The Honorable Charles H. Parr
Representative, State of Alaska
Pouch V
Juneau, Alaska 99801

Dear Mr. Parr:

I certainly appreciate your letter of April 7, 1975, concerning the rent control hearings.

Commissioner Motley held his hearing in Fairbanks on April 8th. I did appear and testified at said hearing -- probably at too much length. At least that is what my wife told me, since she was in the audience.

At the end of your letter you said you would appreciate any suggestions as to ways of remedying the rising housing costs and their effect on persons of low and fixed incomes. This is very difficult under present conditions of rising construction costs, and mounting inflation.

We have found that investors and builders are not interested in low cost housing, or even government subsidized low cost housing, because of the paper work involved, delays, the bureaucratic uncertainties, and the drastic limitations on income and profits. I am referring to the FHA programs. It is also my feeling that taxpayer are becoming very disenchanted with such programs, because of Federal deficits and the welfare aspects of such programs.

Low cost housing can only be secured, if it is subsidized sufficiently by either State or Federal funds to the extent that it does attract investors. Such housing in the past has made an attempt to be equal to housing, which is secured by taxpayers and owners from hard earned wages or other income. I am more and more of the opinion that such luxury cannot be afforded under present level of taxes, economy and inflation. It would seem that persons, who make only a low income, should be entitled to minimum standard of housing, commensurate with their low income. Persons on fixed income could fare no better. This may be a harsh thought, but I am wondering if it is not really based on realities, and on the fact that the taxpayers of these United States cannot afford to subsidize welfare based on more than minimum standards, rather than on semi-luxury standards. Possibly the State of Alaska four or five or six years from now, after it is earning its oil royalties, may be able to afford something more, but I doubt whether it can do so at this time.

"Christ Makes Men Independent"

The Honorable Charles H. Parr
April 11, 1975

I am also wondering whether persons of low income can really afford to live in metropolitan areas, or high cost areas, and expect housing equal to that of the majority of persons, who are receiving higher wages, or "boom" wages. Possibly they should be in rural areas in housing they can provide for themselves, or in mobile or trailer housing.

I do realize that Congress has stated as a matter of national policy substantially that all citizens are entitled to adequate and good housing. This is a difficult goal to reach under present economic pressures, as well as uncertainties. Possibly we may be reaching a point where such adequacy and quality should be redefined.

The foregoing is only some thoughts at random. As I said before, the problem you posed is a difficult one to remedy. It requires study by practical persons involved daily in housing: Its construction, materials, labor, financing, management, tenant needs and limitations, operations and rentals.

Sincerely yours,

Mobile Homes a Solution?

With existing housing overpriced and over-crowded, it isn't long before people in need of a place to live start thinking about a mobile home, that modern-day answer to the tent.

At first some people might be put off by the price. ("$4,500 down for a trailer?" exclaims a young mother. "Outside you can GET one for $4,500.")

But nevermind. You'll have two months to find the money since it will take at least that long, according to one mobile home salesman, to get delivery.

And you needn't waste time wishing you could get it sooner — there isn't anyplace to put it anyway.

"Right now there are no spaces," said a woman at a sales yard, an amazing admission for someone who was hoping to sell mobile homes.

"Nothing," said the woman at the Lakeview Court. "No, we aren't expanding."

But another mobile home salesman was more optimistic. "There will be parks sprouting up all around," he said hopefully. "There should be spaces around the first of July." And he mentioned a 300 space development which he understands is going in somewhere on Badger Road.

But is it?

"Lots of people are coming in with the idea of building trailer courts," says John Jansen of the State Department of Environmental Conservation.

The department is still waiting, in most cases, for the necessary data to be supplied.

But, Jansen says, it appears that much of the land being purchased for this purpose has either a high water table or permafrost. Either condition makes it almost impossible to dispose of waste. If the waste water can not percolate down, says Jansen, there is no place for it to go but to the surface.

Even if they put in treatment facilities, he says, they still can't pump it into the ground if its going to come back up.

Of the larger courts which are proposed, Jansen says only one court looks like it will be completed. This is a North Pole installation which will be hooking into existing treatment facilities.

Several existing trailer courts the state but also with borough zoning ordinances. "We get 25 to 30 calls a day," says borough Planning Director Donald Gilmer, "from people wanting to know what they can do."

Every case, Gilmer says, has to be studied on its merits. The zone and the size of the parcel must be considered.

"But," he says, "we are remembering that what we put in we're going to have to live with after the boom is over. We have good examples from World War II of what not to do. People rented out spots in their back yard, side yard. We still have some of that junk left."

Any mobile home park — defined as any land parcel which is occupied by more than two mobile homes — must get a borough permit. And in general the borough requires 3,000 square feet per trailer. The trailers must be at least 15 feet apart.

Anyone found operating a mobile home park in violation of borough or state ordinances can be charged with a misdemeanor and if found guilty fined $300 for every day the park continues to operate.

Illicit trailers are usually discovered, Gilmer says. Besides two employees whose duty it is to enforce the ordinances, the neighbors usually supply a tip.

"Then we take them to court," Gilmer says, "and we are currently winning our cases."

Fairbanks hearing: squeeze play

By JANE PENDER

Our Fairbanks Correspondent
FAIRBANKS — Housing and related problems emerged as the single most pressing impact problem in the Fairbanks area during hearings conducted here Saturday by Rep. Charlie Paar and Sen. Pat Rodey of Anchorage. Hearings were oriented primarily around the elderly and juveniles, but testimony from a number of citizens was received as well.

Not only is rental housing scarce to nonexistent, but there are no longer houses to buy. Agencies in need of expansion such as Community Youth Services cannot bring new people in because housing cannot be found for them. Some agencies cannot find office space, let alone a place to park their cars while they're at work.

LANDLORDS, LIKE Mario Grossi who owns and operates 12 apartments expressed the belief if rent control comes as a way to control rent gouging here, those affected most will be the town's elderly. He cited three elderly persons who share one of his apartments at $310 a month. He said this is all they can afford, but, if rent control comes, he, along with every other landlord here will have to raise rents. He said "What I am facing in the next few months is the possibility of taxes doubling or tripling; heating oil up another 10 cents a gallon; prices for services like plumbing and heating going up. I may not want to raise rents, but I might have to in order to break even."

He said, even if he was assured there would be no rent control, he would feel building new apartments this summer would be risky. "To build in Fairbanks now you are taking an extreme chance." He said for each two bedroom unit, it would cost from $40,000 to $50,000 and that he would have to charge $500 to $500 a month for each.

Doris Southall, who is active in various Senior Citizens Groups here said the average income of the elderly here ranges around $3,442 a year not including the Senior citizen's $100 a month bonus.

Most of these, she said, live in tiny cabins or sub-standard apartments, but want to stay independent as long as possible.

JOE STEINARD, who is very active with the Senior Citizens of Interior Alaska, a group which owns property and has established a center at Mile 33 Richardson Highway, detailed plans of his group to hook up 10 trailers for workers at Pump Station 3, and plans for building small cabins for senior citizens, but complained he had been unable to obtain information about funding for such projects.

The picture which emerged was of a runaway economy, with a high local inflation superimposed on high nationwide rates; of people caught in a money-land-living space squeeze, coupled with often expressed fear about what is to come this summer when workers and their families pour into Fairbanks.

One group which has been hard hit already is that of Fairbanks juveniles, according to Director of Community Youth Services Kathy Carr-Lundfeld. She said while many of those problems had been around for quite a while, they were now increasing in seriousness. She said there was a large increase in child neglect cases, and adjustment problems related to one parent being at work for the pipeline while children were left to their own devices.

SHE SAID there has been for juveniles, the following increases: 110 per cent juvenile runaways; 316 per cent liquor violations; 85 per cent drug abuse; 68 per cent shoplifting; 242 per cent juveniles in need of supervision.

She said there had been a dramatic decrease in the age at which juveniles get into trouble with the law.

Mobile home parking space scarce

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the third in a series of articles on the Daily News-Miner rent survey.)

Mobile homes and trailers are often mentioned as the cure-all for Fairbanks' housing shortage. At one meeting, borough mayor John Carlson claimed a dealer could bring 400 units into town and sell them in one day.

But where to put them? H.C. Guinn, zoning administrator at the borough, said there are plans for expansion at several existing mobile home parks and some plans for new ones. Town and Country, Wildwood and Greenwood all plan some expansion this summer, but Guinn said the additional number of spaces probably will not be enough to ease the housing crunch very much.

Tanana Valley Mobile Home Park also plans some expansion, but spaces there will be for persons who buy their mobile home there, with no spaces available for persons who already own a mobile unit. Plans are for about 200 additional units there.

A similar operation is in the works in the North Pole area, but no definite plan has been submitted yet, Guinn said. The area in question needs to be rezoned before any mobile home park could be developed, and a hearing on the rezoning was held Tuesday. Preliminary plans are for 500 spaces.

Guinn added that there are many inquiries from persons who wish to make a few spaces, between two and 10, available on property they own, "but they often find the costs involved in adhering to the requirements are more than they can handle." He explained the borough's ordinance for mobile home parks is based on state standard for sanitation. "They are fairly stiff standards, but when it's done, it's done right."

Meanwhile, existing parks are full and space rent, like other rent, is going up.

The Daily News-Miner received six rent survey coupons from tenants in Lakeview Terrace and Lakeview Trailer Court, noting that space rent in those parks is going up.

The tenants enclosed a postcard from the management explaining that rent would be going up $10 per space as of May 1, plus pro-rating of electric bills to cover the Golden Valley Electric Association surcharge. The increase brings the rent at Lakeview Trailer Court to $90, and the rent at Lakeview Terrace to $100. Reasons given on the card were increased fuel costs, taxes and electricity.

Comments from tenants include: "All we are paying for is the lot. We pay our own fuel, electricity, propane. Last summer when our increase was put in effect their reason for it was paved roads which they haven't even attempted to start."

"We pay our own fuel and electricity surcharge. There is no excuse for this raise. It appears they're joining the bandwagon and getting a raise through before any possible rent control."

"We pay the fuel and electric bills, don't have street lights, so don't understand reason for owner's increases in fuel, electricity, taxes, etc. As a matter of fact, the borough assesses the owner a tax of $1 per year per trailer space which is passed on to space occupant. In summation, the space rent for Lakeview Terrace has increased from $50 in September, 1972, to $100, effective the first of May. During this period, no appreciable improvement, such as tarring streets, installation of street lights or even normal grading or snow removal of streets has been accomplished."

"I don't mind paying a utility bill, prices have gone up, but this is ridiculous. Thank goodness we are moving out of this place. I feel sorry for the people trapped here—the ones who were here before the pipeline and do not care to work the pipeline jobs."

Phillip Rahol, owner and manager of the courts, explained that the $10 increase on spaces was to cover his taxes, which have gone up after an increased assessment from the borough. He said the assessment on the trailer court has gone up 100 per cent.

On the pro-rating of electricity, he explained that until March, he had been passing on the electric bill to tenants and paying the GVEA surcharge himself. The last time he paid it, it worked out to $22.78 per tenant, and he said he just couldn't afford to do that anymore.

"I'm not out to exploit anybody," he said. "We've got people here on pensions." He noted that the price of the courts are just reaching a point where they are comparable with prices in Seattle.

He added that improvements are made every year, and this year he hopes to finish landscaping the courts and backstop the streets. "I'll do it with money I have available. I won't go to the bank for a loan because of interest rates."

He pointed out that no one is going to speculate and build more trailer courts until they know what the population trend is going to be in a few years.

A check with the borough assessor's office showed that Rahol was "fairly accurate in his projection of costs," according to Fra. K. Hunt, property appraiser with the assessing department. Hunt noted that Lakeview is one of the nicest courts in town, and the difference in space price between the high quality and low quality parks is very small.

He also commented that costs of operating a park in Alaska are much higher than "outside," yet space rates don't reflect that much of a difference.

For rent: one room, 1

By SUZANNE BUSHONG
Staff writer

Home sweet home. Two rooms and two five gallon water jugs for $500 a month. Not great, but at least it's a room over one's head.

That is the attitude prevailing among prospective renters in Fairbanks as the "apartment for rent" ads dwindle and the "wanted to rent" ads increase.

A check with persons looking for places to live in the Golden Heart City describes a search almost as futile and frustrating as a snipe hunt.

One of the lucky advertisers found a place to live for himself and his family. "I feel very fortunate," he said, "to find a nice place and a nice landlord." He is paying $600 a month for a two-bedroom, unfurnished home.

There were seven other families looking at the place, and he had an interview with the landlord before obtaining the house, he said. It took him two weeks to find a place, and while the family was looking, they saw one house which rented for $500 a month, first and last month's rent in advance, a $150 cleaning deposit plus cost of electricity. The man described the house as "terrible."

"It was dirty, the furniture was beat up, the carpet had holes in it, the oven door was falling off. My wife said she just wouldn't live there."

But he assumes that someone did indeed rent the place, since the advertisement for it disappeared.

One woman whose family is looking for a house to buy or rent said, "The rents here are so outrageous you can't save enough money for a down payment to buy a place."

The family which includes three children is living in an apartment and across the hall in a three-bedroom apartment is a family of 10. The apartments cost $600 a month plus electricity.

The family looked at one home which was unfinished. It had no water, was unfurnished, and rented for $700 a month.

"People just want the money from the pipeline," she said, "and my husband isn't even affiliated with it. People are renting anything and renters will give anything for it just to have a place to call home."

One woman in that situation is paying $300 a month for what she calls "a hole in the ground." There is no running water in the tiny cabin, and she said there is another cabin down the road which has only a bed and a living room, which is going for $500 a month.

She has lived in the Fairbanks area for a long time, but had to move from her former residence.

"If I don't find a place in the next few days, I'll have to stay at a hotel or I'll be in the street." She did live in her car for several weeks.

And during the search for someplace to live, one of the responses to her ad netted several obscene phone calls.

She also noted that she looked into buying a trailer, but the cheapest she could find was a 1955 model for $8,500.

One man who has lived all over the world said he has never seen a housing situation like the one now in Fairbanks. He is considering leaving here if he doesn't find a place soon.

"Most of what I've seen have been marginal places. I'd say they are around $100 to $150 over what they should be." One of the places he was shown in response to his ad was a hallway which had been converted into an apartment, for which the landlord was asking $300 a month.

A group of three young women are looking for a place to share rent, because none of them could afford the rent prices alone. They are native Fairbanksans who took some time to travel outside and came back to the housing crunch. They are now staying in one of their parents' houses.

One said: "I just wish I had a duplex so I could jack up the rent."

One-room cabins for $300 a month, no water.

Unfinished houses for $1,000 a month.

Increases of $90 per month on current rentals.

Three bedroom house, 41 miles out of town, $400 a month.

No children, no pets, no single women, no vacancies.

And in the meantime, the hotels and motels will rent rooms by the day only, totalling up rents over $1,000 a month for a room.

And everyone says, "this is just the beginning."

Some Leave, Some Live in Hotels, Good Tent Business Seen

"There's lots of rooms but they're all took."

The husky man in the brand-new parka was explaining why he had spent the night at the Salvation Army but he could have been telling the story of housing in Fairbanks.

"The tent business is gonna be good," said the man at Alaska Tent and Tarp. "We're building 'em as fast as we can." And indeed, a wall tent from Tent and Tarp was one of two offerings in the Unfurnished Apartment section of the daily newspaper one day last week.

No one has yet offered a prize for the best housing crunch story but everyone seems to have a candidate.

There are stories about apartment vacancies being auctioned off, about rents of $1000 per month, of old-time residents being kicked out to make room for renters who can afford exorbitant rents.

But there are always stories. Is it really so bad?

"Yes," says Linda Resh. "This is the last straw." She has make the move to Juneau. They are confident that the housing situation there, even when bad, is much better than the situation in Fairbanks.

"There are a lot of people — old-timers — who are leaving," says Resh, "either going to Southeast or to the bush."

Will the Fairbanksans who leave be coming back someday? "I don't know if this will ever be over," she says. "There are more pipelines to be built. It may be 20 years. And naturally people come; this is the only

LETTER OF LEGISLATIVE INTENT FOR

HOUSE COMMITTEE SUBSTITUTE FOR SENATE BILL 414

The House Finance Committee has had SB 414 under consideration and recommends that it be replaced with House Committee Substitute for Senate Bill 414 and that it be reported out of committee with a majority "do pass" recommendation.

HCSSB 414 provides funding for the salary increases required by statute and negotiated contract, as provided in Senate Bill 414, adjusted to reflect appropriate vacancy factors.

It is the intent of the legislature that actual contract costs are to be fully funded. If actual costs required by statute or contract exceed the funds appropriated for FY 76, legislation for supplemental appropriation should be submitted to the legislature.

COMMITTEE SUBSTITUTE FOR HOUSE BILL 450

The House Finance Committee has had HB 450 under consideration and has replaced it with CSHB 450, reporting it out of committee with a majority recommendation of "do pass".

The committee substitute alters the Governor's proposed new pay scale for all state employees not otherwise covered by bargaining agreements by adding two additional ranges, range 29 and range 30. Testimony from the Commissioner of Administration in support of the additional ranges convinced the committee of the desirability of establishing additional high range positions to improve the state's competitive position in certain types of employment, i.e. high cost medical, scientific, or engineering types of positions.

SJR
38 The Commerce Committee has had SENATE JOINT RESOLUTION NO. 38 (Solomon Gulch hydroelectric project) under consideration and a majority of the members of the Committee recommends it do pass. These salary adjustments, including retroactivity, are equal to the adjustments negotiated for general government employees represented by the Alaska Public Employees Association.

Sincerely,

The fiscal note for HB 459 does not affect an increase in the amount requested in the Governor's budget for fiscal 1977. Payments under the bill will be made from sick leave balance in the budget. Currently 57% of these funds lapse; although this lapse will be reduced by the bill, no one has presented data on likely paternity rates.

Dear Mr. Schoenberg:

The fiscal note for HB 459 does not reflect an increase in the amount requested in the Governor's budget for fiscal 1977.

It is expected, however, that in fiscal 1977 expenditures will increase by the amount shown and as a consequence the total amount lapsed at fiscal year-end will be less than it would have been without House Bill 459.

Eventually - in succeeding years - agency budget requests and the Governor's budget will increase. Increases will be for additional temporary help, additional overtime and eventually for additional full time permanent positions. It is not possible to give employees more time off the job at full pay without increasing costs.

In some respects, sick leave is like insurance. An employee can collect only for a condition covered by the policy. HB 459 increases the coverage.

Employees do not use all of their sick leave. Employees earn 700,000 hours of sick leave a year and use 400,000 hours. The balance of unused sick leave for employees who are currently working is 1,800,000 hours. HB 459 will increase the number of hours of sick leave used.

Sincerely yours,

William C. Mullin, Director

III. ANALYSIS (See Fiscal Note Preparation Instructions, Section III)

The total number of employees presently eligible for medical leave is 7,823. Of these, 57.4% are male or about 4,490. Using 1974 figures of 2.97 for average size of household and crude birth rate of 1.49% would indicate approximately 199 births per year for eligible males. It is estimated that the average employee would take an additional two weeks (75 hours) of medical leave if eligible. Using General Government pay scale Range 14C ($9.31 per hour plus 21% for benefits) costs figures come to 168.1 for FY 77.

7,823 total employees X .573886 males = 4,490 males

4,490 x 2.97 x .0149 = 199 births per year

199 x 75 hours x 9.31 x 1.21 = $168,132 total cost

Future years are projected at a 5% average annual rate of increase. FY 76 is estimated, assuming the legislature passed May 1.

Dear Representative Sullivan:

This is to acknowledge receipt of your memo on HB 459. Because of a lack of interest in this proposal, may I suggest you personally contact the other members of the committee to try to stimulate their thinking.

MEMORANDUM

TO: Senator Ray
Chairman of Finance

FROM: REp. Susan Sullivan SS
Chairperson, House HESS

RE: HB 459

Please take into consideration the attached letter regarding the fiscal implications of HB 459. Since no new appropriations are required, I believe the fiscal note should properly show the fiscal impact as $0.

Susan Sullivan

March 11, 1976

Mr. Doug Schoenberg
Alaska State Legislature
House HESS
Pouch V
Juneau, Alaska 99811

Dear Mr. Schoenberg:

The fiscal note for HB 459 does not reflect an increase in the amount requested in the Governor's budget for fiscal 1977.

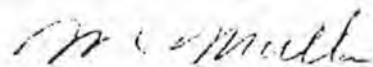

It is expected, however, that in fiscal 1977 expenditures will increase by the amount shown and as a consequence the total amount lapsed at fiscal year-end will be less than it would have been without House Bill 459.

Eventually - in succeeding years - agency budget requests and the Governor's budget will increase. Increases will be for additional temporary help, additional overtime and eventually for additional full time permanent positions. It is not possible to give employees more time off the job at full pay without increasing costs.

In some respects, sick leave is like insurance. An employee can collect only for a condition covered by the policy. HB 459 increases the coverage.

Employees do not use all of their sick leave. Employees earn 700,000 hours of sick leave a year and use 400,000 hours. The balance of unused sick leave for employees who are currently working is 1,800,000 hours. HB 459 will increase the number of hours of sick leave used.

Sincerely yours,

William C. Mullin, Director
Division of Finance
Department of Administration
