January 17, 2018

The Honorable Pete Kelly
President of the Senate
Alaska State Legislature
State Capitol, Room 111
Juneau, AK 99801-1182

Dear President Kelly,

Under the authority of Article III, Section 18, of the Alaska Constitution, I am transmitting a bill relating to the Alaska Police Standards Council and national criminal background checks for prospective police officers.

The Alaska Police Standards Council (Council) is within the Department of Public Safety, and is tasked with overseeing professional standards for employment as a police officer and other law enforcement officials. Further, the Council is statutorily authorized to establish police training programs. A person may not be certified as a police officer without going through the required training and meeting other requirements the Council has established for the employment of police officers.

This bill adds to the Council's powers the ability for the Department of Public Safety to request a national criminal history record check from the Federal Bureau of Investigation for a person who applies to attend a training program established by the Council or who seeks employment as a police officer by an employer that lacks the ability to request a national criminal history record check. This bill would give the Council the ability to assure that only qualified candidates become police officers by making sure that a thorough national background check is completed on all potential police officers. Currently, most employers authorized to submit requests for national criminal background checks from the Federal Bureau of Investigation already do, and would continue to do so. This bill would allow the Council to do the same in the situation where a person is applying to a training program established by the Council or where a potential employer does not have the ability to request a national criminal history record check.

I urge your prompt and favorable action on this bill.

Sincerely,

The Honorable John Coghill
Chair, Senate Judiciary Committee
Alaska State Capitol
Juneau, AK 99801

Dear Senator Coghill,

Please accept this request to schedule SB 148— Background Checks for Police & Training —for consideration by the Senate Judiciary Committee at your earliest convenience.

The Alaska Police Standards Council (APSC) has a duty to assure police officers are properly qualified, hired, and trained. To that end, regulations have been adopted that require officer candidates be fingerprinted as part of the background investigation to assure their background information is accurate and their identity is positively established. In most cases, the hiring agency takes an applicant's fingerprints and submits them to DPS for the required fingerprint-based national background check. However, agencies that do not have access to the state's Criminal Justice Information System (CJIS) are prohibited by federal law from receiving criminal justice information, including the results of a pre-employment fingerprint based background check.

Obtaining access to the CJIS system can be complex and is expensive to maintain. Building an infrastructure sufficient to protect the integrity of CJIS information is often a disproportionate burden on small rural agencies with limited staff and public safety resources. Accordingly, such agencies cannot now comply with this important public safety requirement. APSC already has the infrastructure required to comply with federal and state CJIC requirements, but is not authorized under current state statute to perform this service on behalf of a hiring agency. The bill before you offers an elegant way to address this problem, and to support community public safety.

Executive Director Robert Griffiths of the Alaska Police Standards Council will be present when the bill is considered and available to answer any questions the committee may have.

Thank you in advance for your prompt attention to this bill.

RE: Senate Bill 148 Background Checks for Police & Training

Dear Senator Coghill,

In 1972, when the legislature created the Alaska Police Standards Council (APSC), they granted the council the power to establish regulations defining the minimum standards for hiring and training of police officers. From that time forward, APSC has, by regulation, required a fingerprint based background check for all officers to assure they meet these standards. Two issues have emerged that hamper rural communities hiring officers and frustrate individuals hoping to sponsor their own police training through one of Alaska's basic police academies in hopes of future employment. SB 148 was designed to allow APSC to assist rural communities in their pursuit of law enforcement officers and independent students seeking enrollment in police training academies. I am writing to further explain the intent of the proposed legislation.

Presently, federal law prevents APSC and other Police Officer Standards and Training (POST) agencies across the United States from receiving full and complete Criminal History Record Information contained in the criminal record repositories of federal and state governments. This prohibition is directly related to the current construct of 28 USC 534 and CFR 28 Part 20, and accompanying policy and procedures through the FBI Advisory Policy Board. In short, what these laws and regulations state is that:

- Law enforcement agencies having access to the Criminal Justice Information System (CJIS – NCIC and Alaska's APSIN) can take fingerprints and conduct criminal history background checks for prospective employees;
- APSC and other states' POST agencies are regarded as occupational licensing bodies and not "law enforcement agencies" by the FBI; therefore, they are not entitled to CJIS information or fingerprint based criminal history information unless it is required by state statute; and
- APSC and POST agencies can only take and submit fingerprints for criminal history records checks related to employment and training if the state adopts statutes specifically authorizing such checks. Alaska currently lacks this statutory authority.

In the clear majority of cases, hiring agencies have access to the CJIS system, take applicants' fingerprints and submit them through the Alaska Department of Public Safety (DPS) for the required fingerprint-based background checks. However, in APSC's efforts to support rural justice by expanding the ranks of Village Police Officers, we discovered that most small rural communities lack CJIS access and, therefore, the ability to take fingerprints for applicants and submit them for the required criminal history background checks. When APSC attempted to support these disadvantaged agencies by taking and submitting applicant's fingerprints on their behalf, we found we were blocked from doing so by the federal regulations and lack of clear statutory authority. SB 148 proposes the modification of state statute to grant APSC the authority to take fingerprints and submit them for a criminal history background check for those communities who lack CJIS access, allowing the council to support the small rural agencies in their effort to hire and train police officers.

APSC also regulates the minimum curriculum for basic training academies and certifies those academies that comply with state training standards. The Council restricts attendance to basic police training academies to individuals who meet the minimum criteria for police certification; this assures available training positions for state and municipal police recruits in the academies and for individuals who are capable of being hired as officers in the future. As basic training is directly related to an individual's future certification as an officer, individuals applying for enrollment as self-sponsored attendees to basic training academies who have disqualifying criminal convictions are not authorized by APSC to attend. SB 148 is intended to authorize APSC to submit training applicant's fingerprints for a criminal history background checks.

The council strongly supports this legislation and feels it is necessary for APSC to provide critical support to rural justice initiatives and the Governor's Public Safety Action Plan.

I look forward to the opportunity of explaining this legislation and the unique challenges of recruiting, hiring, training, and retaining qualified police officers in rural communities to the Senate Judiciary Committee. Please feel free to contact me if you need additional information or have any questions.

SB 148 – Background Checks for Police & Training LEGISLATION SECTIONAL ANALYSIS

January 18, 2018

Summary: This bill adds to the power of the Alaska Police Standards Council (APSC) to request a fingerprint based national criminal history records check from the Federal Bureau of Investigations (FBI) through the Department Public Safety for admittance to a basic police training program or for employment as a police officer, if the prospective employer does not have access to a criminal justice information system (CJIS).

Section 1: Amends AS 12.62.400 (National Criminal History record checks for employment, licensing, and other noncriminal justice purposes) to include the new subsection (a) (1) (19) allowing for a fingerprint based records check to be submitted to the FBI for admittance to a basic police training program under AS 18.65.230 (APSC training programs) or for employment as a police officer under 18.65.240( APSC standards for appointment as a police officer), if the prospective employer does not have access to a criminal justice information system (CJIS).

Section 2: Amends AS 18.65.220 (Powers of the APSC) to include the new subsection (8) which requires a state and national criminal history check for an applicant to a training program established in AS 18.65.230 and for a person to be appointed as a police officer under AS 18.65.240 if that person's prospective employer does not have access to CJIS to conduct their own criminal history check.

Section 3: Amends AS 18.65.230 (APSC training programs) by adding a new subsection (b) which requires an applicant for appointment as a police officer or for admittance to a training program to submit fingerprints and a fee to the APSC, unless this has been done by the applicant's employer.

Section 4: Amends AS 18.65.240 (APSC standards) to reflect the new subsection (d), added below in Section 5.

Section 5: Amends AS 18.65.240 (APSC standards) to add a new subsection (d) which limits the issuing of an APSC certificate unless the Council determines the applicant will undergo a national criminal history record check pre-employment; and requiring a prospective employer to submit an applicant's fingerprints to the council for submission to the FBI, if the prospective employer does not have CJIS access. The criminal history records check is required to assure applicants meet minimum standards established by the council.

Section 6: Amends AS 18.65.290 (Definitions) by adding a new subsection (9) which clarifies that the meaning of criminal justice information system is the meaning given in AS 12.62.900(13).

Section 7: specifies the applicability of the Act applies to persons that apply for admittance to a police training program under AS 18.65.230 or to be appointed as a police officer under AS 18.65.240 on or after the effective date of this Act.

Section 8: includes a revisor's instruction to change the catchline of AS 18.65.230 from "Training programs" to "Training programs; fingerprints"

BILL NO. SB 148

Analysis

This legislation amends AS 18.65.220 relating to the powers of the Alaska Police Standards Council (APSC) by adding a new paragraph authorizing the APSC to require a state and national criminal history record check for purposes of evaluating a person's qualifications for admittance to a police training program or for employment as a police officer; amends AS 18.65.240 by adding a new subsection authorizing agencies to submit to the APSC an applicant's fingerprints for purposes of requesting the state and national criminal history record check; and amends AS 12.62.400(a) relating to national criminal history record checks for employment, licensing, and other noncriminal justice purposes by adding a new paragraph authorizing the Department of Public Safety to submit fingerprints to the Federal Bureau of Investigation to obtain a national criminal history record check for such purposes.

Passage of this legislation would have no fiscal impact on the Alaska Police Standards Council.

FISCAL NOTE ANALYSIS

STATE OF ALASKA
2018 LEGISLATIVE SESSION

Analysis

This bill would amend AS 12.62.400(a) by adding a section to allow Alaska Police Standards Council the ability to request national criminal history records checks from the Federal Bureau of Investigation for persons who apply to attend a training program established by the council or who are to be employed as a police officer by an employer that lacks the ability to request a national criminal history record check.

The department will not have a fiscal impact with the implementation of this bill.

RE: Senate Bill 148 – Supplemental Information for the Committee

Dear Senator Coghill,

Please accept my thanks to you and the Committee for taking the time to consider SB 148. As you know, this bill will make the statutory changes necessary to allow the Alaska Police Standards Council (APSC) to conduct fingerprint based national criminal history background checks for training and certification of police officers. Such background checks are important to verify the identity of aspiring police officers, and to help ensure agencies hire only applicants of good moral character.

The information below was compiled in response to three questions that arose during hearings on HB 293 (the companion to SB 148), and I am passing it on in anticipation that your committee may have similar questions.

- 1) What is the number of police officers in Alaska and what trends in the numbers of police officers have we seen over time?

Attached, you will find a chart and an associated graph demonstrating the number of police officers working for each Alaska police department on July 1st of each year, from 2013 through 2017. This is based on the records maintained by APSC and is subject to the reporting of each agency. Our numbers may differ slightly from those provided by our member agencies, due to the timeliness of their reporting employment actions to us and the dynamic nature of the workforce.

It is notable that, while the number of Alaska State Troopers declined by about 45 officers from 2013 to 2017, the Anchorage Police Department added about 74 officers during the same period. This contributed to a statewide net increase of 32 police officers. If the Anchorage Police Department were removed from the chart we would see that the statewide number of police officers outside Anchorage dropped by 42 officers in the five-year period.

- 2) How many small rural municipal, or 'village' police officers are there in Alaska?

Long ago, APSC recognized that rural and urban law enforcement varied greatly. To provide for these differences, and the unique challenges of recruiting, hiring, training and retaining rural police officers, the council adopted two sets of regulations; one set for more urban police officers and another for "Village Police Officers" from incorporated communities, off the road system, with less than 1000 in population (13 AAC 89).

Presently, APSC has official records of eleven village police officers in seven different rural communities. We know that there are over 123 other incorporated rural Alaskan communities who are eligible to hire village police officers. Unfortunately, we do not know how many of them may have already done so and simply failed to report it to the council. One of the fundamental reasons for this requested legislation is to support APSC as we try to reach out to train and help these rural communities come into compliance with state hiring standards and reporting regulations.

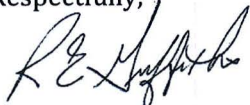

- 3) Could a statutory change empower these small municipalities with the authority to send fingerprints directly to the Department of Public Safety for Criminal History Background checks?

No statutory change would be required to allow municipalities to submit fingerprints to the Department of Public Safety as they already have this authority. However, in order to exercise this authority, a municipality must also have the resources and infrastructure, including adequately trained staff, to maintain state and federal requirements for this access. Some of these requirements include:

- a. An agreement to abide by AS 12.62 and AS 12.64, the National Crime Prevention and Privacy Compact;
- b. Compliance with the appropriate security policies and regulations pertaining the receipt, storage and dissemination of criminal justice information. These requirements can be quite complex, particularly so when the data is stored electronically. An agency must ensure that only authorized recipients are permitted to view this information and that it is stored securely.
- c. A formal User Agreement with the Department of Public Safety Records and Identification section (DPS/R&I) and the national Interstate Identification Index system (or "triple I", III) must be established. Once the agreement is in place, DPS/R&I is required by state law and national policy to audit participating the municipality biannually. Audits, of course, come with a cost to both DPS and the participating agency. Misuse of criminal justice information can result in civil and criminal liability to the entities receiving the information.

SB 148 will allow the APSC to request state and national fingerprint based background checks on behalf of municipalities who do not have the means to establish the infrastructure required to directly request these checks from DPS/R&I. APSC's background checks will be completed in a manner similar to any other licensing entity, such as the Department of Education, the Alaska Bar, or the Division of Insurance.

Respectfully,

R.E. 'Bob' Griffiths
Executive Director
