Sponsor Statement Senate Joint Resolution 4

States like New York, California, Hawaii, and Washington have passed legislation and voter initiatives to try and curtail the illegal poaching of African elephants, some of the consequences in their language prohibits the purchase or possession of all ivory: legally obtain walrus ivory, legally obtained mastodon ivory, legally obtained mammoth ivory; in addition to the Africa-based, endangered wildlife.

This language in state legislation poses a negative consequence on rural Alaska residents who legally obtain ivory through a byproduct of subsistence, they do not add to the poaching of endangered species. In addition, many who subsist, use the byproducts like ivory to provide additional cash income in some of the most impoverished areas of the state. If state legislation continues with no federal clarification or legislation, individuals in New York, California, Hawaii, and Washington will continue to face harsh punishments for purchasing Alaskan made ivory, further limiting Alaskans' customer base.

I strongly urge my colleagues to join me in support of this resolution to show Alaska's support for our artists who handcraft legally obtained walrus, mammoth, and mastodon ivory.

NY CLS ECL § 71-0924 (2016)

§ 71-0924. Illegal commercialization of fish, shellfish, crustaceans, and wildlife

Notwithstanding any other provision of this chapter, when a violation involves the sale, trade or barter of fish, shellfish, crustaceans, wildlife, or parts thereof, the sale, trade or barter of which is prohibited by the fish and wildlife law, the following additional penalties shall be imposed:

1. where the value of fish, shellfish, crustaceans, wildlife, or parts thereof, is two hundred fifty dollars or less, the offense shall be a violation punishable by a fine of five hundred dollars and/or not more than fifteen days of imprisonment;

2. where the value of fish, shellfish, crustaceans, wildlife, or parts thereof, is more than two hundred fifty dollars but does not exceed one thousand five hundred dollars, the offense shall be a misdemeanor punishable by a fine of five thousand dollars and/or not more than one year of imprisonment; <1>

3. where the value of fish, shellfish, crustaceans, wildlife, or parts thereof, exceeds one thousand five hundred dollars, the offense shall constitute a class E felony under the provisions of the penal law <1>; and

4. where the value of ivory articles, as defined in section 11-0535-a of this chapter, exceeds twenty-five thousand dollars, the offense shall constitute a class D felony under the provisions of the penal law.

<1>5. For the purposes of this section the value of fish, shellfish, crustaceans and wildlife shall be the fair market value of or actual price paid for such resource, whichever is greater. For purposes of this section, "sale" shall include the acts of selling, trading or bartering and all related acts, such as the act of offering for sale, trade or barter, and shall also include the illegal possession of fish, shellfish, wildlife or crustacea with intent to sell. It shall be presumptive evidence of possession with intent to sell when such fish, shellfish, wildlife or crustacea is possessed in quantities exceeding the allowable recreational quantities, or is possessed in a retail or wholesale outlet commonly used for the buying or selling of such fish, shellfish, wildlife or crustacea, provided, however, that nothing in this subdivision shall preclude the admission of other evidence which may serve to independently prove a defendant's intent to sell.

HISTORY:

Add, L 1988, ch 69, § 2, eff Nov 1, 1988; amd, L 1996, ch 417, § 7, eff Sept 1, 1996 (see 1996 note below); L 2014, ch 326, § 2, eff Aug 12, 2014.

NOTES:

Editor's Notes:

Laws 1988, ch 69, § 1, eff Nov 1, 1988, provides as follows:

Section 1. The legislature finds that it is essential to protect the state's fish, shellfish, crustacea, wildlife and game for the purposes of the state's ecological well-being, recreation and commerce. Current penalties against the illegal commercialization of these resources do not serve as deterrents against the exploitation of the fish, shellfish, crustacea, wildlife or game.

The legislature further finds that there is great incentive to violate the state's laws and for the illegal taking and overtaking of these natural resources because of the high market value they represent and the potential profit in their sale.

Therefore, it is the purpose of this act to increase the fines and penalties for the illegal taking of fish, shellfish, crustacea, wildlife and game and to scale such fines and penalties according to the relative market value of the fish, shellfish, crustacea, wildlife and game.

Laws 1996, ch 417, § 8, eff Sept 1, 1996, provides as follows:

§ 8. This act shall take effect on the first day of September next succeeding the date on which it shall have become a law; provided, however, that any rules and regulations necessary for the implementation of the provisions of this act are authorized to be promulgated, amended and/or repealed on or before such effective date.

Laws 2014, ch 326, §§ 4 and 7, eff Aug 11, 2014, provide:

§ 4. Within 30 days of the effective date of this act, the department of environmental conservation shall maintain on its website information regarding the prohibition on the sale and purchase of ivory articles and rhinoceros horns in the state.

§ 7. This act shall take effect immediately; provided, however, any person who has been issued a license or permit allowing the sale of elephant ivory articles or rhinoceros horns prior to the effective date of this act may sell such articles listed on such license or permit until such license or permit has expired.

Amendment Notes

The 2014 amendment by ch 326, § 2 added 4; redesignated former 4 as 5; and made related changes.

The Honorable Donny Olson
Alaska State Legislature
State Capitol Room 510
Juneau, AK 99801

Dear Senator Olson:

The Skagway Development Corporation would like to express its support for Senate Joint Resolution No. 4, protecting the use of legally acquired walrus, mammoth and mastodon ivory from the laws that ban the sale, use and possession of all ivories regardless of origin.

The rural Alaskan community of Skagway has a vibrant artistic economy which includes the sale of legally acquired walrus, mammoth and mastodon ivory tools, handicrafts, jewelry and artwork. Banning the use of such ivories would adversely affect this economy and thus this important source of income for local ivory carvers and artists.

The legally acquired walrus, mammoth and mastodon ivories used to create tools, handicrafts, jewelry and artwork in Skagway and other Alaskan communities have no connection to the poaching of African elephants and therefore should not be included in laws that ban the sale, use and possession of ivory. There should be a distinction made between the two sources of ivory, so that Alaskan Artists can continue to sell their ivory handicrafts and maintain their means of making a living in cash-limited economies of rural Alaska.

Thank you for your time and consideration.

Sincerely,

SJR 4

I am writing in support of SJR 4 protecting the legal use of ethical Alaskan ivories. We need Alaska to stand proud in supporting our heritage of ethical use of Alaskan ivories. Native use of walrus ivory and the western use of Alaskan fossil ivories play no role in the killing of elephants, rhinos, and other animals in other parts of the world.

I am part of a community of artists and retailers in Skagway, Alaska that is being hard hit economically by the chilling effect that these uninformed total ivory bands are causing. Passage of SJR 4 will help secure many livelihoods throughout Alaska.

Please contact me if I can offer testimony or other information that will assist in the passage of SJR 4.

Dear Senator Olson:

I'm writing in support of SJR 4 protecting the legal use of ethical Alaskan ivories from the laws that blanket ban and vilify all ivories regardless of origin. We need Alaska to stand proud in supporting the heritage of ethical use of Alaskan ivories.

Native use of walrus ivory and the western use of Alaskan fossil ivories obviously play no role in the demand and the atrocities committed on elephants, rhinos, and other animals in other parts of the world.

I am part of a community of carvers and retailers in the USA that is being hard hit economically by the chilling effect that these uninformed Total Ivory Bans are causing. My particular interest is in mammoth ivory that is sourced from the gold fields of Dawson City, Yukon.

The commercial use of mammoth ivory is crucial to the survival of the tusks that are dug up by gold miners in Dawson City. Once a tusk is dug up from the permafrost it must be preserved and protected from the elements. If there is no commercial value in these tusks and pieces of these tusks they will simply be left exposed to rot, a sad ending to the remains of a mammoth that survived 35,000 years buried in the permafrost.

There is very little scientific interest in these tusks. For more information on this ethical ivory, on mammoth tusks, please the blog: Preservationmammoth.com.

(c) Unless otherwise authorized by federal law including the Magnuson-Stevens Fishery Conservation and Management Act (16 U.S.C. section 1851 et seq.) as amended, no person shall sell, offer to sell, purchase, trade, possess with intent to sell, or barter for any part or product from rays and sharks (Elasmobranchii) insofar as the species is listed:

- (1) On appendix I of the Convention on International Trade in Endangered Species; or

HRS § 183D-4.5

(2) As endangered or threatened under the Endangered Species Act.

(d) No person shall sell, offer to sell, purchase, trade, possess with intent to sell, or barter for any part or product from mammoth (Mammuthus), although the species is extinct.

(e) To the extent permitted under federal law, none of the prohibitions set forth in this section shall apply if:

(1) The covered animal species part or product is part of a bona fide antique; provided that:

(A) The antique status of such a part or product is established by the owner or seller thereof with historical documentation showing the antique to be not less than one hundred years old;

(B) The covered animal species part or product is less than twenty per cent by volume of such an antique; and

(C) The covered animal species part or product is a fixed component or components of a larger manufactured item and is not, in its current form, the primary source of value of the item;

(B) To or from a museum;

(3) The distribution of the covered animal species part or product is to a legal beneficiary of an estate, trust, or other inheritance;

(4) The covered animal species part or product is less than twenty per cent by volume of a gun, knife, or musical instrument, including without limitation string instruments and bows, wind and percussion instruments, and pianos, if the owner or seller provides historical documentation showing the item was manufactured no later than 1975 and the covered animal species part or product is a fixed component or components of a larger manufactured item and is not, in its current form, the primary source of value of the item;

(f) There is established a rebuttable presumption of possession with intent to sell a covered animal species part or product when the part or product is possessed by a retail or wholesale establishment or other forum engaged in the business of buying or selling similar items. This rebuttable presumption shall not preclude a finding of intent to sell based on any other evidence that may serve to independently establish such intent.

(h) For the purposes of this section, "covered animal species part or product" means any item that contains, or is wholly or partially made from, any covered animal species.

Products of nations not so certified may not be imported into the United States for any purpose, including processing for exportation.

(B) Except for scientific research purposes as provided for in paragraph (1) of this subsection, during the moratorium no permit may be issued for the taking of any marine mammal which is classified as belonging to an endangered species pursuant to the Endangered Species Conservation Act of 1969 or has been designated by the Secretary as depleted, and no importation may be made of any such mammal.

Alaskan natives, exemptions.

(b) The provisions of this Act shall not apply with respect to the taking of any marine mammal by any Indian, Aleut, or Eskimo who dwells on the coast of the North Pacific Ocean or the Arctic Ocean if such taking—

Depleted species or stocks, regulations.

Notwithstanding the preceding provisions of this subsection, when, under this Act, the Secretary determines any species or stock of marine mammal subject to taking by Indians, Aleuts, or Eskimos to be depleted, he may prescribe regulations upon the taking of such marine mammals by any Indian, Aleut, or Eskimo described in this subsection. Such regulations may be established with reference to species or stocks, geographical description of the area included, the season for taking, or any other factors related to the reason for establishing such regulations and consistent with the purposes of this Act. Such regulations shall be prescribed after notice and hearing required by section 103 of this title and shall be removed as soon as the Secretary determines that the need for their imposition has disappeared.

(c) In order to minimize undue economic hardship to persons subject to this Act, other than those engaged in commercial fishing operations referred to in subsection (a) (2) of this section, the Secretary, upon any such person filing an application with him and upon filing such information as the Secretary may require showing, to his satisfaction, such hardship, may exempt such person or class of persons from provisions of this Act for no more than one year from the date of the enactment of this Act, as he determines to be appropriate.

FEDERAL COOPERATION WITH STATES

SEC. 109. (a) (1) Except as otherwise provided in this section, no State may adopt any law or regulation relating to the taking of marine mammals within its jurisdiction or attempt to enforce any State law or regulation relating to such taking.

Law enforce-

(2) Any State may adopt and enforce any laws or regulations relating to the protection and taking, within its jurisdiction, of any species or population stock of marine mammals if the Secretary determines, after review thereof, that such laws and regulations will be consistent with (A) the regulations promulgated under section 103 of this title with respect to such species or population stock, and (B) such other provisions of this Act, and any rule or regulation promulgated pursuant to this title, which apply with respect to such species or population stock. If the Secretary determines that any such State laws and regulations are so consistent, the provisions of this Act, except this section and sections 101 (except to the extent that the Secretary waives the application of section 101 to permit such State laws and regulations to take effect) and 110 of this title, and title II of this Act, shall not apply with respect to the species or population stock concerned within the jurisdiction of the State.

State laws and regulations,
review.

(3) Notwithstanding the preceding provisions of this subsection and the provisions of subsection (c) of this section, the Secretary shall continuously monitor and review the laws and regulations of any State which has assumed responsibility for marine mammals as provided for in paragraph (2) of this subsection. Whenever the Secretary finds that the laws and regulations of any such State are not in substantial compliance with either paragraph (1) or (2), or both, he shall resume responsibilities under this Act for the marine mammals concerned within the jurisdiction of that State, superseding such State laws and regulations to the extent which, after notice and opportunity for hearing, he deems necessary.

Mammals, taking for humane purposes.

(4) Nothing in this Act shall prevent a State or local government official or employee, in the course of his duties as an official or employee, from taking a marine mammal in a humane manner if such taking (A) is for the protection or welfare of such mammal or for the protection of the public health and welfare, and (B) includes steps designed to assure the return of such mammal to its natural habitat.

Grants to States.

(b) The Secretary is authorized to make grants to each State whose laws and regulations relating to protection and management of marine mammals which primarily inhabit waters or lands within the boundaries of that State are found to be consistent with the purposes and policies of this Act. The purpose of such grants shall be to assist such States in developing and implementing State programs for the protection and management of such marine mammals. Such grants shall not exceed 50 per centum of the costs of a particular program's development and implementation. To be eligible for such grants, State programs shall include planning and such specific activities, including, but not limited, to research, censusing, habitat acquisition and improvement, or law enforcement as the Secretary finds contribute to the purposes and policies of this Act. The Secretary may also, as a condition of any such grant, provide that State agencies report at regular intervals on the status of species and populations which are the subject of such grants.

Limitation.

Eligibility.

Report.

(c) The Secretary is authorized and directed to enter into cooperative arrangements with the appropriate officials of any State for the delegation to such State of the administration and enforcement of this title: Provided, That any such arrangement shall contain such provisions as the Secretary deems appropriate to insure that the purposes and policies of this Act will be carried out.

N.J. Stat. § 23:2A-13.1 (2017)

§ 23:2A-13.1. Findings, declarations relative to ivory trafficking

The Legislature finds and declares that ivory trafficking is at the highest rate ever recorded, with an estimated confiscation of more than 41 tons of illegal ivory worldwide in 2013; that despite laws to protect elephants, more than 35,000 African elephants were slaughtered in 2012 and scientists expect the current levels of illegal trade in ivory will bring elephants to extinction within 20 years; that other species with ivory teeth and tusks such as hippopotamuses, narwhals, walrus, and whales are equally threatened and the protection of one species may inadvertently draw poachers' efforts to another species; that precious artifacts from prehistoric mammoths are also not safe and need protection from illegal ivory traffickers; that currently the population of all species of rhinoceros living in the wild worldwide has dwindled to 29,000 and, in February 2014, a federal ban on commercial trade of rhinoceros horn and elephant ivory has focused the need to protect rhinoceros populations from poachers as well; and that the most effective way to discourage the illegal trafficking is to eliminate markets and profits for the traffickers.

The Legislature therefore determines that it is an important public purpose to protect all species of rhinoceros and all species of animals with ivory teeth and tusks by prohibiting the import, sale, purchase, barter, or possession with intent to sell, of any ivory, ivory product, rhinoceros horn, or rhinoceros horn product.

a. In addition to the prohibitions established pursuant to, and the penalties imposed for violations of, R.S.23:4-27, "The Endangered and Nongame Species Conservation Act," P.L.1973, c.309 (C.23:2A-1 et seq.), and any other applicable law, it shall be unlawful for any person to import, sell, offer for sale, purchase, barter, or possess with intent to sell, any ivory, ivory product, rhinoceros horn, or rhinoceros horn product, except as provided pursuant to this section.

Eskimo Walrus Commission Executive Committee

Resolution 2016-01

A Resolution Opposing the Inclusion of Walrus, Mammoth, and Mastodon Ivory in African Elephant Ivory Ban Laws in the United States

WHEREAS, the Eskimo Walrus Commission was formed in 1978 by Kawerak, Inc. and represents 19 coastal subsistence walrus hunting communities in Alaska; and

WHEREAS, the use of legally acquired walrus, mammoth, and mastodon ivory by Alaska Native carvers to create tools, handicrafts, jewelry, and artwork is a longstanding cultural tradition that continues to be a vital component of Alaska Native culture today; and

WHEREAS, the Marine Mammal Protection Act (MMPA) explicitly protects the right of coastal Alaska Natives to harvest marine mammals and utilize their byproducts in handicrafts for sale in the United States; and

WHEREAS, the sale of walrus, mammoth, and mastodon ivory tools, handicrafts, jewelry, and artwork by Alaska Natives is an important source of income in the cash-limited economies of rural Alaska; and

WHEREAS, in efforts to stem the poaching of African elephants, various U.S. states have passed laws banning the sale, use, or possession of all ivory, and additional states are considering such laws; and

WHEREAS, these ivory ban laws fail to acknowledge the difference between African elephant ivory and legally acquired walrus, mammoth, and mastodon ivory used by Alaska Native artists; and

WHEREAS, these state ivory ban laws may cause residents of those states to face prosecution for buying, owning, or bringing home legally acquired ivory from Alaska; and

WHEREAS, these state ivory ban laws will negatively impact Alaska Native artists who depend on the sale of their handicrafts as a source of important income in a cash-limited economy;

NOW THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED THAT the Eskimo Walrus Commission opposes the inclusion of walrus, mammoth, and mastodon ivory in ivory ban laws; and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED THAT the Eskimo Walrus Commission requests that walrus, mammoth, and mastodon ivory be exempted from current and future ivory ban laws in the United States.

Resolution 03-2016

A resolution of Sivuqaq, Incorporated, requesting that the serious issue of the mass confusion generated by Executive Order 13648, which ends the African elephant ivory market in America, be included as an agenda item in the White House Tribal Nations Conference.

WHEREAS, the Board of Directors of Sivuqaq, Inc. are concerned about the health and economic welfare of our residents, and,

WHEREAS, Executive Order 13648 of July 1, 2013, which ends the African elephant ivory market in America and provides an exemption for items already permitted under existing federal legislation, which includes the protections set forth under the Marine Mammal Protection Act (MMPA) of our hunting rights for walrus and other sea mammals, and, importantly, the use of inedible portions in the production of arts and crafts, and,

WHEREAS, states are crafting and passing laws banning elephant ivory and are erroneously including walrus ivory in their description of ivory, even with an inclusion of the federal exemption noted in the Executive Order for items permitted under existing federal law, and,

WHEREAS, Alaska Native peoples use of walrus ivory is not explicitly mentioned in the federal or state laws, along with whale, polar bear and sea otter, all of which are included in the state laws, and are mammals we legally continue to hunt and create arts and crafts from, and,

WHEREAS, the ensuing confusion is creating a de facto ban of our walrus ivory products, with sales reported as decreased by the businesses our artists and craftspeople depend on, and,

WHEREAS, our subsistence based community depends substantially upon the walruses, bowhead whales and seals for our nutritional needs, with the inedible portions used to create our arts and crafts, and,

WHEREAS, this income is vital to our residents because our unemployment rates are at approximately 75% and,

Re: Ivory Bans

Dear Senator Murkowski:

On behalf of the Alaska Federation of Natives, I am writing to urge you to take action to protect the livelihood of Alaska Native artists who use walrus or fossilized mammoth or mastodon ivory in their art as various states move to ban ivory use, possession, sales and import.

As you know, AFN is the largest statewide Native organization in Alaska. Our membership includes 185 federally recognized Alaska Native tribes, 153 village corporations, 12 regional corporations, and 12 regional nonprofit and tribal consortiums that compact and contract to run federal and state programs. Formed nearly fifty years ago, AFN continues to be the principle forum and voice of Alaska Natives in dealing with critical issues of public policy and government.

In an effort to stem the poaching that is decimating the African elephant population, President Obama issued an Executive Order in 2013 to sharply curb the domestic commercial trade of African elephant ivory. Following that sentiment, New Jersey, New York, California, Massachusetts and Washington all have laws on the books that, to some extent, ban the sale, use and possession of ivory; more states are considering such laws. While we understand the need to protect endangered species, these laws fail to acknowledge the difference between elephant ivory and the walrus and fossilized ivory legally taken and used by Alaska Native artists in a wide range of mediums.

The Marine Mammal Protection Act (MMPA) explicitly protects Alaska Native harvest of certain marine mammals, such as walrus, and use of marine mammal products in handicrafts for sale in the United States. The use or sale of mammoth or mastodon ivory is also exempt from most laws regarding ivory sales because these creatures have long been extinct.

We are concerned that the state ivory bans are written so broadly that residents of those states could face prosecution for bringing home from Alaska art that contains legal ivory. More significantly, Alaska Native traditional and contemporary use generates important income from the sale of Alaska Native art and handicrafts and is therefore crucial to many rural families and economically depressed communities, and the practice of creating these works sustains our cultures and traditions. Threat of prosecution and actions that may stifle economic, social and cultural activities as well as decrease Native handicraft and fine art sales will severely impact our already depressed rural economies.

We ask that you intervene to protect the rights and livelihood of Alaska Native artists, either legislatively or by contacting states that are considering these bans.

If you have any questions or require further clarification about the content of this letter, please contact me directly at (907) 274-3611 or nevakitka@aol.com.

Sincerely,

A Resolution of the Alaska State Council on the Arts Opposing the Inclusion of Domestic Walrus, Mammoth & Mastodon Ivory In African Elephant Ivory Ban Laws in the United States

WHEREAS, the Alaska State Council on the Arts (ASCA) was created in statute in 1966 by the Alaska State Legislature to act as Alaska's State Arts Agency with a mission to represent, support, and advance the creative endeavors of individuals, organizations, and agencies throughout Alaska; and

WHEREAS, in an effort to stem the poaching of African elephants, various U.S. states have enacted laws banning the sale, use, or possession of all ivory, and additional states are considering such laws; and

WHEREAS, these domestic ivory bans fail to acknowledge the difference between African elephant ivory and legally acquired walrus, mammoth, and mastodon ivory used by Alaska Native artists; and

WHEREAS, the Marine Mammal Protection Act (MMPA) explicitly protects the rights of Alaska Natives to harvest marine mammals and utilize their byproducts in art for sale in the United States; and

WHEREAS, the use of legally acquired walrus, mammoth, and mastodon ivory by Alaska Native artists to create tools, handicrafts, jewelry, and artwork is a longstanding cultural tradition that is an actively vital component of Alaska Native culture today throughout Alaska; and

WHEREAS, the passage of state domestic ivory bans negatively impacts Alaska Native artists who depend on the sale of their art as an important cash income source to support their economic autonomy and therefore their families and communities in a cash-limited economy; and

WHEREAS, ASCA supports Alaska Native artists through a variety of efforts including its Traditional Native Arts Program, Alaska Native Arts Senior Advisory Committee, Alaska Native Leadership Program, Alaska's Living Cultural Treasures and Rural Artists Residencies Programs, and other initiatives; and

WHEREAS, ASCA has supported and advocated for protection of Alaska Native artists and their artwork through such initiatives as the Silver Hand program (Alaska Native arts authentication program) and by acting in an advisory capacity to federal agencies such as the U.S. Federal Trade Commission, U.S. Department of the Interior Indian Arts & Crafts Board, U.S. Migratory Bird Protection, U.S. Fish & Wildlife Service, and the Alaska State Attorney General's Office and Alaska Department of Natural Resources, with respect to issues impacting Alaska Native artists; and

WHEREAS, ASCA has developed strong partnerships with Alaska Native profit and non-profit organizations and tribal entities through the delivery of professional development services, and supports efforts by Alaska Native organizations such as Kawerak, Inc., the Eskimo Walrus Commission, and the Alaska Federation of Natives and other Alaska Native entities who seek to protect Alaska Native rights regarding the customary and economic use of walrus ivory from these state bans;

NOW THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED that ASCA requests that walrus, mammoth and mastodon ivory be exempted from all current and future domestic ivory ban laws in the United States; and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that ACSA requests Alaska's Congressional Delegation take any and all steps necessary to ensure that Alaska Native artists' creative opportunities and economic rights to use walrus, mammoth, and mastodon ivory remain protected under already established state and federal law.
