Statement

HB 128
Alaska Wild Salmon Day

SPONSOR'S INTENT

Alaskans prize wild salmon. No other of our fish plays such a prevalent role in our lives, and, arguably, no other is so nourishing and appetizing. According to a survey conducted during the summer of 2011, 96 percent of Alaskans feel that salmon is essential to their way of life.

Salmon subsistence fishing has sustained Alaska Native peoples for thousands of years. Recreational fishing for salmon is a lifelong pursuit for urban and rural residents alike. Commercial salmon fishing has been a mainstay industry in Alaska for well over a century.

Establishing August 10th as Alaska Wild Salmon Day will encourage celebrations of these Alaskan ways of life, pastimes, and professions. It will also provide opportunities to promote our wild salmon's deliciousness, purity, and healthfulness to visitors to the state from the Lower 48 and around the world.

RE: SUPPORT HB 128 Alaska Wild Salmon Day

Dear Representative Edgmon:

Thank you for introducing HB 128 Alaska Wild Salmon Day – to be sure, this is a special occasion day that's long overdue in our great state!

What could be more natural (if not down-right wild) than for Alaska, the biggest salmon state-nation on the planet, to set aside one special day each year to honor the fabulous genus Oncorhynchus? Our member's resounding response is certain to be – 'not much'.

ATA represents Alaska's commercial troll fleet, one of the largest groups of salmon harvesters in the state. The troll fleet is 85% resident; about one of every 35 people in Southeast works on a trolling vessel and is supported by hundreds of other Alaskans working in the processing and support sectors. The success of our fleet and industry relies heavily on the health and welfare of salmon. In turn, residents throughout the state (even if they don't know it) benefit from the salmon revenue that flows through their communities in multiple ways and pays for a wide range of goods and services. This would simply not be possible if not for the humble - yet mightily impressive - salmon.

This is a Chinook and coho bill if ever we saw one – and who doesn't like kings, or silver? We urge you and your peers to vote HB 128 quickly through committee and straight on to the governor's desk. Mr. Walker will no doubt be pleased to honor in this way the great and storied salmon, which have fed and clothed generations of Alaskan's, while bringing significant joy, jobs, and revenue to each of our communities.

Best regards,

RE: SUPPORT HB 128, establishing August 10 of each year as Alaska Wild Salmon Day.

Dear Representative Edgmon,

United Fishermen of Alaska (UFA) is the statewide commercial fishing trade association, representing 36 Alaska commercial fishing organizations participating in fisheries throughout the state and its offshore federal waters. UFA is pleased to support HB 128, establishing August 10 of each year as Alaska Wild Salmon Day.

In Alaska, salmon are iconic. Nearly every Alaskan is in some way impacted by salmon. Alaska residents harvest salmon either through personal use, sport, commercial or subsistence methods. Every Alaskan is also able to access salmon in grocery stores and restaurants throughout the state. In addition to a love for eating salmon, Alaskans are also proud of our deep history as a commercial salmon harvesting state. Commercial salmon harvest has been recorded in Alaska since 1878 and is a thriving industry today. According to the McDowell Group, approximately 20,000 people participated in commercial salmon fisheries as a permit holder or crewmember in 2013. All in all, approximately 38,000 people are employed by the commercial salmon harvesting sector in Alaska. Estimated ex-vessel value of salmon harvested by the commercial sector was $723.5 million in 2013 with over 1 billion pounds landed. Commercial salmon harvesters live in over 160 communities throughout the state.

The guiding issue behind Alaska achieving statehood was commercial salmon harvest. With statehood, Alaska took control over the management of salmon therefore protecting Alaskans dependence on our most prized renewable resource. Since statehood, Alaska has worked hard to develop our reputation as having the best managed fisheries in the world. Starting at statehood, Alaska built sustainability into our constitution:

“Fish, forests, wildlife, grasslands, and all other replenishable resources belonging to the State shall be utilized, developed, and maintained on the sustained yield principle, subject to preferences among beneficial uses.” Alaska's constitution- Article 8 - Natural Resources, Section 4, sustained yield.

Alaska is the only state to have written such conservation language into its constitution. This attention to sustainability started with salmon and Alaska continues to set the gold standard worldwide for sustainably managed fisheries.

In addition to our support, UFA would also suggest replacing the word “chum” with the common market name of “keta”. Please contact us if we can answer any questions or provide additional information.

Sincerely,

Julianne Curry
Executive Director
