frivolous, vexatious, or brought primarily for purposes of harassment.

11 (f) In this section, "proceeds" excludes attorney fees and costs awarded to the 12 state or municipality.

13 Sec. 37.10.140. Certain actions barred. An action brought by a private
14 plaintiff under AS 37.10.110 - 37.10.195 shall be dismissed if the action

15 (1) is based on allegations or transactions that are the subject of a 16 pending civil action or administrative action in which the state or municipality is 17 already a party;

18 (2) is against a member of the legislature, a member of the judiciary, 19 the governor, the lieutenant governor, or the head of an executive department, if the 20 action is based on evidence or information known to the attorney general when the 21 action was brought; or

22 (3) alleges elements of actionable false claims that have been publicly 23 disclosed specifically in the news media or in a publicly disseminated governmental 24 report or pleading before the complaint was filed.

25 Sec. 37.10.145. State or municipality not liable for certain expenses. The 26 state or a municipality is not liable for expenses a private plaintiff incurs in bringing 27 an action under AS 37.10.110 - 37.10.195.

28 Sec. 37.10.150. Private action for retaliation. (a) An employee who is 29 discharged, demoted, suspended, threatened, harassed, or in any other manner 30 discriminated against in the terms and conditions of employment by the person's 31 employer because of lawful acts done by the employee on behalf of the employee or

1 others in furtherance of an action under AS 37.10.110 - 37.10.195, including 2 investigation for, initiation of, testimony for, or assistance in an action filed or to be
3 filed, is entitled to all relief necessary to make the employee whole. Relief includes 4 reinstatement with the same seniority status the employee would have had but for the 5 discrimination, twice the amount of back pay, interest on the back pay, and 6 compensation for special damages sustained as a result of the discrimination,
7 including litigation costs and reasonable attorney fees. An employee may bring an 8 action in the appropriate court of the state for the relief provided in this section.

9 (b) In this section, "employer" means a natural person, corporation, firm,
10 association, organization, partnership, business, trust, or publicly funded entity.

11 Sec. 37.10.190. Definitions. In AS 37.10.110 - 37.10.190,

12 (1) "claim" means a request or demand for money, property, or 13 services made to an employee, officer, or agent of the state or a municipality, or to any 14 contractor, grantee, or other recipient, whether under contract or not, of any portion of 15 money, property, or service requested or demanded from state or municipal funds as 16 reimbursement or direct payment;

17 (2) "knowing" and "knowingly" mean that a person, with or without 18 specific intent to defraud another person,

19 (A) has actual knowledge of information relating to a false
20 claim;

21 (B) acts in deliberate disregard for the truth or falsity of 22 information relating to a false claim; or

23 (C) acts in reckless disregard for the truth or falsity of 24 information relating to a false claim;

25 (3) "private plaintiff" means a person who initiates an action under 26 AS 37.10.125.

27 Sec. 37.10.195. Short title. AS 37.10.110 - 37.10.195 may be cited as the 28 Alaska False Claims Act.

29 * Sec. 3. AS 47.05 is amended by adding a new section to article 1 to read:

30 Sec. 47.05.110. False claims. The department shall cooperate with the attorney
31 general and, subject to a subpoena issued by a court of competent jurisdiction, a

1 person who brings a civil action for a violation of AS 37.10.110 - 37.10.195 (Alaska
2 False Claims Act).

3 * Sec. 4. AS 47.25.260 is amended to read:

4 Sec. 47.25.260. Recovery and disposition of allowances improperly
5 granted. If the department finds that a general relief allowance has been improperly
6 granted, it shall investigate, and if it appears from the investigation that the assistance
7 was improperly granted, the department may cancel the allowance and notify the 8 recipient of the cancellation. The state then has a claim against the person who 9 received the improper allowance. Except for a false claim that may be enforced
10 under AS 37.10.110 - 37.10.195 (Alaska False Claims Act), the [THE] claim may 11 be enforced by civil action in the name of the state by the attorney general to recover 12 the amount paid to the person, with interest, together with the necessary costs of the 13 action.

14 * Sec. 5. AS 47.25.500(a) is amended to read:

15 (a) If the department has reasonable grounds for believing that assistance was 16 improperly granted, it shall investigate and document the grounds in the case file, and,
17 if it appears as a result of the investigation that assistance was improperly granted, it 18 may, after providing an opportunity for a hearing, terminate or reduce assistance and 19 notify the recipient to that effect. The department shall continue the payment of 20 benefits pending the hearing. The state has a claim against a person who received an 21 improper amount of assistance. Except for a false claim that may be enforced
22 under AS 37.10.110 - 37.10.195 (Alaska False Claims Act), the [THE] claim may 23 be enforced by an action instituted in the name of the state by the attorney general to 24 recover the amount paid to the person, with interest, together with the necessary costs
25 of the action.

26 * Sec. 6. AS 47.27.085 is amended by adding a new subsection to read:

27 (f) A false claim submitted under the Alaska temporary assistance program is 28 subject to investigation and prosecution under AS 37.10.110 - 37.10.195.

29 * Sec. 7. AS 36.30.687(a)(2) and 36.30.687(c) are repealed.

30 * Sec. 8. The uncodified law of the State of Alaska is amended by adding a new section to
31 read:

9 * Sec. 10. The uncodified law of the State of Alaska is amended by adding a new section to
10 read:

11 INDIRECT COURT RULE AMENDMENT. AS 37.10.125(e) and 37.10.130, added
12 by sec. 2 of this Act, have the effect of amending Rule 24, Alaska Rules of Civil Procedure,
13 by limiting intervention and by changing the procedure for intervention by allowing the state
14 or a municipality to intervene at various times and for various reasons in a false claims action
15 brought by a private party.

16 * Sec. 11. The uncodified law of the State of Alaska is amended by adding a new section to 17 read:

HB 347 — Recovery of False Claims for State Funds

Summary of Changes, Version A to Version H

All mentions of in camera have been eliminated.

The term “qui tam plaintiff” has been replaced with “private plaintiff” throughout the bill.

The act no longer applies to claims made under AS 43, “Revenue and Taxation.” Sec. 37.10.110(b)

In section 37.10.125(e)(5), the attorney general is now required to notify both the private plaintiff and the court if the attorney general declines to take over a case filed by a private plaintiff. The prior version required only notifying the court.

Section 37.10.130(e), has been amended to state that a private plaintiff need only serve copies of pleadings and supply copies of deposition transcripts to the state or a municipality if the state or municipality requests the private plaintiff do so. This corrects unintended language in the prior version.

Section 37.10.135(d) has been amended to state that the court may reduce the share of the proceeds under the subsection only if the person bringing the action planned and initiated the false claims violation. This change corrects unintended language in the prior version and brings the act in line with the federal false claims acts and other state acts.

Section 37.10.140 has been amended to standardize the procedure for barring action. The prior version used different language in each subsection; the new version states that an action “shall be dismissed” if it falls into one of three categories. The new version also specifies that it only applies to actions brought by private plaintiffs, a change that brings the act in line with language in SB 74 and the federal act.

HB 366 — Recovery of False Claims for State Funds

Examples of cases brought under state false claims acts

This document was put together by the office of Rep. Kreiss-Tomkins, using examples compiled by Taxpayers Against Fraud and available online at <http://www.taf.org/success-at-state-level>

New Life Lodge Agrees to Resolve TennCare Fraud Allegations for $9.25 Million

Tennessee: Attorney General Bob Cooper announced that CRC Health Group has agreed to pay $9.25 million to the state of Tennessee to settle alleged TennCare fraud. CRC allegedly provided substandard services, exceeded its state-licensed patient capacity, and double-billed the TennCare program for prescription drugs.

AG Jepsen: State Reaches False Claims Act Settlement with Southington Dental Provider

Connecticut: Dr. DeRienzo, a Southington, CT dentist, will pay $55,000 to settle civil healthcare fraud allegations involving the filing of false and fraudulent claims for payments from Connecticut's Medicaid program. In particular, Dr. DeRienzo is alleged to have falsely charged the Department of Social Services for resin-based composite fillings that, in fact, patients did not receive. In addition, he has agreed to enter into a separate agreement with the DSS to be permanently barred from participation as a dentist in the Connecticut Medical Assistance Program.

APS Healthcare Pays $13 Million to Settle Investigation into False Medicaid Claims

Georgia: Innovative Resources Group, LLC, doing business as APS Healthcare Midwest has reached a $13 million settlement with the State of Georgia and the United States to resolve allegations under the False Claims Act. The settlement resolves allegations that APS Healthcare submitted false claims to Medicaid through the Georgia Department of Community Health (DCH). APS Healthcare agreed to provide case and disease management services to Georgia Medicaid recipients while APS Healthcare was paid a monthly fee for each member receiving such services. The government contends that from September 1, 2007 through February 28, 2010, APS Healthcare failed to provide the required services to a large portion of the Medicaid recipients and over-billed DCH in its monthly invoices.

Office Depot pay $43 Million to Settle Supply Lawsuit

California: The settlement is a result of a qui tam suit filed by former employee, David Sherwin of Florida. Sherwin claimed the company systematically violated the terms of cooperative contracts used by 1,200 government agencies to purchase pens, ink, furniture and other goods. The largest recipient of settlement funds will be the City of Los Angeles, which will receive $11.66 million. Santa Clara County will receive $3 million, and the County of Los Angeles will receive nearly $1.95 million.

Indiana joins suit against Brown Mackie, Art Institute parent company

Indiana: Attorney General Greg Zoeller's Office joins three other states and the federal government in a whistleblower lawsuit against Education Management Corporation (EDMC). The state and federal governments allege the EDMC defendants violated Title IV of the Higher Education Act of 1965 that bans incentive compensation for college admissions employees based on the numbers of students they enroll. EDMC is accused of lying to the federal government when it certified compliance with federal rules.

$1.7 Mil. False Claim Settlement with State's Largest Long Term Care Provider

Hawaii: First Deputy Attorney General Richard Bissen announced that the State of Hawaii secured a $1.7 million false claim settlement from Beverly Enterprises Hawaii, Inc., in connection to its Hale Nani Rehabilitation and Nursing Center. The Center allegedly falsified records, engaged in irregular patient prescription practices, and participated in kickback schemes for medication and pharmacy services.

Painting Company Sued for Failing to Pay More Than $2 Million to Employees

Massachusetts: Attorney General Martha Coakley announced that M&J Painting, Inc. will pay its employees more than $2 million in wages in violating of Massachusetts wage and overtime laws, for engaging in unfair competition, and for violating the Massachusetts False Claims Act. M&J knowingly submitted false certified payroll records to the state government.

Chevron Corporation to Pay $5.2 Million for Improper Application for Funds from the New Mexico Corrective Action Fund

New Mexico: The settlement resolved claims Chevron submitted applications to the NM Corrective Action Fund seeking public funds to clean up petroleum contamination from Chevron's own leaking underground storage tanks at gasoline stations around New Mexico. Chevron claimed it did not have outside insurance to pay for such costs. The state alleged that Chevron did recover from outside insurers through secret settlements.

A.G. Schneiderman Announces $11 Million Multi-State Settlement Over Fraud Claims Against Long Island Tech Company

New York: Attorney General Eric T. Schneiderman announced that New York will be paid $708,795 as part of an $11 million multi-state settlement with CA, Inc. The company engaged in a scheme to overcharge government customers for computer software maintenance and servicing plans sold between 2001 and 2009.

Should there be a law? Qui tam statutes

ALASKA BAR RAG

By Bill Falsey

Alaska, like a dwindling number of other states, does not have a qui tam statute. Should it?

Qui tam statutes allow citizens to act as "private attorneys general" and bring civil suits in the name of the government. (Qui tam is short for "qui tam pro domino rege quam pro se ipso in hac parte sequitur," an eye-crossing parade of Latin meaning "who as well for the king as for himself sues in this matter.")

In the United States, the federal False Claims Act is the mostly widely known qui tam provision. Since liberalizing amendments in 1986, over 9,200 qui tam lawsuits have been filed under the False Claims Act, resulting in nearly $39 billion in settlements and judgments for the United States, with just over $4 billion of that amount going to the private qui tam filers, called "relators."

Like most qui tam provisions, the False Claims Act does not give private citizens an unfettered ability to bring claims on the government's behalf. A private litigant must provide a copy of his or her complaint to government before it can be served or made public, and while the qui tam complaint remains sealed, the government will undertake its own investigations.

Ultimately, the government may intervene and effectively take over the qui tam suit; decline to participate (allowing the private citizen to proceed in the government's absence); or move to dismiss the complaint. The size of the private litigant's recovery depends on the government's choice: of funds ultimately recovered through settlement or judgment, relators receive a maximum of 10-15% if the government intervenes, or 25-30% if the government does not.

Since 1987 (when the first wave was enacted), 29 states and the District of Columbia have adopted a qui tam statute similar to the federal law. (Several states' laws apply only to medical-assistance claims, however.)

Those who favor the trend argue that qui tam statutes lead to greater detection and stronger deterrence of fraud, both of which strengthen state treasuries. In the first 13 years after Illinois adopted its Whistleblower Reward and Protection Act, the state originated exactly zero false-claim cases. Qui tam litigants, by contrast, initiated 136. The Illinois Attorney General intervened in 130 of those 136 suits, ultimately leading to a recovery of over $21 million.

Opponents question the trend. They see the laws as encouraging frivolous lawsuits, and as possibly reducing the government's recovery. The United States intervenes in less than 25% of qui tam actions it sees, and opponents suspect that private litigants, in the successful suits, may merely be using the law to siphon money from judgments that the government, with more time, would have obtained on its own.

Others chart a middle course. They argue that qui tam provisions are valuable, but should be limited to subject areas that are difficult for a government's bureaucracy and department of law to police. Medical-billing claims are a leading candidate: of the $16 million recovered in qui tam suits filed in Tennessee between 1991 and 2005, every dollar was related to Medicaid fraud.

For its part, Congress has come down strongly in favor of state qui tam laws to Medicaid fraud. So much so, that's enacted a financial incentive: states that adopt a local version of the federal statute are entitled to 10% of the federal government's share of any recovery in a successful Medicaid-fraud action brought under the state law. And since Medicaid costs are often split 50%/50% between federal and state governments, those amounts can be significant.

What's the right answer? Should Alaska have a qui tam statute? Broad, or limited to Medicaid-fraud claims? Know of another statute that Alaska should consider?

PROTECTING THE ALASKA PUBLIC TREASURY

INTRODUCTION

By Chris Beheim and David Boyle

Chris Beheim has almost three decades of experience as a State of Alaska employee and manager. He retired in 2007 as director of the Alaska Scientific Crime Detection Laboratory. He was the first forensic chemist hired by the State and worked as a supervisor in the crime lab for 28 years.

David Boyle is one of the founders of the Alaska Policy Forum and is now its executive director. With two decades in government service, he retired from the U.S. Air Force as a major and has been a resident of Alaska since 1996. He has been a candidate twice for the Anchorage School Board. Education and government transparency are two of his public policy focus areas.

Every year millions of dollars are squandered in Alaska through fraud, waste and abuse. The State of Alaska Department of Law has stated that if national trends hold true for Alaska, then the State's Medicaid program alone will lose millions of dollars annually. Alaska needs to enhance and upgrade its fraud prevention program to help prevent, detect, and eliminate fraud, waste, and abuse.

Many governmental entities around the country have instituted fraud, waste, and abuse hot lines to facilitate the reporting such activities. To increase effectiveness, some programs have even incorporated cash incentives. Several federal agencies have established programs that pay cash rewards for reporting wasteful activities, and numerous states and municipalities have also established similar programs. Baltimore approved a policy that includes cash incentives for city employees, contractors, vendors and city residents for reporting activity or conduct that costs the city money or resources. Their incentive amounts to 10 percent of all monies recovered with no cap.

While the State of Alaska currently operates multiple hot lines for reporting different types of fraud, a single highly publicized and easy to remember phone number (e.g. 1-800-FraudAK) should be established to make reporting as easy as possible. Such a FWA reporting hot line combined with cash incentives for reporting would be far more effective in combating fraud, waste and abuse in Alaska.

Back in 2005, Representatives Kevin Meyer and Beth Kertulla introduced legislation to establish a fraud, waste and abuse hot line for Alaska. This bill should be reintroduced and modified to allow anyone to call the hot line, not just state employees. Incorporating cash incentives for reporting fraud should also be included to ensure that the program really works. This legislation should also mandate that all government entities, including school districts, implement FWA programs that include monetary incentives.

Alaska should also adopt a False Claims Act. The federal False Claims Act is perhaps the single most important tool U.S. taxpayers have to recover money stolen through fraud by U.S. government contractors every year. This law allows citizens with evidence of fraud against government contracts and programs to sue, on behalf of the government, in order to recover the stolen funds. In compensation for their efforts, a citizen whistle blower may be awarded a portion of the funds recovered, typically between 15 and 25 per cent. Under this Act, the U.S. Government has recovered $26.4 billion since January 2009.

In 2005, the Congress passed financial incentives for states to pass false claims acts that are modeled after the federal False Claims Act. Twenty-nine states and the District of Columbia have enacted their own False Claims Acts. Under the Deficit Reduction Act, states that enact a False Claims Act closely modeled on the federal version of the law receive a larger state share of FCA Medicaid awards from the Federal Government. Alaska does not have a False Claims Act. According to the non-profit organization Taxpayers Against Fraud, Alaska would have recovered an additional $167,000 from just five Medicaid fraud cases if the State had a qualifying False Claims Act at the time they were settled. Taxpayers Against Fraud has produced a model state False Claims Act statute.

Currently in Alaska there is a Workers' Compensation Fraud Hot line, an Insurance Fraud Hot line, and a Permanent Fund Dividend Fraud Hot line. The Department of Law also has a hot line to report Medicaid Fraud. The Department of Health & Social Services has an email address for reporting instances of fraud by individuals applying for or receiving the Alaska Temporary Assistance, Food Stamps, Medicaid, and Adult Public Assistance.

It is time for Alaska to consolidate all these FWA hot lines into a single hot line and provide monetary incentives to ensure its success and reward state employees and watchful Alaskans. In these tight budgetary times, it is vital that the state not waste a single dollar. The state owes it to all Alaskans that their monies are not wasted. We cannot afford to waste money nor waste time. So let's do this now.

PROTECTING THE ALASKA PUBLIC TREASURY

By Stephen Merrill

Stephen Merrill is a trial attorney in Anchorage, Alaska and a Research Associate for the Alaska Policy Forum in legal and justice matters. After graduating from the University of Nebraska Law School, Stephen accepted a Navy officer's commission in the Judge Advocate General's Corps. During four years of Navy active-duty, Lieutenant Merrill tried over 300 court-martials and accompanied aircraft carriers on foreign cruises. In Alaska he has filed a federal False Claims Act suit to recover waste diverted from a federal grant to a municipality.

Every year tens of millions of taxpayer dollars are lost in Alaska due to fraud, waste and abuse¹. The State Department of Law has acknowledged, given national trends, Alaska's Medicaid program alone loses as much as $70,000,000 to fraud annually, about half of it state money.

Alaska should enhance its fraud prevention to help sharply reduce these huge losses.

The federal False Claims Act (FCA) has been astonishingly successful in combating fraud of all forms against the federal taxpayers. The US Department of Justice has recovered $26.4 billion from FCA cases since 2009². By far most of the effort and time spent detecting and proving this fraud was done by private actors. Little of this money would have ever been recovered by the usual investigatory processes of the DOJ and other federal agencies.

There are a variety of legislative approaches already in place under state whistleblower laws across the nation. These laws include a 1) false claims act similar to the federal model; or 2) whistleblower protection for revealing proof of serious wrongdoing; or 3) whistleblower hotlines, some confidential, sometimes operated by an entity independent of the other agencies of government.

Alaska law in the area of whistleblowing is not fully developed at the present time.

History of the Law of Whistleblowing

It was the time of English medieval courts when a quite unusual legal statute first came into being. It was a law when, once fully developed in more modern times, the average citizen was empowered to institute and prove at trial a suit on behalf of, and in the name of, the king himself, all on their own initiative.

Such a suit was “qui tam sequitur” in Latin: “[he] who sues in this matter for the king as [well as] for himself.” The legal doctrine’s use goes back as far as 695 A.D. when first used to reward serfs who turned in fellow serfs for cheating the king.

At one time, the unruliness in Britain of so many informers for fraud on the King endangered their lives to such a point Queen Elizabeth I, in 1566, issued a proclamation to all British subjects not to engage in mob violence against the cursed informers.

Outside such “qui tam” suits, there is no parallel in the law of England or any other nation where just any private citizen can bring a lawsuit on behalf of a government and handle the suit largely on their own. “Qui tam” laws are typically called “false claims acts” in modern parlance.

The practice first came to American law during Colonial times as legislatures passed qui tam laws of their own. The first federal qui tam law came in the midst of the War Between the States, enacted in 1863 at the urging of President Abraham Lincoln to help combat war profiteering and culpable incompetence in the performance of federal contracts. It is often called “Lincoln’s Law”.

Similar to some of the English laws from centuries earlier, whistleblowers who were able to prove false claims committed against the central government could directly sue the alleged wrongdoer, the person or company who bilked the federal government, with the suit brought in the name of the federal government as the plaintiff. The whistleblower is given a share personally in the recovery determined by their degree of help in obtaining the recovery, generally 15% to 30% of the net recovery.

The incentive to root out federal contracting fraud was enhanced under Lincoln’s Law by mandating the award of treble damages for any proven count of fraud, also a fine for each count of fraud proven, along with the award of the attorney’s fees as well. The policy reason for the stiff penalties was people who commit civil fraud should pay further consequences than just returning the money wrongly taken.

In one form or another, the Federal False Claims Act has been in effect since its first passage. The law is a frequent subject of amendment, including important changes enacted under the Federal Affordable Care Act in 2010.

As of now, twenty-nine states have enacted false claims acts of their own, where citizens are invited to investigate and directly help punish fraud against the state taxpayers. Typically, these state laws track the framework of the federal act, including the award of treble recovery and a share of the recovery for the “relator” who made the case.

The major present development in “qui tam” law is the 2006 federal deficit reduction law that encourages states to enact their own false claims acts. See the Center for Medicare & Medicaid Services³.

The law increases the state share of recovery in Medicaid FCA cases by ten percentage points if the state has a statute compliant with federal guidelines reviewed by the Office of Inspector General. Ten percent of the settlement is often more than a state recovers in FCA Medicaid suits as a matter of practice. This policy goal helps close a frequent loophole for Medicaid fraud defendants in often avoiding or reducing the state share of Medicaid payments as part of their liability under the FCA.

Of the states with FCA Medicaid laws on the subject, sixteen state laws have been approved by the Office of the Inspector General⁴ as compliant with the federal guidelines with the exceptions being Louisiana, Florida, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New Mexico and Oklahoma. The usual question is whether the state law is “at least as effective in rewarding and facilitating qui tam actions” as are the provisions in the federal FCA. Florida’s law, for instance, was held non-compliant by OIG because it subjected relators to a full award of the defendant’s attorney’s fees if the relator tried the case and lost.

The Taxpayers Against Fraud Education Fund has an Interactive US Map with links to state FCA statutes: www.taf.org/states-false-claims-acts. Apria Healthcare has a list of all state whistleblower laws with a short description⁵.

Whistleblowing in Alaska

Alaska has not enacted a false claims act of its own. Nor has the state enacted other forms of whistleblower protection laws with three narrow exceptions.

One is for whistleblowing state employees involved in any civil controversy with the state, even as a witness or advocate. AS 39.90.100 State employees may not be retaliated against for their investigatory or rhetorical activities.

A second statute protects nurses who immediately report to the state board the improper delegation of professional duties and win their claim with the board. AS 08.68.279 is to help nurses being asked by employers to provide patient treatment only a physician should provide.

Whistleblowers in the medical field exposing harmful medical care have no statutory protection in Alaska at all.

A third Alaska law protects citizens who report violations of law to the Legislature, including legislative employees. Informers of this sort may not be threatened or discriminated against, presumably by legislators. AS 24.60.035

The Alaska courts have also upheld a common law protection for whistleblowers from retaliation, in the same case where the award of punitive damages was prohibited under both the statute and the common law. Alaska Housing Finance Corp. v. Salvucci, 950 P.2d 1116 (Alaska 1997) Since that decision, the statute has been amended to allow for the award of punitive damages in a proper case.

With the exception of state employees battling the state where punitive damages and full attorney's fees can be awarded for employment retaliation, Alaska whistleblowers cannot even hope to be made completely whole once they are harmed by unlawful retaliation. Indeed, if their exposure of criminal activity involves documents or other confidences deemed private by a wrongdoing employer, the whistleblower can lawfully be fired for the act of blowing the whistle with no recourse available. Most employment contracts prohibit employees from disclosing company papers to anyone.

Presently, a state employee who cannot get fraud investigated in their workplace has nowhere else to go in safety, no direction provided. When the boss you report to is the wrongdoer in question, the state employee can feel to be in quite a fix except in an extreme case.

- There is no special incentive in Alaska law to reward effective whistleblowing in any way.

A False Claims Act for Alaska

The policy aims in creating a false claims act for Alaska are obvious. Not only is fraud against the taxpayers detected and compensated much more often, the general deterrent effect on the commission of fraud is tremendous. Anyone with proof can turn wrongdoers in and even be paid for the favor. A state contractor's employees become potential arms of law-enforcement when it comes to protecting the public treasury from fraud.

The Cardozo Law Review has published an excellent summary of the strengths and weaknesses of qui tam laws, especially those for states⁶.

The apparent unforeseen consequences of enacting a false claims act must also be taken into account.

Whistleblower laws can be used to force investigations and court hearings that have little merit under the act. Mean-spirited or attention-seeking whistleblowers may be given a stage.

These concerns have more to do with usual people problems than anything else. People of explosive character are going to behave in destructive ways whatever the present rules may be. Redundancy in examining alleged fraud is actually a good thing. It is easy to file lawsuits, with or without a false claims act in place.

If a relator brings a frivolous suit, the state can dismiss the case over the relator's objections. It is the state's claim to reimbursement, after all.

"I don't care how you do it, but get the damn business."

When his supervisor gave these instructions to Dean Steinke, a sales manager for the pharmaceutical giant Merck & Company, Steinke told himself, "You know what? They're not going to get away with it."

"It" was giving payments to physicians and hospitals to prescribe the medicines Vioxx, Zocor, and Pepcid instead of cheaper generic alternatives. "It" was also giving hospitals up to 92% discounts on these drugs and not offering Medicaid the same discount, as required by law. In 2000 and 2005, Steinke filed qui tam actions under federal and Nevada False Claims Acts. In 2008, these cases settled, with Merck agreeing to pay $400 million to the United States, forty-nine states, and the District of Columbia. Like many cases brought under the federal False Claims Act (FCA) and an increasing number of state False Claims Acts, a private citizen, not a prosecutor, initiated the Merck case.

-- From: STATES, STATUTES, AND FRAUD, Bucy et al, (2010)

There is also the prospect of a sanction under Alaska Civil Rule 11 awarding full attorney's fees against the relator personally as an ultimate safeguard against the filing of a frivolous suit.⁷

Since the new statute only affects clear wrongdoing, there is little general chilling effect to the business environment among honest Alaskans working with or for the state.

Bill Falsey, now Anchorage Municipal Attorney, has asked whether Alaska should have a qui tam, False Claims Act⁸.

⁷ The usual, mandatory award of partial attorney's fees under Alaska's loser pays law would likely present no problem in the review by the OIG since it is generic in character and equally applicable to the litigants. Alaska Rule of Civil Procedure 82 Such costs when awarded are for the relator to pay should they prosecute the case alone.

Alaska Policy Forum Report – February 8, 2016

The draft Alaska False Claims Act the Alaska Policy Forum offers for consideration by the Legislature is drawn from a variety of such laws across the nation. It is drawn using the same procedure and remedies contained in Lincoln's Law, something now all but required by federal law for HHS FCA cases. The state's share of Medicaid fraud recoveries will likely more than double with the passage of this proposed act.

Importantly, the proposed act bars Alaska employers from limiting the whistleblower activities of its employees. This effectively shields whistleblowers from job retaliation, even those whistleblowers who are reporting on confidential matters, private or public.

A second tremendous advantage arises from adopting the same language as that contained in the Federal False Claims Act.

That advantage is the availability of federal legal precedent to assist Alaska judges and lawyers in interpreting the new state law. Using much of the exact language of Lincoln's Law should greatly reduce uncertainty in the new law's scope and application and therefore hopefully reduce the volume of contested litigation in the courts.

Most importantly, the draft law establishes for the first time in Alaska an effective legislative program to combat all forms of fraud, one using the resources of private citizens as well as public offices. (Draft Alaska False Claims Act, Appendix A) .

Fraud Hotlines: Bringing Greater Transparency to Every State Office and Every State Contractor

Many states and localities have enacted whistleblower protection in the form of a "hotline" number where citizens, specifically including state employees, may report the squandering of public dollars and hopefully help bring it to an end.

FEDERAL FALSE CLAIMS ACT SUIT RECOVERS $1.5 MILLION IN ALASKA

Alaska DigiTel owner agrees to pay $1.56 million to settle suit - SUBSIDY: Whistleblower said telephone service sold to unqualified subscribers

One of Alaska's telecom giants has paid $1.56 million to federal authorities to settle a case alleging rampant abuse of a federal phone-bill subsidy for low-income households in the Anchorage area... a local office manager filed a whistleblower suit in federal District Court accusing her employer ... Alaska DigiTel of defrauding the phone subsidy program. The woman, Natalia Napoleon, [is] originally from the Western Alaska village of Akiachak...federal prosecutors decided to use their right to take over Napoleon's case... As the whistleblower, Napoleon is entitled to about $260,000 of the settlement.

-- From: ELIZABETH BLUEMINK - Anchorage Daily News, 2/23/11, United States ex rel. Napoleon v. Alaska DigiTel et al. No. 3:08CV66-JWS (D. Ak.), www.adn.com/article/20110222/alaska-digitel-owner-agrees-pay-156-million-settle-suit

Callers to official hotlines are typically protected from harm connected to their whistleblowing, at least in making the hotline call, and are sometimes rewarded for the information they provide. Some laws provide for confidentiality to the caller, but many do not.

In Alaska there is a variety of such hotlines, public and private, including one for reporting fraud under the Worker's Compensation Act, another for the Permanent Fund Dividend, one for child abuse reporting, and another for abuse of frail or disabled adults that is oddly combined with Medicaid fraud reporting.

All the Alaska hotlines identified above are run by the relevant state agency for enforcement. The hotline calls are a sideline activity for the state offices that operate the lines.

Alaska does not have an office akin to an inspector general. Inspectors general, in any event, have not proven especially effective in combating contractor fraud or state insider fraud⁹.

There is no Alaska hotline intended to report waste, fraud and abuse of taxpayer funds that comes in all forms, including, for instance, state contractor fraud. Contractor fraud is by far the largest source of federal FCA recoveries.

The present Alaska laws do not offer special protection for callers to the fraud hotline and provide no tangible incentive to make the call, other than a "reward" may be given in certain cases.

In 2005, Representatives Kevin Meyer and Beth Kertulla introduced legislation¹⁰ to establish a fraud, waste and abuse hot line for Alaska. This bill should be reintroduced and modified to allow anyone to call the hot line, not just state employees. Incorporating cash incentives for reporting fraud should also be included to ensure that the program really works. This legislation should also mandate that all government entities, including school districts, implement FWA programs that include monetary incentives.

The Alaska Policy Forum makes a unique proposal on the question of FWA reporting and FCA enforcement policy. We propose the state hotline be awarded to a qualified private-bidder who is given the power of subpoena to investigate hotline claims made and to help bring recoveries to fruition, working with relators and with state law enforcement offices.

⁹ The Alaska Office of the Ombudsman has an independent character. That office though is sharply restrained in its authority, limited to issuing reports at its discretion well after a confidential investigation has been completed. The Office of Ombudsman as of now is seldom involved in the investigation of false claims committed against the state. Such an assignment would transform the office of the Ombudsman and its character.

¹⁰ House Bill 86 - "An Act establishing in the office of the ombudsman a state executive branch employee fraud, waste, and abuse report hotline program."

Alaska Policy Forum Report – February 8, 2016

It is simply better public policy for the body being reported to with hotline calls to be wholly independent of government agencies, at first anyway.

A private organization performing collections is more focused on productivity and cost-savings than busy state offices. Hotline callers may be more comfortable talking with fellow private citizens compared to state law enforcement people. Callers may have more confidence in the assurances they are being given if they know the sole goal is reimbursement, not criminal prosecution. Callers would also know their names are not going into some state database.

The taxpayers would be freed of the burden of additional state bureaucracy through bidding out a large share of the FCA enforcement duties.

The hotline number is likely to become a new, substantial source of state revenue on a permanent basis, a punitive tax on cheaters that are discovered. Indeed, it all seems too good to be true.

The Alaska Policy Forum's proposed Alaska statute in this area establishes a hotline number for the reporting of waste, fraud and abuse, including for state employees, operated by a private entity, presumably a group of attorneys.

Under the proposed law, the act of making the call would be immune from civil liability and held confidential unless the caller specifically authorizes the use of their name. Callers would also be advised of the availability to all citizens of the Alaska False Claims Act to root out fraud against the state (should such an act be passed by the Legislature). If no such act is applicable, the hotline callers would be rewarded with the payment of 10% of any net recovery made against a wrongdoer that was directly linked to the hotline caller's information, a well-publicized fact. (Draft Alaska Whistleblower Protection Act, Attachment 2)

All funds recovered by the efforts of the Alaska Fraud Line would earn the contractor of the hotline a share for operating expenses, say 20% or even much lower. What would be a sufficient incentive to attract a qualified bidder is unknown. The percentage can always be higher or lower depending on what private bids for the work are submitted.

A "costs only first-paid" formula could also be privately bid, also contingent on office recoveries.

Conclusion

It is past time for Alaska to take the same action so many other states are taking when it comes to protecting the public treasury from fraud in all of its forms. In these difficult fiscal times it is imperative that Alaska watch every dollar. There are many successful laws in this area across the nation, including Lincoln's Law itself.

(3) The prosecuting authority shall have the right to intervene in an action brought by the Attorney General under this subdivision within 60 days after receipt of the complaint pursuant to paragraph (2). The court may permit intervention thereafter upon a showing that all of the requirements of Section 387 of the Code of Civil Procedure have been met.

(4) The prosecuting authority of a political subdivision shall diligently investigate false claims involving political subdivision funds. If the prosecuting authority finds that a person likely committed a false claim, the prosecuting authority may bring a civil action under this section against that person or decline to do so, whether relying on the relator plaintiff to do so or not.

(7) A person may bring a civil action for a violation of this article for the person and either for the State of Alaska in the name of the state, if any state funds are involved, or for a political subdivision in the name of the political subdivision, if political subdivision funds are exclusively involved. The person bringing the action shall be referred to as the relator plaintiff. Once filed, the action may be dismissed only with the written consent of the court, taking into account the best interest of the parties involved and the public purposes behind this act.

(8) A complaint filed by a private person relator under this subdivision shall be filed in superior court under seal and may remain under seal without extension for 90 days. No service shall be made on the defendant(s) until after the complaint is unsealed.

(9) On the same day as the complaint is filed pursuant to paragraph (2), the relator plaintiff shall serve by mail with "return receipt requested" the Attorney General with a copy of the complaint and a written disclosure of substantially all material evidence and information the person possesses.

(10) Within 90 days after receiving a complaint alleging violations which involve state funds but not political subdivision funds, the Attorney General shall do either of the following:

(i) Notify the court that it intends to proceed with the action, in which case the seal shall be lifted.

(ii) Notify the court that it declines to take over the action, in which case the seal shall be lifted and the relator plaintiff shall have the right to conduct the action.

(11) Within 15 days after receiving a complaint alleging violations which exclusively involve political subdivision funds, the Attorney General shall forward the complaint and written disclosure to the appropriate prosecuting authority for disposition and shall notify the relator plaintiff of the transfer.

(12) Within 45 days after the Attorney General forwards the complaint and written disclosure, the prosecuting authority shall do either of the following:

(i) Notify the court that it intends to proceed with the action, in which case the seal shall be lifted.

(ii) Notify the court that it declines to take over the action, in which case the seal shall be lifted and the relator plaintiff shall have the right to conduct the action.

(13) Within 15 days after receiving a complaint alleging violations which involve both state and political subdivision funds, the Attorney General shall forward copies of the complaint and written disclosure to the appropriate prosecuting authority, and shall coordinate its review and investigation with those of the prosecuting authority.

(14) Within 60 days after receiving a complaint alleging violations which involve both state and political subdivision funds, the Attorney General shall do either of the following:

(i) Notify the court that it intends to proceed with the action, in which case the seal shall be lifted.

(ii) Notify the court that it declines to take over the action but that the prosecuting authority of the political subdivision involved intends to proceed with the action, in which case the seal shall be lifted and the action shall be conducted by the prosecuting authority.

(iii) Notify the court that both it and the prosecuting authority decline to take over the action, in which case the seal shall be lifted and the relator plaintiff shall have the right to conduct the action.

(15) If the Attorney General proceeds with the action, the political subdivision shall be permitted to intervene in the action within 60 days after the Attorney General notifies the court of its intentions. The court may authorize intervention thereafter upon a showing that all the requirements of the Code of Civil Procedure have been met.

(16) Upon a showing of good cause and reasonable diligence in its investigation, the Attorney General or the prosecuting authority of a political subdivision may move the court for extensions of the time during which the complaint remains under seal, but in no event may the complaint remain under seal for longer than 90 days.

(17) When a person brings an action under this subdivision, no other person may bring a related action based on the facts underlying the pending action.

(18) No court shall have jurisdiction over an action brought against a member of the State Legislature, a member of the state judiciary, an elected official in the executive branch of the state, or a member of the governing body of any political subdivision if the action is based on evidence or information known to the state or political subdivision when the action was brought.

(19) In no event may a person bring an action which is based upon allegations or transactions which are the subject of a civil suit or an administrative civil money penalty proceeding in which the state or political subdivision is already a party.

(20) The courts shall dismiss false claim allegations under this chapter that are based upon the public disclosure of allegations or transactions in a criminal, civil, or administrative hearing, in an investigation, report, hearing, or audit conducted by or at the request of the Legislature, an auditor, or governing body of a political subdivision, or information coming from the news media, unless the action is brought by the Attorney General or the prosecuting authority of a political subdivision, or the person bringing the action is an original source of the information or the Attorney General objects to the dismissal of the claims after timely notice of a preliminary decision to dismiss.

(21) The phrase "original source" means a person who voluntarily disclosed the information to the government prior to the public disclosures or, alternatively, has information that is independent of and materially adds to the publically disclosed allegations and whose efforts provided the basis or catalyst for the investigation of wrongdoing.

(22) No court shall have jurisdiction over an action brought based upon information discovered by a present or former employee of the state or a political subdivision during the course of his or her employment, unless that employee first in good faith exhausted existing internal procedures for reporting and seeking recovery of falsely claimed sums through official channels, and unless the state or political subdivision declined to act or failed to act on the information provided by the state employee within a reasonable period of time, such period to be no longer than six months.

(23) If the state or political subdivision proceeds with the action, it shall have the primary responsibility for prosecuting the action. The relator plaintiff shall have the right to continue as a full party to the action or may decline to do so.

(24) The state or political subdivision may seek to dismiss the action for good cause notwithstanding the objections of the relator plaintiff if the relator plaintiff has been notified by the state or political subdivision of the filing of the motion and the court has provided the relator plaintiff with an opportunity to oppose the motion and present evidence at a hearing.

(25) The state or political subdivision may settle the action with the defendant notwithstanding the objections of the relator plaintiff if the court determines, after a hearing providing the relator plaintiff an opportunity to present evidence, that the proposed settlement is fair, adequate, and reasonable under all of the circumstances.

(26) If the state or political subdivision elects not to proceed, the relator plaintiff shall have the same right to conduct the action as the Attorney General or prosecuting authority would have had if it had chosen to proceed. If the state or political subdivision so requests, and at its expense, the state or political subdivision shall be served with copies of all pleadings filed in the action and supplied with copies of all deposition transcripts.

(27) Upon timely application, the court shall permit the state or political subdivision to intervene in an action with which it had initially declined to proceed if the interest of the state or political subdivision in recovery of the property or funds involved is not being adequately represented by the relator plaintiff.

(28) If the state or political subdivision is allowed to intervene, the relator plaintiff shall retain principal responsibility for the action and the recovery of the parties shall be determined as if the state or political subdivision had elected not to proceed.

(29) If the Attorney General initiates an action or assumes control of an action initiated by a prosecuting authority or a relator plaintiff, the fees of the office of the Attorney General shall be a fixed $33\frac{1}{3}$ percent of the gross proceeds of the action.

(30) If a prosecuting authority initiates an action or assumes control of an action initiated by a relator plaintiff, the fees of the office of the prosecuting authority shall be a fixed $33\frac{1}{3}$ percent of the gross proceeds of the action.

(31) If a prosecuting authority intervenes in an action initiated by the Attorney General or remains a party to an action assumed by the Attorney General, the court may award the office of the prosecuting authority a portion of the Attorney General's fixed $33\frac{1}{3}$ percent of the recovery, taking into account the prosecuting authority's role in investigating and conducting the action.

(32) If the state or political subdivision proceeds with an action brought by a relator plaintiff, the relator plaintiff shall receive at least 15 percent but not more than $33\frac{1}{3}$ percent of the proceeds of the action or settlement of the claim, depending upon the extent to which the relator plaintiff contributed to the prosecution of the action.

(33) If the state or political subdivision does not proceed with an action, the relator plaintiff shall receive an amount which the court decides is reasonable for collecting the civil penalty and damages on behalf of the Government. The amount shall be not less than 25 percent and not more than 50 percent of the proceeds of the action or settlement and shall be paid out of such proceeds.

(34) An exception to this payment formula is a present or former employee of the state or political subdivision. Such person shall not be entitled to any minimum guaranteed recovery from the proceeds. The court, however, may award such a relator plaintiff those sums from the proceeds as it considers appropriate, but in no case more than 10 percent of the proceeds if the state or political subdivision goes forth with the action or 25 percent if the state or political subdivision declines to go forth, taking into account the significance of the information, the role of the relator plaintiff in advancing the case to litigation, and the scope of, and response to, the employee's earlier reports to the state through official channels.

(35) Where the action is one which the court finds to be based primarily on information from a present or former employee who actively participated in the fraudulent activity, the employee shall not be entitled to any recovery from the proceeds unless the misconduct was first exposed by the employee. The court may award such a relator plaintiff such sums from the proceeds as it considers appropriate, but in no case more than 20 percent of the proceeds.

(36) Net recoveries under this Chapter shall revert to the state general fund if the underlying false claims involved state funds exclusively and to the political subdivision if the underlying false claims involved political subdivision funds exclusively. If the violation involved both state and political subdivision funds, the court shall make an apportionment between the state and political subdivision based on their relative share of the funds falsely claimed.

(37) For purposes of this section, "proceeds" include civil penalties as well as double or treble damages, punitive damages and attorney's fees awarded for the state.

(38) If the state, political subdivision, or the relator plaintiff prevails in or settles any action, the relator plaintiff shall receive an amount for reasonable expenses which the court finds to have been necessarily incurred, plus reasonable costs and attorneys' fees. All expenses, costs, and fees shall be awarded against the defendant and under no circumstances shall they be the responsibility of the state or political subdivision. The state or political subdivision is not liable for any award of attorney's fees or costs for the defendant in a case brought by a plaintiff relator.

(39) The court may stay an act of discovery of the person initiating the action for a period of not more than 60 days if the Attorney General or local prosecuting authority show that the act of discovery would interfere with an investigation or a prosecution of a criminal or civil matter arising out of the same facts, regardless of whether the Attorney General or local prosecuting authority proceeds with the action. Such a showing shall be conducted in camera. The court may extend the 60-day period upon a further showing in camera that the Attorney General or local prosecuting authority has pursued the criminal or civil investigation or proceedings with reasonable diligence and any proposed discovery in the civil action will interfere with the ongoing criminal or civil investigation or proceedings.

(40) Upon a showing by the Attorney General or local prosecuting authority that unrestricted participation during the course of the litigation by the person initiating the action would interfere with or unduly delay the Attorney General's or local prosecuting authority's prosecution of the case, or would be repetitious, irrelevant, or for purposes of harassment, the court may, in its discretion, impose limitations on the person's participation, including the following:

- (i) Limiting the number of witnesses the person may call.
- (ii) Limiting the length of the testimony of such witnesses.
- (iii) Limiting the person's cross-examination of witnesses.
- (iv) Otherwise limiting the participation by the person in the litigation.

Article 3 Employer interference with employee disclosures, etc.; liability of employer, remedies of employee

(1) No employer may enforce an employment contract provision, a workplace rule or policy in any form preventing an employee from disclosing information, including company papers, to a government law enforcement agency in furtherance of a false claims action, including investigating, initiating, testifying, or assisting in an action under this chapter.

(2) No employer shall discharge, demote, suspend, threaten, harass, deny promotion to, or in any other manner discriminate against, an employee in the terms and conditions of employment because of lawful acts done by the employee on behalf of the employee or others in disclosing information to a government or law enforcement agency or in furthering a false claims action, including investigation for, initiation of, testimony for, or assistance in, an action filed or to be filed.

(3) An employer who commits a violation shall be liable for all relief necessary to make the employee whole, including reinstatement with the same seniority status that the employee would have had but for the discrimination, two times the amount of back pay, interest on the back pay, compensation for any special damage sustained as a result of the discrimination, and, where appropriate, the award of punitive damages. In addition, the defendant shall be required to pay the full litigation costs and reasonable attorneys' fees. An employee may bring an action in the appropriate superior court of the state for the relief provided in this provision.

(4) An employee who is discharged, demoted, suspended, harassed, denied promotion, or in any other manner discriminated against in the terms and conditions of employment by his or her employer because of active participation in the conduct which directly or indirectly resulted in a false claim being submitted to the state or a political subdivision shall be entitled to the recourse remedies if, and only if, both of the following occur:

(i) The employee voluntarily disclosed information to a government or law enforcement agency or acted in furtherance of a false claims action, including investigation for, initiation of, testimony for, or assistance in an action filed or to be filed.

(ii) The employee had been harassed, threatened with termination or demotion, or otherwise coerced by the employer or its management into engaging in the fraudulent activity in the first place.

Article 4 Limitation of actions; activities antedating this article; burden of proof, evidence

(1) A civil action under Section 12652 may not be filed more than three years after the date of discovery by the official of the state or political subdivision charged with responsibility to act in the circumstances or, in any event, no more than six years after the date on which the violation is committed.

(2) A civil action may be brought for activity prior to the effective date of this article if the limitations period set in subdivision (a) has not lapsed.

(3) In any action under this chapter, the state, the political subdivision, or the relator plaintiff shall be required to prove all essential elements of the cause of action, including damages, by a preponderance of the evidence.

(4) Notwithstanding any other provision of law, a guilty verdict rendered in a criminal proceeding charging false statements or fraud, whether upon a verdict after trial or upon a plea of guilty or nolo contendere, shall estop the defendant from denying the essential elements of the offense in any action which involves the same transaction as in the criminal proceeding.

Article 5 Remedies under other laws; severability of provisions; liberality of article construction

(1) The provisions of this article are not exclusive, and the remedies provided for in this article shall be in addition to any other remedies provided for in any other law or available under common law.

(2) If any provision of this article or the application thereof to any person or circumstance is held to be unconstitutional, the remainder of the article and the application of the provision to other persons or circumstances shall not be affected thereby.

(3) In cases filed under this Chapter, counterclaims filed against the plaintiff relator by the defendant are barred. Such suits may be brought in a separate action.

(4) The award of attorney's against a plaintiff under any rule of procedure shall be paid solely by the state when it prosecutes the suit and by the relator solely when the relator prosecutes the suit.

(4) This chapter shall be liberally construed and applied to promote the public interest.

Article 6 Distribution, State Training

(1) Every public employee and every employee of state contractors shall be provided a memorandum by the Department of Commerce publicizing the policies and provisions of this Chapter, including needed contact information for making a false claim allegation. Each such person shall certify in writing they have read and understood the content of the memorandum.

(2) The Department of Commerce shall provide or delegate to state agencies job-training for state employees and state contractors on the content of this Chapter that includes an exam, to be incorporated into existing training modalities, where possible.

(3) The Department of Commerce shall organize the publication of the basic content of this Chapter generally into all private-sector bids and state contracting materials involving the expenditure of state funds.

(4) Every state office involved in procurement of any form shall display a poster outlining the content of this Chapter and contact information for submitted alleged false claims. Such posters must also be utilized by state contractors in their workplace if the contractor is expected to receive more than fifty thousand dollars of state funds in a calendar year.

Appendix B – Proposed
ALASKA WHISTLEBLOWER PROTECTION ACT

Policy – Alaska encourages the prompt, unencumbered sharing of information that might prove public dollars are being stolen in some way. This article seeks to facilitate an effective pathway to use for whistleblowers revealing the squandering of state funds.

The Alaska Fraud Hotline – The Alaska Fraud Hotline is hereby created authorizing the Department of Commerce to administer the program with existing staff and procedures employing private-bidding for answering the Hotline and following through on the allegations made, when credible. The operation of the Hotline is maintained in the private sector by the use of Department biennial bid awards for the operation of the hotline. The person or organization awarded the hotline operation duties shall be known as the "Fraud Hotline Operator".

Duties, Powers and Compensation of the Fraud Hotline Operator – The following requirements apply:

1. The Fraud Hotline Operator shall be a business entity independent of other organizations. All investors and managers in an entity bidding to become the Fraud Hotline Operator shall be disclosed prior to the bid and publically disclosed if, and when, the bid is awarded to an entity. The Hotline shall be operated in an office visibly independent of any other business entity with signage and contact information of all forms dedicated solely to the Hotline. No independent commercial lease is required for the Hotline operation though a lease or sublease of some form, including paid rent, is required.
2. Have personnel available to answer the Hotline during normal business hours and always be prepared then to initiate an investigation or inquiry where called for. Outside business hours a recorded message to Hotline callers may be used which message must provide a further immediate contact number in cases where advice is critically needed by the caller. All Hotline callers, in person or by recorded message, will be informed of the availability of the Alaska False Claims Act to combat fraud against the public, including reference to a web page maintained by the Fraud Hotline Operator.

Contacts to the Hotline will also be available by electronic mail and regular mail in addition to contacts by telephone.

3. All viable instances of fraud against the public presented by Hotline callers shall be further investigated in one of three ways:
 - (i) The Fraud Hotline Operator may initiate a false claims investigation or inquiry of its own working with the Hotline caller as a possible relator under the Alaska False Claims Act.
 - (ii) The matter may be reported to the Office of the Attorney General by the Fraud Hotline Operator in sufficient detail to allow for a further decision by that office with no further action taken by the Fraud Hotline Operator.
 - (iii) The Hotline caller decides to pursue the matter without further assistance under the Alaska False Claims Act and does so in a reasonable time thereafter.

4. The Fraud Hotline Operator shall, while under contract, enjoy the power of subpoena in connection with documents and tangible objects as presently possessed by state criminal prosecutors applying the same standards and procedures for use of the power. This subpoena power granted here is limited to inquiries and investigations prompted by a Hotline caller or cases referred to the Fraud Hotline Operator by a state agency.
5. In instances that do not involve a potential conflict-of-interest with a Hotline caller, the Fraud Hotline Operator may in its private business operations work on Alaska False Claims Act litigation that is unconnected to Hotline calls, including acting as a relator in an appropriate instance or as counsel for a relator.
6. The records of the Alaska Fraud Hotline, though public records in the end, shall be held with the same privacy protections as those held in the private-sector, except for the narrow purposes of routine auditing by the state as a private contractor for the state. At the end of a contracting period as the Fraud Hotline Operator, all Hotline records shall be transferred to the next bid awardee of the state contract.
7. The Alaska Fraud Hotline Operator contract shall be awarded by private bidding administered by the Department of Commerce employing either a percentage of fund recovery formula or a "costs only, paid-first from proceeds" formula. The Department is not authorized to award state funds directly for the operation of the Fraud Hotline.
8. The Department is authorized to compile guidelines for the private bid offer, including the duties and powers of the post and office capacities and expertise needed to be met.
9. No civil liability will attach to the Fraud Hotline Operator for the exercise of its discretion in acting upon claims submitted to its office by Hotline callers. Hotline callers are always free to contact other state offices concerning their information and its import.

Hotline Caller Protections and Limitations.

1. Any Hotline caller has the option of remaining anonymous, partially or completely, whether represented by counsel or not, including to the Fraud Hotline Operator and the state. Hotline callers must specifically authorize the use of their name in connection with the content of their call or as part of a later inquiry or investigation. Hotline callers may not place any limitation on the use of the information they provide to the Hotline. Hotline callers who remain anonymous may have less certainty applied to their claims of wrongdoing.
2. No civil liability of any form shall be imposed for the act of calling the Alaska Fraud Hotline and providing information on an alleged false claim committed against the state.
3. Any person may be a Hotline caller, including state employees and non-Alaskans.

4. In cases where there is a recovery under the Alaska False Claims Act for wrongful acts that were first directly brought to the attention of the state with supporting evidence by a Hotline caller, so long as that caller is not a relator for the claim recovery, the Hotline caller shall be awarded ten percent of the net recovery received at the time of payment by the defendant(s). The previous acts of the Hotline caller as a state worker in the scope of their employment shall not be disqualifying as a first notice to the state for purposes of the award.

5. State employees must first exhaust the remedies provided in their workplace for investigating fraud against the state before qualifying for the award based on the Hotline call, except in the instance of wrongdoing committed by the state employee's work supervisor(s).
