SUBJECT: Reserve for Energy Facilities

Chapter 168 SLA 1978, which created the reserve for energy facilities took effect on October 15, 1978.

The Department of Natural Resources is following a practice of making monthly deposits. They made their first deposit on October 30, 1978 of September royalties. On this basis the reserve is estimated to total $11.3 million on June 30, 1979. It totaled $3.5 million on January 31, 1979.

However, because the wording, now codified as AS 37.05.158(b), identifies the reserve as "five per cent of the annual receipts from mineral lease bonuses and rentals for state land and royalties", one could argue that an allocation should be made to the account on June 30, 1978 of 5% of the total receipts for the fiscal year. On this basis, the account would total $15.1 million on June 30, 1979. In any event, the FY 80 allocation is estimated at $18.2 million, these estimates being based on the Department of Revenue's "Revenue Sources" booklet.

There is no mention of the reserve for energy facilities in the Governor's budget. The Governor has chosen not to comply with AS 37.05.158(c) (attached) which says "plans for expenditures from the account shall be submitted by the Governor in accordance with the Executive Budget Act (AS 37.07) as part of his annual budget presentation." His reasons for not doing so seem to be:

- 1) The state can't spare the funds. The administration points out that the FY 79 and 80 allocations for capital outlay would be $75 and 91 million and that for energy facilities $15 and 18 million. Yet according to AS 37.05.157(c) (attached) there is no requirement for the executive to include the capital outlay account in his budget, only the energy facilities.

Honorable Bill Miles
February 14, 1979

The Governor has submitted a capital budget request that includes $3 million for the power project revolving loan fund from general funds. Certainly this could have been funded from the energy facilities account, as well as the proposed Susitna special appropriation of $8,178,000 and possibly other items, without affecting the state's general fund balance;

- 2) The account is not a dedication of funds which would be unconstitutional if it were. See page 3 of attached memo of July 12 and related comments in attached memo of October 12; and
- 3) The Legislature can't tell the Governor how to submit his budget. See page 2, paragraph 3 of July 12 memo which seems to relate.

Re: FCCS SCS HB 222 (e. date failed)
(planning and funding of capital construction projects)
Our File: J-88-164-78

Dear Governor Hammond:

We have as you requested reviewed the subject bill. It presents several problems. The first is with its title.

The constitution requires that every bill be confined to one subject and that the subject be expressed in the title. Alaska Const., art. II, sec. 13. While a stringent application of the first part of this rule has been obviated by the Alaska Supreme Court in Gellert v. State, 522 P.2d 1120 (Alaska 1974), it may yet retain some vitality.

The bill at hand is an amalgam of three bills: HB 222 (Malone and Gardiner), the subject of which was "public scrutiny of the budget formulation process"; SB 510 (Senate Special Permanent Fund Committee), the subject of which was "the state budget and state bonding"; and SB 539 (Senate Special Permanent Fund Committee), the subject of which was the "eligible costs for state grants for capital improvement projects."

As it now stands, the bill is in possible violation of both the single-subject and descriptive-title rule.

On the one hand, the bill is not confined to one subject but rather pertains to at least two and possibly three distinct subjects. Nevertheless, the bill's subjects are sufficiently related to meet the rather loose standards set in Gellert.

The Honorable Jay S. Hammond
Governor

July 12, 1978

On the other hand, by not referring in the slightest to the many substantive provisions of the bill which relate to matters not indicated by the term "planning and funding of capital construction projects", the bill's title fails to express its subject. We are inclined to the view that this failing is not an indication of sloppy drafting, but rather a confession that the bill is not confined to one subject; i.e., if the three subjects covered by the bill were expressed in the title, it would be obvious that the bill is not confined to one subject. To avoid this, the bill's title is made about as vague and all-inclusive as is possible while still retaining some reference to the subject matter.

The better reasoned opinion is that, as a general rule, the interrelated requirements of confining bills to a single subject and expressing that subject in the title are reasonable and prudent safeguards against the abuse of power by legislative committees or blocs which piggyback unrelated or loosely related subject matter onto other bills to secure their enactment. Where, as here, the practice is not guarded against, there is no opportunity for determining whether a given measure on a subject would have been adopted on its own merits and, had it been so adopted, in what form it might have emerged from the legislative process. The package either goes or it does not. No one questions the legitimacy of legislative packages on a single subject. It is the packages which mix diverse subjects which offend the constitutional restriction. We do not believe that this bill will be the vehicle for the court's overruling Gellert, but certainty of prediction is not possible.

The bill provides for a number of capital budgeting and capital planning procedures which we are inclined to believe are impracticable, if not impossible. It provides in great detail how these matters will be accomplished and makes those details mandatory. In doing so, the bill appears to tread upon the executive's plenary power over the preparation of the state budget. Alaska Const., art. IX, sec. 12. For the most part, it should not have the effect of impairing that power, but to the extent that it may have that effect, it should be unconstitutional. In other words, the legislature cannot so hamstring the executive's preparation of the budget that it is no longer his but rather another's budget. The constitution places both the authority and the responsibility for the budget's preparation on one person, the chief executive.

The Honorable Jay S. Hammond
Governor

The bill sets up special "accounts" for capital improvements and energy development, utilizing mineral-resource revenues for funding. No dedication is made of the money. It is merely accounted for and is available for appropriation for those purposes and for any other purpose. Accordingly, there is no violation of the prohibition against dedicated funds on the face of the bill. Alaska Const., art. IX, sec. 7. As a practical matter, if the actual effect of the bill were to result in a dedication, then it would likely be held to be unconstitutional. That is, if succeeding legislatures never used the money for other purposes and used it only for capital improvements and energy facilities, even though the funds held a surplus and other needs were going unmet, then there would be, in effect, a prohibited dedication.

The most ambitious -- probably overly ambitious -- part of the bill relates to the "State Public Facilities Plan." Sec. 14, pp. 7-9. It makes it mandatory for the commissioner of the Department of Transportation and Public Facilities to "develop and annually revise a statewide comprehensive facility procurement plan for public facilities of the state and its municipalities." It then goes on to detail how this "shall" be done. One is reminded of Mort Sahl's well known, late 1950's dictum on government: "If they didn't know what they were doing, they wouldn't be in Washington [pause], and they're not there." There is also the lesser known Rod Pegues-Joe Matyi dictum from the same era on borough government in Alaska: "We have seen the future [pause], and that doesn't work either." Both seem appropriate here.

~~It is possible that the proposed new system will work.~~ It is its mandatory nature which concerns us. If the commissioner is under a duty to perform as prescribed, our court will likely find that his duty runs to some member of the public and that any significant failure on his part to perform that duty will allow the person to whom the duty runs to block any governmental action until the duty has been performed. That is the underlying rule in United States Smelting Ref. & Mining Co. v. Local Boundary Comm., 489 P.2d 140 (Alaska 1971); State v. Aleut Corp., 541 P.2d 730 (Alaska 1975); and State v. Lewis, 559 P.2d 630 (Alaska 1977). Hence, this new legislation can furnish the grounds for legal guerilla warfare against state and local capital construction projects. From a policy standpoint, that may or may not be a good thing. From a legal standpoint, it is -- on the whole -- pretty much a bad thing.

The Honorable Jay S. Hammond
Governor

July 12, 1978

The courts, in effect, will be brought into what should be a joint legislative-executive formulation of policies and programs.

Finally, the bill amends the several statutes relating to state financial assistance to local governments, villages, and nonprofit corporations for various public or quasi-public facilities. The principal effect of the amendments is to allow any and all conceivable costs, without limitation as to their reasonableness, to be eligible for matching or supporting grants.

Most of the aid is to be made available at the discretion of the head of the state agency involved. This provides some safeguard for the public treasury. But once a project is approved, there is no additional discretion, as a general rule, by which the cost may be limited, unless it has been limited either by regulation or by terms of the grant. We will discuss each program in turn. The references are to sections, pages, and lines on the pages of the engrossed version of the bill.

1. Secs. 17-19 (p. 13, lines 1-29, p. 14, lines 1-8) (aid to airports). The program is discretionary; therefore, there should be no problem. However, once the state agrees to provide a match grant, the grantee appears to be eligible, i.e., to have a right, to receive as much money as is necessary to match his costs as defined under the new AS 02.15.155.

2. Secs. 20-21 (p. 14, lines 9-29, p. 15, line 1) (aid to agricultural and industrial fairs). This program is also discretionary; therefore, it too should present no problem. The capital improvement aid, AS 03.20.035, is closely controlled by the commissioner's discretion, so it appears to be no problem. However, the definition provided by new AS 03.20.080 could well cause runaway costs.

3. Sec. 22 (p. 15, lines 2-17) (urban renewal as disaster assistance). This is subject to discretion and should cause no problem. Again, however, once the decision to make the grant is made, runaway costs may occur and the state will be stuck with them.

4. Sec. 23 (p. 15, lines 18-29, p. 16, lines 1-4) (access roads). This should present no problem because it is subject to discretion, to availability of funds, and to a $50,000 maximum. In addition, AS 19.30.040(d) makes the developer liable for costs in excess of those agreed upon. That kind of provision should be in all of these.

5. Sec. 24 (p. 16, lines 5-20) (aid for various municipal purposes). Under AS 43.18.010(j), state aid continues for construction of health care facilities until it "equals 25 per cent of the total project cost." The new material would allow Dr. Mike Beirne or any future Dr. Mike Beirne to justify pretty much all of his claims. AS 43.18.020 limits these to the funds available, declares that there is no debt of the state, and requires pro rata distribution when eligible claims exceed available money. The problem is that, if the money has been appropriated, the developers will make their score.

6. Sec. 25 (p. 16, lines 21-29, p. 17, lines 1-8) (school construction). This has the same safeguards.

7. Sec. 26 (p. 17, lines 9-25) (convention and recreation facilities). This has the same safeguards.

8. Sec. 27 (p. 17, lines 26-29, p. 18, lines 1-13) (sports facilities). These are subject to a direct appropriation; and therefore, require legislative approval as a safeguard.

9. Secs. 28-29 (p. 18, lines 14-29, p. 19, lines 1-16) (visitor information centers). These are made "within the limits of . . . appropriations and considering the needs of other qualified applicants."

10. Secs. 30-31 (p. 19, lines 17-29, p. 20, lines 1-17) (municipal water and sewer systems). There are no safeguards for non-federally funded projects, except that the projects must be constructed in accordance with plans and specifications approved by DEC.

11. Sec. 32 (p. 20, lines 18-29, p. 21, lines 1-4) (village wastewater systems). There are no local costs and no safeguards whatsoever. The new amendment opens the door to a total ripoff. The department can control it only by self-enforcing contractual provisions -- which are usually nonexistent -- in the grants. However, having to take over the ownership and operation locally imposes some restraint on misadventures.

The Honorable Jay S. Hammond
Governor

July 12, 1978

12. Secs. 33-34 (p. 21, lines 5-29, p. 22, -lines 1-4) (alcoholism facilities). These have a $50,000 single-grant maximum and departmental discretion not to fund.

The basic danger the amendments create is that local developers will overcharge for their own goods and services which they place into a project, claiming an offsetting amount from the state. This can be avoided, at least in part, by grant conditions (or agency regulations) which delimit the amount of those kinds of charges by making them conform to the rates and amounts charged for the same or similar goods and services on similar projects. All in all, however, the legislature's definition of "costs" is an invitation, if not to steal, at least to be wasteful. We are not at all sure that the state agencies involved are equipped to prevent either result.

More than most, this bill has its share of good and bad points. From a legal standpoint, i.e., from how it can and probably will affect the state's legal relationships and problems, we would prefer another version and would just as soon that this one were vetoed. For us, it simply has too many uncertainties and unknowns which, if answered wrong, will work against the public interest. We admit, however, that if they are answered correctly, no harm will occur and -- with respect to operational and capital budgeting -- a more rational approach may be developed.

*Please note, however, that you have authority as the state's budget officer to effect almost all, if not all, those budgeting and procurement changes on your own with respect to the state government's budgeting and capital planning. Hence, this is not an all-or-nothing proposition.

Sincerely yours,

Renewable Resources
Funds

By:

Rodger W. Pegues
Assistant Attorney General

This confirms our recent discussions on this subject.

First, "renewable resources" are whatever the Alaska Supreme Court says they are. It is our best judgment that, as with "capital improvements," the court would not adopt a general definition but rather would judge each proposition on its own merits. Cf., City of Juneau v. Hixson, 373 P.2d 743 (Alaska 1962). As will be explained later, however, we doubt any ruling will ever be made. The administration, however, should use the same ad hoc test as the court would.

Second, investments are governed by the prudent man rule, i.e., to make money. AS 37.11.020, 060 and AS 37.10.070 (investment of surplus funds).

Third, expenditures may be made only by way of the budget-appropriation process. AS 37.11.030, 070.

The Alaska Renewable Resources Development Fund and Permanent Fund are not true dedications of revenues, i.e., there is no fund which is actually dedicated for a special purpose. There is a conditional, standing appropriation of surpluses, if any, from the development fund to the permanent fund. AS 37.11.040, 060. But that merely moves money from one fund to another, without expending it on a special purpose. Except for replacement of losses of principal from fund income (also a conditional, standing appropriation), that is the only source of income for the latter fund. If there is no surplus in a given year, there is no income to the fund for that year. A true dedicated fund has a regular source of income and the authority to expend money, without further appropriation, on its special purpose, e.g., education.

Additionally, there is no legal impediment against any legislature's appropriating from either fund for any public purpose whatsoever, without regard to its contributing to the development or management of a renewable natural resource. No legislature, with an exception not applicable here, may bind another to a given law or policy. With or without an express amendment to AS 37.11, any future legislature may appropriate as it sees fit, subject only to an item veto. That includes appropriations from the principal of the permanent fund.

Legally, the funds may be viewed as special accounts to facilitate a legislative policy. So long as succeeding legislatures are in accord with the policy, the funds afford a way of providing fairly substantial amounts of money for the management of renewable natural resources without having to overcome the annual inertial resistance of the budget-appropriation process. The executive is bound by the policy as long as it remains law. But each and every legislature possesses the plenary power to annul the policy -- expressly by repeal or impliedly by not following it.

If the legislature changes the policy by not following it, e.g., appropriates from the development fund to build a road to exploit mineral resources of the Seward Peninsula, we doubt that a court would overturn the legislature's action. We believe, rather, that it would rule that the establishment of the fund and its terms by the Eighth State Legislature does not bind, say, the Eleventh State Legislature. There is a rule to the effect that the constitutional limitation of appropriation bills to appropriations precludes their being used to enact or amend other substantive law. E.g., Opinion to the Governor, 239 So.2d 1, 11 (Fla. 1960). However, we apprehend this rule to apply solely to conditions or restrictions attached to appropriations and not to the appropriations themselves.

Accordingly, it is unlikely -- so long as expenditures require an appropriation -- that the courts will ever rule on what is or is not a "renewable natural resource." Of course, if AS 37.11 were amended so as not to require appropriations for future expenditures, then it probably would be a true dedication of revenues and become unconstitutional. Alaska Const., art. IX, §7; Op. Atty. Gen., Dedication of Revenues Derived from Lease or Sale of State Natural Resources (May 2, 1975).
