III. ANALYSIS (See Fiscal Note Preparation Instructions, Section III)

The existing appropriations for these loan programs are too small to efficiently handle the present loan volume. Borrowers are forced to obtain interim loans at high interest rates while waiting for us to obtain funds to close their loan. This appropriation will eliminate costly delays to the borrower.

The Commissioner of Revenue has agreed to pre-purchase loans from the division as a temporary solution, but this is his decision and he is not required to do so.

The Honorable John C. Sackett
 State Senator
 Pouch V
 Juneau, AK 99811

Dear Senator Sackett:

This letter will be the first of several to keep you posted on the 1978 Arctic Winter Games' progress and to ask for your continuing support.

Since the inception of the games in 1970 at Yellowknife, Northwest Territories, the Arctic Winter Games' travel has been partially funded by the State. To help with funding ~~for the 1978 games from March 19-25~~, at Hay River and Pine Point, Northwest Territories, Governor Hammond has proposed a special appropriation for $75,000. This $75,000 amount is broken down into two parts; $60,000 represents 75% of the total travel cost for 288 athletes and support personnel, and $15,000 for the internal administrative cost of the games. In the past, $15,000 has been appropriated annually to the Arctic Winter Games Corporation through the Office of the Governor, Athletic Commission. This Commission was not funded in FY 78, therefore, it was necessary to include $15,000 in the special appropriation for a total of $75,000.

With this financial assistance, Alaska once again will be able to send competent athletes from all parts of the State. The Arctic Winter Games promote goodwill between Alaska and Canada, and it is also a great honor for those who participate.

Enclosed for your information are, the budget, a draft copy of the special appropriation for the 1978 Arctic Winter Games, the list of games coordinators and an application, should you wish to become a supporter of the Games.

If you should desire any further information, please do not hesitate to call me at 344-6809.

Sincerely, Cathy

SUBJECT: Arctic Winter Games Special
Appropriation

Please amend the attached drafted legislation for the Governor's introduction to the second session of the 10th Legislature to increase the special appropriation for the Arctic Winter Games from $60,000 to $75,000 general funds.

The original request for funding anticipated receipt of an additional $15,000 funding from the Athletic Commission, as has been paid in the past to the Arctic Winter Games Corporation, to cover the expenses of the internal administration and a portion of the costs of the games and awards. However, the Athletic Commission was not funded in FY 78, therefore this appropriation request is being increased to cover those costs.

NEWSLETTER

ISSUE NO. 1

The Arctic Winter Games Corporation of Alaska was incorporated in 1977 with the following goals and objectives:

1. Promote Arctic Winter Games activities and participation throughout Alaska.
2. Assist, wherever possible, with the organization and preparation for the 1978 (and future) Arctic Winter Games.
3. Provide a non-profit organization through which contributions can be processed for such uses as transportation of participants, acquisition of uniforms and jackets, etc.
4. Create a state-wide membership for effective liaison and lobbying for pertinent Arctic Winter Games legislation.

Our activities to date have been primarily oriented to organization. An initial Board of Directors has been selected until Fall 1978 when the Board will be elected by the General Membership. By-Laws have been adopted, an application for non-profit status has been filed with I.R.S., and the first annual meeting of the Corporation was held October 15, 1977. The following officers were elected for one year terms:

President - Pat O'Donnell, Anchorage (Hockey & Baseball Background)
 Regional Vice-Presidents
 Northern - Sheran Benerth, Eielson (Badminton & Volleyball Background)
 Southcentral - Pat Lillian, Anchorage (Basketball & Softball Background)
 Southeastern - Paul Troeh, Juneau (Shooting Background)
 Secretary - Terry Dale, Anchorage (Formerly Kenai & Juneau) (Employed by City of Anchorage for 1974 Games & Mission Staff for 1976 Games)
 Treasurer - Zeckie Brocies, Anchorage (1974 & 1976 Mission Staff)

Our next step is to invite all persons interested in promoting Arctic Winter Games activities within Alaska to become members of the Corporation. Following are the classes and categories of membership including the dues structure:

Voting Members - 18 year or older
 Non-Voting Members - Less than 18 years old and Contributing Members

	Annual	Lifetime
Individual	$2.00	$10.00
Two-Member Family	$3.00	$15.00
Unlimited Family	$5.00	$25.00
Contributing Member	$100.00	$500.00

Acknowledgment of membership will be a wallet-type membership card, plus the Corporation pin for Lifetime and Contributing Members. Due to the expense of distributing copies of By-Laws to all prospective members, they will be available for your perusal through any officer or board member. Comments, ideas and suggestions for promotion of Arctic Winter Games activities would be welcomed and can be written on the reverse side of the membership application.

We hope you like the ideas for which the Corporation was formed and will become a member of a potentially large and effective organization with respect to Arctic Winter Games activities within Alaska. An application for membership can be cut off the bottom of this letter. Please include a check or money order (no cash, please), made out to Arctic Winter Games Corporation of Alaska for type of membership desired.

Thank you for considering becoming a member of the Arctic Winter Games Corporation of Alaska.

Sincerely,

Pat O'Donnell, President
 Arctic Winter Games Corporation of Alaska

SUBJECT: Arctic Winter Games Special
Appropriation

Please amend the attached drafted legislation for the Governor's introduction to the second session of the 10th Legislature to increase the special appropriation for the Arctic Winter Games from $60,000 to $75,000 general funds.

The original request for funding anticipated receipt of an additional $15,000 funding from the Athletic Commission, as has been paid in the past to the Arctic Winter Games Corporation, to cover the expenses of the internal administration and a portion of the costs of the games and awards. However, the Athletic Commission was not funded in FY 78, therefore this appropriation request is being increased to cover those costs.

HB 672

ARCTIC WINTER GAMES
ALASKA GAMES UNIT
OFFICE OF THE CHEF DE MISSION

January 20, 1978

The Honorable Steve Cowper
State Representative
Pouch V
Juneau, Alaska 99811

Dear Representative Cowper:

This letter will be the first of several to keep you posted on the 1978 Arctic Winter Games' progress and to ask for your continuing support.

Since the inception of the games in 1970 at Yellowknife, Northwest Territories, the Arctic Winter Games' travel has been partially funded by the State. To help with funding for the 1978 games from March 19-25, at Hay River and Pine Point, Northwest Territories, Governor Hammond has proposed a special appropriation for $75,000. This $75,000 amount is broken down into two parts; $60,000 represents 75% of the total travel cost for 288 athletes and support personnel, and $15,000 for the internal administrative cost of the games. In the past, $15,000 has been appropriated annually to the Arctic Winter Games Corporation through the Office of the Governor, Athletic Commission. This Commission was not funded in FY 78, therefore, it was necessary to include $15,000 in the special appropriation for a total of $75,000.

With this financial assistance, Alaska once again will be able to send competent athletes from all parts of the State. The Arctic Winter Games promote goodwill between Alaska and Canada, and it is also a great honor for those who participate.

Enclosed for your information are, the budget, a draft copy of the special appropriation for the 1978 Arctic Winter Games, the list of games coordinators and an application, should you wish to become a supporter of the Games.

If you should desire any further information, please do not hesitate to call me at 344-6809.

Sincerely,

Don Cather
Alaska Games Coordinator

ISSUE NO. 1

The Arctic Winter Games Corporation of Alaska was incorporated in 1977 with the following goals and objectives:

1. Promote Arctic Winter Games activities and participation throughout Alaska.
2. Assist, wherever possible, with the organization and preparation for the 1978 (and future) Arctic Winter Games.
3. Provide a non-profit organization through which contributions can be processed for such uses as transportation of participants, acquisition of uniforms and jackets, etc.
4. Create a state-wide membership for effective liaison and lobbying for pertinent Arctic Winter Games legislation.

Our activities to date have been primarily oriented to organization. An initial Board of Directors has been selected until Fall 1978 when the Board will be elected by the General Membership. By-Laws have been adopted, an application for non-profit status has been filed with I.R.S., and the first annual meeting of the Corporation was held October 15, 1977. The following officers were elected for one year terms:

President - Pat O'Donnell, Anchorage (Hockey & Baseball Background)
Regional Vice-Presidents
Northern - Sheran Benerth, Eielson (Badminton & Volleyball Background)
Southcentral - Pat Lillian, Anchorage (Basketball & Softball Background)
Southeastern - Paul Troeh, Juneau (Shooting Background)
Secretary - Terry Dale, Anchorage (Formerly Kenai & Juneau) (Employed by City of Anchorage for 1974 Games & Mission Staff for 1976 Games)
Treasurer - Beckie Brocies, Anchorage (1974 & 1976 Mission Staff)

Our next step is to invite all persons interested in promoting Arctic Winter Games activities within Alaska to become members of the Corporation. Following are the classes and categories of membership including the dues structure:

Voting Members - 18 year or older
Non-Voting Members - Less than 18 years old and Contributing Members

	Annual	Lifetime
Individual	$2.00	$10.00
Two-Member Family	$3.00	$15.00
Unlimited Family	$5.00	$25.00
Contributing Member	$100.00	$500.00

Acknowledgment of membership will be a wallet-type membership card, plus the Corporation pin for Lifetime and Contributing Members. Due to the expense of distributing copies of By-Laws to all prospective members, they will be available for your perusal through any officer or board member. Comments, ideas and suggestions for promotion of Arctic Winter Games activities would be welcomed and can be written on the reverse side of the membership application.

We hope you like the ideas for which the Corporation was formed and will become a member of a potentially large and effective organization with respect to Arctic Winter Games activities within Alaska. An application for membership can be cut off the bottom of this letter. Please include a check or money order (no cash, please), made out to Arctic Winter Games Corporation of Alaska for type of membership desired.

Thank you for considering becoming a member of the Arctic Winter Games Corporation of Alaska.

Sincerely,

Pat O'Donnell, President
Arctic Winter Games Corporation of Alaska

III. ANALYSIS (See Fiscal Note Preparation Instructions, Section III)

It is estimated that a complete reconstruction including grading, drainage, base and 2 inches of hot asphalt pavement, 24 feet in width, would cost about $2,000,000, including engineering. If an asphalt surface treatment was used instead of hot asphalt paving, the job could possibly be done for about $1,800,000.

Dear Representative Bradley,

This is to request your support in obtaining the necessary action to have the Fairview Loop road in Wasilla paved immediately.

Although my schedule prevented me from appearing at the Public Hearing on this subject in Wasilla last weekend, as a property owner and resident of Fairview Loop, I can assure you that there is a great need for upgrading this road!

Thank you for your prompt and positive attention to this matter.

Sincerely,

AGENCY Budget & Management

PHONE 465-2281

Original: Legislative Finance

cc: Budget and Management

Prime Sponsor (First Legislator Named)

Assumptions:

1. Of the 22 Election Districts identified below, Districts 16, 17, 18, 21, and 22 are assumed to contain a "significant" portion of the population who do not speak English.

Election District	Name of District
1	Ketchikan-Prince of Wales
2	Wrangell-Petersburg
3	Sitka
4	Juneau-Lynn Canal
5	Cordova-Valdez-Seward
6	Palmer
7	Anchorage Northwest
8	Anchorage Northeast
9	Anchorage Spenard
10	Anchorage East
11	Anchorage South
12	Anchorage West
13	Kenai-Cook Inlet
14	Kodiak
15	Aleutian Chain
16	Bristol Bay
17	Bethel
18	Wade Hampton
19	Yukon-Tanana
20	Fairbanks
21	Barrow-Kobuk
22	Nome

This assumption is based on information received from the Division of Election's questionnaire for the Regional School Board Election on February 23, 1976. This questionnaire (sample attached) asked the Election Board Chairmen of each precinct the following question:

Did any voters who came to vote have a hard time understanding the ballot and did you interpret for them? If answer is yes, how many?

Data extracted from these questionnaires is as follows:

Election District	Number of Individuals Needing Assistance
17	144
17-18	37
18	23
21	10
22	13

No data was available for Election District #16. Data for Districts 17 and 18 was combined in some cases, and some responses listed a percentage such as 50% or 85% instead of the number of individuals.

2. The Alaska Educational Program for Inter-Cultural Communication, University of Alaska, published the People Paper which is primarily devoted to information on Alaska Native Languages and the related bilingual programs in the schools. The March 1975 issue identified the approximate number of people speaking each of the various native languages. 20 different languages were identified, some of which were spoken by only 3 people (Eyak) and some of which were spoken by 15,000 (Central Yupik). The total number of individuals listed was 28,518, however, it is not known how many of these do not speak English. (Copy of People Paper attached.)
3. The Department of Law has advised that there are likely to be approximately 160-180 administrative regulation projects in any year. A project is either the adoption, amendment, or repeal of a regulation. A project may be a small technical adjustment or a major change. Public input can be either written or oral, however, oral public hearings are not required and it is estimated that approximately 50% of the regulation projects will have an oral public meeting. Public Hearings are required in one election district, however, if the regulation project is a major one, hearings are usually held in the major population areas. It is possible, however, that any one specific election district will not have any oral public hearings.

For the purpose of this fiscal note it is estimated that there will be very few oral public meetings which will require the use of an interpreter.

4. When an interpreter is required, the assumption is made that the interpreter will most likely be a resident of the area where the hearing is held and will usually not require a travel expense.
5. Based on experience with the use of interpreters by the Court System, the average cost per hour for an interpreter is approximately $15.00 with a $7.50 per hour stand-by time rate.

Based on these assumptions, it is difficult to estimate how many hearings there will be which would require an interpreter. For purposes of this fiscal note a "best guess" follows:

20 hearings @ $15.00 per hour x 3 hours per hearing = $900.00
plus $2,000 travel expense = $2,900

It is suggested that if funding is appropriated, that it be appropriated to either the Lieutenant Governor's Office or the Department of Law, rather than to other specific state agencies. These funds would be earmarked for interpreters only and would lapse if not expended.

GENERAL COMMENTS:

The term "significant" is not defined. Does it mean majority? It can be argued that every citizen is "significant" in public issues.

If an interpreter is required in a rural area where a "significant" portion of the population does not speak English but not required in an urban area, i.e., Anchorage, it is possible that the number of individuals who require an interpreter is greater in Anchorage than in the rural area, although those individuals in Anchorage do not make up a "significant" portion of the Anchorage population.

The Department of Fish & Game has advised that in many of their public hearings, a volunteer interpreter is used. The Department is aware of who these individuals are in many rural areas, and no cost is involved. The Department did mention that this is not the best way and have had some problems with the interpreters.
(Note: So did President Carter.)

ALASKA'S NATIVE LANGUAGES AND THEIR PRESENT SITUATION 1

Alaska's Native languages are of two main linguistic types. (1) Eskimo-Aleut language family and (2) the Indian languages.

ESKIMO AND ALEUT

(1) The Eskimo and Aleut languages are two branches of one family. Aleutian Aleut is very distantly related to Eskimo and not at all intelligible with it. Aleutian Aleut is one language with some dialectal differences. Atka especially standing somewhat apart. The Eskimo languages are all closely related, but there are four different, that is mutually unintelligible, Eskimo languages in Alaska: (1) Inupiaq (from Unalakleet north into Canada and Greenland), (2) Central Alaskan Yupik (Yukon and Kuskokwim Deltas, and Bristol Bay), (3) Siberian Yupik (St. Lawrence Island, same as Siberian), and (4) Pacific Gulf Yupik or Sugpiaq Aleut (Prince William Sound, Seward Peninsula, Kodiak Island, Alaska Peninsula to Egegik). This fourth is popularly considered Aleut also, even though it is a Yupik language, and these people constitute about 3,000 of the 6,000 Natives who are called Aleuts in the census.

The Aleutian Aleuts themselves number only 2,000, but their language is spoken now by far fewer even, only about 700 people, nearly all of the older generations. Only in Atka are the schoolchildren now able to speak Aleut. There was once widespread literacy in Aleut, in an excellent alphabet devised by the Russian Bishop Veniaminov. This proud heritage of literacy was severely discouraged and suppressed by the American schools. The last Aleut book was printed in 1903 and the last Aleut school was closed in 1912. This "dark age" of Aleut history finally came to an end in 1972.

The Eskimo languages have generally fared better, except for Sugpiaq Aleut (Pacific Gulf Yupik). Only in English Bay are the schoolchildren still generally able to speak Sugpiaq; everywhere else only the older generations can now speak it; thus only 1,000 of these 3,000 people who also call themselves Aleuts can speak their language.

Central Yupik is numerically the strongest Alaska Native language; of 17,000 probably 15,000 speak the language still, including all the children of many villages. In some places, such as Bethel and Dillingham, however, many of the younger generation have lost the language.

The Siberian Yupik of Gambell and Savoonga on St. Lawrence Island is also still very vigorously maintained, all 800 islanders speaking the language well, and another 200 also now living in Nome.

Inupiaq Eskimo has been deeply eroded, however. Of 11,000 Eskimos living in Alaska north of Unalakleet, perhaps only 6,000 now speak the language. Especially in the Seward Peninsula area and in Kotzebue the youth no longer can speak Inupiaq. Barrow is the only large settlement where many of the schoolchildren speak Inupiaq. The language is strongest now in the upper Kobuk villages of Ambler, Shungnak and Kobuk, and the North Slope villages of Wainwright and Anaktuvuk Pass.

Special efforts have been made by the Center to develop materials and a program in English Bay where schoolchildren still speak Sugcestun. For St. Lawrence Island extensive work has also been done by the Center. For Inupiaq the Center has also produced some materials, but for Inupiaq and especially Yupik, there are State- and Bureau of Indian Affairs-supported bilingual teaching and materials development programs, which have fortunately shouldered primary responsibility for these languages.

THE INDIAN LANGUAGES OF ALASKA

The Indian languages of Alaska are Tsimshian, Haida, Tlingit, Eyak, and the Athabaskan language family.

Alaska's one Tsimshian town, Metlakatla, represents an immigration in the 1870s from Canada, where most Tsimshians remain. Tsimshian is completely different from any other language. In Metlakatla only people over 40 or 50 can speak their language, thus only about 150 of 1,000 speak Tsimshian. A language program has recently begun in Metlakatla.

The other Alaska Indian languages (Haida, Tlingit, Eyak and the Athabaskan family) are sometimes grouped together by some linguists under the name "Na-Dene." The relationships are very much obscured by time, however.

There is hardly any resemblance between Haida and any other language. Though some claim it may be related to Tlingit in the distant past, this is very doubtful. Haida has behind it, in any case, a completely separate development and independent history of probably 10,000 years.

There are some deep grammatical resemblances between Tlingit and Athabaskan-Eyak, but these are also very ancient, so Tlingit too stands apart for several thousands of years.

Eyak is distantly related to the great Athabaskan family as a whole, as one branch of the two-branch Athabaskan-Eyak language family. There are now only three speakers of Eyak as against about 190,000 people who speak the many Athabaskan languages. Eyak is completely separate from Athabaskan but related to it; Eyak is linguistically as close to Navajo, for instance, as it is to its closest Athabaskan neighbor, the Ahtena of Copper River. It was probably spoken on the coast between Copper River Delta and Yakutat Bay for over 3,500 years.

Of the 190,000 people who speak Athabaskan, about 165,000 are Navajos and Apaches, and about 22,000 are speakers of various Athabaskan languages in Canada. Interior Alaska is the original homeland of all the Athabaskans, who expanded into Canada and the Southwest over the last 2,500 years. There are about ten different Athabaskan languages in Alaska, that is, languages that are different enough to qualify by our ordinary European standards as separate languages, requiring separate books and writing systems. One of these Athabaskan languages is in the Copper River area, another is in the Cook Inlet area, but eight are in the Tanana Chiefs area.

All the Indian languages of Alaska have suffered greatly. Eyak is already nearly extinct, with three speakers of about 20 people who might be considered Eyaks. Of 500 Haidas in Alaska, there are only about 100 fluent speakers, almost all over 45. Of about 9,000 Tlingits in Alaska, most speakers are also over 45. Only in Angoon are there many speakers under 25, or any at all under 20. But there are virtually no schoolchildren anywhere now speaking Tlingit, and the total number of fluent speakers of the language may be by now under 2,000. As mentioned in the preceding section, there are now writing systems for Tlingit and Haida; the Center has made considerable effort to help the Tlingit and Haida people in their determined efforts to keep their language.

The Athabaskan languages are mostly in the same situation as Tlingit and Haida. There are about 6,000 Athabaskans in the villages of Alaska, and 10 languages, but only about 2,600 speakers of these languages altogether. There are very few if any schoolchildren able to speak fluent Athabaskan in the Copper River (Ahtena), or Cook Inlet (Tanaina) areas. The same applies to about five of the eight Athabaskan languages of the Tanana Chiefs area: there are few if any schoolchildren who can speak fluent Ingalik (Anvik, Shageluk), Holikachuk (Grayling), Koyukon (various dialects: Kaltag, Nulato, Hughes, Huslia, Allakaket, Koyukuk, Ruby, Galena, Tanana, Stevens Village), Tanana (Minto, Nenana), Tanacross (some children there can speak that language), Han (Eagle). In all of these areas, the people desire to save their language. There are writing systems now developed for all Athabaskan language programs have begun in some of the State-Operated schools in the Koyukon area. Materials development for Han and Tanacross has also begun.

The Alaskan Athabaskan languages which are still viable in the sense that children still speak them fluently are three, in the Tanana Chiefs area: Upper Kuskokwim (Nikolai), Upper Tanana (Tetlin and Northway), and Kutchin (especially Arctic Village and Venetie, and a few children at Ft. Yukon). In all the State-Operated schools in these areas bilingual programs began in 1972. Tetlin and Venetie are Bureau of Indian Affairs schools and bilingual programs began in 1973-74 through an Alaska Native Education Board proposal for National Indian Education Act funds. The future now looks brighter than it has in a long time for the survival of at least these three Athabaskan languages.

The scientific work on Alaska Native languages at the University was begun by Michael Krauss in 1960. It was this scientific research which developed the technical basis for the work of the Center. Krauss studied the sound systems and grammars of Athabaskan and Eyak during the period 1961-68. During this same period Summer Institute of Linguistics workers developed writing systems for Koyukon, Kutchin, Upper Tanana, and Upper Kuskokwim Athabaskan, and Naish and Story developed a writing system for Tlingit. Also during this period, Krauss, Reed, Miyaoka, Afcan and Teeluk developed a writing system for Yupik Eskimo, numerically Alaska's most important Native language by far, with about 15,000 speakers, including most schoolchildren. The development at the University of an optimal writing system for the language, fully sound scientifically yet maximally practical in requiring no non-standard type symbols, made possible the production of schoolbooks in this language by 1969, and in 1970 the first Alaska bilingual education program began in four Yupik schools. The dramatic popular success of this program gave impetus to the change in thinking on the part of both Whites and Natives alike on the worth and future of Alaska Native languages. This was the first major breakthrough in school language policies leading to the bilingual education legislation in 1972.

In 1971 and 1972 Krauss, Leer and other linguists continued their work on Alaska Native writing systems, making improvements in various Athabaskan systems, Tlingit, Inupiaq, and Yupik, and developing a completely new system for St. Lawrence Island. In 1972-73 they developed a completely new system for Haida and for Sugpiaq Aleut, and a Roman system for Atkan and Eastern Aleut.

This scientific work, begun before establishment of the Center, has laid the essential technical groundwork upon which Native literatures and pedagogy can be based. By now scientifically sound and yet also optimally practical writing systems are well established for all of Alaska's Native languages.

Native Alaskan Cultural Films

The Alaska Native Heritage Film project, under the direction of Leonard Kamerling, has been funded by the Ford Foundation, with additional support from Atlantic Richfield Company, Community Enterprise Development Corporation, and the Alaska Humanities Forum, to produce five of a series of seven films representing the major Native Alaskan cultures.

The films of this series are community produced, with the members of the community determining the content and direction of each film. The aim of this series is to produce accurate records of life in these communities from the perspective of the people and create lasting authentic documents that represent the ways in which the people of these communities see their own lives.

Three films are completed to date and are available for review from the Center for Northern Educational Research (CNER). They are:

(1) Tununeremuit: The People of Tununak. 34 minutes. Color. 16mm sound. This film focuses on four events: (1) The evacuation of the village during the Amchitka nuclear test for fear of a possible tidal wave from the East flooding the village, (2) a group of men set out on a trip across the tundra on snow machines to set their fish nets under the ice. They become lost when the weather suddenly turns bad, (3) a storm hits the village and, (4) the people gather in the community hall to dance. Dialogue is in Central Yupik with English subtitles.

(2) Aghveghniighlumi: At the Time of Whaling. 38 minutes. Color. 16mm sound. Filmed in Gambel, Alaska, during the whaling season. The film shows a whaling community and its continuity through changing times, from old men telling about how whaling used to be done before modern technology was available to preparing for the hunt, the taking of a whale, and the division of the whale throughout the village. Dialogue is in Siberian Yupik with English subtitles.

(3) Atka, An Aleutian Village. 36 minutes. Color. 16mm sound. A document of spring activities in Atka, one of the most remote villages in Alaska. Dialogue is in Aleut and English.

The Future of Bilingual Education In Alaska

The Statewide Bilingual Conference held in Anchorage February 19, 20 and 21 brought together more than 160 bilingual educators, educational policy makers, and community representatives from all over Alaska to discuss the future of Bilingual Education. The conference was jointly sponsored by the Department of Education (DOE), Alaska Native Education Board (ANEB), Alaska Native Language Center (ANLC), Alaska State Operated School System (ASOSS) and the Alaska Educational Program for Intercultural Communication (AEPIC).

The conference was held in order to obtain statewide participant's input into the DOE's plan for developing Bilingual Education Guidelines and to provide the participants with a chance to exchange ideas and information.

Sam Kito, President of the North Star Borough School District Board and the Fairbanks Native Association, was the moderator for the three day conference held at the Gold Rush Hotel in Anchorage. Joe Coolidge, Bilingual Instructor at Kuskwim Community College (KCC), gave the keynote address in both Yupik and English to a crowd that made the walls of the hotel bulge.

Dave Lannigan, representing ASOSS, spoke of his agency's need for more bilingual instructors and materials. Irene Peed of the Yupik Language Workshop (YLW) explained the program at Bethel, which has been developing materials and training bilingual instructors since 1970. Dick Mueller of the Summer Institute of Linguistics (SIL) told of the group's work in developing alphabets and providing technical assistance in literacy training and translating. Dr. Michael Krauss of ANLC, a part of the University of Alaska's (U of A) Center of Northern Educational Research (CNER), explained that his organization was established by a 1972 act of the Alaska legislature. ANLC is charged with the responsibility of scientifically studying, documenting and cultivating all Alaska Native languages.

Vesta Dominicks, Director of the Bilingual Program at Sheldon Jackson College (SJ), explained that the SJ program is training and assisting bilingual teachers in nine Southeastern villages. Susan Murphy, of ANEB, explained that ANEB is a corporation with representatives from all 12 Native non-profit regional associations. ANEB has been concerned with all aspects of Native education but with its primary emphasis on training bilingual teachers and materials development. Emil Kowalczyk of the Bureau of Indian Affairs (BIA), told of the BIA's 51 day schools and the bilingual - bicultural programs now operating in those schools. Bill Vaudrin, Director of the North Slope University (NSU), discussed the importance of bilingual/bicultural education in the NSU curriculum. Pat O'Rourke, Director of KCC explained the associate degree program for bilingual teachers and the adult literacy program now operating in Bethel.

Participants met in small groups to identify and discuss issues relating to bilingual education. Large group meetings and general sessions allowed for important opinions and decisions to be aired. Daniel Rosenfelt, a Legal Consultant in

Dear Reader:

This issue of the People Paper is primarily devoted to information on Alaska Native languages and the related bilingual programs in our schools. Like our issues on JOM and IEA, we are providing background information which might aid our readers to better understand and evaluate issues related to Alaska Native languages and become more constructively knowledgeable and critical.

The end of our funding year (July 1 through June 30), otherwise known as the fiscal year (FY), is quickly approaching. We would enjoy receiving your comments about this monthly publication as those comments will influence our future actions.

See you next month.

X-CULTURAL EDUCATION POSITIONS OPEN

The University of Alaska's Cross-Cultural Education Development Program is seeking candidates for several field positions, to be available July 1, 1975. Candidates must have advanced training or experience (Ph.D. preferred) in some field related to cross-cultural education, particularly as it relates to teacher training. Responsibilities include program coordination and instruction in remote field training centers. The assignments are in rural Native communities, and provide considerable opportunity for the application of anthropological methods and content in education.

Bilingual Education from Gonzaga University, talked to the conferees about the intent of the Indian Self-Determination Law. Rosenfelt classified Alaska Native children into three program groups, each with a definite funding source: Group A. Native children who do not speak English; state-funded program; Group B. Native children who have limited English ability; programs use state funds and/or Title VII monies; Group C. Native children who speak English but who want to learn their Native language; programs should obtain monies from Johnson O'Malley (JOM), Title I and/or Title IV.

A conference handbook entitled The Future of Bilingual Education included reports and recommendations from four interagency sub-committees: a) Teacher Training, b) Materials and Curriculum Development, c) Legal and Legislative, d) Administrative (Development of Bilingual Programs.) The reports were the culmination of months of work from representatives of organizations and agencies involved in Bilingual Education. (ANEB, ANLC, ASOSS, BIA, DOE, SIL, YLW, KCC, AMU, SJ, U/A, UAA, ACC, CNER, AEPIC and AHE*)

Two papers discussing Bilingual Education in Alaska were developed and appeared in the conference handbook. A portion of Dr. Jim Orvik's paper, Bilingual Education in Alaska: An Analysis of the Issues, appears on page three. For a copy of the complete report write to:

BILINGUAL EDUCATION IN ALASKA

Following is the introductory portion of the report entitled Bilingual Education in Alaska: An Analysis of the Issues prepared for the State Department of Education in 1974 by Dr. Jim Orvik of the University of Alaska. The introduction provides an overview of bilingualism in the state.

Bilingual education is now a significant presence in Alaska's educational programs. Growing mainly from experimental Yupik Eskimo programs launched in 1970, in the western part of the state, increased awareness now exists about the possibilities and potential this innovative approach holds for education in Alaska. The increase in consciousness has grown through the thinking of small groups of educational planners and developers in Alaska's educational agencies and includes substantial numbers of parents in local communities as well as attention on the political and administrative levels.

The social and political implications of bilingual education are beginning to be sensed as to their broad implications for Alaska's education. Recently, the bilingual education movement has progressed in a somewhat fragmentary fashion, gaining momentum and direction largely through the efforts of particular individuals in educational agencies, organizations and institutions. Actively interested in bilingualism, either as long standing advocates or as recent converts, the principals in which bilingual education rests, such individuals have been able to capitalize on a timely increase in Federal financial support. In these efforts came to life in two major types of bilingual educational programs: those developed by the Bureau of Indian Affairs (BIA), and shortly thereafter by the Alaska State-Operated School System (ASOSS), in concert with units of the University of Alaska.

At that time, the growth of bilingual education in Alaska has included attention within its original programs to new schools and higher grades. However, the growth has also seen increased bilingual programming in other important ways. Added to the efforts of educational agencies, ASOSS and BIA, new structures have been developed to bring new sources of input to bear on the solution of bilingual educational problems: namely, the Eskimo Language Workshop (ELW), the Alaska Native Language Center (ANLC) and the Alaska Native Education Board (ANEBC).

Jointly funded by Federal grants to BIA and ASOSS, the Eskimo Language Workshop was founded in 1970, to develop materials and train staff for the Yupik component of Alaska's first formal bilingual educational programs. First located at the University of Alaska, Fairbanks, the Workshop was moved in June, 1974, to the Kuskokwim Community College (KCC) at Bethel to be in the heartland of the Yupik-speaking population.

The Alaska Native Language Center of the University of Alaska, Fairbanks, is another new structure to have included service to bilingual education as part of its responsibility. Created in 1972 by the Seventh Alaska Legislature (AS 14.40.117), the ANLC was mandated to fulfill the following responsibilities:

- (1) "... to study languages native to Alaska;
- (2) develop literacy materials;
- (3) assist in the translation of important documents;
- (4) provide for the development and dissemination of Native literature; and
- (5) train Alaska Native language speakers to work as teachers and aides in bilingual classrooms."

While the function of ANLC includes, but is not limited to bilingual education, its type of scientific work in Alaskan Native languages is a necessary step in developing any bilingual education program.

The Alaska Native Education Board grew out of concern for needed development of bilingual and bicultural curricula and materials in languages other than Yupik, the latter already having been well established. The ANEB originally was funded in July, 1973 under Section B of the 1972 Indian Education Act (IEA). Since its incorporation in June, 1972, ANEB has received further funding under the Indian Education Act and the Johnson-O'Malley (JOM) Acts.

Additionally, the Summer Institute of Linguistics (SIL) has had a longstanding commitment to Alaska Native languages dating back to 1958 having done work in eight languages. SIL workers have made numerous contributions to ASOSS bilingual education and their expertise has been valuable in numerous statewide efforts, such as in the ESL component of the Alaska Rural School Project, University of Alaska, Fairbanks, 1966-1972.

These special structures provided much of the leadership and expertise for administrators in Alaska's educational agencies to draw upon in order to realize their bilingual education goals. In fact, it might well be said that without such leadership and expertise bilingual education would have become underdeveloped in its infancy. For example, without the linguistic expertise of the Eskimo Language Workshop, its Yupik orthography capable of carrying the development of the necessary body of curriculum materials could not have been applied. And without the leadership of the Workshop, the implementation of the orthography, materials, and the Yupik literacy training could not have been maintained. Also, without a similarly active partnership between educational agencies and the Alaska Native Education Board, expansion of bilingual education programs into other widely used Native languages would not have been realized. Nor would the Alaska Native Language Center have been created to attend to maintaining and developing, through systematic application of linguistic expertise, all Alaskan Native languages, especially those in current danger of extinction.

Development of bilingual programs has depended so far on the timely, but by no means guaranteed appearance of funding external to the basic educational support of each agency, creating a sense of vulnerability, psychological as well as fiscal, among all concerned. Each effort has developed individually with a separate source of funding, within a separate agency or structure, under separate sets of guidelines and mandates. While the net effect has resulted in unprecedented innovations in understanding and commitment to deliver quality education to Native children, this arrangement has thus far fostered an atmosphere of cautious cooperation even occasional suspicion among participants, and unnecessarily fragmented leadership relative to what might emerge under a more coordinated effort.

Recognizing this state of affairs, the agencies and institutions currently bearing the responsibility for bilingual education in Alaska have united in a series of interagency meetings to increase

Athabascan Curriculum Development

A workshop of teachers and resource persons from the Interior was convened by AEPIC staffers for four days in March. Participants discussed what they are doing in introducing Athabascan and community materials into their curricula.

The invited participants were from Galena, Ft. Yukon, Nulato, Beaver, Venetie, Nikolai, Fairbanks, Tanana and Anchorage. They met for four days to: 1) present papers on their classroom activities implementing Athabascan and community materials into the daily curricula; 2) prepare an "idea book" on how other teachers could adapt those ideas for their classrooms; and 3) review Athabascan print and non-print materials which had been accumulated by the AEPIC staff for inclusion in a bibliography.

A Museum for Your Community

The University of Alaska/Fairbanks Museum has an interesting publication entitled "The Local Museum: A Guide for Establishing a Small Museum in an Alaskan Native Community." The 44-page guide was compiled by Kate Duncan and illustrated by Janis Senungetuk. It discusses topics like: the control and administration of a museum; how to store and display; cataloging, etc.

Students could well learn about museum techniques through the publication and supplementary sources then create a display area in the school, city or community building, airport, etc. Social studies units could culminate with a diorama and materials display which could then be shared with the entire community.

What about establishing a community museum/library as a Bi-Centennial project in your community? A copy of the publication is available for $2.00 plus $.25 for postage from:

A GOOD IDEA

An unusual exhibition of children's artwork focusing on the theme "Who Am I?" was presented during September and October by the Newark (N.J.) Museum, with the cooperation of the Essex County Department of Education. The exhibition was the culmination of a project begun last January to encourage children to express in creative art form their feelings of personal identity and ethnic heritage.

Remarkable in variety and quality of expression, the exhibition included the work of some 386 children in the first through sixth grades, from 36 schools in the racially and ethnically mixed area in and around Newark. The project sought not only to evoke through an art form children's feelings about themselves, their homes, school, ethnic background, and life around them but also to sensitize teachers to the significance of ethnic factors in education and the emotional aspects of ethnic identity. Other areas of the country might well replicate the project in connection with the national Bicentennial. One of the four major areas of concern of the Bicentennial Commission is that of ethnic heritage.

ASOSS SCHOOL BOARD TRAINING PREPARES FOR SELF RULE

Local boards of education have existed in every community which has an Alaska State-Operated School (ASOSS) since the system was designed by the Alaska Legislature. These 126 community boards are known as advisory school boards. Their primary duty as stated by Alaska Law is to advise and assist the Board of Directors for the State-Operated Schools through the local official administering the school, and shall do so in the manner the Board of Directors prescribed by regulation. As a result of this law the ASOSS Board of Directors have established and adopted regulations for the operation of advisory school board and school.

Senate Bill 35 and other measures pending which deal with ASOSS are clear indications that the ASOSS system will soon be dismantled giving authority to local areas who want to make their own decisions about schools and the education they want for their children.

Approximately 90% of all Alaska State-Operated School System schools have requested school board training through both oral and written requests since January 1973, which is when the school board training program was implemented. The first year of operation was financed through Johnson-O'Malley (JOM) funds, and the next two years through general state funds. Workshops were held throughout the state and provided valuable information concerning future needs for local school board training. As a result of expressed needs, the next step in the school board program was to develop a training program focused around a training manual developed by the Alaska State-Operated School System and the Center for Northern Educational Research (CNER). During the subsequent year, school board materials and a method of delivery was field tested to assure that both approach and materials would work. The school board training program is now complete. Fifteen school board training kits have been put together and are being sent to all the regional offices in the rural Alaska State-Operated School System. Monies from the State Legislature general fund provided for school board training only for rural areas. The military schools were excluded, due to their shift over to the borough school system, which is expected for Fiscal Year (FY) '76.

A copy of the manual, "A New School Board Training Manual for Advisory School Boards in Alaska" has been sent to each school board member, principal/teacher, and regional office. A copy of the "Wise Owl Series" and school board training posters have been distributed to each school board, principal teacher and regional office. The intent is for each school board to maintain a school board library which they can use individually or as a reference during school board meetings, workshops, etc.

the effectiveness of their efforts in program components. Need for effective coordination of all bilingual education in Alaska is agreed to as essential at this point among all participants. To this end, the Alaska State Department of Education (DOE) has begun to take leadership within the state, and is now pulling together current sources of expertise and experience to produce an effective statewide effort in bilingual education.
