Before any group should be permitted to force the public to undergo the expense of an election, there should be a very substantial showing that the public is indeed interested in voting on the proposed issue. Therefore, there should be a substantial signature requirement. Under state law, those seeking a recall petition for a state official must first submit an application containing the signatures of at least 10% of those who voted in the last election in the relevant district. If the Lieutenant Governor determines that the application is sufficient, a petition is issued and the petitioners must then obtain signatures equal to at least 25% of those who voted in the last general election in the relevant district. Thus, at the state level the legislature has provided for a recall system which places a significant burden upon the petitioners and thus may well filter out most of those recall efforts which would be unsuccessful. In addition, the grounds for recall (lack of fitness, incompetence, neglect of duties, and corruption) are all narrow enough that the political philosophy or the way a person voted would not be a sufficient basis for a recall. Further, the legislature has clearly provided for a mechanism for judicial review of a determination by the Lieutenant Governor.

Recall is not a matter to be taken lightly and is not one which should be easily initiated or carried out. A political system which provides for the relatively easy recall of an elected official for reason of the way that official voted on a particular matter is a system which has lost one of the essential characteristics of our republican form of government. We should not cater to the fickleness of the electorate if to do so would tend to reduce the effectiveness of local government without some significant, compensating good. Our system of government will function most smoothly, most effectively and for the benefit of the general good if we provide for a recall system with narrowly drawn grounds and with other mechanisms which are designed to prevent the abuse of the recall system. The "open season" system brings with it disruptions which serve no legitimate or public purpose. The "open season" approach should be abandoned.

Re: Title 29 Revision - Recall

Dear Madam:

The Wrangell City Council is aware that the Title 29 Revision Committee has proposed that the recall provisions of Sec. 20.30.220 be amended to broaden the grounds for recall. We wish to strongly oppose this amendment which could subject an official to recall for any action on any matter.

We disagree that to broaden the grounds will enable an elected official to be recalled without being labeled incompetent, guilty of misconduct or as failing to perform his duties. We do agree that most reasons for recall are other than the allowed grounds.

Within Alaska, local governments are being subjected to the expense of recall elections more and more. Often the action stated is not within those grounds allowed, however, seldom does an elected official challenge the action in court as did officials in Kodiak. If every action taken by an elected body is subject to challenge by recall, our local governments could, conceivably, continuously be conducting recall elections. Also, action by the State Legislature could cause recall of local officials. For clarification, we offer the following instance:

> When Title 29 was adopted, there was a provision in 29.23.250(a) that a voter of home rule or general law city is eligible to hold the office of mayor. Wrangell's charter required the mayor to be 21 years of age, which was in conflict with the new Title 29. The City Council placed an amendment to the charter on the ballot to conform with State law. The amendment overwhelmingly failed, thus the majority of the voters were not satisfied with the official duty the Council performed by placing an amendment on the ballot.

As you can see, if the grounds for recall were as you propose, an elected official could be recalled for actions that may be required of their office.

We urge the committee to amend Title 29 to reduce the abuses of recall by including provisions to make the grounds more specific, to require that all officials who voted on the issue on which the recall is based are on the recall ballot, and to provide that unless all of the officials on the ballot are recalled, none shall be recalled.

In closing, we would suggest that whatever grounds for recall are imposed on local elected officials may eventually be imposed on State elected officials.

SUBJECT: Initiative and Recall

Dear Senator Sturgulewski:

In reviewing the changes which the Policy Committee made to the proposed initiative and referendum proceedings, I note that a municipality will now be required to hold special elections for initiatives. Present law requires that initiatives be filed within 90 days of the next regular muncipal election. This requirement eliminates the need lor the muncipality to ever have to hold a special election on an initiative. However, there seems to be little reason not to allow petitioners to file an initiative at any time they please so long as the municipality is not required to undergo the expense of special elections. It was this approach which the Technical Committee suggested.

The Legislature has seen fit to provide an initiative procedure at the state level which does not permit the filing of an initiative petition to generate the requirement for a special election. Further, an initiative petition could be filed with the State and not be placed on the ballot for almost two years. Municipalities have elections each year. If they are required to place initiatives on the next occuring regular or special election, initiatives at the local level will be voted on, in all cases, much more quickly than at the State level. If the State cannot be put to the expense of a special election for an initiative, it seems inappropriate to force municipalities to undergo the expense of special elections for initiatives.

I also believe that if a referendum is filed, no special election should be held unless the referendum has been filed in such a manner that the effect of the measure to be referred is suspended.

For the foregoing reasons, I strongly suggest that the Committee consider changing the election requirements for initiative and referendum to provide that initiatives are placed on the first regular or special municipal election held not sooner than 75 or 90 (or some other reasonable time) days after the initiative is submitted to the Legislative body. I would suggest that a referendum be treated in the same manner unless the filing of the referendum operates to effect a suspension of the matter to be referred. In such cases, a special election should be held if required.

Sincerely,

/s/ Lee Sharp

TO: TITLE 29 TECHNICAL AND POLICY COMMITTEES

FROM: ALASKA ASSOCIATION OF MUNICIPAL CLERKS

SUBJECT: TITLE 29 REVISIONS

We respectfully submit the following comments:

1) Sec. 29.30.040. We support the drafted changes as recommended by the Technical Committee, dated October 10, 1980, with the following amendment to (b):

> "(b) Voter registration by the municipality may not be required, and a municipality may not alter voter qualification requirements except that a municipality may by ordinance require a person to be a resident of and registered in the precinct, district, or service area in which he votes."
> Explanation: Those voting on the issue are residents of the specific area and thus will have to live with the outcome of the election; requiring registration in the precinct, district or service area will hopefully eliminate some of the problems and the time demanded in trying to prove residency; such a procedure will give the Canvass Board clearer direction.

2) Regarding new AS 29.30.110 and .230, the AAMC feels it is within the scope of responsibilities of the clerks to provide an acceptable petition format; however, we object to being burdened with any of the responsibility of composing any type of initiative, referendum or recall statement. We feel that the newly-proposed sections are unclear in this regard and request that clarification of our position be considered.

3) AAMC strong supports the language as proposed in AS 29.30.050 regarding elections which gives the municipalities the option to provide for runoff elections by ordinance.

DRAFTED CHANGES ALTERED BY THE POLICY GROUP - 10 & 11 November 1980

Sec. 29.12.260. COMPOSITION OF CHARTER COMMISSION. (a) The charter commission shall consist of 11 voters, three of whom shall be residents elected at large from the area of the borough and eight of whom, proportionate to the population as determined by the Department of Community and Regional Affairs, shall be

(1) residents of and elected from the area outside a home rule or first class city in the borough, or;

(2) residents of and elected from a home rule or first class city in the borough.

(b) If at least one nomination of a qualified charter commission candidate for each available seat is not filed in accordance with AS 29.12.240 the resolution or petition for unification is void and no election on the question shall be held.

EXPLANATION: Subsection (a) has been altered so that second class cities are included within the area outside cities for purposes of selecting representatives on the charter commission. This was done so that first class and home rule cities, with their greater concentrations of population, have less chance of overwhelming the rest of the borough. Subsection (b) has been added to avoid the expense and inconvenience of an election in the question of unification if not enough nominations of commission members are received. It is felt that failure to nominate a sufficient number of commission candidates indicates a general lack of interest in the question of unification.

DRAFTED CHANGES ALTERED BY THE POLICY GROUP - 10 & 11 November 1980

Sec. 29.30.010. ADMINISTRATION. The borough assembly or city council shall prescribe the rules for conducting a municipal election and shall appoint an election board composed of at least three judges for each precinct. Unless no qualified voter is willing to serve, a judge shall be a voter of the precinct for which he is appointed.

EXPLANATION: Adds the provision that judges be appointed from among precinct voters in order to conform to the 1980 revision of AS 15.10.120. The following language was deleted as a duplication of AS 29.30.040: "The municipality may not alter voter qualification requirements of this title." Subsection (b), making this applicable to home rule municipalities, was deleted.

DRAFTED CHANGES ALTERED BY THE POLICY GROUP - 10 & 11 November 1980

Sec. 29.30.050. MAJORITY ELECTIONS. (a) Unless otherwise provided by ordinance, there shall be a runoff election if no candidate receives over 40 percent of the votes cast for the office of mayor or member of the assembly, council or school board.

(b) A municipality may by ordinance require a majority vote for the election of a municipal official.

(c) Unless otherwise provided by ordinance, a runoff election shall be held within three weeks after the date of certification of the election for which a runoff is required and notice of the runoff election shall be published at least five days prior to the election date.

EXPLANATION: Under existing law a runoff election is required if no candidate receives over 40 percent of the votes cast for his office. This requirement has been altered to apply to certain offices only and liberalized to allow a municipality to provide otherwise by ordinance. The provisions specifying when a runoff must be held and notice requirements are no longer mandatory. In addition, the procedure set out in (c), for the benefit of a municipality which desires specific procedural guidance, has been changed to provide three weeks before the runoff is held rather than two. The additional time would enable cities within boroughs to coordinate their runoff elections.

DRAFTED CHANGES ALTERED BY THE POLICY GROUP - 10 & 11 November 1980

Sec. 29.30.095. APPLICATION FOR PETITION. (a) An initiative or referendum is proposed by filing an application with the municipal clerk containing the bill to be initiated or the act to be referred and the address to which all correspondence relating to the application may be sent. An application shall be signed by at least ten municipal voters who will sponsor the petition. Other sponsors may be added at any time prior to filing the petition by submitting their names to the clerk. Within two weeks the clerk shall certify the application if he finds that it is in proper form and, for an initiative petition, that the matter

(1) is not restricted by AS 29.30.090;

(2) includes only a single subject;

(3) relates to a legislative rather than to an administrative matter; and

(4) would be enforceable as a matter of law.

(b) A decision by the clerk on an application for petition shall be subject to judicial review.

EXPLANATION: This is a new section. The first part is modeled after section two of the initiative article in the state constitution. Sponsors of a petition would be required to register with the clerk. The clerk would review an initiative for substantive legality, with his decision subject to immediate appeal. This allows for a judicial determination of the legality of an initiative prior to incurring the expense of an election on it.

Sec. 29.30.110. PETITION. (a) Within two weeks after certification of an application for petition, a petition shall be prepared by the municipal clerk. Each copy of the petition shall

(1) contain a summary of the bill to be initiated or the act to be referred;

(2) set out fully the ordinance or resolution sought to be initiated or referred;

(3) state the date on which the petition is issued by the clerk;

(4) contain notice that signatures must be secured within 60 days after the date the petition is issued;

(5) contain spaces for each signature, the printed name of each signer, the date each signature is affixed, and the residence and mailing addresses of each signer;

(6) contain a statement that the sponsor personally circulated the petition, that all signatures were affixed in his presence, that he believes the signatures to be those of the persons whose names they purport to be, space for indicating the number of signatures on the petition, and space for the sponsor's sworn signature.

(b) If a petition is composed of more than one page, each page shall contain the summary of the bill to be initiated or the act to be referred.

(c) Copies of the petition shall be provided to each sponsor by the clerk.

EXPLANATION: This section would require the clerk to provide the petition forms to the petitioners to insure that they are complete and legible. This is similar to the requirement imposed upon the Lieutenant Governor in state initiative proceedings. The petition contents are essentially the same as those provided in present law, with a shortening of the petition circulation time from 90 to 60 days, some expansion of the information the signers must provide, and the addition of the circulator's affidavit.

DRAFTED CHANGES ALTERED BY THE POLICY GROUP - 10 & 11 November 1980

Sec. 29.30.120. REQUIRED SIGNATURES. (a) The necessary signatures on a petition shall be secured within 60 days after the clerk issues the petition. The statement provided under AS 29.30.110(a)(6) shall be completed and signed by the sponsor. Signatures shall be ink or indelible pencil.

(b) A petition shall be signed by a number of voters residing within the municipality based on the number of votes cast at the last regular election held on or prior to the date the petition was issued equal to

(1) 25 percent, when a municipality has fewer than 7,500 persons; or

(2) 15 percent, when a municipality has 7,500 persons or more.

(c) Illegible signatures shall be rejected by the clerk unless accompanied by a legible printed name. Signatures not accompanied by a legible residence address shall be rejected.

(d) A petition signer may withdraw his signature upon written application to the clerk prior to certification of the petition.

EXPLANATION: The 60 day signature gathering period is carried forward. While the possibility of an initiative or referendum on a matter which affects only a service area is not eliminated, such petitions contain the same number of signatures as a petition on an areawide matter. Permitting a service area to initiate a matter on a service area basis is contrary to the concept of the service area being under the control of the entire legislative body. Additional changes require rejection of a signature not accompanied by a legible residence address and allow a signer to withdraw his name up until the time the petition is certified, whereas now he must withdraw within seven days after the petition is filed.

DRAFTED CHANGES ALTERED BY THE POLICY GROUP - 10 & 11 November 1980

Sec. 29.30.130. SUFFICIENCY OF PETITION. (a) All copies of a petition shall be assembled and filed as a single instrument. Within 10 days after the date the petition is filed, the municipal clerk shall certify on the petition whether it is sufficient.

(b) If a petition is insufficient, it may be supplemented with additional signatures obtained within 10 days after the date on which the petition is rejected.

(c) Within 10 days after a supplementary filing the clerk shall recertify the petition. If it is still insufficient, the petition is rejected and filed as a public recond.

EXPLANATION: The only significant change makes it clear that in providing supplementary signatures the sponsors have only 10 days to gather the signatures. They may not use signatures which were gathered prior to the first filing but not submitted, and they may not use signatures gathered during the period in which the clerk is checking the petition.

DRAFTED CHANGES ALTERED BY THE POLICY GROUP - 10 & 11 November 1980

Sec. 29.30.160. PRESENTATION OF INITIATIVE. (a) Unless substantially the same measure is adopted, when a petition seeks an initiative vote the clerk shall submit the matter to all of the municipal voters at the next regular or special election occuring no sooner than 45 days after certification of the petition. If no regular or special election occurs within 75 days after the certification of a petition, the assembly or council shall hold a special election within 75 days, but not sooner than 45 days after certification.

(b) If the assembly or council adopts substantially the same measure, the petition is void and the matter initiated shall not be placed before the voters.

(c) The ordinance or resolution initiated shall be published in full in the notice of the election but may be summarized on the ballot to indicate clearly the proposal submitted.

(d) If a majority vote favors the ordinance or resolution it becomes effective upon certification of the election unless a different effective date is provided in the ordinance or resolution approved by the voters.

EXPLANATION: The changes allow for the submission of an initiative measure to the voters within 75 days after certification of a petition rather than requiring that the vote be delayed until the next regular election. The 45 day requirement was added to insure that a petition certified after the legal notices of a regular election were published does not complicate the election. Since the clerk determines whether the subject is within the restrictions and since this determination is subject to judicial review, the assembly or council no longer may reject a petition. An areawide vote is required whether the matter initiated is areawide or nonareawide because a service area should not be allowed to become autonomous.

DRAFTED CHANGES ALTERED BY THE POLICY GROUP - 10 & 11 November 1980

Sec. 29.30.170. PRESENTATION OF REFERENDUM. (a) Unless the ordinance or resolution is repealed, when a petition seeks a referendum vote the clerk shall submit the matter to all of the municipal voters at the next regular or special election occuring no sooner than 45 days after certification of the petition. If no regular or special election occurs within 75 days of certification of a petition, the assembly or council shall hold a special election within 75 days, but not sooner than 45 days after certification.

(b) If a petition for referendum is certified before the effective date of the matter referred, the ordinance or resolution against which the petition is filed shall be suspended pending the referendum vote. During the period of suspension, the assembly or council may not enact an ordinance or resolution substantially similar to the suspended measure.

(c) If the assembly or council repeals the ordinance or resolution before the referendum election, the petition is void and the matter referred shall not be placed before the voters.

(d) If a majority vote favors the repeal of the matter referred, it is repealed. Otherwise, the matter referred remains in effect or, if it has been suspended, becomes effective upon certification of the election.

EXPLANATION: The ability to suspend an ordinance or resolution which has taken effect when a petition is filed within 30 days of the passage of the ordinance or resolution has been deleted to avoid the apparent ability of a part of the voters to exercise a temporary repeal. The reference to amending a charter by initiative or referendum was deleted as that is covered under AS 29.13.080. All questions are submitted to an areawide vote.

Sec. 29.30.180. EFFECT. (a) An ordinance or resolution may not be repealed within one year of its effective date if adopted in an initiative election or adopted after a petition which contains substantially the same measure has been filed. The ordinance or resolution may be amended at any time.

(b) If an ordinance or resolution is repealed in a referendum election or by the assembly or council after a petition which contains substantially the same measure has been filed, substantially similar legislation may not be be enacted by the assembly or council for a period of one year.

(c) An unsuccessful initiative or referendum precludes the filing of a new petition application for substantially the same measure sooner than six months after the election results are certified.

EXPLANATION: Technical revisions and a change in (c) to accommodate the petition process.

DRAFTED CHANGES ALTERED BY THE POLICY GROUP - 10 & 11 November 1980

Sec. 29.30.210. RECALL. (a) An official who is elected or appointed to an elective municipal office may be recalled by the voters after he has served six months of the term for which elected or appointed.

(b) This section applies to home rule and general law municipalities.

EXPLANATION: The possibility of recalling an official who has been appointed to an elective position has been added. The date to be used in determining when the six month period has run has been clarified.

Sec. 29.30.225. APPLICATION FOR RECALL PETITION. (a) An application for a recall petition shall be filed with the municipal clerk and shall contain

(1) the signature and residence addresses of at least 10 municipal voters who will sponsor the petition;

(2) the address to which all correspondence relating to the application may be sent;

(3) a statement in 200 words or less of the grounds of the recall stated with particularity.

(b) Additional sponsors may be added at any time prior to filing the petition by submitting their names to the clerk.

EXPLANATION: This is a new section which describes the requirements for an application for recall petition.

Sec. 29.30.230. PETITION. (a) If the municipal clerk determines that an application for a recall petition meets the requirements of AS 29.30.225, he shall prepare a recall petition. All copies of the petition shall contain

(1) the name of the official sought to be recalled;

(2) the statement of the grounds for recall as set forth in the application for petition;

(3) the date the petition is issued by the clerk;

(4) notice that signatures must be secured within 60 days after the date the petition is issued;

(5) spaces for each signature, the printed name of each signer, the date of each signature, and the residence and mailing addresses of each signer;

(6) a statement that the sponsor personally circulated the petition, that all signatures were affixed in his presence, that he believes the signatures to be those of the persons whose names they purport to be, space for indicating the number of signatures on the petition, and space for the sponsor's sworn signature.

EXPLANATION: This section sets out requirements similar to those relating to the content of initiative and referendum petitions. Requiring the clerk to prepare the petition and supply copies insures that each copy is complete and legible. A petition must be filed within 60 days after the petition is issued rather than 60 days after the date of the earliest signature on the petition.

Sec. 29.30.240. REQUIRED SIGNATURES. (a) The necessary signatures on a recall petition shall be secured within 60 days after the date the clerk issues the petition. The statement provided under AS 29.30.230(a)(6) shall be completed and signed by the sponsor. Signatures shall be in ink or indelible pencil.

(b) If a petition seeks to recall an official who represents the municipality at large, the petition shall be signed by 35 percent of the voters residing within the municipality based on the number of votes cast at the last regular election for that office held prior to issuance of the petition. If a petition seeks to recall an official who represents a district, the petition shall be signed by 35 percent of the voters residing within the district based on the number of votes cast at the last regular election for that office held prior to issuance of the petition. The clerk shall determine the number of signatures required on a petition and shall inform each sponsor.

(c) Illegible signatures shall be rejected by the clerk unless accompanied by a legible printed name. Signatures not accompanied by a legible residence address shall be rejected.

(d) A petition signer may withdraw his signature upon written application to the clerk prior to certification of the petition.

EXPLANATION: Which election to be used as a standard for determining the number of signatures required is clarified. The number of signatures required has been increased as compared to the number required for initiative and referendum because it is felt that recall is an especially disruptive process which should be more difficult to initiate. However, the signature requirement is based on the number who voted in a municipal rather than a state election. It is expected that this number will reflect a relatively low turnout, and therefore that it is not as difficult a requirement as may appear.

Sec. 29.30.250. SUFFICIENCY OF PETITION. (a) The copies of a petition shall be assembled and filed as a single instrument. Within ten days after the date the petition is filed, the municipal clerk shall certify on the petition whether it is sufficient.

(b) If a petition is insufficient, it may be supplemented with additional signatures obtained within ten days after the date on which the petition is rejected, except that a petition which does not contain an adequate number of signatures, both valid and invalid, may not be supplemented and shall be rejected and filed as a public recond.

(c) Within ten days after the supplementary filing the clerk shall recertify the petition. If it is still insufficient, the petition is rejected and filed as a public record.

EXPLANATION: Unlike the situation in initiative and recall, this section does not allow additional time for obtaining signatures when a petition is filed which does not have enough signatures even before any are disqualified. This keeps a petitioner from filing an insufficient petition to gain additional time to gather signatures. Once again, it is felt that in the case of a recall effort, the process ought not to be prolonged.

Sec. 29.30.260. NEW RECALL PETITION. The rejection of a recall petition for any reason does not preclude the filing of a new petition. However, a new application for a petition to recall the same official may not be filed sooner than six months after a petition is rejected.

EXPLANATION: Filing a new petition prior to the six month waiting period is prohibited even though the petition is rejected for a reason other than failure to obtain sufficient signatures. Under existing law, failure to obtain sufficient signatures alone triggers the waiting period.

DRAFTED CHANGES ALTERED BY THE POLICY GROUP - 10 & 11 November 1980

Sec. 29.30.280. ELECTION. (a) If a regular election occurs within 75 days but not sooner than 45 days after submission of the petition to the assembly or council, the assembly or council shall submit the recall at that election.

(b) If no regular election occurs within 75 days the assembly or council shall hold a special election on the recall question within 75 days but not sooner than 45 days after a petition is submitted to the assembly or council.

(c) If a vacancy occurs in the office after a sufficient recall petition is filed with the clerk, the recall question shall not be submitted to the voters. The assembly or council may not appoint to the same office an official who resigns after a sufficient recall petition is filed naming him.

EXPLANATION: The 45 day requirement was added to insure that a petition submitted after the legal notices of a regular election were published would not complicate the election. Added in section (c) is the prohibition against the appointment of an official who resigns after a sufficient recall petition is filed.

DRAFTED CHANGES ALTERED BY THE POLICY GROUP - 10 & 11 November 1980

Sec. 29.30.290. FORM OF RECALL BALLOT. A recall ballot shall contain

(1) the grounds as stated in 200 words or less on the recall petition;

(2) a statement by the official named on the recall petition of 200 words or less if the statement is filed with the clerk for publication and public inspection within 20 days before the election;

(3) the following question: "Shall (name of person) be recalled from the office of (office)? YES ( ) NO ( )".

EXPLANATION: This section makes reference to the fact that each statement is limited to 200 words or less and provides that the statement of the official if published before the election will appear on the ballot.

DRAFTED CHANGES ALTERED BY THE POLICY GROUP - 10 & 11 November 1980

Sec. 29.30.300. ELECTION PROCEDURE. Procedures for conducting a recall election are those of a regular municipal election if the question is submitted at a regular election. Procedures for conducting a recall election are those of a special election if the question is submitted at a special election, except that at least 20 days notice shall be given notwithstanding an ordinance or charter provisions to the contrary.

EXPLANATION: This section was changed to provide for cases in which a recall election is held as a special election.

Sec. 29.30.330. SUCCESSORS. (a) If an official is recalled from the assembly or council, the assembly or council, by affirmative vote of a majority of the remaining members, may appoint a qualified person to fill a vacancy created by the recall.

(b) If all members of the assembly or council are recalled, the governor shall appoint at least three qualified persons to the assembly or council. The appointees shall, by an affirmative vote of the majority, appoint additional members to fill remaining vacancies.

(c) If all but two members of the assembly or council are recalled, each remaining member shall appoint a qualified person to fill a vacancy created by the recall. Additional persons may be appointed to fill vacancies by the affirmative vote of a majority of the remaining members and their appointees.

(d) If all officials are recalled from a school board the assembly or council may appoint a qualified person to fill a vacancy created by the recall.

(e) A person appointed under (a) - (d) of this section shall serve until a successor is elected and takes office.

(f) If an official is recalled the clerk, without further action by the assembly or council, shall conduct an election for a successor to fill the unexpired portion of the term. The election shall be held at least ten but not more than 60 days from the date the recall election is certified, except that if a regular or special election occurs within 75 days after certification and the certification occurs at least 20 days prior to the last date upon which a first notice of the election must be published, the successor shall be chosen at that election.

(g) Nominations for a successor may be filed until seven days prior to the last date upon which a first notice of the election must be published. Nominations may not be filed before the certification of the recall election.

EXPLANATION: This section has been expanded to prevent a local government from having to attempt to operate without a quorum of elected officials. Subsections (f) and (g) were changed to take into account time periods required for election notice and nominations.

TITLE 29 REVISION COMMISSION
NEWS RELEASE

Alaska Legislative Resolve number 39 directed the Alaska Legislative Council to revise Title 29 of the Alaska Statutes (Municipal Government) with the assistance of a Policy Advisory Group. A group was appointed consisting of both public and legislative members. Members are:

Senator Arliss Sturgulewski-Chairman, Anchorage
Senator Bob Mulcahy, Kodiak
Representative Margaret Branson, District 5
Representative Charles Parr, Fairbanks
Ted Berns, Attorney, Municipality of Anchorage
Terry Cook, City Council, Alakanuk
Marilyn Dimmick, Assembly, Kenai Peninsula Borough
James Kohler, Manager, City of Yakutat
Ronald Larson, Mayor, Matanuska-Susitna Borough

Jonathan Solomon, Mayor, City of Fort Yukon
Russell Walker, Attorney, City of Ketchikan and Ketchikan Gateway Borough

Ex-Officio Members are:
Ginny Chitwood, Alaska Municipal League,
Palmer McCarter, Department of Community & Regional Affairs
Phil Smith, RuralCAP

The first meeting of the Policy Group was in Anchorage on the 27th and 28th of August, 1980. At that meeting the Policy Group discussed the direction their policy decisions would take. It was agreed that Title 29 needed to be clarified so that elected officials could understand Title 29 without the help of attorneys, and that there needed to be greater self determination and latitude for local governments. A Technical Revision Committee was appointed to perform actual drafting. It is composed primarily of attorneys with expertise in municipal law.

The second meeting of the Policy Advisory Group was held in Anchorage on September 29th and 30th, 1980. Presentations were made by representatives of the Department of Environmental Conservation, the Department of Community and Regional Affairs, the Department of Health and Social Services, the Haines Borough Assembly, and Tanana Chiefs Conference, Inc. The Policy Group reviewed the work that had been done by the Technical Committee.

Chairman Sturgulewski attended the Alaska Federation of Natives convention and a meeting of the Alaska Village Council Presidents to answer questions and receive comments.

The latest Policy Advisory Group meeting was held in conjunction with the Alaska Municipal League's convention in Fairbanks, 10 and 11 November, 1980. Members of the public were heard including representatives from the City of Fairbanks, the City of McGrath, the City of Nome, the City of Saxman, the City of Homer, the Kodiak Island Borough, and the City of Unalaska. The Policy Group reviewed the work that the Technical Committee had accomplished.

To date changes in Title 29 granted preliminary approval by the Policy Advisory Group include a reorganization of the order of the sections, clarification and technical clean-up of the wording in many of the sections, and substantive changes in the area of initiative and referendum, recall, limitations on home rule powers, and procedures dealing with adoption of home rule or unification charters. However, all decisions made by the Policy Advisory Group are subject to further consideration and possible revision.

SUBJECT: School Bond Guarantee Fund

Attached is our annual memo that must go to the Governor's Office no later than December 1. As in the past this memo states that no sum is required to implement the school bond guarantee fund.

It is my understanding that this fund has never been used and, in fact, for the last four years our memo has been identical.

That lack of use coupled with the requirement in the statute that would allow a home rule city to exceed its authorized bonded indebtedness as defined in its home rule charter, seems to make this a less than desireable statute. I personally feel that deletion of this section is something the Title 29 review committee should consider.

Lee - Please sign attached memo and forward to the Governor's office. Per Terry's suggestion, I am sending a copy of this memo to Tom Cook, legal counsel who can transmit our concern to the technical and policy groups of the T29 revision committee.

Chapter 137, SLA 1974, permanently codified as AS 29.58.345-350, establishes within the Department of Community & Regional Affairs a school bond guarantee fund, the purpose of which is "to further guarantee and provide an additional pledge of payment of . . . bonds issued" to pay costs of school construction. The bond guarantee is applicable only as to home rule cities levying and collecting property taxes for schools and is operative only as to those home rule cities incurring bonded indebtedness for school contruction where the anticipated bond issue requires the city to exceed limits on authorized bonded indebtedness which have been defined in the municipality's home rule charter.

By Section 350(f) of the Act, annually, not later than December 1, the Commissioner of the Department of Community & Regional Affairs must certify to the Governor that sum which is necessary to bring the fund created current to the requisite "debt service reserve".

Since, to our knowledge, no home rule cities have issued bonds necessitating additional requirement on the school bond guarantee fund, I wish to certify that no sum is required to implement the school bond guarantee fund.

CS FOR SENATE BILL NO. 582

IN THE LEGISLATURE OF THE STATE OF ALASKA

ELEVENTH LEGISLATURE - SECOND SESSION

A BILL

For an Act entitled: "An Act relating to the assessment, levy and collection of property taxes on transient aircraft; and providing for an effective date."

BE IT ENACTED BY THE LEGISLATURE OF THE STATE OF ALASKA:

* Section 1. AS 44.25.020 is amended by adding a new paragraph to read:

(5) assess the value of transient aircraft in accordance with AS 29.53.038.

* Sec. 2. AS 29.53 is amended by adding a new section to read:

Sec. 29.53.038. TRANSIENT AIRCRAFT. (a) The Department of Revenue shall assess the value of transient aircraft that is not exempt from property taxes under AS 29.53.162(c). The Department of Revenue shall determine the value of aircraft assessed under this section at its full and true value and shall determine the value of the aircraft as of January 1 annually.

(b) The Department of Revenue may require by notice each person having ownership or control of an interest in aircraft assessed under this section to submit a return in the form prescribed by the Department of Revenue, based on values existing on January 1 of each year. The Department of Revenue by written notice may require a person to provide additional information within 30 days of the notice.

(c) The Department of Revenue may investigate aircraft on which a return has been filed or on which no return has been filed. In either case, the department may make its own valuation of the aircraft, which is prima facie evidence of full and true value. An employee or agent of the Department of Revenue may enter an aircraft as necessary for the investigation during reasonable hours and may examine appropriate records. When requested by an employee or agent of the Department of Revenue, the owner of the aircraft shall furnish to the employee or agent reasonable assistance required for the investigation. If refused entry, the Department of Revenue may seek a court order to compel entry. For the purpose of the investigation, the owner of the aircraft or his representative may be required to present himself for examination under oath by the Department of Revenue.

(d) The Department of Revenue shall prepare annually the assessment roll for taxation of transient aircraft by municipalities. The assessment roll shall contain

(1) a description of all aircraft assessed under this section;

(2) the assessed value of the aircraft;

(3) the names and addresses of persons owning aircraft assessed under this section.

(e) On or before March 1 of each year, the Department of Revenue shall send to each owner of aircraft named in the assessment roll a notice of assessment, showing the assessed value of the aircraft. Notice of assessment is effective on the date of mailing.

(f) The Department of Revenue shall send to each municipality levying a property tax a copy of the notice of assessment on aircraft which is assessed under this section.

(g) A municipality or an owner of aircraft receiving an assessment notice may object to the assessment by advising the Department of Revenue in writing of the objections to the assessment within 20 days of the effective date of the notice.

(h) The Department of Revenue shall provide by regulation for notices of appeals to interested persons and municipalities.

(i) Following an objection, the Department of Revenue may adjust the assessment and the assessment roll. An adjustment based on an objection from a municipality or an owner of aircraft shall be made within 30 days of the effective date of the notice of assessment.

(j) After a ruling by the Department of Revenue on an appeal made under (g) of this section, the municipality or the owner of aircraft may appeal to the State Assessment Review Board. The appeal must be filed in writing within 50 days of the effective date of the notice of assessment. The State Assessment Review Board shall provide by regulation for notices of appeals to interested persons and municipalities.

(k) The State Assessment Review Board shall hear appeals filed under (i) of this section. A majority of the State Assessment Review Board constitutes a quorum required to transact business under this section. The State Assessment Review Board shall provide by regulation for notices of hearings to interested persons and municipalities. If an appellant fails to appear at the hearing, the State Assessment Review Board may proceed with the hearing in his absence. The appellant bears the burden of proof at a hearing under this subsection.

(l) The only grounds for adjustment of assessed value is proof of unequal, excessive or improper valuation or valuation not determined in accordance with the standards set out in this section, based on facts stated in a written appeal timely filed or proved at the hearing.

(m) The State Assessment Review Board shall certify its determination of an appeal to the Department of Revenue within seven days of the hearing.

(n) A municipality or an owner of aircraft may appeal to the superior court for, and is entitled to, trial de novo of the action of the State Assessment Review Board.

(o) No later than June 1 of each year, the Department of Revenue shall certify the final assessment roll.

(p) The Department of Revenue shall include aircraft omitted from the assessment roll on a supplementary assessment roll, using the procedures set out in this section for the original assessment roll.

(q) In this section, "transient aircraft" means

(1) aircraft with a gross operating weight of more than 12,500 pounds used in commerce by an air carrier to furnish transportation to the public for compensation, hire or lease;

(2) equipment included in aircraft described in (1) of this subsection; and

(3) ground cargo handling and containerization equipment which can be transported in aircraft described in (1) of this subsection and which is so transported.

* Sec. 3. AS 29.53 is amended by adding a new section to read:

Sec. 29.53.162. LEVY AND COLLECTION OF PROPERTY TAX ON TRANSIENT AIRCRAFT. (a) A municipality may levy and collect property tax on transient aircraft only under this section.

(b) A municipality may levy a property tax on transient aircraft by applying the rate of levy, determined under AS 29.53.170(b), to a value for all transient aircraft under the same ownership determined by

(1) adding the value of all transient aircraft owned by the same taxpayer; and

(2) multiplying the value determined under (1) of this subsection by the ratio of the number of landings of transient aircraft owned by the taxpayer in the municipality levying the tax during the year preceding the assessment year to the total number of landings of all transient aircraft owned by the taxpayer.

(c) A municipality may, by ordinance, classify transient aircraft and exempt certain classes of transient aircraft from levy and collection of a property tax under this section.

(d) In this section, "transient aircraft" means

(1) aircraft with a gross operating weight of more than 12,500 pounds used in commerce by an air carrier to furnish transportation to the public for compensation, hire or lease;

(2) equipment included in aircraft described in (1) of this subsection; and

(3) ground cargo handling and containerization equipment which can be transported in aircraft described in (1) of this subsection and which is so transported.

* Sec. 4. Notwithstanding any other provisions of AS 29.53, an assessment return on transient aircraft filed with a municipality under AS 29.53.070 for the 1980 assessment year is valid for determining the tax due for that assessment year. If two or more municipalities levy a property tax on transient aircraft under AS 29.53 for the 1980 assessment year, the owner of the aircraft may ask the commissioner of revenue to determine the tax due to each municipality. Upon receipt of the request of the taxpayer, the commissioner of revenue shall apportion the tax due by applying to the assessment of transient aircraft reported to a municipality under AS 29.53.070 the amount determined under AS 29.53.162, added by sec. 3 of this Act.

* Sec. 5. Notwithstanding any other provision of AS 29.53, an assessment return on transient aircraft filed with a municipality under AS 29.53.070 for an assessment year before 1980, is valid for determining the property tax due to that municipality for that prior assessment year.

* Sec. 6. Sections 1 - 3 of this Act take effect January 1, 1981.

* Sec. 7. Sections 4 - 7 of this Act take effect immediately in accordance with AS 01.10.070(c).

INTRODUCTION

Local government in rural Alaska is plagued by the existence of parallel government systems. On one hand, there exists a system of Native governments. On the other hand, the state has encouraged the formation of municipal governments. Often the dual system exists side-by-side in communities of less than 200 persons. In these situations, confusion, and the duplication of administrative costs and services has had a crippling effect on local government. Communities which attempt to avoid the duplication find themselves either ineligible for the respective benefits of the missing government, or forced to create exotic or ad hoc organizations which are marginally eligible for the desired benefits.

This study is an effort to sort out and compare these two systems of government. Additionally, the study makes suggestions on how to correct this situation within existing constitutional restraints.

PART I

EARLY AND CURRENT ALASKAN LOCAL GOVERNMENTS

A. EARLY ALASKAN LOCAL GOVERNMENTS

The earliest "local governments" in Alaska were Native. As Dave Case points out, primal governments varied between the Native cultures.[1] Generally, however, these early governments were loose associations of individuals based upon family relationships and customs. Group decisions were made by consensus.

Similarly, early non-Native local government in Alaska was very informal. After the purchase of Alaska by the U.S. in 1867, the primary mechanism of local government was the extra-legal mining districts.[2] Like the Native governments, these early miner's governments were loose associations based on custom. Generally, decisions were made by majority vote. In 1884, Congress recognized the authority of these mining districts, but the status of Native governments remained in limbo.

In 1900, Congress enacted a civil code for Alaska which included authorization to form towns of over 300 residents.[3] This first form of municipal government was patterned after the mayor-council type of city government common to the "lower 48." Towns were severely limited as to their ability to tax and contract debt and were highly dependent on intergovernmental transfers for financial support. Their primary function seems to have been providing school services. In 1904, some of these limitations were relaxed, but the next major change had to wait until the formation of a territorial government.

In 1905, Congress authorized the formation of independent (city) school districts, and school districts for unincorporated areas.[4] In both cases, the districts exercised fiscal autonomy over current operating expenditures. They directly received a portion of intergovernmental revenue transfers due the city. They remained dependent on the city or territorial government for tax revenues for capital expenditures.

In 1912, Congress passed the Organic Act creating the Territorial legislature.[5] In the following years, the legislature created a second class of territorial towns, subject to the limitations of the earlier Act of Congress. It was fully intentioned that local government be kept weak so as to prevent a taxing or regulatory threat to commercial and mining interests in the territory.[6] In fact, the Organic Act prohibited organization of "counties" or other regional local governments.[7] In 1915, the legislature upgraded territorial towns so that they would be subject to the same limitations as the towns authorized under the federal legislation. At the same time, the legislature for the first time attempted to assimilate Native village government through the Indian Village Act of 1915. This Act authorized Indian villages to organize as units of local government.[8]

In 1917, the legislature authorized incorporation of school districts in unincorporated areas. Under this new legislation, the incorporated school districts achieved greater fiscal autonomy through authorization to tax, as well as an increase in shared intergovernmental transfer revenues.

The legislature undertook a revision of the territorial municipal code in 1923. The new code replaced federally authorized towns with first class cities which directly elected a mayor, expanded council powers, provided for mayoral vetoes, and established minimum procedures for city government.[9] Later, in 1929, the legislature repealed the Indian Village Act of 1915, and revised the laws relating to second class cities making them substantially equal to first class cities.

By 1934, the federal policy toward Indians had again shifted away from assimilation. This was reflected by the passage of the Indian Reorganization Act, and the subsequent extension of the Act to Alaska in 1936.[10] The Act was intended to vest "tribal organizations with real, though limited, authority, and by prescribing conditions which must be met by such tribal organizations."[11]

At this same time, the legislature instituted reforms designed to authorize special purpose regional governments. In 1935, the legislature authorized incorporation of "independent school districts" which included both the area inside city limits and the surrounding adjacent areas. The new school districts were independent of city governments and were fiscally autonomous.[12] Also in 1935, the legislature authorized public utility districts which were fiscally autonomous special purpose governments capable of providing garbage, parks, street, fire, telephones, electrical, and other services.[13]

In 1951, the legislature authorized third class cities, which were essentially the same as second class cities, differing only in geographical and population size.[14]

In 1957, the territorial legislature again attempted to incorporate villages under territorial law.[15] An Incorporated Village had limited powers which included power to provide water, electricity, sewers, and fire protection; regulate dogs, curfews, and land use; and provide public works. The State amended the Act in 1959 to invest the incorporated village with general police powers and provided for village magistrates to levy limited fines. At the same time, the legislature defined the incorporated villages as a city of the fourth class.

At the time of statehood, there existed in the state:

- 24 first class cities
- 8 second class cities
- 2 third class cities
- 10 fourth class cities
- 69 I.R.A.'s
- 5 P.U.D.'s
- 8 independent school districts

- 1 incorporated school district
- unknown number of traditional Native councils

Statehood did not drastically alter the local government pattern since Article XV, Section 1 of the Alaska Constitution provided that, the laws of the territory remained in effect until they were repealed, amended or expired.

Finally in 1972, the state undertook a wholesale revision of the municipal code to create the current system. The main impact of the 1972 revision on the smaller rural communities was to strip those communities which organized under the Village Incorporation Act of their "village" status.

B. CURRENT STATE CHARTERED LOCAL GOVERNMENT

The system of local government authorized under the Alaska Constitution is relatively simple. It is possible to categorize Alaskan local governments into two basic types, i.e., general and special purpose governments. For the sake of analysis, a general purpose government is a government which exercises independent discretion over a broad range of topical concerns. In contrast, a special purpose government is a government which exercises discretion over a specified topical concerns.

General Purpose Governments.

The general purpose government is the constitutionally preferred unit of local government in Alaska. This policy is specifically stated in Article X, Section 1 of the Alaska Constitution which states that, "The purpose of this article is to provide for maximum local self-government with a minimum of local government units, ..." This policy is implemented in Article X, Section 2 which provides that "All local government powers shall be vested in boroughs and cities," and is further stated in Article X, Section 15 which states "Special service districts existing at the time a borough is organized shall be integrated with the government of the borough as provided by law."

This concern for consolidating local powers into single general purpose governments is expressed throughout the Constitutional Convention record. The adoption of "one basic local government system" was intended to prevent "creation of numerous types of local units which can become not only complicated but unworkable."[16] Of immediate concern to the Delegates was the governance of the school boards, public utility districts (P.U.D.s) and health districts. As stated by delegate Victor Fischer:

> "That is one of the points that we have tried to meet here, not to establish too many local governments but those that would be established would be effective to carry out not only the local but also state functions as may be necessary."[17]

To this end the constitution provides for the creation of boroughs and cities.[18]

The most unique aspect of the Alaskan municipality is the framer's intent to create strong local government units. Systems of government then operating in the majority of the states were felt to be too weak.[19] In his initial address to the convention introducing the Local Government Committee's proposed article, Delegate Vic Fischer expressed the "New Federalist" philosophy favoring general decentralized government. Citing the Congressional Commission on Intergovernmental Relations, delegate Fischer stated:

> "The Commission concerned itself with the need for strengthening of state government and a decentralization of federal power. In this study they found that local government is an important factor in this process and I would like to briefly quote a few paragraphs. In discussing the strengthening of local government, the Committee says, 'The objective of decentralization cannot be obtained by a readjustment of national-state relations alone. It will be fully achieved only when carried through to the lowest levels of government where every citizen has the opportunity to participate actively and directly. The strengthening of local government requires the activities that can be handled by these units be allocated to them together with the financial resources necessary for their support.' Then the report goes on and draws a picture of the tremendous number of overlapping tax jurisdictions and separate local entities we now have in the state and goes on to say, 'More or less hidden in this picture is a paradox that > consistently plagues the state and bars any easy solution of the problem of achieving the decentralization of government -- too many local governments and not enough local government.' That is one of the points that we have tried to meet here, not to establish too many local governments but those that would be established would be effective to carry out not only the local but also state functions as may be necessary."[20]

To implement this plan, the committee adopted the so-called "Texas Plan." This approach was explained to the convention by delegate Victor Rivers as follows:

> The old approach to county government was that they existed and had their authorities only in those specifically delegated to them and specifically spelled out to them by the legislature or by the constitution. The other approach which has been adopted and which has operated in a few states, approximately seven as I recall, particularly in Texas, has been called the Texas Plan, and there, under that plan, they allocate such powers to the intermediate tier of government and the cities are not specifically reserved or eventually withdrawn by the state itself. They have a broad exercise of local authority much as our cities have today. That has been the matter of the choice -- whether we wanted to follow the old pattern in which the constitution and the legislature would delegate certain specific powers to the intermediate form of government, which often is called the county and which we have designated as the borough, or whether we would follow the plan of reserving powers to the state and letting the local government exercise broad general authority within the limits of those reservations.[21]

It is quite clear that the "pure" Texas plan called for application of home rule principals to all local governments. The various classes of cities and boroughs would be defined in law by the quantity and quality of powers reserved by the state.

The record indicates that some delegates to the constitutional convention supported the "pure" Texas Plan.[22] In fact, the concept of a "general law" municipality was not introduced in the floor debate, but seems to have been an assumed constant which carried over from the territorial local government concepts. This is reflected in Article X, Section 9 and 11 which respectively provide that first-class municipalities could assume home-rule status, and that the legislature could extend home rule to other classes of government. The concept of "general law" municipalities was enacted by statute.[23] It is interesting to note that although the "general law" concept was not discussed in convention floor debates, it has become a fundamental concept upon which the majority of local governments in Alaska are based.

It is also important to note that the framers specifically desired to provide independent authorization for city and borough powers, rather than provide that such powers be delegated to the cities and boroughs by the legislature. The legislature's authority over cities and borough is specifically enumerated. It may only regulate cities and boroughs through its authority to classify and define the respective powers and manner of incorporation.[24] Oddly enough the Constitution provides for legislative definition of borough assemblies' appointment and composition.[25] In contrast, it does not have a similar provision governing city councils. Rather, the Constitution merely provides that the council, however composed, shall be the governing body of the city.[26]

On the other hand, the powers of service areas are delegated. In the case of an incorporated area, the service area's powers are derived from the organized borough.[27] The exercise of this borough power is subject to legislative regulation by the legislature. In contrast, service areas in unorganized areas of the state possess authority delegated and regulated by the legislature.[28]

i) Boroughs: A borough is the intermediate level of government in the State of Alaska. Although the term "borough" is somewhat unique, the notion of an intermediate level of government is common to the American local government scene. The borough "corresponds generally to the county in other states."[29] By statute, the borough is a government for an "area."[30] This is in contrast to a city, which is a government for a "community."[31] The framers of the constitution anticipated that an average size borough would be between 1,000-2,500 square miles.[32] Presumably, an area could include a number of communities and their outlying areas.[33] Clearly, the framers intended to create a system of two-tiered, local coexistent governments.

But the framers also intended local government to be flexible enough to adjust to future developments. It has, therefore, been observed that:

> Boroughs in different parts of Alaska may serve two quite different purposes. In areas which include cities, they may constitute a second tier of government. In other areas, they may themselves be the sole or primary local units.[34]

The Alaska Supreme Court has recognized this by stating that the Constitution does not require the coexistence of boroughs and cities.[35]

There is a strong indication that the original concept of the borough was strongly linked to home rule. This is most notably demonstrated in committee answers to delegate questions regarding the unorganized borough.

> V. Rivers: ... In the extent that the benefits that the legislature sets up will offset the added cost to the people, anc the extent of their desire for home rule will govern how far they go in organizing those boroughs, but it was our thought there would be enough inducement for them to organize and exercise home rule so that as time went on they would gradually all become incorporated boroughs...[36]

This sentiment is noticeable in comparing the respective constitutional sections dealing with cities and boroughs. Whereas the constitution specifically states that "Cities shall have the powers and functions conferred by law or charter."[37] (emphasis added) The comparable clause dealing with boroughs is less specific providing that, "The legislature shall classify boroughs and prescribe their powers and functions."[38] (emphasis added) It remains unclear whether such prescription should be by specific enumeration or reservation. Nevertheless, inclusion of reference to boroughs in Article X, Sections 9 and 10 leaves no doubt that general law boroughs were constitutionally contemplated.

ii) Cities. In contrast to boroughs, cities are statutory defined as the local government unit for "communities."[39] The local government

PART II

COMPARISONS OF GOVERNMENTAL AUTHORITY

The question of governmental authority is actually a question of the respective jurisdiction of the governments in question. Basically there are two types of jurisdiction: Territorial jurisdiction, i e., the geographical area over which a government's authority extends; subject matter jursidiction, i.e., the topical areas over which a government has the authority.

A. TERRITORIAL JURISDICTION

i) Municipalities. The Alaska Constitution provides that boundaries are determined by the Local Boundary Commission.[1] The Local Boundary Commission is charged by statute with establishing boundaries upon municipal incorporation[2] and subsequent boundary alterations.[3]

The territorial jurisdiction of Alaskan cities is ill-defined by Alaskan statutes. The statutes provide for the creation of boundaries,[4] which presumably infers that boundaries constitute the jurisdictional demarcation of a city.[5] This inference is further reinforced by statutes which provide for extra-territorial jurisdiction. A municipality may provide parks, roads, trails, playgrounds, emergency medical services, cemeteries, and airports outside its municipal boundaries.[6] Additionally, cities outside boroughs may exercise extra-territorial curfew regulation.[7]

In contrast, a borough's territorial jurisdiction is clearly defined in regards to each respective power. Certain powers are "area-wide," i.e., a power of an organized borough exercised throughout the borough.[8] These include education, planning, platting, zoning, and tax assessment and collection and such additional powers acquired by the borough through transfer or referendum.[9] The borough may exercise other municipal powers as "non-area-wide powers," i.e., powers exercised only in the area outside of cities.[10] First class boroughs may exercise any municipal power as a non-area-wide power by ordinance.[11] Second

The basic model for the regional Native nonprofit organization was established under the terms of the Indian Self-Determination Act. That Act authorizes contracts between the BIA and Native governments or, in their place, Native organizations. Generally BIA programs in Alaska cannot be effectively administered at the village level. The sheer cost of administering such programs at the village level makes such contracting not feasible. In response to this problem, Natives have organized along regional lines to form Native organizations which can effectively contract with BIA for the operation of BIA programs within their region.[94] With the exception of the Inupiat Community and the Tlingit/Haida Central Council, none of these regional Native nonprofit organizations possess de jure governmental authority. Rather, they only provide those services normally provided by BIA or other federal or state agencies under a contract with those agencies. In this way, they are capable of performing governmental functions without the prerequisite governmental stature.

The most notable example is illustrated in the court case State v. Aleut Corporation.[93] In that case, several Native organizations sued the Alaska Division of Lands to prevent a proposed sale of lands adjacent to their communities. In addition to various villages, the plaintiff's list included the Bristol Bay Native Corporation and the Aleut Corporation, both regional corporations formed under the terms of the Alaska Native Claims Settlement Act. The plaintiffs in that case sued under AS 38.05.305, which provided that the Division should give notice and consult with incorporated municipalities and other organized communities adjacent to lands proposed for sale by the state. The court recognized that ANCSA regional corporations perform a number of quasi-governmental functions in rural Alaska, however, the Court specifically held that for the purposes of the Alaska Lands Act, regional Native corporations formed under ANCSA did not possess the requisite governmental attributes to qualify them for notice and consultation under the terms of the then existing statute. Subsequent to the Alaska Supreme Court decision, the Alaska Legislature amended the Alaska Lands Act to specifically require the Division of Lands to give notice to the regional Native profit corporations prior to a proposed sale of lands by the state. In 1979, the legislature again amended Section 305 to require the Division of Lands to give notice and consult with village corporations formed under ANCSA. These notices are similar to those given to organized municipalities. In light of this legislative history, it would seem that the Alaska Legislature intended to vest in ANCSA corporations certain specific governmental powers in spite of their general corporate character.

A second type of quasi-governmental Native organization is characterized by the regional Native nonprofit corporation. The activities of these regional nonprofits substantially vary. Their activities include Self-Determination Act contracting for the administration of BIA programs; contracting from HUD for the administration of housing projects; contracting under Title VI, the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act, for the operation of Native CETA programs; etc.

The organization of the Inupiat Community under the Indian Reorganization Act presents a similar case. Prior to the passage of ANCSA, the Inupiat Community organized several Northern Slope villages to form a regional IRA. The Department of the Interior takes a position for the purpose of the Indian Self-Determination Act, that the Inupiat Community cannot enter into contracts or accept grants without the prior approval of the affected villages.[89] In both cases, the Solicitor has depended upon the terms of the Indian Self-Determination Act itself which defined "Indian Tribe" as:

> any Indian tribe, band, nation, or other organized group or community including any Alaskan Native or regional or village corporation as defined in or established pursuant to the Alaska Native Claims Settlement Act which is recognized as eligible for the special programs of services provided by the United States to Indians because of their status as Indians.[90]

In these special cases, it is unclear which is the special purpose government and which is the general purpose government. As a general rule, Indian nations have the power to determine their own form of self-government in accordance with the political and cultural history.[91] This is in accordance with the principle that "the internal affairs of the Indians remained exclusively within the jurisdiction of whatever tribal governments existed."[92] Under these circumstances, it is necessary to review an organization's status on a case-by-case basis. In light of the Cogo decision, however, it is also necessary to review any relevant specific statutory law to determine if the respective organization has a special function under federal law.

Native Quasi-Governments

In addition to the general purpose governments and the special purpose governments outlined above, there exists entities which, for the lack of a better term, may be called Native quasi-governments. These types of organizations are not governments in the formal sense, however, they exercise a variety of functions which are generally exercised by governments. In rare cases, these types of organizations have been formally recognized as exercising governmental authority.

at least analogous to the tribal organization found in the "lower 48." This principle is recognized under Alaskan state law and was enunciated by the Alaska Supreme Court in Ollestead v. Native Village of Tyonek.[85] In that case, the court recognized the tribal status of the Native village of Tyonek council.

It is, therefore, clear that to the extent that they exist, Alaska Native Village Councils organized under Indian Reorganization Act are recognized as local tribal government organizations.

Special Purpose Governments

While it is clear that the general purpose governments of Alaskan Natives are organized at the village level, additional special purpose Native governments exist which complicate the governmental pattern of Alaskan Natives. Most notable in this category is the Tlingit/Haida Central Council.

The specific status of Tlingit/Haida Central Council was litigated in Cogo v. the United States.[86] In that case, an individual brought a lawsuit against the Council to require inclusion in the preparation of the tribal roll under the Tlingit/Haida Settlement.[87] In that case, the council successfully claimed sovereign immunity as a tribal organization. The plaintiffs argued that the Council was not a tribal organization, and, therefore, could not assert tribal sovereign immunity. Specifically, the plaintiff pointed to the language in the Indian Self-Determination Act which seems to indicate that in Alaska, the village council was the tribal organization.[88] The court rejected the plaintiff's claim stating that the language in the Indian Self-determination Act was irrelevant for the purposes of this suit and went on to state that, although the Tlingit/Haida Central Council was certainly not a tribal organization for the purposes of the Indian Self-Determination Act, it was a tribal organization for the purposes of Tlingit/Haida Settlement. This case has clearly established a principle that special purpose tribal governments exist in Alaska, however, the exact extent of such special purpose tribal governments has not been fully delineated.

1936 to specifically extend its provisions to the Territory of Alaska.[79] The operation of the Indian Reorganization Act under the 1936 Alaska amendment was substantially different than the general application of the Act in the "lower 48." The adoption of the Alaska amendment marked the extension of the reservation policy to Alaska. Under the Act, Indian communities could petition the federal government for the creation of reservations.[80] Between 1934 and 1949, several IRA reserves were established. The IRA reserve policy, however, was greatly opposed by non-Native residents of Alaska and through the operation of territorial politics, lawsuits and other pressures on the Bureau of Indian Affairs, the Bureau abandoned the policy of creating IRA reserves in Alaska.[81] Even though the reservation policy was abandoned by the Bureau, the organizational efforts of the Bureau left in its wake a number of organized Native villages without reservations. Those few reservations actually formed pursuant to the Act were later revoked by the Alaskan Native Claims Settlement Act.[82] The net result of this course of events has left a number of Native governments continuing to operate under their IRA constitutions.

The legislative history accompanying passage of the Alaska amendment clearly indicates that Congress intended to recognize the Alaska Native village as analogous to a tribal organization. A House report stated:

> The proposed amendment, number 1 above, set out is necessary because of the peculiar nontribal organization under which the Alaska Indians operate. They have no tribal organizations as the term is understood generally. Many groups that would otherwise be termed tribes live in villages which are the basis of their organization.[83]

In this sense, the Alaska amendment was consistent with the general statutory purpose of the Indian Reorganization Act, which was

> To stabilize the tribal organization of Indian tribes by vesting such tribal organizations with real limited authority and by prescribing conditions which must be met by such tribal organizations.[84]

In light of these Congressional enactments and legislative history, it is clear that the Alaskan Native IRA Village Council is equivalent or tribes. For example, Native villages receive identical treatment as Indian tribes under the Indian Self-Determination Act,[70] the State and Local Fiscal Assistance Act,[71] the Housing and Community Development Act,[72] the Comprehensive Employment Training Act,[73] and the Indian Child Welfare Act.[74] Additionally, Congress has recognized self-governing qualities of Alaska Native communities when it provided for the extension of state civil jurisdiction over Alaska Natives. In applying PL 83-290 to Alaska, Congress expressly reserved that:

> Any tribal ordinance or custom heretofore or hereafter adopted by an Indian tribe, band, or community, in the exercise of any authority which it may posess shall, if not inconsistent with any applicable civil law of the state, be given full force and effect in the determination of civil cause of action pursuant to this section.[75]

The executive branch has likewise dealt with Alaska Native villages as Native governments where it exercises discretion. The best example of this is the Omnibus Crimes Control and Safe Streets Act which places responsibility of the Secretary of the Interior to determine those Indian tribes which perform law and order functions.[76] Under this authority, the Secretary of the Interior has recognized several Alaska Native villages as exercising the law and order functions including the employment of tribal police, establishment of tribal courts, corrections functions, and the adoption a law and order code.[77]

i) I.R.A.s. A second type of general Native government in Alaska is the "IRA Village Council." IRA stands for Indian Reorganization Act, or the Howard-Wheeler Act, which was passed in the 1930s in an effort to modernize Indian or Native American governments.[78] The Act originally applied only to the "lower 48." Its application in Alaska was somewhat unique. A 1934 version of the Indian Reorganization Act provided that only an "Indian tribe or tribes residing on the same reservation" could organize to adopt constitutions under the Act. Since few reservations existed in Alaska at the time, the Act had, in its original form, doubtful utility in Alaska To address the special problems of Indian organization in Alaska, Congress amended the Indian Reorganization Act in May of General Purpose Governments.

It is commonly stated that there are two types of general Native governments in Alaska: Traditional Councils and IRA Councils.[66] In practice, there is little difference between the operation of these two types of government. The distinction between the two governments is largely theoretical. This distinction is important, however, when the authority or status of the government comes into question.

i) Traditional Councils. In a strict sense, traditional councils are not traditional to the Alaska Native people. As pointed by David Case, the traditional precontact Native governments were primarily based on family ties.[67] Traditional councils have been formed in reaction to contact with the non-Native culture for local representation of the Native community before outside interest. Many of these councils have adopted formal traditional constitutions while others seem to operate according to an unwritten constitution like the United Kingdom. In all cases, the basic level of organization is the village.

The basis of these government's authority rests in their retained sovereignty, i.e., the principle that absent express Congressional action to the contrary, Indian nations retain the inherent power of internal self-government.[68]

This observation has led to several inquiries regarding the tribal status of Alaskan Native villages. Although the question of tribal status in Alaska is intriguing from an ethnic and political perspective, its resolution has doubtful legal significance. More important that tribal status however, is the general recognition of a group's authority to govern itself. This recognition is directly linked to its dependent status vis-anvis the federal government.[69] In turn, a Native community's dependent status is determined by legislative and executive course of action respecting the Native community in question.

Congress has specifically extended this recognition to Alaska Native villages and has treated them in the same manner as other Indian areas may organize a special service area for the conducting district coastal management programs.[62] These programs operate to guide state agencies in the operation of their programs throughout the coastal areas of the state. While the state continues to be the basic provider of basic services, the service area boards operate as a centralized planning agency for the area. The board of the service area is popularly elected.

Third, the regional education attendance areas (REAA) are service areas providing eudcational services within the unorganized borough.[63] Like the coastal zone management areas, the REAA's are controlled by a popularly elected board, but were mandatorally organized by the legislature after a settlement of the "Molly Hootch" case.[64]

Finally, the legislature has "impliedly" authorized organization of volunteer fire departments for unorganized areas of the state through the state revenue sharing program.[65] Under this program, local fire departments may organize under regulations adopted by the state fire marshall. Upon approval and registration of the departments, the organizations are eligible for state funding. Generally, these departments enjoy substantial fiscal autonomy, provided that they confine their activities to fire protection.

As noted above, there is great variety in the organization and operation of these special service areas. At the present time, the authority of these special service areas has not been challenged in court, so that it is impossible to define the limits of the legislature's discretion as to the manner and form that these service areas may take. If the past record is an indication of legislative authority, it can only be stated that the legislature possesses broad discretion in creating and organizing service areas, provided they are defined taxing authority.

C. ALASKA NATIVE GOVERNMENT ORGANIZATION

As with state chartered local governments, Alaskan Native governments can be categorized as general or special purpose governments. Additionally, there exists "quasi-governmental" entities.

range of services for a community without city incorporation. This concept is not beyond the framer's contemplation, in that both pro-integration, and anti-integration factions within the Constitutional Convention characterized cities as "a collection of service areas".[57] It must be remembered, however, that a collection of service areas lack independent taxing authority possessed by cities. Thus, a collection of service areas would be totally dependent on intergovernmental transfers, whether from the borough or the state. Furthermore, a collection of service areas would be subordinate to borough regulation in areas of "local control". The collection of service areas, however, could exercise substantial autonomy in areas of state interest, as defined by the legislature.

Service areas have their greatest utility in the unorganized boroughs. The constitution directs the legislature to provide necessary services in the unorganized boroughs, "allowing for maximum local participation and responsibility."[58] To implement this section, the legislature provided that it may authorize "service areas" in the unorganized borough.[59] It is agreed that such service areas do not possess powers of fiscal autonomy,[60] however, they may exercise other powers delegated by the legislature.

The legislature has seen fit to authorize four types of service areas in the unorganized borough - i.e.: 1) aquaculture service areas; 2) coastal resource service areas; 3) regional educational service areas, and 4) volunteer fire departments.

The legislature authorized the Commissioner of Commerce and Economic Development to declare aquaculture service areas.[61] The purpose of these service areas are to provide fishery enhancement services. The service area board is comprised of representatives of member user groups.

The coastal zone management service areas are general planning units for coastal areas of the state. Whereas, coastal boroughs are automatically designated coastal zone management districts, unorganized revenues from intergovernmental transfers. For example, under the terms of A.S. 29.89.030 (2), a health district operating a hospital may qualify for state revenue sharing. Although, the sponsoring municipality would initially receive the revenue sharing payments, the municipality is required to transfer such payments to the service area to be used for health services at the discretion of the hospital "directors".

The second major limitation on a service area's autonomy is related to the operation of the "local activity rule." As the Court stated in Macauley, the legislature may delegate to service areas power beyond the regulation of the parent municipality in areas which are the subject of state concern. It follows, therefore, that service area autonomy is inversely related to "local" concerns. For example, a municipality could certainly regulate the use of municipal property regardless of whether it was assigned to the service area, since municipal property is purely a local concern.[54] Of course, is is not easy to define what is a "local" concern as opposed to a "state" concern. This is even less clear under the borough form of government in that the framers of the constitution intended boroughs to assume greater responsibility in the area of traditional state concerns as state government "decentralized." The framers seemed to have accepted this ambiguity, and left the matter to the legislature. The courts, in turn, have recognized this role for the legislature by holding that municipal regulation is invalid in the face of contrary statutory law.

In spite of these limitations, service areas would seem to be remarkably flexible mechanisms of local government. For example, the Constitution authorized intergovernment cooperative agreements between "any local governments" for joint administration of any functions or powers.[55] Presumably, these provisions would apply to service areas since they are local governments. This view is supported by the fact, that only cities and boroughs are authorized to transfer powers, while "all local governments" are authorized to enter into intergovernmental agreements.[56] Thus, it would seem possible for co-extensive service areas to enter into cooperative administrative agreements for such things as centralized accounting and budgeting, personnel management and property management systems. Such mechanisms could be used rather extensively to provide a wide exclude the exercise of governmental authority by governments other than cities and boroughs.

This balance is further demonstrated in those constitutional provisions which provide that when a borough is organized, existing service districts shall be "integrated" into the borough government.[49] Once a borough is organized, the assembly may create service areas within its borders.[50] This latter power is subject to the single prohibition that services areas cannot be established where such services can be rendered by annexation to an existing service area or city.[51] This prohibition is consistent with the general preference for integration rather than separate incorporation.

It is quite clear that service areas are only "semi-autonomous." As indicated above, the service area would be subject to the exclusive "fiscal jurisdiction" of the assembly. Beyond this, however, the framer's contemplated that service area boards could be set up and exercise substantial powers. This was clarified by delegate Fischer who stated:

> ..., it is the intent of the committee that when you establish a service area you could, say, establish a separate school board,...to supervise the school functions...[52]

Thus, it is possible for a service area to exercise substantial power independent of the general borough assembly.

It must be remembered, however, that the service area may never exercise total autonomy. There seems to be two chief limitations on the service areas. First, the service area may not unilaterally tax. The Constitution specifically provides that only cities and boroughs may tax.[53] As indicated above, this limitation on service areas was perceived by the framers as the sufficient link needed to achieve local government coordination. There remains, however, substantial autonomy even in fiscal matters as indicated by the Macauley v. Hildebrand case. A school district may maintain separate financial records. Similarly, while service areas have limited control over tax revenues, they may possess substantial autonomy with respect to however, provided for service areas and districts which seem to be semi-autonomous special purpose governments. In understanding the role of special purpose governments, it is necessary to recognize that service areas represent a compromise between the constitutional delegates who argued in favor of wholly integrated local governments, and those delegates who favored continuing the independent school districts, health districts and P.U.D.s formed under the territorial government. In expressing this compromise, delegate Vic Fischer stated:

> Mr. Johnson, it was not the intention of the committee to do away with any existing school districts just by the enactment of this article. (Sec 15). The intent was to leave them within a new framework of government.... what we visualize is putting them under the general fiscal jurisdiction of the larger entity, which includes all the people within the particular school district.[44]

This was again explained by delegate Rivers who stated:

> Mr. President, the idea was that the general powers of government would be with the general elected representatives of the people. Now, as Mr. Fischer has pointed out, the special functions in regards to the use of one group for one special purpose such as health, education or anything else, the power to take the board and take its powers away, the powers of the boards would probably continue except for the taxing power being centralized in the one taxing agency which would thus have its own appraising, its own assisting agency, its own condemnations.[45]

This point was recognized by the Alaska Supreme Court in Macauley v. Hildebrand[46] where the Court held that a home rule borough may not require its school system by ordinance to participate in centralized accounting where the Legislature has delegated express authority to the school board to resist such requirements. The Court based its decision upon the theory that education was an area of "pervasive state authority." The obvious conclusion, therefore, is that service areas may exercise substantial autonomy in areas of "pervasive state authority." In a similar manner, the legislature could provide substantial autonomy to public utility districts since regulation of public utilities is also an area of state concern.[47] Thus, while the constitution provides that "all local powers shall be vested in boroughs and cities",[48] it does not committee of the Constitutional Convention considered the option of abolishing the city form of government. It was felt, however, that such a move was "too drastic a step," and it was felt that the existing territorial units of governments should be perpetuated.[40] On the other hand, it was also stated that,

> "... we visualize the possibility that as the borough becomes a more definite unit of government over the years, which we hope it will, the scope better defined, that all the functions that can best be carried out on the unified basis be transferred over to the borough."[41]

In City of Douglas v. City and Borough of Juneau,[42] the Court recognized that "Unification is consistent with the purpose expressed in Article X, Section 1 of minimizing the number of local government units." But in preserving the city, the convention did not intend to subordinate the city to the borough as indicated by the following exchange:

> HURLEY: The borough then has nothing to say about the services that the city offers its own residents within its boundaries. Is that true?
> ROSSWOG: Yes, the city should remain as much the same as today, or practically the same unless there are some gradual changes in the future. They can delegate powers back and forth but the borough would not tell the city that they had to supply certain services or couldn't supply certain services. That is why the two are set up as having the authority.
> HURLEY: In essence, then, you have two local government units?
> ROSSWOG: Yes, that is right.[43]

Thus, while the momentum set in force by the Constitutional Convention contemplates eventual dissolution of cities in favor of boroughs, the interim is governed by the principals of sovereign coexistence.

Special Purpose Governments

As noted above the integrated/unified local government is the preferred vehicle of local government in Alaska. The constitution, class boroughs may only exercise certain enumerated powers as non-area-wide powers by ordinance. These include regulatory power over fireworks, animals, motor vehicles, snow vehicles, garbage, water pollution. A second class borough may only acquire other municipal if such powers are specified in its charter or subsequently acquired by referendum.[12]

ii) Native Government. Native Village constitutions, whether adopted under the traditional form of government or under the Indian Reorganization Act, generally fail to define the exterior boundaries of their territorial jurisdiction. It is, therefore, necessary to look to common law in order to determine the respective jurisdictions of the tribal organizations.

Generally, it is said that tribal law and custom are applicable within "Indian country."[13] This rule was not altered when Congress extended the State of Alaska's jurisdiction to Alaskan Indian country. Congress expressly reserved that Indian law and custom shall be given full force and effect in the determination of civil causes of action arising within Indian country in Alaska.[14]

This observation, however, begs the question to whether Indian country exists in Alaska, and, if so, what are the limits of Indian country in Alaska? Unfortunately, in Alaska the question whether Indian country exists is largely disputed, and supported by a vacillating history of cases.

As Felix Cohen illustrates in his early attempt to define the term Indian country, the term is a dynamic concept. Originally, the concept seems to have been born out of respect for the territorial integrity of Indian nations.[15] Later, the idea was supported in the Jacksonian policy of Indian removal to reserves, a policy designed to physically separate Indians and the immigrant culture.[16] From thence, the concept found its way into the early Indian Intercourse Acts to indicate Indian lands west of the Mississippi.[17] From this point, the courts and Congress have separately, albeit tangentially, developed the concept of "Indian country."

Congress repealed the definition section of the Act in 1834 and failed to reenact a substitute general definition of Indian country.[18] Later, however, Congress defined the term Indian country in relation to specific crimes.[19] The only current federal statutory definition of Indian country exists in 18 USC 1151 which defines Indian country as:

(a) All land within the limits of any Indian reservation under the jurisdiction of the United States government, notwithstanding the issuance of any patent, and including rights of way running through the reservation,

(b) All dependent Indian communities within the borders of the United States whether within the original or subsequently acquired territory thereof and whether within or without the limits of a state, or

(c) All Indian allotments, the Indian titles to which have not been extinguished, including rights-of-way running through the same.

It should be noted that this definition of Indian country only applies to a set of federal criminal statutes contained in Title 18 of the U.S. Code. The term Indian country, however, is also found in 28 USC 1360 dealing with state civil jurisdiction over Indians. The result is that there is no general statutory definition for Indian country, nor is there a statutory definition for Indian country in the civil sense.

The resulting ambiguity from the lack of a statutory definition of Indian country led to a series of Supreme Court decisions laying down the principal common law definition of Indian country. Felix Cohen states that the first ruling by the Supreme Court on the issue came in Bates v. Clark,[20] which stated in essence that:

> "It follows from this that all the country described by the Act of 1834 is Indian country, remains Indian country so long as the Indians retain their original title to the soil, and ceases to be Indian country when ever they lose that title, in the absence of any different provision by treaty or act of Congress."

This basic principle was expanded in Donnelly v. U.S.,[21] where the Court stated that executive order reservations constituted Indian country even though the respective band did not possess original title to the land in question.

Of more importance to the Alaskan situation however, was the case U.S. v. Sandoval,[22] which held that Pueblo lands not held in trust by the United States, but owned in fee simple by a Native community under a Spanish land grant, was in fact Indian country. In his treatise on the federal-Indian relationship, David Case pointed out that the Sandoval doctrine presents a clear analogy to the Alaskan situation. Like the New Mexico pueblos, Alaska Native communities own land in fee simple through their Native corporations. In the Sandoval case, the court looked to the statutory definition embodied in 18 USC 1151 and held that the Pueblos of New Mexico were clearly "dependent communities" within this definition of Indian country. In a similar case, U.S. v. Chavez,[23] the Court defined Indian country as "any unceded lands owned or occupied by an Indian nation or tribe of Indians." If these Court cases are to be literally applied to the Alaska situation, it is clear that Indian country does exist in Alaska. However, the matter has never truly been settled.

The modern federal courts have only addressed the question whether Indian country exists in Alaska on three occasions. In the first case, In re McCord,[24] the Court heard a petition in a proceeding for a writ of habeas corpus arising from a conviction for statutory rape occurring upon the Tyonek Indian Reserve. In that case, the Court followed the Donnelly decision and held that the executive order reservation was in fact Indian country which denied state jurisdiction to prosecute the defendant in the case. The second major case following McCord by one year, was U.S. v. Booth.[25] In that case, the court held that the Metlakatla Indian Reservation did not constitute Indian country because the reservation was not a "reservation in the traditional sense." The Court further distinguished the case from McCord by noting the different conditions and history behind the Metlakatla Reservation. The decision in the McCord case, however, led to a general public outcry of concern over the lack of law and order within Indian country in Alaska. Alerted to this apparent gap in jurisdiction, Congress passed an amendment to PL 83-280 (P.L. 280) including Alaska among those states where mandatory state jurisdiction extended over Indian country within the borders of the state.[26] The legislative history behind this action clearly indicates that the Congress reacted to the nolding in the McCord case, and indicates that Congress clearly desired to overrule and reverse the precedents set by that case.[27] If the application of PL 280 to Alaska was a congressional reaction to McCord, rather than Booth, it is safe to assume that the holding in McCord was a correct statement of the legal crisis prior to the application of PL 280 to Alaska. That Act specifically states that the State of Alaska shall have jurisdiction over Indian country within its borders. It therefore seems incredible to assert that Indian country does not exist in Alaska.

But the doctrinal confusion regarding the existence of Indian country in Alaska has continued. This is primarily due to the nature of the cases in which the claim of Indian country arises. For example, in the People of South Naknek v. Bristol Bay Borough,[28] the plaintiffs claimed a tax exemption for Native townsites within the borough by claiming that the townsites were Indian country and therefore exempt from state taxation. The court firmly refused to attempt an answer as to whether or not the land in question was in fact Indian country. The Court, however, noted the historical confusion over the question of Indian country in Alaska. The Court blamed much of this confusion on "one of the principal Indian jurisdictional cases that has emerged from Alaska," specifically, the Organized Village of Kake v. Egan.[29] Like Naknek, the Kake case arose out of a claim denying state jurisdiction. It is important to note, however, that Kake did not deal with the question of Indian country per se, but addressed a narrower question of whether state law applied to off-reservation Indians. Kake, like Naknek, did not address the question whether Indian country exists in Alaska.

It should be noted that the mere existence of Indian country and consequent tribal jurisdiction is not an exclusive claim to jurisdiction and does not exclude state criminal and civil jurisdiction. As noted earlier, Alaska is subject to the mandatory provisions of PL 280 which authorized the extension of state jurisdiction over Indian country. As a general rule, however, the application of PL 280 does not create exclusive state jurisdiction nor does it substantially affect tribal jurisdiction. In Bryan v. Itasca County,[30] the Court stated that:

> . . . nothing in its [PL 280] legislative history remotely suggests that Congress meant the Act's extension of civil jurisdiction to states would result in the undermining or destruction of such tribal governments as did exist and a conversion of the affected tribes into little more than private voluntary organizations.[31]

In reaching this conclusion, the court noted that 28 USC Section 1360(c) provided for full force and effect of any tribal ordinances or customs heretofore or hereafter adopted by an Indian tribe if not inconsistent with any applicable civil laws of the state. In light of these cases, it would seem that territorial jurisdiction over those areas which can be determined to be Indian country, would seem to be concurrent between the state and the tribe.

There remains, however, substantial concern that the Alaska Native Claims Settlement Act placed in question the existence of Indian country in Alaska. Specifically, concern centers around Section 19 of the Act, which revoked existing reservations in Alaska. The supporters of this theory contend that, when the reservations were revoked, the territorial jurisdictions of the respective villages were destroyed. The argument, however, rests upon the proposition that Indian country is dependent upon the existence of reservations. The Supreme Court has clearly announced that there is nothing magic in the term "reservation."[32] Other forms of Indian country exist in addition to reservations. It is also clear that tribal jurisdiction is not dependent upon federal ownership of the territory in question.

The Pueblo cases arising out of the New Mexico situation clearly demonstrate these principles. In the Chavez case, Indian country was defined as "any unceded land owned or occupied by an Indian nation or tribe of Indians." It is not necessary to establish clear unequivocal boundaries. Rather, it is only necessary that the lands in question are occupied by "distinctly Indian communities" recognized and treated by the government as dependent communities entitled to its protection.[33] Applying this rule to Post-ANCSA Alaska it is quite easy to identify those villages in rural Alaska which continue to be "distinctly Native communities." Such communities retain substantial cultural, social, and economic characteristics identifiable as Native and therefore these villages clearly fall within the definition of a dependent Indian community enunciated in the Chevez decision. Additionally, it must be recognized that ANCSA clarified continued Native title to certain lands within the state. Under the terms of the Act, Alaskan Native aboriginal claims to the land were extinguished.[34] In compensation for the extinguishment of such claims, Alaska Native villages were allowed to select and receive substantial amounts of land surrounding the villages.[35] The main effect of this act was to continue Native occupancy and ownership of a substantial amount of land surrounding Native communities. Thus those lands selected and ultimately conveyed to the village corporations clearly constituted "unceded lands owned and occupied" by the Native villages concerned. Again, the definition of Indian country as specified in the Chavez case is clearly met. As noted earlier, the fact that such lands were conveyed in fee simple was ruled irrelevant in the Sandoval case.

This view is consistent with a recent solicitor's opinion which stated that,

> The continued existence of Indian country in Alaska, in our view, does not conflict with the Settlement Act, and consequently, that Act should not be construed to have abolished Indian country or the possibility that Native villages might qualify as "dependent Indian communities."[36]

The opinion then considered a number of factors including whether the Native village was modern and urban in character, a high percentage of Native residents, the village's elibiligy to receive federal services, and the land tenure pattern, and concluded that,

> In our view, these factors are sufficient to support presumption that the area (Allakaket) is a dependent Indian community and, therefore, Indian country for the purposes of the liquor laws.[37]

Of course, this does not address the substantial concern which may arise upon subsequent land transfers by the respective Native communities. The problem presents itself in two distinct situations. First, what is the status of lands originally selected by a village corporation and then conveyed by the corporation to non-Natives? Secondly, what is the status of lands subsequently acquired by the Native village?

The basic rule governing subsequently acquired Indian lands and their respective status as Indian country was laid down in United States v. McGowan.[38] In that case, the lands in question were lands owned by the United States and purchased out of funds appropriated by Congress for this purpose. The ruling that such lands were in fact Indian country relied on the role of the government in the establishment of the colony. The role of the federal government in the creation of the Reno Colony is substantially analagous to the role of the federal government in the identification and conveyance of lands received under the terms of ANCSA. Subsequent purchases of private land by Alaskan Native villages in fee simple would by definition not involve the federal government. Under the rationale of McGowan, the diminished federal role in the identification of Indian lands would substantially impact the status of those lands under the McGowan test. Subsequently, acquired land which would not involve federal government participation in their acquisition would not necessarily extend village jurisdiction.

The above type of subsequent acquisition, however, should be sharply contrasted from acquisitions authorized under the Indian Reorganization Act.[39] Lands acquired in this manner would fall under the black letter rule of McGowan, so that lands subsequently acquired pursuant to the terms of the Indian Reorganization Act would clearly extend village jurisdiction to those lands.

The possibility that a village might sell or otherwise dispose of village lands to nonmembers of the community presents a substantially different problem. In the case Seymour v. Superintendent,[40] the United States Supreme Court held that lands conveyed to non-Indians within the exterior boundaries of a former reservation did not lose the character of Indian country. This rests upon the theory that once Congress has set aside certain lands for the use and occupancy of Indians, such use and occupancy shall not be disturbed. Broadly applying this principle to Alaskan Native villages, it would seem that lands within the Alaskan Native village selections authorized under the terms of ANCSA, would continue to be Indian country in spite of subsequent conveyance of such lands to non-Indians by the village.[41] In contrast to these decisions, however, is the decision in DeCoteau v. District County Court.[42] In that case, the Court held that the Lake Traverse Indian Reservation in South Dakota was terminated and returned to the public domain and, hence, Indian country on the Lake Traverse reservation ceased to exist on this reservation. The Court in DeCoteau noted that the Act in question was a ratification of a prior negotiated agreement which was fully intended to terminate the reservation. By the terms of the agreement itself, the Indians would "cede, sell, and relinquish, and convey" all the remaining land in the reservation. The court distinguished Matz and Seymour as being cases involving unilateral Congressional action rather than possession or sale of land by the Indians. From these two lines of cases it is unclear whether that a sale of Indian lands by a village would result in the relinquishment of tribal jurisdiction over those lands.

iii) Summary Comparison. In summary, it seems clear that the territorial jurisdiction of state municipal governments are basically defined in terms of their boundaries. Borough's territorial jurisdiction may be limited in regards to a number of powers by the existence of cities within its boundaries. Finally, all municipalities may exercise extra-territorial jurisdiction in respect to certain enumerated powers. The procedure for enlarging or diminishing boundaries is statutorily prescribed.

In contrast, a Native village government's territorial jurisdiction is defined in reference to the village's "Indian country." It is most likely that a village's Indian country is coextensive with lands received under ANCSA, and any other lands subsequently acquired with federal participation. It is unclear whether village's Indian country is diminished through unilateral sale or cession of village lands.

B. PERSONAL JURISDICTION

In contrast to a municipal government, tribal government has very limited personal jurisdiction. It is generally assumed that personal jurisdiction of a municipality extends to all or most individuals within its territorial jurisdiction. This may depend upon the subject matter involved (see below). A tribe's jurisdiction is generally linked to its membership. The U.S. Supreme Court enunciated the basic principles of tribal personal jurisdiction in the companion cases, Oliphant v. Suquamish[43] and U.S. v. Wheeler.[44] In Oliphant, the Suquamish tribe attempted to enforce a local traffic ordinance against a nontribal member. In its decision, however, the Court denied the tribe's claim to jurisdiction over nonmembers. In Wheeler, however, the Court upheld the Navajo Reservation's claim to enforcement jurisdiction over tribal members.

There are basically two ways to interpret the meaning of these cases. In the broad sense, the Oliphant decision can be interpreted as denying tribal jurisdiction over non-members. It is important to note, however, that the Court in Oliphant did not overrule the holding in U.S. v. Mazurie.[45] In that case, the Court upheld the extension of tribal liquor ordinances over non-members of the tribe. Although the cases seem irreconcilable at first glance, there was a substantial difference between these two cases. In Mazurie, the Court upheld the authority of the tribe to prescribe the ordinance and stated that such legislative acts extend and apply to nontribal individuals. The actual enforcement mechanism in the Mazurie case were federal authorities, i.e., the federal courts. In contrast, the tribe in Oliphant was attempting to enforce tribal ordinances through tribal courts. The only way these two cases can be reconciled is to recognize that tribal ordinances extend to non-members but that tribes lack the authority to enforce such ordinances against non-members. The result is that tribes must seek alternative enforcement mechanisms against nontribal members, i.e., the state or federal courts. As noted in Bryan v. Itasca, federal courts are not available in a PL 280 state such as Alaska since federal jurisdiction has generally been withdrawn. Thus, in Alaska the state courts are the only forum for the enforcement of most tribal ordinances against non-members.

As noted above, "PL 280" requires the state to give "full force and effect" to valid tribal ordinances in civil cases.[46] This supports the notion that a village would have prescriptive jurisdiction over non-tribal members. It also clarifies that state enforcement of tribal ordinances is clearly required by federal law in civil matters.

There remains, of course, the question of criminal cases. PL 280 has no comparable requirement for "full force and effect" of tribal ordinances in criminal cases. There exists, however, two lines of authority on this issue. Some states have extended "full faith and credit" to tribal ordinances by holding that a tribe is a "territory" under 28 USC 1738.[47] On the other hand, many states have refused full faith and credit, but have extended "comity" to tribal ordinances.[48] The issue remains unresolved.[49]

C. SUBJECT MATTER JURISDICTION

Subject matter jurisdiction refers to the types of issues with which a government may concern itself. Often subject matter jurisdiction is referred to as the "powers" of a government. Title 29 of the Alaska Statutes enunciates, in a comprehensive manner, the powers of state chartered local governments. In contrast, there exists no similar comprehensive and authoritative exposition of tribal powers. Understanding tribal powers requires a thorough review of a substantial body of federal and international common law. Finally, there exists a less formidable body of federal common law governing the interaction of these respective jurisdictions.

1) Concurrent Jurisdiction

There are two basic principals governing the interaction between municipal and tribal governments.

The first principle was enunciated by the United States Supreme Court in Williams v. Lee.[50] In that case, the United States Supreme Court held that states have jurisdiction over Indians except where such state jurisdiction infringes upon tribal self-government. This test was specifically applied to Alaska in Organized Village of Kake v. Egan.[51] In that case, the Court analyzed the development of this principle and stated:

> "these decisions indicate that even on reservations, state laws may be applied to Indians unless such application would interfere with reservations, self-government, or impair a right granted or reserved by federal law."

In explaining these lines of decisions, the Supreme Court further stated that, "it must be remembered that the Courts in applying the Williams test, have dealt principally with situations involving non-Indians."[52] In these situations, both the tribe and state fairly claim an interest in asserting jurisdiction. The Williams test was designed to resolve this conflict by providing that the state could protect its interest in its non-Native citizens up to the point where tribal self-government would be affected.[53] In fulfillment of this policy, cases arising between tribal members fell within the exclusive interest of the tribal government.

The second major principle is a modification of the above rule required by the fact that Alaska is governed by the operation of Public P.L. 280.[54] Generally, this law confers upon the state criminal and civil jurisdiction to adjudicate matters between Natives within Indian country. It is important, however, to understand the parameters of PL 280 as recently defined by the courts. The courts have generally attempted to limit the effect of PL 280 because of the devastating impact the law has had on tribal governments."[52] In Brian v. Itasca County, the U.S. Supreme Court in commenting on PL 280 stated:

> "nothing in this legislative history remotely suggest that Congress meant the acts extension of civil jurisdiction to the states should result in the undermining or destruction of such tribal governments as did exist in a conversion of the affected tribes in the little more than "private volunteer organizations," a possible result if > tribal governments and reservation Indians were subordinated to full panoply of civil regulatory powers, including taxation of state and local governments. The act itself refutes such an inference: There is notably absent any conferral of state jurisdiction of the tribes themselves and Section 4 C, 28 U.S. C Section 1360(C) (28 U.S. CS Section 1360 (C)), providing for the "full force in effect" of any tribal ordinances or custums "heretofore or hereafter adopted by An Indian Tribe...if not inconsistent with any applicable civil laws of the state, contemplates the continuing vitality of tribal government."[56]

The court went on in a footnote to further explain this policy of promoting Native governments. In a comment of particular importance to Alaska, the court stated:

> "the suggestion is that since tribal governments are disabled under many state laws from incorporating as local units of government, general regulatory control might relegate tribal governments to a level below that of counties and municipalities, thus essentially destroying them, particularly if they might raise revenue only after the tax base had been filtered through many governmental layers of taxation. Present federal policy appears to be returning to a focus upon strenghthening tribal government...and the Court of Appeals of the Ninth Curcuit has impressed the view that courts are not obliged in ambiguous instances to strain to implement an assimilationist policy Congress has now rejected, particularly, where to do so will interfere with the present Congressional approach to what is after all an ongoing relationship."[57]

This general policy, favoring the strengthening of tribal governments has two effects.

First, PL 280 does not confer upon a state general civil regulatory control over Indian country.[58] Although the Supreme Court has failed to fully define what the scope of "regulatory" means, it is clear that taxation of personal property on trust land,[59] zoning authority,[60] and outdoor advertizing61 in Indian country are beyond the state's authority.

The second effect of Brian v. Itasca was that PL 280 only made applicable to Indian country those state laws which "had a general applicability throughout the state." In short, this general principle denies the authority of local governments to exercise authority over Indian country since their authority does not extend throughout the state.[62] This basic principle, if applied in Alaska, could have a crippling effect on rural Alaskan municipal governments. The result would be the creation of local governments chartered under state law whose authority only extended over non-Indians. The end result would be the creation of parallel local government units incapable of exercising jurisdiction over the respective persons subject to the other local government's personal jurisdiction.

2) Local Government Powers.

The basic rule regarding the powers of a tribal government is that such powers are not in general delegated powers granted by Congress, but rather are inherent powers of a limited sovereignty which has never been extinguished.[63] This has recently been compared with the concept of home rule under Alaska state law.[64]

In contrast, Alaskan municipalities are of two types. A home rule municipality, like an Indian tribe possesses all local government powers not reserved from it by state law.[65] A general law municipality possesses powers delegated to it by state law.[66] Basically, general municipalities exercise four types of powers.

A general law municipality possesses "general powers" related to the municipal corporate identity. These powers include the following powers: be sued; employ municipal officers and officials; levy taxes and special assessments; enforce ordinances; prescribe penalties for violations; acquire manage, control, use, and dispose of personal and real property; promote legislation for the municipality; expend funds for community purposes; and borrow money and issue evidence of undebtedness.[67] By statute, all municipalities possess the unilateral authority to exercise these powers.

Second, general law municipalities "regulatory powers," which relate to: public rights-of-way facilities to services, traffic and general transportation including buses, taxis, etc., animal control, sales of goods, foods, and alcoholic beverages, dangerous insect and rodent control, recreational devices, building codes, public nuisance abatement, garbage & solid waste collection, water and air pollution, licensing of day-care facilities, police powers, or other general health safety and well-being welfare functions.[68]

As a general rule, cities possess the unilateral authority to exercise the regulatory powers. Boroughs, however, are subject to a narrower grant of authority depending on whether the power is area-wide or non-area-wide (see Part II (i) above).

Third, Alaska Statutes outline a number of municipal facilities and services which general law municipalities may provide. These include services and facilities relating to streets and sidewalks, sewage treatment facilities, harbors, flood control, health and hospital services, cemeteries, police and jail services, cold storage, telephone, lights, power, heat, water, transportation, community centers, libraries, recreation facilities, airport facilities, garbage facilities, fire protection, parking, urban renewable, consumer protection, and historical sites, buildings and monuments.[69] Any city may exercise the powers necessary to provide these facilities, however, boroughs must assume the powers to provide these facilities and services in a like manner required for the exercise of regulatory powers. Third class boroughs are not specifically authorized to provide such facilities and services.

Fourth, general law municipalities are authorized to exercise what are commonly called area-wide powers, i.e., education, and planting, platting, and zoning authority. Generally, first and second class boroughs have the statutory authority to unilaterally provide exercise such powers on an area-wide basis.[70] All third class boroughs may provide educational services on an area-wide basis and may, upon voter approval, exercise planning and zoning authority. As a rule, cities do not exercise such powers except when they are located outside borough boundaries.[71]

An exhaustive comparison of these powers is certainly beyond the scope of this project, however, it is possible to select areas for special consideration.

i) Police Powers. While municipalities possess police powers,[72] tribes possess the power to regulate the conduct of members.[73] The federal government has withdrawn tribal jurisdiction over most felony crimes by enactment of the Major Crimes Act,[74] and Assimilative Crimes Act.[75] Both the tribe and the municipality are limited from prescribing a punishment for violation of an ordinance in excess of $500 and/or thirty (30) days in jail.[76]

Municipalities are prevented from operating "courts" since the Alaska Constitution provides for an integrated court system under state government.[77] This constitutional reservation of power to the state, however, does not prevent municipalities from operating "administrative tribunals" capable of enforcing ordinances.[78] Such tribunals, however, are subject to the same constitutional guarantees protecting the rights of the accused, where the ordinance provides for the regulation of acting which traditionally connotes criminality.[79]

In contrast to municipalities, Native governments possess the inherent power to create courts to enforce their ordinances.[80] While tribal courts are not generally subject to the individual guarantees of the Bill of Rights,[81] they are subject to the guarantees of the Indian Civil Rights Act of 1968,[82] which applies the constitutional protections of the Bill of Rights to Indian governments.

ii) Planning. Both tribes and municipalities possess planning authority. Alaska statutes specifically provide for municipal planning authority. Within organized boroughs, planning is an area-wide function of the borough.[83] Of course, the borough may also delegate such powers to a city within its borders.[84] Outside organized boroughs, first class cities are required, and second class cities may exercise planning powers.[85] In unorganized areas of the state, planning authority rests with the Department of Natural Resources.[86]

Tribal planning authority is a power retained by tribes in the absence of contrary federal law. This authority is already expressly recognized by the state. While the Court in State v. Aleut Corp.,[87] held that ANCSA regional corporations lacked governmental planning authority so as to require the State Division of Lands to give notice of pending land actions, the Court also held that traditionally organized Native villages constituted local authorized planning agencies.[88]

While both entities enjoy substantially similar planning authority, the entities implement this authority in substantially different ways. Muncipalities have authority to directly implement their plans through zoning, platting,[89] and operation and licensing. The municipality, however, is not able to direct state agencies to comply with local plans. For example, the prior A.S. 29.33.090(d) required certain state land management programs to comply with municipal plans. This was repealed.[90]

Municipalities also may implement tneir plans through its licensing power over vehicles, animals, day care facilities, etc.[91]

A tribe's most potent implementation tool is its recognized authority to license. For example, in U.S. v. Mazurie,[92] the Supreme Court upheld a tribe's right to license bars owned by non-Natives on fee simple land within Indian country. Secondly, a village may regulate the nature of member's ownership rights in property.[93] By defining members property rights, a tribe can restrict uses of property which are delitereious. Finally, there is some authority to believe that a Native village government may exercise zoning authority over Native land. In Santa Rosa Band of Indians v.Kings County,[94] the Court struck down local zoning ordinances holding that "the extension of local jurisdiction is inconsistent with tribal self-determination and autonomy."[95] This infers, of course, that the local government invaded a power to zone reserved to the tribe.

iii) Taxation. The right of a Native government to tax is a retained sovereign power.[96] The extent of this power is almost wholly uncertain, since few Native governments exercise th's power. The courst however, have upheld tribal taxes on business,[97] occupations,[98] or to accompany tribal permits,[99] regardless of whether the tax was levied against members or non-members.

The taxing powers of municipalities are more clearly defined. They may levy sales and use taxes,[100] and property taxes.[101] These taxing powers are subject to a substantial number of exemptions and limitations.[102]

Conclusion. While the municipalities and tribes do not have co-extensive powers, they have many similar areas of concern where their powers overlap. It should be remembered that the tribal organization is a governmental unit with broader areas of concern and responsibility than the municipality. For example, tribal powers include regulation of property rights, marital relations, and child custody.[103] Tribes provide employment, welfare, economic development, child protection, and various other services generally felt to be beyond the scope of local government. As local government in Alaska develops along the path of decentralization envisioned by the framers, it is likely that municipal governments will also address these subject areas. In any case, it is clear that village and municipal government are not the same thing. It is also evident that they are closer than commonly perceived.

PART III

SUGGESTIONS TO INCLUDE NATIVE VILLAGE GOVERNMENTS WITHIN THE ALASKAN LOCAL GOVERNMENT SYSTEM

The decision to allow inclusion of Native village government within the state local government is, of course, a policy issue. Several factors must be considered in making this decision. First is the question whether such action is consistent with the Alaska Constitution. Second, the actions of other states must be considered. Thirdly, the backdrop of federal law needs to be considered. Finally, the state interest in non-Native citizens needs to be addressed.

A. THE CONSTITUTION

Substantial concern exists as to whether the proposed action is consistent with the Alaska Constitution. The proposal raises two issues. First, the proposal must be analyzed to determine whether it is consistent with the constitutional scheme for local government. The local government committee of the Constitutional Convention articulated five basic principles with which the proposal may be compared, i.e., self-government, unified system, prevention of overlapping tax authorities, flexibility, and state interest. Additionally, the proposal raises a question whether it is consistent with the equal protection clause of the Alaska Constitution.

1. Self-government. Maximum local control over local government was a primary goal of the framers. This policy is specifically enunciated in Section 1 of Article 10 of the Constitution which provides that, "the purpose of this Article is to provide for maximum local self-government..." This concern is reflected in other provisions of Article 10. For example, Section 6 provides that the legislature shall provide for the performance of services that it deems necessary and advisable in the unorganized boroughs "allowing for maximum local participation and responsibility." (emphasis added) Section 9 provides that home rule charters of first-class municipalities shall be approved by popular election. This policy favoring local self-government in municipal matter is consistent with federal policy favoring self-determination of Indian tribes. Fundamental to self-government/self-determination, is the right of people to determine what form their government shall take and to establish rules and regulations regarding the management and operation of that government. For a variety of reasons, several Alaskan Native villages have failed to organize as second-class city under the Alaska state law. The prefer rather to organize themselves exclusively as Alaska Native villages. In many cases, such organization reflects a community decision to organize a local government which best reflects the cultural and social character of the respective community. Under this rationale, the state should encourage communities to organize themselves under any authorized governmental form which best represents the respective communities' social, cultural and economic pattern. The inclusion of Native governments within the system of Alaska state local government promotes this policy. This action would broaden the number of local options available to communities desiring to organize, thereby leaving greater control at the local level.

2. Integrated local government system. The framers of the Alaskan Constitution desired to create a single system of local government within Alaska. As noted by this study, however, two parallel systems of local government exist in Alaska, i.e., state chartered municipalities and tribal government. The quality and quantity of interaction between these two types of government varies from community to community. The quality and quantity of possible interaction ranges from substantial cooperative efforts to substantial opposition. Often times coordination between governments is merely a function of interlocking office holders. Where the Native council and the city council are substantially the same, the respective governmental efforts are highly coordinated. In contrast, where the councils are not interlocked there is little coordination and counterproductive efforts often result. State and federal programs often depend on the existence of local cooperation. Nonrecognition of Native governments is a impediment to this local cooperation.

Non-recognition problems also result where a community is exclusively organized as a Native village government. Such communities are not immuned from the same problems which plaque communities organized as municipalities. Where the municipality may draw on the resources of the state to help address such problems, the Native village encounters greater reluctance by the state to render equal assistance. The obvious solution to this problem is for the community to organize as a municipality. The community would in fact only trade problems--i.e., the community would trade a reluctance on part of the state to render assistance in exchange for the duplicity and confusion which results from parallel governments.

The inclusion of the Native government within the local government system, therefore, would further state policy favoring a unified local government system. It would promote cooperation where parallel governments exist and it would alleviate the necessity of creating parallel local governments where none exist now.

3. Prevention of overlapping taxing and authorities. As noted above, the framers of the Alaska Constitution specifically intended to eliminate overlapping tax authorities and promote physical integration within local government. For this reason, Article 10, Section 2, specifies that cities and boroughs are the only local governments authorized to tax under the Alaska Constitution. As noted above, however, this plan is somewhat frustrated by the existence of Native government which possess authority to levy taxes and dues on members and non-members. Additionally, the eligibility of Native villages to receive intergovernmental revenue transfers frustrates the state's objective to facilitate fiscal integration of local government. This lack of fiscal integration within the community leads to a number of problems including duplicate accounting systems, redundant and excessive administrative costs and, in some cases, program duplication. The framers had hoped to avoid such problems in adopting a policy favoring fiscal integration. The inclusion of Native governments within the local government system will help avoid these inefficient fiscal management systems.

4. Flexibility. Throughout the Constitutional floor debates, the drafters of Article 10 emphasized their desire to provide a "framework" for local government which would be flexible enough to meet community demands throughout a highly pluralistic state such as Alaska. Native governments represent a flexible accommodation to the need for pluralistic representation in local government. It, therefore, follows that the inclusion of such governments fulfill a constitutional policy favoring flexibility in Alaskan local government.

5. State interest. As noted above, the framers of the Alaska Constitution felt that strong local government was a mechanism to facilitate the decentralization of state government. It was fully intended that strong local government could perform traditional state functions much better than a centralized government structure. This plan, however, is dependent on the existence of local government. Since the state does not recognize Native governments, these local mechanisms are unavailable to the state. The inclusion of Native governments within the state system of local government makes available to the State existing government entities through which the State may operate. In this sense, the Native government can serve as a conduit for the provision of state services. In a limited sense, the state has already adopted this policy. For example, in the Coastal Zone Management Act, the Rural Development Act, the Municipal Trust Land (14c) Program, the Community Legal Assistance Program, the Community Miscellaneous Assistance Program and various state contracting programs utilize Native government to administer and otherwise implement these programs which require substantial community participation. The general inclusion of Native governments within the local government system of the State of Alaska will make available to the state a valuable local instrument.

6. Equal Protection. It is unfortunate that the Alaska Constitutional Convention failed to address the issue of Native local governments. In the heady atmosphere of the convention, the delegates seemed to assume that the state mechanism would be comprehensive. The record fails to indicate that the convention ever considered that viable Native governments would continue. In this vacuum it is difficult to analyze the constitutionality of state legislation which seeks inclusion of Native government in the local government system. Generally, however, there exists concerns whether such legislation would violate the equal protection clause of the Alaska Constitution.[2] Since this is a novel question in Alaska, we must look to sister states for guidance.

The Supreme Court of Minnesota was forced to deal with the issue in State v. Forge.[3] In that case, non-Indians sought to challenge the constitutionality of a compact between the state and the Chippewa Tribe over ricing and fishing. The state legislation vested certain rights in members of the Chippewa tribe that did not extend to state citizens in general. The court upheld the statutes in the face of a challenge based on the equal protection guarantees of the Minnesota Constitution.

In deciding that the state action did not violate the state constitutional guarantee of equal protection, the Court noted that the compact related to the reconciliation of claims between the state and the Indian tribes. As such, the classifications made by the state law rationally related to the competing claims of the state and the tribes.[4] It is important to note that the court's finding was based upon Indian treaty rights, which could not be used as a basis for Alaskan legislation. Nevertheless, the Court noted that:

> Even in the absence of treaty rights, the United States Supreme Court has frequently upheld legislation that singles out Indians for particular and special treatment.[5]

Subsequent to State v. Forge, the United States Supreme Court dealt with the issue directly in United States v. Antelope.[6] In that case, Antelope was tried for murder under the Major Crimes Act. The defendant argued correctly that if he were not an Indian, he would have been charged under the Assimulative Crimes Act for manslaughter. The court held that the statute did not create an impermissible racial classification since the constitution specifically authorizes particular and special treatment of Indians.[7]

There is one distinction, however, which may distinguish Alaska's and Minnesota's Constitution. The standards of the equal protection clause under the Minnesota Constitution are synonymous with the U.S. Constitution's equal protection clause.[8] In contrast, however, the standards of protection under Alaska's equal protection clause is not synonymous with that of the U.S. Constitution.[9] Absent an express ruling to the contrary, however, the Minnesota interpretation is probably an accurate indicator of the Alaskan position.

B. OTHER STATES

Other states have attempted to establish direct tribal-state relations in one of two basic ways - 1) incorporation, or 2) recognition and compact.

1) Incorporation. Incorporation is the formation of a unit of local government. As noted above, such incorporation may result in the formation of either a general or special purpose government. Theoretically, it is possible to incorporate Native governments under state law. In Bryan v. Itasca, the court stated that one reason it was reluctant to extend local government jurisdiction over Native communities was the fact that many states did not allow incorporation of Native government under state law.[10] This implies, of course, that it is possible for a state to allow such incorporation if it removes its self-imposed prohibitions.

As noted above, this has been attempted twice in Alaska's past. Several current second class cities were originally incorporated under the 1957 Village Incorporation Act. The villages lost their village status through the 1972 municipal code revision.[11] In general, the attributes of tribal self-government are no longer present, so that neither the people, the state, nor the federal government recognize these governments as tribal entities.

Direct state incorporation of general purpose Native governments is not common. There are, however, a few instances of such state action.

One example is New Mexico, which provides for the incorporation of Peubleo Indian communities.[12] The courts, however, have ruled that the pueblo's did not gain any powers, rights or duties under this statue, but rather their powers stem from their authority as Indian tribes.[13]

In contrast, Maine has recently enacted the Maine Indian Claims Settlement Act[14] which does not incorporate the tribal enities, but rather delegates to them "all the rights, privileges, powers and immunities" of a state municipality.[15] This includes the authority to enact ordinances, collect taxes and provide general services like any municipality. Conversely, the tribe is subject to all duties, obligations, liabilities and limitations of a municipality in the operation of municipal authority. A major exception is the internal organization of the tribes.

The tribes' jurisdiction extend over "Indian territory" as defined by the Act, which includes newly created reservations (akin to townsites) and surrounding lands conveyed in fee simple to the new Native corporations.[16] As enities possessing municipal authority, the tribal councils have jurisdiction to prescribe criminal and civil ordinances over non-Natives, but may only judicially enforce certain ordinances against members and handle small claims matters between members.[17] The state courts have jurisdiction to hear all other cases.[18] Law enforcement is handled through a cross-deputization of tribal and state police.[19]

The state has also sought to protect nonmember's rights by making municipal authority dependent upon nondiscriminatory delivery of services and guaranteeing enfranchisement in county, state and federal elections.[20]

In considering the Maine Settlement, two major points must be made. First, the Main Settlement was prompted by litigation over both the land claims and governmental claims of the Maine Indians. By comparison, the Alaska Settlement only addressed land claims, and left unresolved the governmental claims of the Alaskan Native people. This oversight is generally attributable to the common perception of P.L.-280 in the pre-ANSCA period. It must be remembered that ANCSA preceded Bryan v. Itasca,[21] which was decided in 1976. Prior to 1976, the general feeling was that P.L. 280 replaced tribal authority. The court in Bryan v. Itasca, however, clearly rejected this analysis, and reasserted that P.L.-280 merely resulted in concurrent state/tribal jurisdiction.

Secondly, except of the delegation of municipal powers, the Maine Settlement Act does not substantially change the respective authority of the state and tribes. Generally, the Act serves as a restatement of the law as currently understood. Thus, the Maine statutory scheme may serve as a useful model for incorporation of general purpose Native government under a state's authority.

In contrast to general purpose incorporation, some states have sought to declare Indian tribes as special purpose governments. For example, Florida, like Connecticut, has established a state reservations which in effect is an extension of a federal Seminole reservation.[22] In addition, however, the state has declared the whole Seminole Reservation (both federal and state portions) and the Miccosukee Reservation as "special improvement districts."[23] While the state recognizes that the tribes may regulate their members and lands as other tribes,[24] the state law provides that the tribal councils (organized as I.R.A.s) shall be the governing body of the districts, and are granted law enforcement, housing, and health powers, along with providing a variety of state services.[25]

It is interesting to note, that Florida is not the only state which has set up state Indian reservations. Connecticut has also established state reservations.[26] Management of the reservations is through an Indian Affairs Council and tribal councils, both of which have state regulatory powers over the reservation.[27] The State Administrative Procedure Act specifically applies to regulatory decisions of the councils. Texas also has authorized state Indian reservations.[28] Furthermore, Texas has extended state recognition of a federally nonrecognized tribe, and committed the state to seek federal recognition.[29] Even more unique than this, Texas has delegated bonding authority to tribal councils.[30] Under state law, lands held in trust by the state and the rents, royalties, revenue and income from such lands, may be pledged to back the bonds.[31]

While the above states have attempted various types of incorporation, many states have taken the intermediate step of creating State Commissions on Indian Affairs.[32] A fairly representative example is Minnesota which created an Indian Affairs Board.[33] While the tribes are not brought within state government directly, the board is a state commission comprised of various state commissioners, state legislators, and tribal officials. The commission does not attempt to exercise governmental authority over tribes. Rather it acts as a liaison between state and tribal service programs.

Simiarly, in California, state law authorizes the formation of school districts within Indian reservations.[34] Unlike Florida, either the tribal governing body or an independently selected body is the governing body of such a district.

2) Recognition and Compact. Recognition is a concept borrowed from international law. It is the process whereby one government acknowledges the authority of another government. It is more than taking note of a mere fact. It is the process whereby two governments seek to establish intergovernmental relations. There are two types of recognition - recognition of the community and recognition of the government. Recognition of the community is acknowledgement that the community is a legal enity capable of being organized under an independent and effective government.[35] Recognition of the government is acknowledgement that an individual or body of individuals act as the government for the community.[36]

The use of the concept of recognition is quite useful in the context of Native governments since the state is not attempting to create a racially defined institution under its own authority. Rather the State is acknowledging the existence of the Native communities and governments. Thus, the Native government gains no authority from the State, but merely enters into cooperative relations under its existing authority.

States typically implement recognition of Native governments in one of two ways. Either a state may extend general purpose recognition to Native governments, and provide for a systematic procedure for entering into compacts, or the state may adopt an incremental policy of limited recognition for specified purposes.

The Interlocal Cooperation legislation in Nevada,[37] Washington[38] and South Dakota[39] are good examples of legislation which reflect this first policy. Typically, these statutes allow state and local governments to enter into agreements providing for the joint exercise of powers, procedures for entering into such agreements, and financing of joint programs. In the above three states, the Interlocal Act simply defines entities eligible to enter into these agreements to include Indian tribes. Nevada has clarified this inclusion by enacting legislation which guarantees the rights of self-government of Indian tribes;[40] and provides that the administrative jurisdiction of state agencies is not extended over Indian country.[41]

In contrast, other states have adopted an incremental approach to recognition and compacts with Native government. A good example of this approach is Minnesota. A dispute between the State of Minnesota and the Chippewa Tribe arose over ricing and game regulation. The dispute led to a substantial amount of litigation which in turn led to an out-of-court settlement in the form of a ricing and game management compact between the state and the tribe.[42] The compact is a limited effort by the state and tribe to cooperate in these limited subject areas, and does not attempt to establish an ongoing general relationship.

A more common area of limited state-tribal cooperation is in the area of law enforcement. In New Mexico, for example, state law provides general cross-deputization of state and tribal police.[44] Under this agreement, pueblo and Navaho tribal police also carry an appointment under state law, and may, therefore, enforce state law within Native communities. State police also carry a tribal appointment.

C. FEDERAL LAWS

In considering inclusion of Native governments within the state local government system, the backdrop of federal law will have substantial effect. Of prime concern is the extent state law attempts to regulate the internal organization of Native government organization. Secondly, there is future legislation to be considered.

First, the Williams' doctrine prohibits states from regulating the internal self-government of Indian tribes.[45] Thus, the state could not mandate incorporation of Native governments under Title 29. Rather, the state could only authorize such incorporations upon consent of the tribe.

The Alaska constitution authorizes only three forms of local government - cities and boroughs which are capable of possessing all local government powers; and service areas/districts which are only capable of possessing enumerated powers.[46] Therefore, the legislature is limited to these modes of organization. The legislature may classify, define powers, and define manner of incorporation. Thus, in order to provide for the incorporation of a Native government under state law, the legislature must create a class of city, borough or service area, and define the powers of such government in a manner consistent with the Native government character.

If the legislature provided for state incorporation of Native governments as boroughs, however, the constitutional provisions vesting in the legislature the authority to regulate composition and apportionment of borough assemblies[47] would be inconsistent with the Williams' doctrine, which prevents state regulation of internal organization. This inconsistency is irreconcilable.

On the other hand, if the legislature provides for incorporation as a city, there exists no comparable constitutional claim to internal regulation. The state would merely create a class of city over which it disclaims authority to regulate composition.

The remaining option is the service area. The use of service areas in the unorganized areas of the state is relatively simple. Since such service areas operate by delegation of authority, the legislature may simply adopt the Florida or Maine plan and delegate to Native governments certain powers. In contrast, service areas within organized areas are subject to borough regulation. While the legislature may authorize boroughs to create a class of service area appropriate to the Native government, the character of borough regulation is equally important. Borough regulation which violates the Williams' test would invalidate the plan. To avoid this, the legislature may declare that the furtherance of Native self-determination is a matter of state interest, and under the local activity rule, the legislature could preempt borough regulation of Native service area composition.

Thus it is conceivable that the state could provide for incorporation of Native government as cities and service areas whether within or without organized boroughs.

The second consideration is the proposed Tribal-State Compact Act which is currently before the U.S. House of Representatives (see Appendix C). The implementation of the tribal-state paradigm would be substantially affected by the terms of the Act. In its current form, the bill specifically authorizes states and local governments to enter into agreements with Native governments. Such legislation is needed in non-P.L. 280 states because of recent court decisions invalidating such agreements.[48]

In addition to merely authorizing tribal-state agreements, Sec. 102 of the proposed Act provides federal assistance to the entity assuming new obligations under the terms of a tribal-state compact. If passed, the Act will provide a mechanism to assist the state in its constitutional plan of decentralization. By entering into eligible arrangements, the state may take advantage of available federal funding to facilitate implementation of state programs. Such agreements are more likely to operate in rural areas of the state where program costs are greatest. Use of such federal funding will decrease the burden on the state budget that such programs represent. While the state enjoys its present wealth, the need for federal assistance is less, yet, as projected state revenues decline in the future, the need for federal assistance will increase.

D. NON-NATIVES

The greatest concern over inclusion of Native village governments into the Alaska local government system is the preception that the Native governments are racially defined institutions. As such, it is feared that non-Natives will be relegated to a status of second class citizens in their own communities. This view is founded on two questionable assumptions: 1) non-Natives cannot participate in Native government, and 2) non-Natives have no rights under a Native government.

It is a general rule of law that a Native tribe has the exclusive authority to determine its membership.[49] This power specifically includes the power to provide for the adoption of non-Natives into the tribe.[50] This general rule is subject to one exception. The Secretary of the Interior is charged with the responsibility of determining tribal enrollment for the purposes of distributing tribal trust funds.[51]

In contrast, Native governments providing services under federal contracts may also render services to non-Native tribal members, since, for the purpose of contracting, "Indian" is defined in terms of tribal membership.[52] Benefits provided through state revenue sharing are required by state procedures to be equally available to non-Native residents of the respective communities. Thus, it is quite possible for non-Natives to fully participate in Native government.

Participation by non-Natives in Native government is quite common, despite efforts of the B.I.A. to discourage the practice. In one case, a Native village constitution goes so far as to guarantee non-member/ non-Native heads of households representation on behalf of their Native children before the Native council.[53] In practice, Native councils are reluctant to open village roles to non-Natives who may be transient or are reluctant to establish permanent ties with the community. This is understandable in that membership in a village generally carries with it cultural duties and obligations. This reluctance is analogous to the policy of the federal government to extend citizenship to aliens.

The second major concern relates to the individual rights of non-Natives under Native government. The prime guarantee of individual rights under a Native government is the Indian Civil Rights Act of 1968.[54] The Act mandates that a Native government provide many of the same individual protections provided under the U.S. Constitution. These include:

- free exercise of religion
- freedom of speech, press and assembly
- freedom of unreasonable search and seizure
- protection from double jeopardy and self-incrimination
- protection from taking of property without compensation
- right of due process and counsel
- protection from cruel and unusual punishment and excessive bail
- right to equal protection of the laws
- prohibition of bills of attainder or expost facto laws, and
- right to trial by jury

These rights extend to members and non-members alike.[55]

There is some concern that the Act only provides relief through the right of habeas corpus. This concern focuses around dicta contained in Santa Clara Pueblo v. Martinez.[56] In that case, the Court reviewed a tribal ordinance which conferred benefits upon tribal members based upon a distinction between patrilinial/matrilinial ancestors. In dicta, the Court stated that Congress only provided one clear remedy for plaintiffs under the Act - i.e., habeas corpus. A full reading of Martinez, however, reveals that the holding of the case rests upon a test which balances two current policies of federal Indian law - i.e., self-determination and protection of individual rights. As one commentator remarked, "In litigation under the Indian Civil Rights Act, federal court jurisdiction outside the scope of habeas corpus proceedings has been firmly established.[57]

CONCLUSIONS

It is clearly feasible to include Native village government into the state local government system. This may be done in one of two ways - either through compacts (see Appendix A) or direct incorporation (see Appendix B).

The first draft bill (see Appendix A) would be sufficient to authorize tribal state compacts. In addition to recognition, the bill defines the method whereby the State will engage in relations with the Native villages. The proposal provides that Native villages could participate in state programs to the same extent as second-class cities. It does not delegate to tribes general local government powers but does recognize the existing tribal powers retained by Native governments. The bill will clarify the status of Native village laws before state courts.

The bill also proposes cooperative agreements between the state and the Native governments to carry out state programs. This section anticipates the passage of the Tribal-State Compact Act which would allow federal funding of programs conducted under a State-Tribal agreement, and thus, reduce the burden on the state treasury for those areas affected by these agreements.

Finally, the bill conditions the relationship upon the Native government's compling with anti-discrimination provisions. This, of course, exempts federally funded Indian programs. The bill allows the Governor to enforce compliance through withdrawal of recognition.

The bill does not attempt to expand the jurisdiction of the State or the Native village. Section three (3) allows municipalities and village governments to enter into similar agreements.

The second draft bill (see Appendix B) would also provide for state-tribal compacts. In addition to this recognition, the bill allows direct incorporation of the Native government as a third class city. As a third class city, the government would have the attributes of a municipality and a Native village government. To avoid conflicts with the Williams doctrine, state law which regulates the internal operation of a city government are not made applicable to the third class city.

Other provisions of the bill are comparable to the first draft.

APPENDIX A

A BILL

For an Act entitled: "An Act Relating to Native Village Governments."

BE IT ENACTED BY THE LEGISLATURE OF THE STATE OF ALASKA:

* Section 1. FINDINGS AND PURPOSE.

(a) The legislature has determined that,

(1) there exist within the state several communities which have Native village governments whose members are citizens of the state; and

(2) the law and customs of Native village governments include notions of democracy, liberty, and the exercise of personal rights consistent with the state and federal constitutions.

(b) It is the purpose of this Act to,

(1) extend recognition to Native village governments and encourage them in the administration of local government;

96TH CONGRESS
2D SESSION

S. 1181

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

JUNE 3, 1980

Referred to the Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs

AN ACT

To authorize the States and the Indian tribes to enter into mutual agreements and compacts respecting jurisdiction and governmental operations in Indian country.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That this Act may be cited as the "Tribal-State Compact Act of 1980".

DECLARATION OF POLICY

SEC. 2. The Congress hereby declares that it is the policy of this Nation to continue to preserve and protect the tribes of the American Indian people. The policy of this Nation is premised on the status of tribal governments as a continuing part of the American political fabric. Accordingly, the United States has a responsibility to establish a legal framework which will enable the tribes and the States to achieve maximum harmony and facilitate their cooperative efforts in the orderly administration of their governments. Federal enabling authority for the establishment of viable intergovernmental agreements between the tribes and the States based on mutual consent must be established.

DEFINITIONS

SEC. 3. For purposes of this Act:

(a) "Indian tribe" means any Indian tribe, band, nation, or other organized group or community which is exercising powers of self-government and which is recognized by the Secretary of the Interior as eligible for services provided by the United States to Indians because of their status as Indians.

(b) "State" means any of the States of the United States, including cities, counties, municipalities, or other political subdivisions thereof.

(c) "Secretary" means the Secretary of the Interior unless otherwise designated in this Act.

(d) "Indian country" shall be defined in accordance with the provisions in section 1151 of title 18, United States Code.

TITLE I—AUTHORIZATION OF COMPACTS AND AGREEMENTS

SEC. 101. (a) Notwithstanding the Act of August 15, 1953 (67 Stat. 588), as amended, or any other Act transferring civil or criminal jurisdiction over Indians within Indian country from the United States to the various States, or establishing a procedure for such transfers, and notwithstanding the provisions of any enabling Act for the admission of a State into the Union, the consent of the United States is hereby given the States and the Indian tribes and the same are hereby authorized to enter into compacts and agreements between themselves on matters relating to (1) the enforcement or application of civil, criminal, and regulatory laws of both within their respective jurisdiction, and (2) allocation or determination of governmental responsibility of States and tribes over specified subject matters or specified geographical areas, or both, including agreements or compacts which provide for concurrent jurisdiction between the States and the tribes, and (3) agreements or compacts which provide for transfer of jurisdiction of individual cases from tribal courts to State courts or State courts to tribal courts in accordance with procedures established by the laws of the tribes and States.

(b) Such agreements and compacts shall be subject to revocation by either party upon six months written notice to the other unless a different period of time is agreed upon. No agreement may provide for a period for revocation in excess of five years unless first approved by a majority of the adult enrolled Indians within the affected area voting at a special election as prescribed in section 406 of the Act of April 11, 1968 (82 Stat. 80; 25 U.S.C. 1326), but such approval shall not curtail the right of the parties to revoke the agreement by mutual consent within a shorter period of time.

(c) Agreements or compacts entered into under the provision of this section must be filed with the Secretary within thirty days of consummation. In the event an agreement is not so filed, it shall be subject to immediate revocation by either party. The Secretary shall cause the jurisdictional provisions of any such agreement, compact, or revocation to be published in the Federal Register.

(d) Such agreements, compacts, or revocation thereof shall not affect any action or proceeding which arose prior to the effective date of such an agreement, compact, or revocation, and no such action or proceeding shall abate by reason of such agreement, compact, or revocation unless specifically agreed upon by all parties to any such action or proceedings and by the parties to the agreement or compact.

(e) Nothing in this Act shall be construed to: (1) enlarge or diminish the jurisdiction over civil or criminal matters which may be exercised by either State or tribal governments except as expressly provided in this Act; (2) authorize or empower State or tribal governments, either separately or pursuant to agreement or compact, to expand or diminish the jurisdiction presently exercised by the Government of the United States to make criminal, civil, or regulatory laws for or enforce those laws in the Indian country; (3) authorize or empower the government of a State or any of its political subdivisions or the government of an Indian tribe from entering into agreements or exercising jurisdiction except as authorized by their own organizational documents or enabling laws; (4) authorize agreements or compacts which provide for the alienation, financial encumbrance, or taxation of any real or personal property, including water rights, belonging to any Indian or any Indian tribe, band, or community that is held in trust by the United States or is subject to a restriction against alienation imposed by the United States; or (5) to enter into agreements or compacts for the transfer of unlimited, unspecified, or general civil and criminal jurisdiction of an Indian tribe, except as provided under section 406 of the Act of April 11, 1968 (82 Stat. 80; 25 U.S.C. 1326).

(f) Nothing in this Act shall be construed as impairing or restricting the right of the United States, States and Indian tribes to enter into negotiations with each other with respect to settlement of property rights arising from aboriginal ownership, treaties or other Federal laws or judicial decisions.

FUNDING AND IMPLEMENTATION—FEDERAL ASSISTANCE

SEC. 102. (a) In any agreement or compact between an Indian tribe and a State authorized under this Act, the United States, upon agreement of the parties and the Secretary, may provide financial assistance to such party for costs of personnel or administrative expenses in an amount up to 100 per centum of costs actually incurred as a consequence of such agreement or compact, including indirect costs of administration which are clearly attributable to the services performed under the agreement or compact. In determining the amount of Federal assistance, if any, to be provided the Secretary may consider among other things:

(1) Whether or not the party assuming an obligation under the agreement or compact is already obligated or entitled to perform the function which is the subject of the compact.

(2) Whether or not the Federal assistance will cause or enable the contracting party to perform the function at a standard above that which it is already obligated to perform.

(3) The financial capacity of the contracting parties to underwrite the expenses without Federal assistance.

(4) The extent to which the success or failure of the compact may depend upon Federal assistance.

(5) The extent to which the proposed compact or agreement will contribute to fostering of community relations between Indian and non-Indian communities.

(6) The extent to which the proposed compact or agreement will enhance protection of resources of both Indian and non-Indian communities.

(7) The comparative costs if the function which is the subject of the compact or agreement were to be performed by the United States.

(8) The extent to which Federal funding is already supplied through revenue sharing, grants in aid, or other Federal program moneys.

(b) Whenever a party to such agreement or compact seeks financial assistance from the United States, to offset their costs, such party shall prepare a detailed statement of the projected costs; a copy of such statement shall be supplied to the other party; and the original of such statement shall be supplied to the Secretary at the time said agreement or compact is tendered to him for his approval.

(c) In any agreement or compact in which one of the parties qualifies for Federal assistance, the other party shall be supplied with copies of all vouchers for payment at the time they are submitted and shall be fully informed of all payments made by the United States to the recipient party. In the event disputes arise between the parties, either party may request an audit. The books and records of the party receiving Federal assistance which are relevant to the agreement or compact shall be open to inspection by authorized representatives of the United States.

(d) In the funding of governmental operations authorized under this Act, the Secretary may enter into agreements or other cooperative arrangements with any and all other Federal departments, agencies, bureaus, or other executive branches for transfer of funds or contributions of funds appropriated for programs within the category of the functions to be performed by the parties under such agreements or compacts, and such departments, agencies, or bureaus are hereby authorized to use such funds in the implementation of this Act.

(e) All Federal departments, agencies, and other executive branches are authorized to provide technical assistance and material support and assign personnel to aid tribal and State authorities in the implementation of the agreements or compacts they may enter into under the terms of this Act.

(f) The Secretary is hereby authorized to promulgate such rules and regulations as may be necessary to carry out the purposes of this Act.

(g) There are authorized to be appropriated such sums as may be necessary during fiscal year 1981 not to exceed $10,000,000 and each subsequent fiscal year in order to carry out the agreements or compacts entered into pursuant to this title. Such funds shall be expended by the Secretary only after determination that there are no funds available from alternative sources as provided in subsection (d) of this section. The Secretary shall provide for such records as may be necessary for the accounting and justification of the funds expended under this authorization.

TITLE II—PLANNING AND MONITORING BOARDS

SEC. 201. (a) The Secretary is hereby authorized and directed to encourage the tribes and the States to establish councils, committees, boards, or task forces comprised of representatives of the States and individual tribes, or on a statewide or regional basis, to discuss and confer upon jurisdictional questions which exist between the parties, and to provide Federal representatives at such conferences.

(b) In furtherance of this objective, the Secretary is authorized and directed to provide adequate representation of tribal members at such conferences, and such further conferences among the tribes as may be necessary for their separate deliberations, and to participate in the payments of expenses in employment of reporters, transcription of statements, and preparation of reports as may be appropriate.

(c) Beginning October 1, 1980, funds appropriated pursuant to the Act of November 21, 1921 (42 Stat. 208), may be utilized for the purposes of this title.

TITLE III—JUDICIAL ENFORCEMENT

SEC. 301. Any party to an agreement or compact entered into in accordance with this Act may bring a civil action to secure equitable relief, including injunctive and declaratory relief, for the enforcement of any such agreement or compact, but no action to recover damages arising out of or in connection with such agreement or compact shall lie except as specifically provided for in such agreement or compact. The United States district courts shall have original jurisdiction of any civil action authorized by this section. States and Indian tribes, by entering into compacts or agreements in accordance with this Act, shall be deemed to have consented to suit with respect to the subject matter of such compacts or agreements unless the agreement or compact specifically states otherwise.

Passed the Senate May 30 (legislative day, January 3), 1980.

Attest: J. S. KIMMITT,

Secretary.

Mr. Palmer McCarter, Director

Dear Palmer:

Recently I had a discussion with Bert Griest concerning the requirement of AS 29.48.260 that a municipal corporation must dispose of real estate by public auction or sealed bids.

As you know, a number of villages, including several in the NANA region, are in the process of developing new housing. In several of these communities, the only lots suitable for construction of new homes are located outside the patented townsites on land that is selected and will eventually be conveyed to ANCSA corporations. Since new housing units are needed now, the Regional Housing Authorities understandably want to proceed with construction of homes in advance of transfer of ownership of the lots. By itself, this does not present any difficulty provided the permission of the ANCSA corporation and the interim land manager, (in most cases the BLM), is obtained. The problem arises later when BLM grants title and a reconveyance of the lots is requested by the owners of the new homes.

The Settlement Act amendments in the D-2 bill contain a provision whereby a Native corporation may transfer land to a shareholder for the purposes of constructing a family dwelling and not have that distribution of land be treated as a taxable distribution of assets. However, that method of granting title is not prefered by all ANCSA corporations. The ideal method, in our judgement, is to include these lands within the 1280 acres reconveyed to the municipal corporation. But a difficulty arises when the municipality seeks to reconvey title to the home owner. State law requires a public auction or sealed bid procedure since these lots were not occupied in 1971 and there is no requirement that they be reconveyed directly by the village corporation pursuant to Section 14 (c) of ANCSA.

It may be appropriate to bring this to the attention of the committee working on amendments to Title 29, provided my understanding of what the statute requires is correct. I expect you will know whether the committee is already aware of the problem. If an amendment is needed, it seems to me, a waiver provision similiar to AS 29.48.260 (d) would work. In this instance, waiver from the auction and bid requirements need only be available to a municipality reconveying land received from a ANCSA corporation if the reconveyance is to grant a village resident title to his homesite, and perhaps for other public purposes.

Best regards.

Sincerely,

Don Argetsinger

Re: Title 29 Provision

Dear Marilyn:

You mentioned the other day that I had sent you a list of some changes which I believe should be made in the revision of Title 29, but I do not remember getting the letter off nor the changes suggested.

Therefore, I am suggesting that an amendment be made to AS 29.33.050 (copy attached) as follows:

> "The area within the boundaries of an organized [EACH] borough constitutes a borough school district which shall [AND] establish[ES], maintain[S], and operate[S] a system of public schools on an area-wide basis with such authority and responsibility in the organized borough as provided in AS 14.14.060."

I believe the original intent of this statute was merely to set up boundaries of a school district which should be autonomous under the direction of an elected school board except for the fiscal and other responsibilities given to the borough under the provisions of AS 14.14.060 (copy attached) and subject to such directions as provided by the state in Title 14.

Unfortunately the wording that now exists implies that the borough itself has responsibility for the school district even though AS 14.14.060 gives only limited powers to the borough and places full operational authority in the elected school board. The result has been that every time a suit has been brought against the school district the borough has been joined in this suit at considerable expense of time even though the suit may be on teachers' salaries or something else for which the borough has no responsibility. For instance AS 14.09.010 (copy attached) provides for the department to provide for transportation of pupils and grants authority to school districts to enter into contracts for operation of transportation systems, to report to the department, and to receive reimbursement from the state for operation of the transportation system. Yet in Kenai Peninsula Borough v. State, 532 P.2d 1019, 1024, 1026 (1975) (copy attached), the Supreme Court denied any liability of the state for an accident occuring due to the transportation system and stated that "the actual control of the transportation services was undertaken by the borough which, on its own behalf, entered into the contract with Carver." In fact, the borough had no control whatsoever over this contract which was a contract of the school district as recognized by the Court when it stated, "The bus was not owned by the state, and Carver entered into the contract with the borough school district, not the state." [emphasis supplied] The suit, however, was brought against the borough and there was no effort to show non-responsibility - evidently because the insurance company who represented the borough also represented the school district and would have been responsible in any case.

The borough has also been put to the loss of time and expense in suits over teachers' salaries and other negotiations for which the borough has no authority and no responsibility. IN KPEA v. Kenai Peninsula Borough School District and Kenai Peninsula Borough, 572 P.2d 416 (1977), the trial court first ruled that the defendants should negotiate on certain items and later reversed itself to restrict the order to the school district, but refused to grant summary judgment to the borough and was upheld by the Supreme Court, which then refused appeal by the borough (since no judgment had been taken against it), denied borough's petition for certiorari, and then violated its own rules (Civil Rule 54(b)) by entertaining appeal by the school district on judgment against less than all the parties without an express determination that there was no just reason for delay and express direction for entry of judgment. In view of the two cases cited, it is obvious that any relief from responsibility without authority will have to come from the legislature.

Although the borough may be responsible for failures to act properly in areas in which it has authority over the school system which may or may not be shared by the school district, certainly in the area of operations the school district is autonomous from the borough and there should be no responsibility in those areas on behalf of the borough.

Sincerely,

Ben

chapter on an areawide basis, both inside and outside cities within their boundaries.

(b) No city, whether home rule or not, may exercise an areawide power conferred in, or assumed by means of §§ 250—290 of, this chapter once that power is being exercised by a borough. (§ 2 ch 118 SLA 1972)

Borough may not regulate sale and use of fireworks.—A borough's acquisition of the areawide health function does not give it authority to regulate the sale and use of fireworks. 1965 Op. Att'y Gen., No. 12.

Article 2. Assessment and Collection of Taxes.

Section
30. Assessment and collection

Sec. 29.33.030. Assessment and collection. Boroughs shall assess and collect property, sales, and use taxes levied within their boundaries, subject to ch. 53 of this title. Taxes levied by a city and collected by a borough are returned in full to the levying city. (§ (§ 2 ch 118 SLA 1972)

Article 3. Education.

Section
50. Education

Sec. 29.33.050. Education. Each borough constitutes a borough school district and establishes, maintains, and operates a system of public schools on an areawide basis as provided in AS 14.14.060. (§ 2 ch 118 SLA 1972)

Constitution requires pervasive state authority in field of education. — The constitutional mandate of Alaska Const., art. VII, § 1, for pervasive state authority in the field of education could not be more clear. First, the language is mandatory, not permissive. Second, Alaska Const., art. VII, § 1, not only requires that the legislature "establish" a school system, but also gives to that body the continuing obligation to "maintain" the system. Finally, the provision is unqualified; no other unit of government shares responsibility or authority. Macauley v. Hildebrand, Sup. Ct. Op. No. 741 (File No. 1550), 491 P.2d 120 (1971).

And such authority is not diminished by delegating certain educational functions to local boards.—That [illegible] ities does not diminish constitutionally mandated state control over education under Alaska Const., art. VII, § 1. Macauley v. Hildebrand, Sup. Ct. Op. No. 741 (File No. 1550), 491 P.2d 120 (1971).

A newly incorporated borough assumes administrative responsibility for a state-operated school within its boundaries immediately after incorporation. 1963 Op. Att'y Gen., No. 23.

The law provides that the organized borough shall provide, establish, maintain, and operate the schools within its boundaries. Ownership of state-operated schools must be conveyed by the state to the local school district as soon as possible after incorporation. The transfer of state administration of those schools [illegible] shortly after incorporation prior to the beginning of the next school year, and as nearly as [illegible] with continuity of not to exceed $50,000. The bond shall be conditioned on the officer's honest and faithful disbursement and accounting of all money that may come into his official custody. The bond shall be filed with the clerk of the school board. This section does not apply to an officer who has been bonded under AS 29.23.520. (§ 1 ch 98 SLA 1966; am § 21 ch 53 SLA 1973)

Effect of amendment. — The 1973 amendment substituted "29.23.520" for "07.25.060" at the end of the fourth sentence.

Legislative committee report. — For report on ch. 53, SLA 1973 (CSHB 382), see 1973 House Journal, pp. 793, 885.

Sec. 14.14.050. Annual audit. (a) The school board in each school district shall, before October 1, of each year, provide for an audit of all school accounts for the school year ending the preceding June 30. To make the audit the school board shall contract with a public accountant who has no personal interest, direct or indirect, in the fiscal affairs of the district. One certified copy of the audit shall be filed with the commissioner and one certified copy shall be posted in a public place at the principal administrative office of the district.

(b) The audit shall conform in form to requirements established by the commissioner. The commissioner shall withhold all payments of state funds after November 15 to a school district which fails to file a certified copy of the audit with the department.

(c) The commissioner may provide for a reaudit or an audit check in a school district if in his judgment it is necessary to substantiate the reported expenditures.

(d) The school board shall not make the audit if an audit which satisfies the requirements of this section and which is filed and posted as required by this section, is made according to AS 29.48.220. (§ 1 ch 98 SLA 1966; am § 22 ch 53 SLA 1973)

Effect of amendment. — The 1973 amendment substituted "29.48.220" for "07.29.150" at the end of subsection (d).

Legislative committee report. — For report on ch. 53, SLA 1973 (CSHB 382), see 1973 House Journal, pp. 793, 885.

Sec. 14.14.060. Relationship between borough school district and borough. (a) The borough assembly may by ordinance require that all school money be deposited in a centralized treasury with all other borough money. The borough administrator shall have the custody of, invest and manage all money in the centralized treasury. However, the borough assembly, with the consent of the borough school board, may by ordinance delegate to the borough school board the responsibility of a centralized treasury.

(b) When the borough school board by resolution consents, the borough assembly may by ordinance provide a centralized accounting system for school and all other borough operations. The system shall be operated in accordance with accepted principles of governmental accounting. However, the assembly, with the consent of the borough school board, may by ordinance delegate to the borough school board the responsibilities of the accounting system.

(c) The borough school board shall submit the school budget for the following school year to the borough assembly by April 1 for approval of the total amount. Within 30 days after receipt of the budget the assembly shall determine the total amount of money to be made available from local sources for school purposes and shall furnish the school board with a statement of the sum to be made available. If the assembly does not, within 30 days, furnish the school board with a statement of the sum to be made available, the amount requested in the budget is automatically approved. By May 31, the assembly shall appropriate the amount to be made available from local sources from money available for the purpose.

(d) The borough assembly shall determine the location of school buildings with due consideration to the recommendations of the borough school board.

(e) The borough school board is responsible for the design criteria of school buildings. To the maximum extent consistent with education needs, a design of a school building shall provide for multiple use of the building for community purposes. Subject to the approval of the assembly, the school board shall select the appropriate professional personnel to develop the designs. The school board shall submit preliminary and subsequent designs for a school building to the assembly for approval or disapproval; if the design is disapproved, a revised design shall be prepared and presented to the assembly.

(f) The borough school board shall provide custodial services and routine maintenance for school buildings and shall appoint, compensate, and otherwise control personnel for these purposes. The borough assembly through the borough administrator, shall provide for all major rehabilitation, all construction and major repair of school buildings. The recommendations of the school board shall be considered in carrying out the provisions of this section.

(g) State law relating to teacher salaries and tenure, to financial support, to supervision by the Department of Education and other general laws relating to schools, governs the exercise of the functions by the borough. The school board shall appoint, compensate, and otherwise control all school employees and administration officers in accordance with this title.

Section
10. Transportation of pupils
20. Transportation for nonpublic school students

Sec. 14.09.010. Transportation of pupils. (a) The department may provide for the transportation of pupils who reside a distance from established schools, and in order to accomplish that purpose may

(1) require school districts to enter into contracts with the department for the administration, supervision, operation or subcontracting of the operation of transportation systems for students to and from the schools within their service area;

(2) require all school districts, transportation contractors and other recipients of state transportation funds to submit to the department an annual report, which includes a financial statement and other operational data required by the department;

(3) permit school districts to (A) establish supplementary systems of student transportation for students ineligible to utilize transportation facilities paid for by the state, (B) charge fares or fees for the supplementary transportation systems, and (C) use local tax funds to pay, in whole or in part, the cost of the supplementary system.

(b) Each school district mentioned in (a)(1) of this section is entitled to receive reimbursement from the state for the operation of the transportation system on a unit cost basis determined by the department.

(c) The school board of a district, or the department for areas not within school districts, shall designate as hazardous those routes which cannot be safely traveled by children not served by school bus. The designation may recognize hazards that exist only part of the time and in these instances the designation shall be applicable only during the time the hazards are found to exist. The board or the department shall provide for the transportation of pupils on routes designated as hazardous. The additional cost of the transportation in a district shall be shared equally by the district and the department. Eligibility to receive school bus service on routes designated as hazardous shall not be subject to restrictions based on the minimum distance between established schools and the residences of pupils. struction in question ought not to be given in United States district courts within their respective jurisdictions is not, without more, authority for declaring that the giving of the instruction makes a resulting conviction invalid under the Fourteenth Amendment. Before a federal court may overturn a conviction resulting from a state trial in which this instruction was used, it must be established not merely that the instruction is undesirable, erroneous, or even "universally condemned," but that it violated some right which was guaranteed to the defendant by the Fourteenth Amendment.[2]

Thus, the United States Supreme Court implied that if it were exercising the same supervisory power which, as a state supreme court we are required to exercise over a trial court, it might have held the jury instruction to be reversible error.

The majority opinion on rehearing in Galauska's case condemns the questioned instruction, stating:

> Such an instruction is subject to numerous infirmities. It interferes with the province of the jury to determine credibility of witnesses. It seems to conflict with the presumption of innocence. The instruction serves to raise doubt in the juror's mind as to his role and adds a confusing factor to jury deliberations. (footnotes omitted)

Despite these shortcomings, the majority holds the instruction to be harmless error under the circumstances of Galauska's trial. In Anthony v. State,[3] we reiterated the test for harmless error as previously enunciated in Love v. State[4] stating:

> Only if we can fairly say that the error "did not appreciably affect the jury's verdict" can we conclude that infringement of the right to the instruction was harmless.

Galauska's conviction depended on whether or not the jury believed Roger Peter's version of the incident. As I have indicated in my dissent to the original opinion in this case, I believe that Peter was an accomplice and that Galauska was entitled to his requested instruction that "the testimony of an accomplice ought to be viewed with distrust".[5] In the absence of giving that instruction, I fail to see how it can be said to be harmless error to instruct the jury over defendant's objection that Peter was presumed to speak the truth. Moreover, if we deem the instruction to be erroneous as indicated by the majority, there is no prohibition to its continued use when it is held to be harmless error in a case such as this, for it is hard to envision circumstances where the instruction would be more damaging. I accordingly would hold that the giving of the instruction under the circumstances here involved constituted reversible error.

STATE of Alaska, Appellee.

No. 2092.

Supreme Court of Alaska.

March 12, 1975.

Borough and its insurer which had made payment in settlement of suit for injuries sustained by motorist in collision with school bus brought suit for judgment declaring that state was required to indemnify borough. The Superior Court, Third Judicial District, Eben H. Lewis, J., ren-

The Supreme Court, Boochever, J., held that although state supervised the transportation of pupils insofar as it related to the funding provided by state and also had regulations in effect pertaining to safety of the transportation system, borough in transporting people did not act as agent for the state in either a compelled or voluntary capacity.

OPINION

BOOCHEVER, Justice.

The seldom litigated question of when a political subdivision acts as an agent of the state so as to render the state liable for the acts of the subdivision is presented by this appeal.

On January 15, 1969, James Harman was injured and his wife was killed as the result of a collision with a school bus owned by Burton Carver and driven by Darrell Houston. Mr. Harman, individually and as administrator of the estate of his deceased wife, brought suit against the Kenai Peninsula Borough alleging that the bus driver was acting as agent of the borough at the time of the accident. The borough, in turn, tendered defense of the suit to the State of Alaska contending that in furnishing transportation for school pupils, the borough was acting as an agent of the state. The tender was refused. The borough then filed a complaint against the state seeking a declaratory judgment that the state must indemnify the borough for reasonable settlements, judgments, costs and attorney's fees resulting from the Harman suit.

The Harman case was settled for the sum of $[illegible] and the Home Insurance Company as insurer of the borough, contributed $[illegible] to that settlement. The [illegible] by the court, with the other issues being severed for subsequent disposition. The superior court rendered a judgment in favor of the state, and the borough has appealed.

Therefore, we are confronted with the single issue as to whether the trial court was correct in ruling that the borough was not an agent of the state in furnishing school transportation.[1]

The Alaska Constitution provides that "[t]he legislature shall by general law establish and maintain a system of public schools open to all children of the State."[2] The legislature has specified that "[e]ach borough constitutes a borough school district and establishes, maintains, and operates a system of public schools on an area-wide basis . . . ."[3] The borough admits that in the gene.. operation of the school system, it is exercising a delegated authority from the legislature, so that in the absence of facts not here involved, the state would not incur liability for personal injuries. With reference to the transportation function, however, it is the borough's contention that it was acting as a compelled agent of the state so as to entitle the borough to indemnity for any liability incurred.[4]

The borough bases this argument on AS 14.09.010, which provides in relevant part:

> (a) The [D]epartment [of Education] may provide for the transportation of pupils who reside a distance from established schools, and in order to accomplish that purpose may
> (1) require school districts to enter into contracts with the department for the administration, supervision, operation or subcontracting of the operation of transportation systems for students to and from the schools within their service area;
> (3) permit school districts to (A) establish supplementary systems of student transportation for students ineligible to utilize transportation facilities paid for by the state, (B) charge fares or fees for the supplementary transportation systems, and (C) use local tax funds to pay, in whole or in part, the cost of the supplementary system.

Relying on this statute, the borough rests its appeal on an attempt to draw a distinction between the delegation of the legislative function of furnishing school transportation and the creation of a relationship whereby the borough acts on behalf of the state as its agent in furnishing the service. The use of the words "may provide" is said to indicate that the transportation power is in the state, and the words "may require" are claimed to show that the state can compel the local school districts to act as state agents in exercising the pupil transportation function. However, admitting that the transportation power is in the state and that the state has compelled the school district to handle that function is not tantamount to agreeing that the district is acting as the state's agent in providing school transportation so as to impose liability on the state.

It is thus on the slippery distinction between a power delegated to a political subdivision and an agency relationship that the case turns. The borough points to the case of Pantess v. Saratoga Springs Authority[5] which discusses aspects of the distinction as follows:

> Where the State assumes to act directly in the carrying out of its governmen-

1 In light of our ruling here, the other issues pertaining to the right to indemnity no longer require trial.

2 Alaska Const. art. VII, § 1.

3 AS 29.23.040.

4 By so arguing, the borough relies on the statement (Second) of Agency § 224 (1957) which provides:

> One compelled by law or duress to render services to another has power to subject the other to liability as if there were a master and servant relation.

tal function, even though it create and use a corporation for that purpose, it assumes responsibility for the conduct of its agent. Thus the State may choose to create and maintain a state system of parks, and thereby subject itself to liability for the negligence of its officers and employees (Court of Claims Act, § 12-a; Maltby v. County of Westchester, 267 N.Y. 375, 379, 196 N.E. 295); or, with like liability, it may provide for the imprisonment of young delinquents, and commit their custody to an authorized institution for the purpose. Paige v. State of New York, 269 N.Y. 352, 199 N.E. 617. But when the State delegates the governmental power for the performance of a state function, the agency exercises its independent authority as delegated, as does a city, and its responsibility for its acts must be determined by the general law which has to do with that class of agent and corporate activity, apart from liability on the part of the State. That is the case when the State delegates its state function of education to a school board, its public health function to a local board of health, when it delegates broader governmental functions to a county, city or village. In such instances, there is no authority for making claim against the State, but the agency exercising the delegated authority must respond for its own actionable conduct.

In Pantess, the Saratoga Springs Authority was established as a public corporation to develop the "Saratoga Cure" from the spring's water. Such development was expressly declared to be a part of the over-all public health policy of the state. However, the court held that, even though the Authority was an agency exercising governmental powers, "the performance of its functions [was] not so closely allied or held in such intimate relation to the health activities carried on by the State itself . . ." as to make it an agent of the state and thereby impose liability on the state to one scalded in taking the cure.[6]

The Pantess case, however, deals only with the results flowing from a determination of an agency relationship or a delegated function, not the distinction between them. We find great difficulty with elucidation of the distinction between a function delegated to a political subdivision so as to insulate the state from liability and the exercising of a function by a political subdivision as a part of the state. The basis of action by any agent is the authority delegated by his principal,[7] so that a delegation is involved in both relationships. The distinction would appear to be one of degree of control. If a political subdivision acts with a substantial degree of independence under authority delegated by the state, liability may not be imposed on the state as a result of such activity. If, on the other hand, an executive department specifically makes a political subdivision its agent to act on its behalf and subject to its control, it may be subjected to liability based on acts of the political subdivision.

Our examination of the sparse authority on this subject indicates that authorized

6. 8 N.Y.S.2d at 106. Significantly, the court relied on an analogy to the state school system, stating:

> These arguments are true in one degree or another, or in one manner or another, as to the public school system of the State. The State determines the qualifications of teachers, and provides for their certification; it sets up standards for their employment; it prescribes courses of study; it provides for the inspection of the schools; it requires [illegible] and it provides for the [illegible] of the schools. [illegible] N.Y.S.2d at 106.

7. Restatement (Second) of Agency § 1 (1957) defines "agency" as:

> (1) Agency is the fiduciary relation which results from the manifestation of consent by one person to another that the other shall act on his behalf and subject to his control, and consent by the other so to act.
> This [illegible] consent by one person to another to act on [illegible] "Delegation" is defined in Restatement, Second, Agency, New Chapter Topics (1957) [illegible] of [illegible] to act on [illegible]

activities of such subdivisions as municipalities and school districts are almost universally considered to be independent actions not subjecting the state to liability,[8] whereas when a state functions through use of some other type of agency or a private corporation, liability is more likely to ensue.[9] Thus, in imposing liability on the state for injuries to a juvenile placed in a private correctional institution, the New York Court of Appeals pointed out:

> The quasi penal institution in which the claimant was confined was a governmental agency to which the state had committed in part its function to care for wayward minors. But the institution did not thereby acquire a status equivalent to that of the civil divisions of the state.[10]

[1] We have had no case cited to us where liability was imposed upon the state for actions of a political subdivision such as a municipality or a school district.[11] Political subdivisions of a state are creatures of the legislature which prescribes and curtails their authority. They may be subjected to detailed requirements in the exercise of their statutory functions. Yet such legislative regulation has not been held to make the subdivision an agent of the state so as to impose liability. Nevertheless, we can envision situations which might arise where it is clear that the subdivision is acting on behalf of the state as its agent and under its control to such an extent as to impose liability. Where political subdivisions are involved, however, we shall apply a much stricter test than when other forms of entities are utilized as to the type of control required to create liability on the part of the state.[12] To apply such a test, we shall now review the factual context which confronts us in this appeal.

Under the authority of AS 14.09.010,[13] the Alaska Department of Education entered into a contract with the Kenai Peninsula Borough School District (referred to hereinafter as the borough) whereby the borough was to furnish or contract for the transportation of pupils living 1½ miles or more from the school, and the state was to pay a specified amount for each day transportation was furnished. In addition, the state agreed to pay two (2) percent of that amount to the borough as an administrative charge. The borough was authorized to furnish transportation to students living closer to the school provided that it paid the costs for such transportation without the right to state reimbursement. Any contracts entered into by the borough for school transportation were required to be approved by the Commissioner of Education as a condition for payment by the state, and subcontracts had to provide that the contractors furnish a complete accounting to the state on forms provided by it of all funds received by the contractor for any service. The borough agreed to furnish the state with such information as route maps, bus time and mileage schedules, driver, vehicle and pupil data, etc. as requested. The borough was to administer and supervise the transportation in accordance with the rules and regulations of the Alaska Department of Education.

11. The borough cites Jaffke v. Westchester County, 267 N.Y. 375, 196 N.E. 258 (1935), but in that case, the question was whether the Westchester County Park Commission was acting as an agent of the state or the county in entering into road contracts. It was not a case of the county itself acting on behalf of the state.

12. We do not consider applicable here the "enterprise" theory espoused in Fruit v. Schreiner, 502 P.2d 138, 141 (Alaska 1972) whereby losses to third persons incidental to carrying on an enterprise were held to be a cost of operation and to be borne by the enterprise, with the burden distributed among those benefited by the enterprise. Such a theory could apply with equal force to the borough and the state. See also we did point out the "control" aspect of the "right to control" test utilized to determine whether an injured workman was an employee of the contractor or an employee of the principal in the context of Ostrem v. Alaska Workmen's Compensation Board, 511 P.2d 1061 (Alaska 1973).

In accordance with that contract, the borough entered into an agreement with Burton Carver to furnish transportation services for specified routes. The contract was executed on a form provided by the state, entitled Transportation Sub-Contract Form. The agreement was signed by Carver and by the President of the School Board indicating the approval of the board. At no place in the contract is there an indication that the borough was acting on behalf of the state as its agent, although there is provision for amendment by either the borough or the state Commissioner of Education "if in their judgment a reduction in required transportation services or lack of adequate transportation funds so requires". Liability insurance policies secured by the company were required to be filed with the state as a condition for payment of state monies. The transportation regulations of the Department of Education were made a part of the contract.

The principal, superintendent or teacher in charge of the school unit for which transportation service was provided was designated as the agent of the borough (not the state) for determining arrival or departure time of vehicles, general bus schedules and routing and giving general supervision to the conduct of the transportation operation. The borough had an employee designated as director of transportation who was to take care of the school district transportation and refer to the state Department of Education only matters requiring interpretation as to what was fundable. The state had nothing to do with the establishment of the bus routes and the times for student pickup. It merely reviewed the designated routes to assure that there was no duplicated mileage. The borough could provide for extended routes at its own expense. The school board would determine which of the proposals submitted for transportation services would be selected and would submit its recommendation to the state's Department for concurrence or rejection. Moreover, the borough had the option of furnishing the transportation by means of its own drivers and vehicles or entering into contracts for that purpose.

[2] We conclude that, while the state did supervise the transportation service insofar as it related to the funding provided by it and also had certain regulations in effect pertaining to the over-all safety of the transportation system,[14] the actual control of the transportation services was undertaken by the borough which, on its own behalf, entered into the contract with Carver.

The situation is closely akin to that existing on the federal-state level discussed in D. R. Smalley & Sons, Inc. v. United States.[15] The court in Smalley dealt with a suit by a contractor employed by the State of Ohio to work on highway construction projects as part of the Federal-Aid Highway System of interstate highways. For these projects, the United States would reimburse the State of Ohio to the extent of ninety (90) percent of the total cost of the project. The plaintiff's claim was based on the state's wrongful acts and omissions as a result of which the completion of the projects became considerably more expensive than originally anticipated. In seeking recovery from the United States, the plaintiff asserted that with regard to these projects, the State of Ohio was the agent of the United States.

14. [illegible]

> To support this claim, plaintiff points out that: the contracts were drafted pursuant to the regulations and requirements of defendant; the contracts were approved by defendant the work was inspected and approved by defendant as it progressed; changes in plans were approved by defendant; the final completion of the work was inspected and approved by the defendant; and defendant agreed by the provisions of the law to pay the state (for the benefit of plaintiff) ninety per cent of the cost of the contract.[16]

In language which applies with equal effect to the relationship between a state and its various political subdivisions, the court stated:

> The National Government makes many hundreds of grants each year to the various states, to municipalities, to schools and colleges and to other public organizations and agencies for many kinds of public works, including roads and highways. It requires the projects to be completed in accordance with certain standards before the proceeds of the grant will be paid. Otherwise the will of Congress would be thwarted and taxpayers' money would be wasted. These grants are in reality gifts or gratuities. It would be farfetched indeed to impose liability on the Government for the acts and omissions of the parties who contract to build the projects, simply because it requires the work to meet certain standards and upon approval thereof reimburses the public agency for a part of the costs.[17]

The court rejected the agency argument citing Eden Memorial Park Assoc. v. United States,[18] wherein the court stated:

> Moreover, analysis of the Federal-Aid Highways Act indicates that while close cooperation between the United States and the individual states was contemplated, the states or their agencies or officials were in no sense to become agents of the United States in projects authorized by that act.

The borough attempts to distinguish Smalley on the basis that the states may elect whether to construct highways under the Federal-Aid Highway Act whereas the borough was compelled to provide school transportation once the state Board of Education decided to require it. It contends that the involuntary nature of its undertaking of the function makes it a compelled agent of the state.

[3] We agree that one may become a compelled agent or servant of another. As noted previously, Section 224 of the Restatement (Second) of Agency (1957) states that "[o]ne compelled by law or duress to render services to another has power to subject the other to liability as if there were a master and servant relation". Similarly, one who volunteers services may be a servant of the one accepting services.[19] Whether one is a compelled or voluntary agent begs the question here involved, i. e., was the borough acting as an agent of the state in furnishing school transportation. It is not contended that the borough is an agent of the state in exercising the function of public education, yet it is compelled by law to maintain and operate a system of public schools on an areawide basis.[20]

We conclude that the borough was not acting as an agent of the state in furnishing transportation of pupils. Our conclusion is supported by the only case to rule squarely on the relationship between a school district furnishing such transportation and a state. In Gonzales v. State,[21] the plaintiff brought suit against a school bus driver, the school district, the county and the State of California and other defendants for injuries suffered when the plaintiff was struck by a school bus. In seeking recovery against the state, the plaintiff contended that the school district was the agent of the state in employing the driver so as to make the driver an employee of the state. A California statute imposed liability only on the public entity whose employee caused the injury.

Thus, as in the Kenai case, for the state to be liable, the school district had to be found to be the state's agent. The court held:

> . . . Grace Erickson, at the time mentioned in the complaint and for the previous 19 years, was employed by the District as a bus driver; she was not employed by the State and did not drive or operate a bus owned or controlled by the State, at any time; . . . .

There is no statute conferring authority upon school boards, expressly or by implication, to employ an individual on behalf of the state.
> The fact the authority of a school district to operate buses, and the incidental authority to employ bus drivers, is derived from the State through its Legislature, does not support the conclusion a bus driver employed by the District is an employee of the State.[22]

Similarly, there is no Alaska statute or contract authorizing the borough to employ or contract with a driver on behalf of the state. The bus was not owned by the state, and Carver entered into the contract with the borough school district, not the state.[23]

[4] The borough makes an additional argument to the effect that a change in the Department of Education regulations made subsequent to the Harman accident indicates that under the former regulations, the borough acted as agent. The regulations in effect in 1969 provided in part that the "Commissioner of Education shall direct the school boards to enter into contracts for transportation of pupils who reside a distance of 1½ miles or more from the school,"[24] whereas the current regulation specifies that the Commissioner "may in his discretion" establish contracts with districts to provide for transportation of students.[25] The borough contends that this indicates that the state has elected to no longer "require" the borough to provide for the transportation. But the fact that it is discretionary with the Commissioner whether to enter into the contract, does not make it less a requirement on the part of the borough when such discretion is exercised. Moreover, as we have discussed previously, the real issue is not whether the borough was "required" to furnish the transportation but whether it acted as agent for the state in either a compelled or voluntary capacity.

Nos. 2078, 2113.

Supreme Court of Alaska.

Feb. 3, 1975.

Consolidated actions were brought arising out of a collision between an automobile and an unmarked city police vehicle which was at the time responding to a radio report of a burglary in progress but which was not using its siren or flashing red light. The Superior Court, Fourth Judicial District, Fairbanks, Warren William Taylor, J., entered judgment in favor of police officer and city, and motorist and his wife appealed. The Supreme Court, Erwin, J., 530 P.2d 11, reversed and remanded. On petition for rehearing, the Supreme Court, Connor, J., held that although the jury did in fact give a negative response to an interrogatory concerning whether the police officer's actions were a proximate cause of the collision, the way in which the interrogatory was phrased may have led the jury to believe that, having found the officer not negligent, it had to find no causation, and the improperly excluded opinion testimony of investigating officer that the speed of the police vehicle was excessive and was a contributing cause of the accident may have affected the jury's answers on both the negligence and causation issues.

Petition denied.

Re: Proposed Legislative Changes
Our File 844-10

Dear Mr. Ryan:

Pursuant to your request, I have reviewed Title 29 of the Alaska Statutes and the supplements for the purpose of making recommendations regarding proposed changes to statutory sections that might be presented to the Alaska Municipal League during its meeting in Fairbanks during the week of November 17, 1980. In particularly, I have attempted to locate the statutory sections that have been the source of litigation or disputes in the past. I have also discussed this matter with Mel Stephens and sought his recommendations.

A. I would recommend that the first full paragraph of AS 29.28.070(b) be amended to read as follows:

> (b) Every petition for either the initiative or referendum in the government of a municipality shall be signed by a number of qualified voters residing within the territorial limits of the municipality, or, if the act sought to be initiated or referred pertains exclusively to the area outside cities or to a service area, by a number of qualified voters residing within the area outside cities or within the service area, as the case may be, equal to the following per cent of the total number of votes cast at the last regular [GENERAL] election in the city or borough or borough area concerned, or a special election called for the purpose of electing city or borough officers:

The word that has been underlined in the above section is the word to be added by the change in legislation. The capitalized word in brackets will be deleted.

The basis for this recommendation is the ruling by Judge Carlson in the recall case holding that the signature requirement was based on the number of votes cast in the municipality during the last general election. In effect, the signature requirements for initiative, referendum and recall may be substantially increased by this ruling.

B. I would recommend that the provisions relating to the review of a recall petition be amended to provide for a review of the petition by the clerk prior to the time the petition is circulated for signature. Moreover, I would recommend that some procedure be provided for an expeditious review of the clerk's decision by the Department of Community and Regional Affairs if the the clerk determines that the contents of the petition are insufficient.

Possible legislative changes to implement the suggestion would be as follows:

Add a new section 29.28.145 to read:

> (a) A petition seeking recall of one or more municipal officials shall contain the grounds for recall stated with particularity as to specific instances reflecting the alleged misconduct in office, incompetence, or failure to perform prescribed duties. The statement of grounds for recall shall be submitted to the municipal clerk for review as to content, prior to circulation for signature and the municipal clerk shall, within ten (10) days, certify whether the statement is acceptable or unacceptable. The clerk shall not determine whether the statement of grounds for recall is true or false, nor shall the clerk determine whether the specific instances set forth constitute misconduct in office, incompetence or failure to perform prescribed duties. If the petition is determined by the clerk to be unacceptable, the clerk shall specify in writing the reasons for determining the statement to be unacceptable.

(b) A statement of grounds for recall that is determined to be unacceptable by the clerk may be amended and resubmitted, or the clerk's decision may be submitted by the recall proponent to the Department of Community and Regional Affairs for review. Within ten (10) days after receipt, the Department of Community and Regional Affairs shall review the statement of grounds for recall and the clerk's written specification of the reasons why the statement is unacceptable and shall determine whether the grounds for recall are stated with particularity as to specific instances in a form acceptable for the petition.

Section 29.28.150 should be modified to provide as follows:

Petition. (a) The petition containing an accepted statement of grounds for recall shall be filed with the municipal clerk when it has been completed to contain

(1) the signatures and resident addresses of a number of voters as prescribed in Section 70(b) of this chapter for initiative and referendum; and

(2) the date each voter signed the petition.

(b) A petition for recall must be filed with the clerk within 60 days after the date of the earliest signature on the petition.

Modify Section 29.28.160 to provide:

Examination of Signatures. The municipal clerk shall review the signatures, addresses and dates contained in the petition and shall certify on the petition within ten (10) days of the filing date whether it is accepted or rejected. Until the petition is accepted, a petition signer may withdraw his signature upon written application to the clerk.

The proposed changes recommended above, would provide a procedure for reviewing the statement of grounds in a recall petition prior to the expenditure of the effort that normally goes into obtaining adequate signatures. Moreover, by establishing in the guidelines for the clerk's decision and providing for review by the Department of Community and Regional Affairs, the modifications would tend to minimize litigation that otherwise occurs.

C. I would recommend that AS 29.33.070(a) be amended to negate any implied power that boroughs now have to review and disapprove capital improvement programs of cities located within the boroughs. This modification might be accomplished by adding a second sentence to subparagraph (a) to read:

> The powers delegated to boroughs under this section shall not be construed to grant to a borough any authority or control over a capital improvement program or project of a city within the borough or a city's right to seek funding of such capital improvements without prior approval by the borough.

This recommendation is based upon the unacceptability of the A95 Review Procedures for Grant Applications. As I understand that review procedure, if a borough does not approve a capital improvement project proposed by a city within the borough, the grant application is rejected. Obviously, there may be other and perhaps better ways of eliminating borough control over city capital improvement projects.

D. I would recommend that Section 29.33.130 relating to judicial review of decisions by the Board of Adjustment be amended. At the present time, if a city has been delegated the authority to act as a Board of Adjustment, the city is invariably named as a party in the appeal from the Board of Adjustment decision. In some instances, the city is designated as the sole party and it is forced to incur the costs and attorney's fees necessary to respond to the appeal. So long as the city is a party to the appeal they are also subject to a judgment for costs and attorney's fees incurred by the party appealing from the Board of Adjustment action.

This problem might be resolved by an additional paragraph within Section 29.33.130 to read as follows:

> If a city acted as a Board of Adjustment pursuant to a power delegated by the borough, the city shall not be named as a party in the action seeking review unless the action of the Board of Adjustment reversed or overturned action by the borough planning commission. The city may, however, intervene as an interested party in an appeal from a Board of Adjustment decision which related to property within the limits of the city.

E. I would recommend that Section 29.33.120 be amended to specifically provide that appeals to the Board of Adjustment may be heard on the record. It would appear to be wise policy to require an applicant seeking relief from the Planning & Zoning Commission to present a full and complete record of the grounds upon which the relief is based. A record should therefore be adequate for review and decision when supplemented by briefs of the parties. A requirement that de novo hearings be held, which might possibly be implied from the provisions of AS 29.33.110(a), which authorizes the presiding officer to administer oath and compel attendance of witnesses, may encourage the presentation of a minimal case before the planning commission with the thought that the record can always be improved before the board of adjustment.

F. I would recommend that AS 29.33.150 be amended to require city participation in the platting process if the subdivision is located within the city. In particular, that section might be amended to provide that rules and regulations relating to installation of street paving, curbs, gutters, sidewalks, sewers, water lines, drainage and other public utility facilities and improvements, which are to be located within, operated by or connected to facilities in a first class city, shall be constructed in compliance with requirements that are not less stringent than those established by the city. Moreover, the statute should require approval of the plat by a city within which the platted property is located and to prohibit the filing of the plat until all improvements have been constructed or security, in a form acceptable to the city, has been provided to insure that the improvements will be completed as designed and approved.

The city has in the past, particularly with regard to the Russells Estates Subdivision, been placed in the position where the borough specifications for roads and utilities were far below those required by the city. The city had no authority to prohibit or disapprove the construction but may be required to maintain dedicated roads after they are completed and may assume the responsibility for the proper operation of the utilities. In Russells Estates, the streets were of insufficient width, were improperly constructed and the sewer facilities, which was designed to operate with individual grinders and pumps in the homes failed to operate properly. As a result, the city incurred substantial expenditures to completely reconstruct the project. The borough naturally assumed no responsibility for the deficiencies that existed. After the developer sold the lots he moved out of state and the city is finding it extremely difficult to obtain any reimbursement for its expenditures.

F. I would recommend that AS 29.53.025(c)(2) be repealed or, if not repealed, modified to eliminate the problem that currently exists with regard to the personal property tax exemption in Kodiak. The framework created by the statute is totally unworkable because the borough is given authority to determine the revenues lost as a result of the exemption. In the case of the personal property tax exemption the borough includes substantial properties on its assessment list for which taxes would not or could not be collected if the borough was levying and collecting the taxes.

It is extremely difficult to recommend modifications for this section because it appears that the appropriate solution would be a repeal of the exemption by the City of Kodiak. That has been attempted once, but a petition for a referendum of the repealing ordinance was filed and ultimately found to be valid by the Superior Court in Kodiak. At the election, a majority of the voters cast their ballots in favor of the referendum.

One possible modification would be to require borough consent for exemption and subject the exemption to an agreement between the municipalities regarding the determination of the revenues lost and the method of repayment. That type of approach would have to provide some method for revoking the consent on the reasonable notice.

Another possible modification would be to amend that section to read as follows:

> (2) A home rule or first class city shall have the same power to grant exemptions or exclude property from borough taxes that it has as to city taxes, provided that the exemptions or exclusions have been adopted as to city taxes and further provided that the city appropriate to the borough an amount calculated to equal the reasonably anticipated revenues, less costs of collection, lost by the borough because > of the exemptions or exclusions. The amount of lost revenues shall be determined annually by the assembly, subject to approval by the city council. If the council disapproves the amount determined by the assembly, the city shall appropriate the amount determined by the assembly to have been lost during that year, and the exemption shall thereafter be void with regard to borough taxes levied in future tax years.

The recommendations proposed above are based in substantial part upon the experience I have had in the City of Kodiak over the past six years. Recommendations as to specific language for changes in the statutes are merely rough proposals and would have to be carefully reviewed and refined if it was determined that those proposals could be supported by the Alaska Municipal League. Nevertheless, I believe the problem areas are adequately highlighted and possible solutions proposed.

If you have any questions after you have had an opportunity to review these recommendations, please advise me at your convenience.

Kindest regards.

Very truly yours,

Dear Ginny:

I am taking this opportunity to write to you concerning several matters which I would thank you to transmit to the committee studying the revision of Title 29.

First, at a recent city council meeting, there was a matter on the agenda concerning the vacation of a certain street in the city which had come to the council with a recommendation from the Borough Planning and Zoning Commission that the vacation of the street be permitted. Because of the time constraints in Section 29.33.220 requiring action by the council within 30 days from the decision of the Commission in which to veto that decision, the council was required to act upon the matter with what they considered to be insufficient information to properly consider the proposal. As a result of this incident, the council reviewed the provisions of Section 29.33.220 and directed me to bring this to your attention for action by the Title 29 revision committee. The last two sentences of this Section (29.33.220) state:

> The assembly or council shall have 30 days from the decision in which to veto the board's decision. If no veto is received by the board within the 30-day period, the consent of the city or borough shall be considered to have been given to the vacation.

It was the feeling of the council that in matters as important as a vacation of a city street, it should require affirmative action, rather than silence, to constitute consent. With that in mind, I respectfully submit the following language, or some variation of it, in place of the last two sentences of the section as it is now written as follows:

> The assembly or council shall have 30 days from the date that the board decision is received by the assembly or council within which to consider the proposed vacation. If the decision of the assembly or council is not received by the board within the 30-day period, then the council or assembly shall be deemed to have vetoed the proposed vacation.

In this way, it would be much easier for the petitioners seeking the vacation to submit a new petition than it would be to have the council or assembly reverse the effect of its failure to act as is now the situation.

Mayor Wood has requested me to seek the committee's consideration of revising the applicable provisions of Title 29 so as to allow a home rule city to enact and implement certain tax incentive measures for the promotion of residential and industrial development within the municipality. As we read the present provisions of Chapter 53 of Title 29, Sections 10 through 350, and 400, there are certain required exemptions as set forth in 29.53.020(a) through (i), none of which would cover the type of tax incentives which the mayor has in mind. Also, the optional exemptions and exclusions in Section 29.53.025, as amended through 1979, are not broad enough to allow the type of residential and industrial tax incentives which he feels are necessary to stimulate economic activity within the community. Subsections (f) and (g) afford some relief in the residential area of concern, but again are not sufficiently broad in scope to permit the provisions that we wish to consider for such legislation. In addition, it is our opinion that the required and optional exemptions and exclusions set forth in Chapter 53 of Title 29 are exclusive, and as such, would not permit a home rule municipality to enact tax incentives for industry which we feel would be desirable. Rather than set forth a statutory scheme to cover a myriad of available or innovative incentives, it occurs to me that it might be more desirable to specifically exempt home rule cities from the provisions of Section 29.53.025, and rather than have the exemption by silence, to insert language in any revision thereof indicating home rule cities to be exempt from these provisions and subject only to constitutional provisions in the taxation of real property situated within the corporate limits.

I would appreciate it very much if you would transmit these suggestions to the committee.

With kindest personal regards, I am

Sincerely yours,

Mac Gibson

distribution of previous year assessed values in the state."

As the rest of the section was not affected by the amendments, it is not set out.

Editor's note. — Section 1, ch. 13, SLA 1973, provides: "Notwithstanding the provisions of AS 29.53.020(f), for the 1973 assessment year the filing date for application for the exemption granted under AS 29.53.020(e) is extended to March 15, 1973."

Strict construction.

The courts must narrowly construe statutes granting tax exemptions. Greater Anchorage Area Borough v. Sisters of Charity of House of Providence, Sup. Ct. Op. No. 1299 (File No. 2445), 553 P.2d 467 (1976).

Burden of showing eligibility for exemption. — A taxpayer claiming a tax exemption has the burden of showing that the property is eligible for the exemption. Greater Anchorage Area Borough v. Sisters of Charity of House of Providence, Sup. Ct. Op. No. 1299 (File No. 2445), 553 P.2d 467 (1976).

Exclusive use for nonprofit religious, etc., purposes must be shown. In order to qualify for an exemption, the taxpayer must show not benefits, but exclusive use for nonprofit religious, charitable, cemetery, hospital or educational purposes. Greater Anchorage Area Borough v. Sisters of Charity of House of Providence, Sup. Ct. Op. No. 1299 (File No. 2445), 553 P.2d 467 (1976).

When the property in question is used even in part by nonexempt parties for their private business purposes, there can be no exemption. Greater Anchorage Area Borough v. Sisters of Charity of House of Providence, Sup. Ct. Op. No. 1299 (File No. 2445), 553 P.2d 467 (1976).

Actual use rather than owner's use should be analyzed in determining eligibility for an exemption. Greater Anchorage Area Borough v. Sisters of Charity of House of Providence, Sup. Ct. Op. No. 1299 (File No. 2445), 553 P.2d 467 (1976).

Office space rented to doctors engaged in private practice. — Office space in a building partially used exclusively for nonprofit hospital purposes, rented to doctors engaged in the private practice of medicine by a nonprofit charitable and religious corporation, was not exempt from taxation. Greater Anchorage Area Borough v. Sisters of Charity of House of Providence, Sup. Ct. Op. No. 1299 (File No. 2445), 553 P.2d 467 (1976).

While the use of office space by doctor-tenants in conducting their private practices does provide incidental benefits to the adjacent hospital, the office space is not used exclusively for hospital purposes. Greater Anchorage Area Borough v. Sisters of Charity of House of Providence, Sup. Ct. Op. No. 1299 (File No. 2445), 553 P.2d 467 (1976).

Sec. 29.53.025. Optional exemptions and exclusions. (a) Municipalities may exclude or exempt or partially exempt residential property from taxation by ordinance ratified by the voters at a regular or special election. An exclusion or exemption authorized by this section may not exceed $10,000 for any one residence.

(b) Municipalities may by ordinance

(1) classify boats and vessels for purposes of taxation and may establish the assessed valuation of boats and vessels on the basis of their registered or certificated net tonnage; a tax based upon a tonnage valuation shall not exceed $5 a year for a boat or vessel of less than five net tons and shall not exceed $15 a year for a boat or vessel of more than five net tons;

(2) classify and exempt from taxation

(A) the household furniture over $500 in value and the effects of the head of a family or a householder; and

(B) the property of an organization not organized for business or profit-making purposes and used exclusively for community purposes, provided that income derived from rental of such property does not exceed the actual cost to the owner of the use by the renter; and

(C) historic sites, buildings and monuments; and

(D) land of a nonprofit organization used for agricultural purposes if rights to subdivide the land are conveyed to the state and the conveyance includes a covenant restricting use of the land to agricultural purposes only; rights conveyed to the state under this subparagraph may be conveyed by the state only in accordance with AS 38.05.069(c).

(c) The provisions of (a) of this section notwithstanding,

(1) a home rule or first or second class borough may, by ordinance adopted without weighted voting, adjust its property tax structure in whole or in part to the property tax structure of a city within it, including but not limited to, excluding personal property from taxation, establishing exemptions, and extending the redemption period;

(2) a home rule or first class city shall have the same power to grant exemptions or exclude property from borough taxes that it has as to city taxes, provided that the exemptions or exclusions have been adopted as to city taxes and further provided that the city appropriate to the borough sufficient money to equal revenues lost by the borough because of the exemptions or exclusions, the amount to be determined annually by the assembly without weighted voting;

(3) a home rule or general law city within an organized borough may, by ordinance, adjust its property tax structure in whole or in part to the property tax structure of the borough, including but not limited to exempting or partially exempting property from taxation.

(d) Exemptions or exclusions from property tax which have been granted by home rule municipalities in addition to exemptions authorized or required by law, and which are in effect on September 10, 1972 and not later withdrawn, are not affected by this Act.

(e) Municipalities may by ordinance classify and exempt or partially exempt from taxation privately owned land, wet land and water areas for which a scenic, conservation, or public recreation use easement is granted to a governmental body. To be eligible for a tax exemption, or partial exemption, the easement must be in perpetuity. However, the easement is automatically terminated before an eminent domain taking of fee simple title or less than fee simple title to the property so that the property owner is compensated at a rate which does not reflect the easement grant.

(f) A municipality may by ordinance exempt from taxation all or any part of the increase in assessed value of improvements to real property if an increase in assessed value is directly attributable to alteration of the natural features of the land or new maintenance, repair or renovation of an existing structure and if the alteration, maintenance, repair or renovation, when completed, enhances the exterior appearance or aesthetic quality of the land or structure. No exemption may be allowed under this subsection for the construction of an improvement to a structure if the principal purpose of the improvement is to increase the amount of space for occupancy or nonresidential use within the structure or for the alteration of land as a consequence of construction activity. An exemption provided in this subsection may continue for up to four years from the date the improvement is completed or from the date of approval for the exemption by the local assessor, whichever is later.

(g) A municipality may by ordinance exempt from taxation all or any part of the increase in assessed value of improvements to a single family dwelling if the principal purpose of the improvement is to increase the amount of space for occupancy. An exemption provided in this subsection may continue for up to two years from the date the improvement is completed or from the date of approval of an application for the exemption by the local assessor, whichever is later. (§ 2 ch 118 SLA 1972; am § 2 ch 1 FSSLA 1973; am § 1 ch 33 SLA 1975; am § 1 ch 111 SLA 1976; am § 1 ch 262 SLA 1976; am § 1 ch 95 SLA 1977)

Effect of amendments. — The 1973 amendment, effective January 1, 1974, added the second sentence of subsection (a).

The 1975 amendment, effective July 1, 1976, added subsection (e).

The first 1976 amendment added paragraph (3) of subsection (c).

The second 1976 amendment, effective June 25, 1976, added paragraph (2)(D) of subsection (b).

The 1977 amendment added subsections (f) and (g).

Sec. 29.53.035. Farm or agricultural lands. (a) Farm use lands included in a farm unit and not dedicated or being used for nonfarm purposes shall be assessed on the basis of full and true value for farm use, and shall not be assessed as if subdivided or used for some other nonfarm purpose. The assessor shall maintain records valuing the farm use land for both full and true value and farm use value. Should the farm use land be sold, leased, or otherwise disposed of for uses incompatible with farm use or be converted to a use incompatible with farm use by the owner, the owner is liable to pay an amount equal to the additional tax at the current mill levy together with eight per cent interest for the preceding seven years, as though the land had not been assessed for farm use purposes. Payment by the owner shall be made to the state to the extent of its reimbursement for revenue loss under (e) of this section for the preceding seven years. The balance of the payment shall be made to the city or borough.

(b) An owner of farm use land must, to secure the assessment, make application to the assessor before May 15 of each year in which the assessment is desired. The application shall be made upon forms prescribed by the state assessor for the use of the local assessor and shall include information which may reasonably be required to determine the entitlement of the applicant. If the farm use land is leased for farm use purposes, the applicant shall furnish to the assessor a copy of the lease bearing the signatures of both lessee and lessor along with the completed application. The applicant shall furnish the assessor a copy of the lease covering the period for which the exemption is requested.

Dear Bob:

I have just learned that you needed some input, from small communities, concerning the problems they are experencing, from Villages to Municapalities, We the people of Tyonek, are governed by the I.R.A. Council, we offer Municipal type services.

1. Road Maintance, with a Grant from Bureau of Indian Affairs.

2. Water System, from Public Health Services.

3. Waste Disposal, from Kenai Borough Etc.

Before, we got these Grants, we payed for our own services, What the problem.? We have governed our own people, since we were Incorporated in 1936. under the Indian Reorganization Act. then ANSCA came along, and everyone forgot about the I.R.A., something has to be done, because we are still active, but no land base to govern. We aren't considered as a municipilty, but yet in fact we are, I would recommend very highly that we could be reconized as a municipal government. yet we have the problems of Non-Natives, Historically we have excluded Non-Natives, based on what is called Rule No. 4. We do not discriminate, but we like to live by this rule, simply because it prevents outsiders from coming on our land to sell illegal things, and also because of this rule, we do not have any Bar's, or any controlling interests, we must remain under the I.R.A. Council, in order for us to survive. To become a Public Municipality would mean death to our Culture, and eventually to our land. We would like to share the States money, but we would'nt sell our people out for money.

Sincerely,

Donald Standifer, President
of The Native Village of Tyonek.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

We, are not yet ready to form a Municipal Government for reason's that there isn't enought Industry to create enought job's, to pay Taxe's. Light Bill's, Water Sewer, and Waste.

We, have a lot of elderly people and, some disable that would'nt be able to live on what little Welfare they get.

The problem's we have today, are mostly that, we are tied to a Borough of which we don't have any ties. All our Business are in Anchorage, Alaska. our mail, Grocie's, Hospital, all comes thru Anchorage, the only ties we have with Kenai, is the School.

We, cannot get any Grant's out of Community and Regional Affair's without going thru, the Kenai Borough, which mekes it hard for us as there is, so much Red Tape, and being a Small Village, we are always left out of Grants. Before Grants are approved to the Borough, its Citys already have their Grants written, they already know that certain Grants are being approved, as we dont know until, the monies are all spent. We are not kept up to date on any Grants, that comes to the Borough.

In 1978, a Grant of $100,000.00 was approved by the State Legislature to upgrade our Airstrip, we had to turn this grant down, because it had so much strings attached, Such as opening the Airstrip to the Public. To the Public is ok, if they would pay Fee's Etc. but everyone feels that since, they are Tax Payers they should have excess to the Airstrip, since they pay their taxes. It cost us thousands of dollars to maintain the Airstrip, Up grading, Light, and Power, Snow Removal, of which we use our own Equipment and Fuel, Pay our own men to do the necessary work. We recently used some funds from R.D.A. Rural Development Administration, and charged landing fees, although we spent all our monies as stated above, we had to argue with Aircraft Owners over landing fees, and we were accused of trying to shoot people Etc. Its not fair to us to spend all this money to keep up the Airport and not be able to charge landing, and Parking fees, we pay taxes to.

We get grants from the Bureau of Indian Affairs, such as Jonson O'Malley, Self-Determination Act, Title 4 Bilingual, and Cultural. All these Grants, are below living costs, and at times are supplemented by our own funds, just to get someone to work. These Grants are a lot of Red Tape, and takes time to get, making it difficult to get people interested. C.E.D.A. Programs are so Red Taped that one almost have to be living in Poverty, before they qualify. If this is a Training Program it should be just that not a Welfare Program.

I, feel that we should be left alone, and let us decide our own destiny, and if we want to go into Municiple Type Government, we should be able to do it, at our own pace. There is this big problem of Non-Indians coming in, and taking over something that, we have worked for all of our lives, an those before us. We have kept our Traditional and Culture, which is so important to us, all these years and are not about to throw that out for someone else to be fit by. Kenai, Alaska was a nice and beautiful Village once, but they made a mistake by letting the Whites in, today all are staying outside of the Municipal City.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

This Village is the only one on the Cook Inlet with all Natives, and must be kept that way, if this Village loses then the State of Alaska loses one of its last Historic Area not only that, but the True Indian way of life Millions of Dollars was spent to keep it, that Millions of our own money, and times we must not let it go.

On the other hand, in time with control, we can form a Municipal type of Government, but only with local control, all the Grants and Monies would be worth nothing, if we lost control, and outsiders took over our Village.

Sincerely,

Emil McCord,
Village Administrator

Dear Ginny:

I am taking this opportunity to write to you concerning several matters which I would thank you to transmit to the committee studying the revision of Title 29.

First, at a recent city council meeting, there was a matter on the agenda concerning the vacation of a certain street in the city which had come to the council with a recommendation from the Borough Planning and Zoning Commission that the vacation of the street be permitted. Because of the time constraints in Section 29.33.220 requiring action by the council within 30 days from the decision of the Commission in which to veto that decision, the council was required to act upon the matter with what they considered to be insufficient information to properly consider the proposal. As a result of this incident, the council reviewed the provisions of Section 29.33.220 and directed me to bring this to your attention for action by the Title 29 revision committee. The last two sentences of this Section (29.33.220) state:

> The assembly or council shall have 30 days from the decision in which to veto the board's decision. If no veto is received by the board within the 30-day period, the consent of the city or borough shall be considered to have been given to the vacation.

It was the feeling of the council that in matters as important as a vacation of a city street, it should require affirmative action, rather than silence, to constitute consent. With that in mind, I respectfully submit the following language, or some variation of it, in place of the last two sentences of the section as it is now written as follows:

> The assembly or council shall have 30 days from the date that the board decision is received by the assembly or council within which to consider the proposed vacation. If the decision of the assembly or council is not received by the board within the 30-day period, then the council or assembly shall be deemed to have vetoed the proposed vacation.

In this way, it would be much easier for the petitioners seeking the vacation to submit a new petition than it would be to have the council or assembly reverse the effect of its failure to act as is now the situation.

Mayor Wood has requested me to seek the committee's consideration of revising the applicable provisions of Title 29 so as to allow a home rule city to enact and implement certain tax incentive measures for the promotion of residential and industrial development within the municipality. As we read the present provisions of Chapter 53 of Title 29, Sections 10 through 350, and 400, there are certain required exemptions as set forth in 29.53.020(a) through (i), none of which would cover the type of tax incentives which the mayor has in mind. Also, the optional exemptions and exclusions in Section 29.53.025, as amended through 1979, are not broad enough to allow the type of residential and industrial tax incentives which he feels are necessary to stimulate economic activity within the community. Subsections (f) and (g) afford some relief in the residential area of concern, but again are not sufficiently broad in scope to permit the provisions that we wish to consider for such legislation. In addition, it is our opinion that the required and optional exemptions and exclusions set forth in Chapter 53 of Title 29 are exclusive, and as such, would not permit a home rule municipality to enact tax incentives for industry which we feel would be desirable. Rather than set forth a statutory scheme to cover a myriad of available or innovative incentives, it occurs to me that it might be more desirable to specifically exempt home rule cities from the provisions of Section 29.53.025, and rather than have the exemption by silence, to insert language in any revision thereof indicating home rule cities to be exempt from these provisions and subject only to constitutional provisions in the taxation of real property situated within the corporate limits.

I would appreciate it very much if you would transmit these suggestions to the committee.

With kindest personal regards, I am

Sincerely yours,

Mac Gibson

As the rest of the section was not affected by the amendments, it is not set

Editor's note. — Section 1, ch. 13, SLA 1973, provides: "Notwithstanding the provisions of AS 29.53.020(f), for the 1973 assessment year the filing date for application for the exemption granted under AS 29.53.020(e) is extended to March 15, 1973."

Strict construction.

The courts must narrowly construe statutes granting tax exemptions. Greater Anchorage Area Borough v. Sisters of Charity of House of Providence, Sup. Ct. Op. No. 1299 (File No. 2445), 553 P.2d 467 (1976).

Burden of showing eligibility for exemption. — A taxpayer claiming a tax exemption has the burden of showing that the property is eligible for the exemption. Greater Anchorage Area Borough v. Sisters of Charity of House of Providence, Sup. Ct. Op. No. 1299 (File No. 2445), 553 P.2d 467 (1976).

Exclusive use for nonprofit religious, etc., purposes must be shown. In order to qualify for an exemption, the taxpayer must show not benefits, but exclusive use for nonprofit religious, charitable, cemetery, hospital or educational purposes. Greater Anchorage Area Borough v. Sisters of Charity of House of Providence, Sup. Ct. Op. No. 1299 (File No. 2445), 553 P.2d 467 (1976).

When the property in question is used even in part by nonexempt parties for their private business purposes, there can be no exemption. Greater Anchorage Area Borough v. Sisters of Charity of House of Providence, Sup. Ct. Op. No. 1299 (File No. 2445), 553 P.2d 467 (1976).

Actual use rather than owner's use should be analyzed in determining eligibility for an exemption. Greater Anchorage Area Borough v. Sisters of Charity of House of Providence, Sup. Ct. Op. No. 1299 (File No. 2445), 553 P.2d 467 (1976).

Office space rented to doctors engaged in private practice. — Office space in a building partially used exclusively for nonprofit hospital purposes, rented to doctors engaged in the private practice of medicine by a nonprofit charitable and religious corporation, was not exempt from taxation. Greater Anchorage Area Borough v. Sisters of Charity of House of Providence, Sup. Ct. Op. No. 1299 (File No. 2445), 553 P.2d 467 (1976).

While the use of office space by doctor-tenants in conducting their private practices does provide incidental benefits to the adjacent hospital, the office space is not used exclusively for hospital purposes. Greater Anchorage Area Borough v. Sisters of Charity of House of Providence, Sup. Ct. Op. No. 1299 (File No. 2445), 553 P.2d 467 (1976).

Sec. 29.53.025. Optional exemptions and exclusions. (a) Municipalities may exclude or exempt or partially exempt residential property from taxation by ordinance ratified by the voters at a regular or special election. An exclusion or exemption authorized by this section may not exceed $10,000 for any one residence.

(b) Municipalities may by ordinance

(1) classify boats and vessels for purposes of taxation and may establish the assessed valuation of boats and vessels on the basis of their registered or certificated net tonnage; a tax based upon a tonnage valuation shall not exceed $5 a year for a boat or vessel of less than five net tons and shall not exceed $15 a year for a boat or vessel of more than five net tons;

(2) classify and exempt from taxation

(A) the household furniture over $500 in value and the effects of the head of a family or a householder; and

(B) the property of an organization not organized for business or profit-making purposes and used exclusively for community purposes, provided that income derived from rental of such property does not exceed the actual cost to the owner of the use by the renter; and

(C) historic sites, buildings and monuments;

(D) land of a nonprofit organization used for agricultural purposes if rights to subdivide the land are conveyed to the state and the conveyance includes a covenant restricting use of the land to agricultural purposes only; rights conveyed to the state under this subparagraph may be conveyed by the state only in accordance with AS 38.05.069(c).

(c) The provisions of (a) of this section notwithstanding,

(1) a home rule or first or second class borough may, by ordinance adopted without weighted voting, adjust its property tax structure in whole or in part to the property tax structure of a city within it, including but not limited to, excluding personal property from taxation, establishing exemptions, and extending the redemption period;

(2) a home rule or first class city shall have the same power to grant exemptions or exclude property from borough taxes that it has as to city taxes, provided that the exemptions or exclusions have been adopted as to city taxes and further provided that the city appropriate to the borough sufficient money to equal revenues lost by the borough because of the exemptions or exclusions, the amount to be determined annually by the assembly without weighted voting;

(3) a home rule or general law city within an organized borough may, by ordinance, adjust its property tax structure in whole or in part to the property tax structure of the borough, including but not limited to exempting or partially exempting property from taxation.

(d) Exemptions or exclusions from property tax which have been granted by home rule municipalities in addition to exemptions authorized or required by law, and which are in effect on September 10, 1972 and not later withdrawn, are not affected by this Act.

(e) Municipalities may by ordinance classify and exempt or partially exempt from taxation privately owned land, wet land and water areas for which a scenic, conservation, or public recreation use easement is granted to a governmental body. To be eligible for a tax exemption, or partial exemption, the easement must be in perpetuity. However, the easement is automatically terminated before an eminent domain taking of fee simple title or less than fee simple title to the property so that the property owner is compensated at a rate which does not reflect the easement grant.

(f) A municipality may by ordinance exempt from taxation all or any part of the increase in assessed value of improvements to real property if an increase in assessed value is directly attributable to alteration of the natural features of the land or new maintenance, repair or renovation of an existing structure and if the alteration, maintenance, repair or renovation when completed, enhances the exterior appearance or aesthetic quality of the land or structure. No exemption may be allowed under this subsection for the construction of an improvement to a structure if the principal purpose of the improvement is to increase the amount of space for occupancy or nonresidential use within the structure or for the alteration of land as a consequence of construction activity. An exemption provided in this subsection may continue for up to four years from the date the improvement is completed or from the date of approval for the exemption by the local assessor, whichever is later.

(g) A municipality may by ordinance exempt from taxation all or any part of the increase in assessed value of improvements to a single family dwelling if the principal purpose of the improvement is to increase the amount of space for occupancy. An exemption provided in this subsection may continue for up to two years from the date the improvement is completed or from the date of approval of an application for the exemption by the local assessor, whichever is later. (§ 2 ch 118 SLA 1972; am § 2 ch 1 FSSLA 1973; am § 1 ch 33 SLA 1975; am § 1 ch 111 SLA 1976; am § 1 ch 262 SLA 1976; am § 1 ch 95 SLA 1977)

Effect of amendments. — The 1973 amendment, effective January 1, 1974, added the second sentence of subsection (a).

The 1975 amendment, effective July 1, 1976, added subsection (e).

The first 1976 amendment added paragraph (3) of subsection (e).

The second 1976 amendment, effective June 25, 1976, added paragraph (2)(D) of subsection (b).

The 1977 amendment added subsections (f) and (g).

Sec. 29.53.035. Farm or agricultural lands. (a) Farm use lands included in a farm unit and not dedicated or being used for nonfarm purposes shall be assessed on the basis of full and true value for farm use, and shall not be assessed as if subdivided or used for some other nonfarm purpose. The assessor shall maintain records valuing the farm use land for both full and true value and farm use value. Should the farm use land be sold, leased, or otherwise disposed of for uses incompatible with farm use or be converted to a use incompatible with farm use by the owner, the owner is liable to pay an amount equal to the additional tax at the current mill levy together with eight per cent interest for the preceding seven years, as though the land had not been assessed for farm use purposes. Payment by the owner shall be made to the state to the extent of its reimbursement for revenue loss under (e) of this section for the preceding seven years. The balance of the payment shall be made to the city or borough.

(b) An owner of farm use land must, to secure the assessment, make application to the assessor before May 15 of each year in which the assessment is desired. The application shall be made upon forms prescribed by the state assessor for the use of the local assessor and shall include information which may reasonably be required to determine the entitlement of the applicant. If the farm use land is leased for farm use purposes, the applicant shall furnish to the assessor a copy of the lease bearing the signatures of both lessee and lessor along with the completed application. The applicant shall furnish the assessor a copy of the lease covering the period for which the exemption is requested.

Dear Bob:

I have just learned that you needed some input, from small communities, concerning the problems they are experencing, from Villages to Municapalities, We the people of Tyonek, are governed by the I.R.A. Council, we offer Municipal type services.

1. Road Maintance, with a Grant from Bureau of Indian Affairs.

2. Water System, from Public Health Services.

3. Waste Disposal, from Kenai Borough Etc.

Before, we got these Grants, we payed for our own services, What the problem.? We have governed our own people, since we were Incorporated in 1936. under the Indian Reorganization Act. then ANSCA came along, and everyone forgot about the I.R.A., something has to be done, because we are still active, but no land base to govern. We aren't considered as a municipilty, but yet in fact we are, I would recommend very highly that we could be reconized as a municipal government. yet we have the problems of Non-Natives, Historically we have excluded Non-Natives, based on what is called Rule No. 4. We do not discriminate, but we like to live by this rule, simply because it prevents outsiders from coming on our land to sell illegal things, and also because of this rule, we do not have any Bar's, or any controlling interests, we must remain under the I.R.A. Council, in order for us to survive. To become a Public Municipality would mean death to our Culture, and eventually to our land. We would like to share the States money, but we would'nt sell our people out for money.

Sincerely,

Donald Standifer, President
of The Native Village of Tyonek.

cc: Enclosure

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

We, are not yet ready to form a Municipal Government for reason's that there isn't enought Industry to create enought job's, to pay Taxe's. Light Bill's, Water Sewer, and Waste.

We, have a lot of elderly people and, some disable that would'nt be able to live on what little Welfare they get.

The problem's we have today, are mostly that, we are tied to a Borough of which we don't have any ties. All our Business are in Anchorage, Alaska. our mail, Grocie's, Hospital, all comes thru Anchorage, the only ties we have with Kenai, is the School.

We, cannot get any Grant's out of Community and Regional Affair's without going thru, the Kenai Borough, which mekes it hard for us as there is, so much Red Tape, and being a Small Village, we are always left out of Grants. Before Grants are approved to the Borough, its Citys already have their Grants written, they already know that certain Grants are being approved, as we dont know until, the monies are all spent. We are not kept up to date on any Grants, that comes to the Borough.

In 1978, a Grant of $100,000.00 was approved by the State Legislature to upgrade our Airstrip, we had to turn this grant down, because it had so much strings attached, Such as opening the Airstrip to the Public. To the Public is ok, if they would pay Fee's Etc. but everyone feels that since, they are Tax Payers they should have excess to the Airstrip, since they pay their taxes. It cost us thousands of dollars to maintain the Airstrip, Up grading, Light, and Power, Snow Removal, of which we use our own Equipment and Fuel, Pay our own men to do the necessary work. We recently used some funds from R.D.A. Rural Development Administration, and charged landing fees, although we spent all our monies as stated above, we had to argue with Aircraft Owners over landing fees, and we were accused of trying to shoot people Etc. Its not fair to us to spend all this money to keep up the Airport and not be able to charge landing, and Parking fees, we pay taxes to.

We get grants from the Bureau of Indian Affairs, such as Jonson O'Malley, Self-Determination Act, Title 4 Bilingual, and Cultural. All these Grants, are below living costs, and at times are supplemented by our own funds, just to get someone to work. These Grants are a lot of Red Tape, and takes time to get, making it difficult to get people interested. C.E.D.A. Programs are so Red Taped that one almost have to be living in Poverty, before they qualify. If this is a Training Program it should be just that not a Welfare Program.

I, feel that we should be left alone, and let us decide our own destiny, and if we want to go into Municiple Type Government, we should be able to do it, at our own pace. There is this big problem of Non-Indians coming in, and taking over something that, we have worked for all of our lives, an those before us. We have kept our Traditional and Culture, which is so important to us, all these years and are not about to throw that out for someone else to benefit by. Kenai, Alaska was a nice and beautiful Village once, but they made a mistake by letting the Whites in, today all are staying outside of the Municipal City.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

This Village is the only one on the Cook Inlet with all Natives, and must be kept that way, if this Village loses then the State of Alaska loses one of its last Historic Area not only that, but the True Indian way of life Millions of Dollars was spent to keep it, that Millions of our own money, and times we must not let it go.

On the other hand, in time with control, we can form a Municipal type of Government, but only with local control, all the Grants and Monies would be worth nothing, if we lost control, and outsiders took over our Village.

Sincerely,

Emil McCord,
Village Administrator

Sec. 29.45.030. Required exemptions. (a) The following property is exempt from general taxation:

(1) municipal, state or federally owned property, except that private leaseholds, contracts or other interest in the property shall be taxable to the extent of those interests;
(2) household furniture of the head of a family or a household [not exceeding $500 in value];
(3) property used exclusively for nonprofit religious, charitable, cemetery, hospital or educational purposes;
(4) property of a nonbusiness organization composed entirely of persons with 90 days or more of active service in the armed forces of the United States whose conditions of service and separation were other than dishonorable, or the property of the auxiliary of such organization;
(5) money on deposit;
(6) the real property of certain residents of the state to the extent and subject to the conditions provided in (e) of this section.
(7) real property to the extent and subject to the conditions provided in (j) of this section.

(b) "Property used exclusively for religious purposes" includes the following property owned by a religious organization:

(1) the residence of a bishop, pastor, priest, rabbi, minister or religious order of a recognized religious organization.
(2) a structure, its furniture and its fixtures used solely for public worship, charitable purposes, religious administrative offices, religious education or a nonprofit hospital;
(3) lots supporting and adjacent to a structure or residence mentioned in (1) or (2) of this subsection which are necessary to convenient use;
(4) lots required by local ordinance for parking near a structure defined in (2) of this subsection.

(c) Property described in (a) or (b) of this section from which income is derived is exempt only if that income is solely from use of the property by nonprofit religious, charitable, hospital or educational groups [for classroom space]. If used by nonprofit educational groups, the property is exempt only if used exclusively for classroom space.

(e) The real property owned and occupied as a permanent place of abode by a resident 65 years of age or over is exempt from taxation of the assessed value of the real property. Only one exemption may be granted with respect to the same property and, if two or more persons are eligible for an exemption with respect to the same property, the parties shall decide between or among themselves which shall receive the benefit of the exemption. No real property may be exempted under this subsection which the assessor determines, after notice and hearing to the parties concerned, has been conveyed to the applicant primarily for the purpose of obtaining the exemption. The determination of the assessor is appealable under AS 44.62.560-44.62.570.

(f) No exemption may be granted under (e) of this section except upon written application for the exemption on a form prescribed by the state assessor for use by local assessors. The claimant must file the application no later than January 15 of the assessment year for which the exemption is sought, but during the same year the governing body of the municipality for good cause shown may waive the claimant's failure to make timely application for the exemption for that year and authorize the assessor to accept the application as if timely filed. The claimant must file a separate application for each assessment year in which the exemption is sought. If an application is filed within the required time and is approved by the assessor, he shall allow an exemption in accordance with the provisions of this section. If a claimant whose failure to file by January 15 of the assessment year has been waived as provided in this subsection and the application for exemption is approved, the amount of tax which the claimant may have already paid for the assessment year with respect to the property exempted shall be refunded to him. The assessor may at any time require proof in the form he considers necessary of the right and amount of an exemption claimed under this section.

(g) The state shall reimburse a borough or city, as appropriate, for the real property tax revenues lost to it by the operation of (e) of this section. However, reimbursement will be made to a borough or city for revenue lost to it only to the extent that the loss exceeds an exemption which was granted by the borough or city, or which upon proper application by an individual would have been granted by the borough or city, under sec. 25(a) of this chapter.

(h) Except as provided in (g) of this section, nothing in (e)-(i) of this section affects similar exemptions from property taxes granted by municipalities on September 10, 1972 or prevents municipalities from granting similar exemptions by ordinance as provided in sec. 25 of this chapter.

(i) In (e)-(i) of this section the term "real property" includes but is not limited to mobile homes, whether classified as real or personal property for municipal tax purposes.

(j) Two percent of the assessed value of a structure is exempt from taxation if the structure contains a fire protection system approved under AS 19.70.081, in operating condition, and incorporated as a fixture or part of the structure. The exemption granted by this subsection is limited to

(1) an amount equal to two percent of the value of the structure based on the assessment for 1981, if the fire protection system is a fixture of the structure on January 1, 1981; or

(2) an amount equal to two percent of the value of the structure based on the assessment as of January 1 of the year immediately following the installation of the fire protection system if the fire protection system becomes a fixture of the structure after January 1, 1981.

Formerly: AS 29.53.020

Comments: Based on Alaska Association of Assessing Officers (AAAO) recommendation:

(1) Para. (a)(2): deletes $500 limit on exemption of household furniture;

(2) Para. (c): clarifies that "exclusively for classroom space" limitations on rental income under (c) only applies to rental use by an "educational group" and does not preclude the exemption when the income is derived from use by nonprofit religious, charitable, or hospital groups.

(3) Para. (f): clarifies filing of a claim for exemption is a requirement for only the senior citizen exemption under 'e), and not for the other exemptions addressed in the section.

Sec. 29.45.040. (Sec. 29.73.060.) PROPERTY TAX EQUIVALENCY PAYMENTS. (a) A resident of the state 65 years of age or older who rents a permanent place of abode is eligible for tax equivalency payments from the state through the Department of Community and Regional Affairs.

(b) For purposes of determining payments to eligible persons, the department shall calculate a property tax equivalent percentage for each home rule or general law municipality which levies a general property tax at the rate of one percent per mil. The property tax equivalent percentage applied to the annual rent charged to the applicant equals the property tax equivalency payment payable under this section.

(c) To obtain tax equivalency payments the eligible resident must apply to the department for payment for the preceding year by January 15 of each year on forms and in the manner prescribed by the department. Each applicant shall submit with the application rental receipts or, if rental receipts are not available, other evidence satisfactory to the department for determination of the fact of payment of rent and the amount paid.

(d) If two or more persons occupy a residence as tenants, not all of whom are eligible for tax equivalency payments under this section, the assessor shall determine equitable partial payments to be made to the eligible tenants. However, tax equivalency payments to an eligible applicant may not be reduced because the spouse is less than 65 years of age. If all occupants in a residence are eligible for tax equivalency payments under this section, the occupants shall decide between and among themselves which shall receive payment.

Sec. 29.45.050. Optional exemptions and exclusions.

(a) Municipalities may exclude or exempt or partially exempt residential property from taxation by ordinance ratified by the voters at a regular or special election. An exclusion or exemption authorized by this section may not exceed $10,000 for any one residence.

(b) Municipalities may by ordinance

(1) classify boats and vessels for purposes of taxation and may establish the assessed valuation of boats and vessels on the basis of their registered or certificated net tonnage; a tax based upon a tonnage valuation shall not exceed $5 a year for a boat or vessel of less than five net tons and shall not exceed $15 a year for a boat or vessel of more than five net tons;

(2) classify and exempt from taxation

(A) All or any portion of the household goods and furnishings in actual use by the owner thereof in equipping and outfitting his or her residence or place of abode and not for sale or commercial use, and all personal effects held by any person for his or her exclusive use and benefit and not for sale or commercial use. "Personal effects" shall be construed to mean and include such tangible property as usually and ordinarily attends the person such as wearing apparel, jewelry, toilet articles, and the like [the household furniture over $500 in value and the effects of the head of a family or a householder]; and

(B) the property of an organization not organized for business or profit-making purposes and used exclusively for community purposes, provided that income derived from rental of such property does not exceed the actual cost to the owner of the use by the renter; and

Comments: modifies and expands existing (a)(2)(A) relating to optional exemption of household furniture and effects. Based upon recommendation of AAAO since assessors currently do not include household furnishings and personal effects of family members.

Sec. 29.45.060. Mining claims. The assessed value of an unimproved unpatented mining claim which is not producing, and a nonproducing patented mining claim upon which the improvements originally required for patent have become useless and valueless through depreciation, removal or otherwise, is exempt [fixed at $200 for each 20 acres or fraction of 20 acres]. If the surface ground of a claim has a separate and independent value for nonmining uses, the real and personal property is assessed at its full and true value.

Comments: Deletes $200 valuation figure. AAAO recommends deletion since administrative costs exceed taxes to be realized in carrying property at $200 figure on roll.

Sec. 29.45.070. (Sec. 29.53.035.) FARM OR AGRICULTURAL LANDS. (a) Farm use lands included in a farm unit and not dedicated or being used for nonfarm purposes shall be assessed on the basis of full and true value for farm use, and shall not be assessed as if subdivided or used for some other nonfarm purpose. The assessor shall maintain records valuing the farm use land for both full and true value and farm use value. Should the farm use land be sold, leased, or otherwise disposed of for uses incompatible with farm use or be converted to a use incompatible with farm use by the owner, the owner is liable to pay an amount equal to the additional tax at the current mill levy together with eight percent interest for the preceding seven years, as though the land had not been assessed for farm use purposes. Payment by the owner shall be made to the state to the extent of its reimbursement for revenue loss under (e) of this section for the preceeding seven years. The balance of the payment shall be made to the city or borough.

(b) An owner of farm use land must, to secure the assessment, make application to the assessor before May 15 of each year in which the assessment is desired. The application shall be made upon forms prescribed by the state assessor for the use of the local assessor and shall include information which may reasonably be required to determine the entitlement of the applicant. If the farm use land is leased for farm use purposes, the applicant shall furnish to the assessor a copy of the lease bearing the signatures of both lessee and lessor along with the completed application. The applicant shall furnish the assessor a copy of the lease covering the period for which the exemption is requested.

(c) In this section "farm use" means the use of land for raising and harvesting crops or for the feeding, breeding and management of livestock or for dairying or another agricultural use for profit or any combination thereof. To be farm use land, the owner or the lessee must be actively engaged in farming the land, and derive at least 10 per cent of h yearly gross income from the farm use land. The provisions of this sectio do not apply to land respecting which the owner has granted, and has outstanding, a lease or option to buy the surface rights. A property owne wishing to file for farm use classification having no history of farm-related income may submit a declaration of intent at the time of filing the application with the assessor setting out the intended use of the land and the anticipated percentage of income. An applicant using this procedure shall file with the assessor before February 1 of the following year a notarized statement of the percentage of gross income attributable to the farm use land. Failure to make the filing required in this subsection forfeits the exemption.

(d) In the event of a crop failure by an act of God the previous year, the owner or lessee may submit an affidavit affirming that 10 percent of his gross income for the past three years was from farming.

(e) Subject to legislative appropriations for the purpose, the state shall reimburse a borough or city, as appropriate, for the real property tax revenues lost to it by the operation of this section.

Sec. 29.45.080. (Sec. 29.53.040.) MOBILE HOMES. Mobile homes, trailers, house trailers, trailer coaches and similar property used or intended to be used for residential, office or commercial purposes and attached to the land or connected to water, gas, electric or sewage facilities are classed as real property for tax purposes except where expressly classified as personal property by ordinance. This section does not apply to house trailers and mobile homes which are unoccupied and held for sale by persons engaged in the business of selling mobile homes.

Sec. 29.45.090. (Sec. 29.53.045.) TAX ON OIL AND GAS PRODUCTION AND PIPELINE PROPERTY. (a) A municipality may levy and collect taxes on taxable property taxable under AS 43.56 only by using one of the methods set out in (b) or (c) of this section.

(b) A municipality may levy and collect a tax on the full and true value of taxable property taxable under AS 43.56 as valued by the Department of Revenue at a rate not to exceed that which produces an amount of revenue from the total municipal property tax equivalent to $1,500 a year for each person residing within its boundaries.

(c) A municipality may levy and collect a tax on the full and true value of that portion of taxable property taxable under AS 43.56 as assessed by the Department of Revenue which value, when combined with the value of property otherwise taxable by the municipality, does not exceed the product of 225 percent of the average per capita assessed full and true value of property in the state multiplied by the number of residents of the taxing municipality. For purposes of this subsection the average per capita assessed full and true value of property in the state shall be calculated without regard to the assessed value of taxable property under AS 43.58.

(d) By February 1 of each assessment year a taxing municipality must inform the Department of Revenue which method of taxation the municipality will use.

(e) For purposes of this section, population shall be determined by the commissioner of community and regional affairs based on the latest statistics of the United States Bureau of the Census or on other reliable population data, and shall advise each municipality of its population as so determined by January 15 of each year.

Sec. 29.45.100. Tax limitations.

(a) No municipality may levy and tax for any purpose in excess of three percent of the assessed valuation of property within the municipality in any one year.

(b) No municipality, or combination of municipalities occupying the same geographical area, in whole or in part, may levy taxes (1) which will result in tax revenues from all sources exceeding $1,500 [$1,000] a year for each person residing within their boundaires or (2) upon values which, when combined with the value of property otherwise taxable by the municipality, exceed the product of 225 per cent of the average per capita assessed full and true value of property in the state multiplied by the number of residents of the taxing municipality. If two or more municipalities occupying the same geographical area, in whole or in part, attempt to levy a tax (1) the combined levy of which would result in tax revenues from all sources exceeding $1,500 [$1,000] a year for each person residing within their boundaries or (2) upon value which, when combined with the value of property otherwise taxable by the municipality, exceed the product of 225 per cent of the average per capita assessed full and true value of property in the state multiplied by the number of residents of the taxing municipality, the commissioner of community and regional affairs shall apportion the lawful levy and equitably divide these revenues on the basis of need, services performed and other considerations in the public interest. For the purpose of this subsection, population shall be determined by the commissioner or community and regional affairs based on the latest statistics of the United States Bureau of the Census or on other reliable population data. For purposes of this subsection the average per capita assessed full and true value of property in the state shall be calculated without regard to the assessed value of taxable property under AS 43.58.

Comments: Technical change requested by AAAO to conform with provisions of AS 29.53.045 (SLA 80)

Sec. 29.45.110. (Sec. 29.53.055.) NO LIMITATIONS ON TAXES TO PAY BONDS. The limitations provided for in Sec. 45 or 50 of this chapter do not apply to taxes levied or pledged to pay or secure the payment of the principal and interest on bonds. Taxes to pay or secure the payment of principal and interest on bonds may be levied without limitation as to rate or amount, regardless of whether the bonds are in default or in danger of default.

Sec. 29.45.120. Full and true value.

(a) The assessor shall value [assess] property at its full and true value as of January 1 of the assessment year, except as provided in this section and sections 60 [30], 70 [35] and 240 [160] of this chapter. The full and true value is the estimated price which the property would bring in an open market and under the then prevailing market conditions in a sale between a willing seller and a willing buyer both conversant with the property and with prevailing general price levels.

(b) Assessment of business inventories may be based on the average monthly method of assessment rather than the value existing on January 1. The method used to assess business inventories shall be prescribed by the borough assembly.

(c) In case of cessation of business during the tax year, the assembly may provide for reassessment of business inventories using the average monthly method of assessment for the tax year rather than the value existing on January 1 of the tax year, and for reduction and refund of taxes. In enacting an ordinance authorized by this section, the assembly may prescribe procedures, restrictions, and conditions of assessing or reassessing business inventories and of remitting or refunding taxes.

Sec. 29.53.130. (Sec. 29.53.070.) RETURNS. (a) The assembly may require every person having ownership or control of or an interest in property to submit a return in the form prescribed by the assessor, based on property values existing on January 1, except as otherwise provided in this chapter.

(b) The assessor may, by written notice, require a person to provide additional information within 30 days.

Sec. 29.45.140. (Sec. 29.53.080.) INDEPENDENT INVESTIGATION. (a) The assessor is not bound to accept a return as correct. He may make an independent investigation of property returned or of taxable property upon which no return has been filed. In either case, the assessor may make his own valuation of the taxable property, which is prima facie evidence.

(b) For investigation, the assessor or his agent may enter any premise during reasonable hours and may examine property on the premises. He may examine all property records involved. A person shall, upon request furnish to the assessor or his agent every facility and assistance for the purposes of the investigation. If refused entry, the assessor may seek a court order to compel entry.

(c) An assessor may examine a person on oath. Upon request, the person shall present himself for examination by the assessor.

Sec. 29.45.150. (Sec. 29.53.090.) STATEMENT. A person who fails to file a statement required by ordinance or who knowingly makes a false affidavit to a statement required by a tax ordinance relative to the amount, location, kind or value of property subject to taxation with intent to evade the taxation, is guilty of a misdemeanor. Upon conviction, he is punishable by a fine of not more than $500, or by imprisonment for not more than 30 days, or by both, together with costs of prosecution.

Sec. 29.45.160. (Sec. 29.53.095.) REEVALUATION. A systematic reevaluation of taxable real and personal property undertaken by the assessor, whether of specific areas in which real property is located or of specific classes of real or personal property to be assessed, shall be made only in accordance with a resolution or other act of the assembly directing a systematic reevaluation of all taxable property within the borough over the shortest period of time practicable, as determined by the assembly and fixed in the resolution or other act of the assembly.

Sec. 29.45.170. (Sec. 29.53.100.) ASSESSMENT ROLL. (a) The assessor shall prepare an annual assessment roll. The roll contains

(1) a description of all taxable property;

(2) the assessed value of all taxable property;

(3) the names and addresses of persons with property subject to assessment and taxation.

(b) The assessor may list real property by any description that may be made certain. Real property is assessed to the owner of record as shown in the records of the district recorder, who shall at least monthly provide the assessor a copy of each recorded change of ownership showing the name and mailing address of the owner and the name and mailing address of the party recording the change of ownership. Other persons having an interest in the property may be listed on the assessment records with the owner. The person in whose name property is listed as owner is conclusively presumed to be the legal owner of record. If the property owner is unknown, the property may be assessed to "unknown owner." No assessment is invalidated by a mistake, omission or error in the name of the owner, if the property is correctly described.

Sec. 29.45.180. Assessment notice.

(a) The assessor shall give every person named in the assessment roll a notice of assessment, showing the assessed value of his property. On each notice is printed a brief summary of the dates when taxes are payable, delinquent and subject to penalty and interest. [and the dates when the board of equalization will sit.]

(b) Sufficient assessment notice is given if mailed by first class mail 30 days before the equalization hearings. If the address is not known to the assessor, the notice may be addressed to the person at the post office nearest the property. Notice is effective on the date of mailing.

Formerly: AS 29.53.110

Deletes requirement that assessor include in the assessment notice the date the board of equalization will meet since many times assessors at that time do not know the dates at the time the notices are mailed. Based on the recommendation of AAAO.

Sec. 29.45.190. (Sec. 29.53.120.) CORRECTIONS. (a) A person receiving an assessment notice shall advise the assessor of errors or ommissions in the assessment of his property. The assessor may correct errors or ommissions in the roll before the board of equalization hearing.

(b) If errors found in the preparation of the assessment roll are adjusted, the assessor shall mail a corrected notice allowing 30 days for appeal to the board.

Sec. 29.45.200. (Sec. 29.53.130.) APPEAL. (a) A person whose name appears on the assessment roll or his agent or assigns may appeal to the board of equalization for relief from an alleged error in valuation not adjusted by the assessor to the taxpayer's satisfaction.

(c) The assessor shall notify appellants by mail of the time and place of their hearing.

(d) The assessor shall prepare for use by the board a summary of assessment data relating to each assessment which is appealed.

(e) A city may appeal an assessment to the board of equalization in the same manner as a taxpayer. Within five days after receipt of the appeal, the assessor shall notify the person whose property assessment is being appealed by the city.

Sec. 29.45.210. Board of Equalization. The assembly sits as a board of equalization for the purpose of hearing any appeal from determinations of the borough assessor, however, may delegate this authority to one or more boards appointed by it for that purpose. An appointed board may be composed of not less than three (3) persons, who may be members of the assembly, private individuals, or a combination thereof. [The board of equalization shall consist of at least that number of members of the assembly over and above the number required for a quorum to transact business.] The board is governed in its proceedings by such procedures consistent with general rules of administrative law and the laws governing equalization proceedings as may be adopted by ordinance, including but not limited to quorum and voting requirements. The assembly shall by ordinance establish the qualifications for membership and adopt rules of conduct of the board.

Formerly: AS 29.53.135

Comments: Change would clarify authority to establish boards of equalization composed of other than assembly members and by ordinance to establish qualifications. Deletion required to allow appointment of boards of three members or more which number may be less than number required for quorum of assembly.

Sec. 29.45.220. Hearing.

(a) If an appellant fails to appear, the board of equalization may proceed with the hearing in his absence.

(b) The appellant bears the burden of proof.

(c) The only grounds for adjustment is proof of unequal, excessive or improper valuation based on facts which are stated in a valid written appeal timely filed and [or] proved at the hearing.

(d) The board shall certify its actions to the assessor within seven days.

(e) The assessor shall enter the changes and certify the final assessment roll by June 1 except as to supplementary assessments.

(f) [an] The appellant and the assessor may appeal the board's action to the superior court as provided by rules of court applicable to appeals from the decisions of administrative agencies. Appeals are heard on and limited to the record established at the hearing before the board of equalization. [for, and is entitled to, trial de novo of the board's action. Either party to the appeal may demand a jury trial].

Formerly: AS 29.53.140

Comments: (1) Para. (c): Based on recommendation of AAAO, substitutes and for or to assure must set forth factual grounds in written appeal and prove at hearing;

(2) para. (e): Based on recommendation of AAAO, clarifies that there may be further proceedings after June 1 in event there are supplementary assessments per former section 29.53.150;

(3) para. (f): deletes provisions regarding trial de novo and jury trial and limits scope of review to substantial evidence rule and clarifies confusion created by Wineqardner v. Greater Anchorage Area Borough (534 P.2d 541)

Sec. 29.45.230. Supplementary assessment rolls. The assessor shall include property omitted from the assessment roll on a supplementary roll, using the procedures set out in this chapter for the original roll. Any supplementary roll must be finalized and certified on or before September 1 of the assessment year.

Formerly: AS 29.53.150

Comments: Recommended by AAAO. State assessor requires for his purposes all proceedings to be completed not later than September 1, including any supplemental assessments.

Sec. 29.45.240. (Sec. 29.53.160.) TAX ADJUSTMENTS ON PROPERTY AFFECTED BY A NATURAL DISASTER. (a) The assembly may provide for reassessment and reduction of taxes for property destroyed, damaged, or otherwise reduced in value as a result of a natural disaster.

(b) A reassessment may be made by the assessor only upon the receipt of a sworn statement of the taxpayer that his losses exceed $1,000. A reduction of taxes may be made only on losses in excess of $1,000 for the remainder of the year following the disaster. Upon reassessment, the borough shall recompute this tax and refund taxes which have already been paid.

(c) The borough shall make notice of assessment or reassessment and shall hold an equalization hearing as provided in this chapter, except that a notice of appeal is filed with the board of equalization within 10 days after notice of assessment is given to the person appealing. Otherwise, the right of appeal ceases unless the board finds that the taxpayer is unable to comply.

(d) In enacting an ordinance or resolution authorized by this section, the assembly may, consistent with this section, prescribe procedures, restrictions and conditions of assessing or reassessing proper and of remitting, refunding or forgiving taxes.

(e) In this section "disaster" means a major disaster declared by the President of the United States under the provisions of the Federal Disaster Act of 1950, Title 42, United States Code, sec. 1855-1855g, or other federal law.

Sec. 29.45.250. (Sec. 29.53.170.) TAX LEVY AND RATE. (a) The power granted to the assembly to assess, levy and collect a general property tax shall be exercised by means of general ordinances, but the rate of levy, the date of equalization and the date when taxes become delinquent shall be fixed by resolution.

(b) The assembly shall annually determine the rate of levy before June 15. By July 1 the tax collector shall mail tax statements setting out the levy, dates when taxes are payable and delinquent, and penalties and interest.

Sec. 29.45.260. (Sec. 29.53.180.) RATES OF PENALTY AND INTEREST. (a) If the taxpayer is required to pay the entire tax on the due date set by the assembly, a penalty not to exceed 10 percent may be added to all delinquent taxes, and interest at the rate of eight percent a year shall accrue upon all unpaid taxes, not including penalty, from the due date until paid in full. If the taxpayer is given the right to pay the tax in two installments and the first half is not paid when due, the entire tax becomes delinquent and penalty and interest accrue as follows:

(1) if the first half is paid when due, the second half is payable on the due date fixed by the assembly for the second half and if not paid is delinquent after that date;

(2) a penalty not to exceed eight percent shall be added to all taxes delinquent until the due date fixed for payment of the second half, and interest at the rate of eight percent a year shall be charged on the whole of the unpaid taxes, not including penalty, from due date until paid in full;

(3) after the due date for the payment of the second half, a total penalty of not more than 10 percent may be added to all delinquent taxes, and interest at the rate of eight percent a year shall accrue upon all unpaid taxes, not including penalties, from due date until date paid in full.

(b) If the assembly imposes a penalty for the nonpayment of property taxes when due, or the late return of personal property assessment forms, the rate of penalty or combined rates of penalty may not exceed 10 percent of the tax due on the property concerned.

(c) If the assembly charges interest on property taxes not paid when due, the rate of interest may not exceed eight percent a year upon the delinquent taxes and shall be charged from the due date until paid in full.

Sec. 29.45.310. (Sec. 29.53.220.) ENFORCEMENT OF PERSONAL PROPERTY TAX LIENS BY DISTRAINT AND SALE. The lien of personal property taxes may be enforced by distraint and sale of the property. The assembly shall provide the procedure for distraint and sale by ordinance. No seizure, levy or distraint is legal unless demand is first made of the person assessed for the amount of the tax, penalty and interest, and no sale is valid unless made at public auction after 15 days notice given by posting or publication. The seizure is made by virtue of a warrant issued by the borough clerk to a peace officer. If the property sold is not sufficient to satisfy the tax, penalty, interest, and costs of sale, the warrant may authorize the seizure of other personal property sufficient to satisfy the tax, penalty, interest and costs of sale.

(3) within 10 days after the first publication or posting, mail to the last known owner of each property as his name and address appe on the list a notice advising of the foreclosure proceeding in which a petition for judgment of foreclosure has been filed and describing the property and the amount due as stated on the list.

(b) The list shall be arranged in alphabetical order as to the last name and shall include

(1) the last known owner;

(2) the property description as stated on the assessment roll;

(3) years and amounts of deliquency;

(4) penalty and interest due;

(5) a statement that the list is available for public inspection at the clerk's office;

(6) a statement that the list has been presented to the superior court with a petition for judgment and decree.

(c) Completion of the requirements of (a) of this section constitutes and has the same force and effect as the filing of an individual and separate complaint and service of summons to foreclose a lien against each property described on the foreclosure list.

Sec. 29.45.340. (Sec. 29.53.250.) CLEARING DELINQUENCIES. During the publication or posting of the foreclosure list and up to the time of transfer to the borough a person may pay the taxes, together with the penalty, interest and costs. The collector shall note payment on the foreclosure list.

Sec. 29.45.350. (Sec. 29.53.260.) LIST TO LIENHOLDER. A holder of a mortgage or other lien on real property may request the clerk to send by certified mail notice of a foreclosure list which includes such real property.

Sec. 29.45.360. (Sec. 29.53.270.) GENERAL FORECLOSURE. The borough shall bring one general foreclosure proceeding in rem against the properties included in the list. If the owner is unknown, the property is proceeded against as belonging to "unknown owner." Tax foreclosure proceedings have priority over all other civil proceedings except board of adjustment appeal as provided in AS 29.33.130(e).

Sec. 29.45.370. (Sec. 29.53.280.) ANSWER AND OBJECTION. A person having an interest in a tract on the foreclosure list may file an answer within 30 days of the date of last publication, specifying his objection. The court shall make its decision in summary proceedings. The foreclosure list is prima facie evidence that the assessment and levy of the tax is valid and that the tax is unpaid.

Sec. 29.45.380. (Sec. 29.53.290.) JUDGEMENT. The court shall in a proper case give judgment and decree that the tax liens be foreclosed. It is a several judgment against and a lien on each parcel.

Sec. 29.45.390. (Sec. 29.53.300.) TRANSFER AND APPEAL. (a) Foreclosed properties are transferred to the borough for the lien amount. When answers are filed the court may enter judgment against and order the transfer to the borough of all other properties on the list pending determination of the matters in controversy. The court shall hear and determine the issues raised by the complain and answers in the same manner and under the same rules as it hears and determines other actions.

(b) The court clerk shall deliver a certified copy of the judgment and decree to the borough clerk. The certified judgment and decree constitutes a transfer to the borough.

(c) The judgment and decree stops objections to it which could have been presented before judgment and decree.

(d) Appeal from a judgment and decree of foreclosure, or from a final order in the proceeding, may be taken in the manner provided for appeals in civil actions.

Sec. 29.45.400. (Sec. 29.53.310.) REDEMPTION PERIOD. (a) Properties transferred to the borough are held by the borough for at least one year.

During the redemption period a party having an interest in the property may redeem it by paying the lien amount plus penalties, interest and costs, including all costs incurred under Sec. 350(a) of this chapter. Property redeemed is subject to all taxes, assessments, liens and claims as though it had continued in private ownership. Only the amount applicable under the judgment and decree must be paid in order to redeem the property.

(b) A person holding a mortgage or other lien of record covering a part only of a parcel of real property included in the judgment and decree of foreclosure may redeem that part by paying the proportionate amount applicable under the judgment and decree.

Sec. 29.45.410. (Sec. 29.53.320.) EFFECT. Receipt of redemption money by the clerk releases all claims of the borough to the property. The clerk shall record the redemption and issue a certificate containing a property description, the redemption amount, and the dates of judgment and decree of foreclosure. The clerk shall file the certificate with the recorder and collect the recording fee from the person redeeming at the time of redemption. The court clerk shall file the certificate as part of the judgment roll.

Sec. 29.45.420. (Sec. 29.53.330.) ADDITIONAL LIENS. If a property included in a foreclosure list is removed after payment of delinquencies or redemption by another lienholder, the payment represented by receipt for payment constitutes an additional lien on the property, collectible by the lienholder in the same manner as the original lien.

Sec. 29.45.430. (Sec. 29.53.340.) POSSESSION DURING REDEMPTION PERIOD. Foreclosure does not affect the former owner's right to possession during the redemption period. In the event that waste is committed by the former owner, or by anyone acting under his permission or control, the borough may declare an immediate forfeiture of the right to possession.

Sec. 29.45.440. Expiration.

(a) At least 30 days before the expiration of the redemption period the clerk shall publish a redemption period expiration notice. The notice shall contain the date of judgment, the date of expiration or the period of redemption and a warning to the effect that all properties ordered sold under the judgment, unless redeemed, shall be deeded to the borough or city immediately in expiration of the period of redemption and that every right or interest of any person in the properties will be forfeited forever to the borough or city. The notice is published once a week for four consecutive weeks in a newspaper of general circulation distributed within the borough. If there is no newspaper of general circulation distributed within the borough, the notice is posted in three public places for at least four consecutive weeks. The clerk shall send a copy of the published notice by certified mail to each record owner of property against which a judgment of foreclosure has been taken and, if the assessed value of the property is more than $100,000 [$10,000], to all holders of mortgages or other liens of record on the property. The notice shall be mailed within five days of the first publication. The mailing shall be sufficient if mailed to the property owner and to the holder of a mortgage or recorded lien at the last address of record. The right of redemption shall expire 30 days after the date of the first publication notice.

(b) Costs incurred in the determination of holders of mortgages and other liens of record and costs of publication of notice incurred by a municipality under (a) of this section are a lien on the property and may be recovered by the municipality.

Formerly: AS 29.53.350

Comments: Based on recommendation of AAAO; raises assessed value of property which triggers duty of clerk to advise holders of security of judgment of foreclosure.

Sec. 29.45.450. (Sec. 29.53.360.) DEED TO BOROUGH OR CITY. (a) Unredeemed properties in the area of the borough outside cities are deeded to the borough by the clerk of the court. Unredeemed properties within a city are deeded to the city subject to the payment by the city of unpaid borough taxes and costs of foreclosure levied against the property before foreclosure. The deeds shall be recorded in the recording district in which the property is located.

(b) Conveyance gives the borough or the city clear title except for prior recorded liens of the United States and the state.

(c) If unredeemed property lies within a city and if the city has no immediate public use for the property but the borough does have an immediate public use, the city shall deed the property to the borough. If unredeemed property lies within the borough outside a city and if the borough does not have an immediate public use for the property but the city does have an immediate public use, the borough shall deed the property to the city.

(d) No deed is invalid for irregularities, omissions or defects, unless the former owner has been misled to his injury. After two years from the date of the deed, its validity is conclusively presumed and any claim of the former owner is forever barred.

Sec. 29.45.460. (Sec. 29.53.370.) DISPOSITION AND SALE OF FORECLOSED PROPERTIES. (a) The assembly of a borough or council of a city shall determine by ordinance whether foreclosed property deeded to the municipality under Sec. 360 of this chapter shall be retained by the municipality for a public purpose. The ordinance shall contain the legal description of the property, the address or a general description of the property sufficient to provide the public with notice of its location, and the name of the last record owner of the property as his name appears on the assessment rolls of the municipality.

(b) Tax-foreclosed properties conveyed to a borough or city by tax foreclosure and not required for a public purpose may be sold. Before the sale of tax-foreclosed property held for a public purpose, the assembly or council, by ordinance, shall determine that a public need does not exist

LA-LT20 ordinance shall contain the information required in (a) of this section

(c) The clerk shall send a copy of the published notice of hearing of an ordinance to consider a determination required by (a) or (b) of this section by certified mail to the former record owner of the parcel of property which is the subject of the ordinance. The notice shall be mailed within five days of its first publication and shall be sufficient if mailed to the property owner at the last address of record.

(d) The provisions of (c) of this section do not apply with respect to property which has been held by the municipality for a period of more than 10 years after the close of the redemption period.

Sec. 29.45.470. (Sec. 29.53.375.) REPURCHASE BY RECORD OWNER. (a) The record owner at the time of tax foreclosure of property acquired by a borough or city, or his assigns, may, at any time before the sale or contract of sale of the tax-foreclosed property by the borough or city, repurchase the property. The borough or city shall sell the property for the full amount applicable to the property under the judgment and decree, with interest at the rate of eight percent a year from the date of entry of the judgment of foreclosure to the date of repurchase, delinquent taxes assessed and levied as though it had continued in private ownership, and costs of foreclosure and sale, including, but not limited to, costs of publication of notice and any costs associated with the determination of holders of mortgages and other liens of record under Sec. 350(a) of this chapter.

(b) After adoption of an ordinance providing for the retention of a parcel of tax-foreclosed property by the municipality for a public purpose, the right of the former record owner to repurchase the property ceases.

Sec. 29.45.480. (Sec. 29.53.380.) PROCEEDS OF TAX SALE. (a) Upon sale of foreclosed real or personal property the borough or city shall divide the proceeds less cost of collection, between the borough and the city having unpaid taxes against the property. The division is in proportion to the respective municipal taxes against the property at the time of foreclosure.

(b) The former record owner of tax-foreclosed real property which has been held by a municipality for less than 10 years after the close of the redemption period and never designated for a public purpose which is sold at a tax-foreclosure sale is entitled to the portion of the proceeds of the sale which exceeds the amount sufficient to satisfy unpaid taxes, delinquent taxes assessed and levied as if the property had continued in private ownership, penalty, interest and costs of property sold, including costs incurred under Sec. 350(a) of this chapter. If the proceeds of the sale of tax-foreclosed property exceed the total of unpaid and delinquent taxes, penalty, interest, and costs, the borough or city shall provide the former owner of the property written notice advising of the amount of the excess and the manner in which a claim for the balance of the proceeds may be submitted. Notice is sufficient under this subsection if mailed to the former owner at his last address of record. Upon presentation of a proper claim, the municipality shall remit the excess to the former record owner. A claim for the excess filed after six months of the date of sale is forever barred.

Sec. 29.45.490. (Sec. 29.53.385.) PAYMENT OF TAXES UPON PUBLIC UTILIZATION. If a city or borough holds or takes title to tax-foreclosed property for a public purpose, the city or borough shall satisfy unpaid taxes and assessments against the property held by other municipalities, with accrued interest but without penalty. If the amount required to satisfy the unpaid taxes and assessments exceeds the assessed valuation of the property, the city or borough shall pay the other municipalities the assessed valuation, which shall be divided between the other municipalities in proportion to their respective taxes and assessments against the property at the time of foreclosure.

Sec. 29.45.510. (Sec. 29.53.390.) REFUND OF TAXES. (a) If a taxpayer pays taxes under protest, he may bring suit in the superior court against the borough for recovery of the taxes. If judgment for recovery is given against the borough, the borough shall refund the amount of the taxes to the taxpayer with interest at eight percent from the date of payment plus costs.

(b) If, in payment of taxes legally imposed, a remittance by a taxpayer through error or otherwise exceeds the amount due, and the borough, on audit of the account in question, is satisfied that this is the case, the borough shall refund the excess to the taxpayer with interest at eight percent from the date of payment. A claim for refund filed after one year of the due date of the tax is forever barred.

ARTICLE 3. CITY PROPERTY TAX.

Sec. 29.45.530. (Sec. 29.53.400.) POWER OF LEVY. Home rule and first class cities within boroughs may levy a general property tax. A property tax, if levied, shall be levied in the manner provided for borough levies in Sec. 170(a) of this chapter and is subject to Secs. 10-25, 50-55 and 310-350 of this chapter. The council shall by June 15 of each year present to the borough assembly a statement of the city's rate of levy, unless a different date is agreed upon by the borough and city.

Sec. 29.45.540. (Sec. 29.53.410.) LIMITED PROPERTY TAXING POWER FOR SECOND CLASS CITIES. A second class city may by referendum levy real and personal property taxes as provided for first class cities. However, levy by a second class city may not exceed one-half of one percent of the assessed valuation of the property taxed, except that the limit does not apply to a levy necessary to avoid a default upon payment of principal and interest of bonded or other indebtedness which is secured by a pledge to levy ad valorem or other taxes without limit to meet debt payments.

Sec. 29.45.570. (Sec. 29.53.415.) SALES AND USE TAX. (a) A borough may levy and collect a sales tax not exceeding six percent on sales or rents, and on services made within the borough. The sales tax may apply to any or all of these sources. Exemptions may be granted by ordinance.

(b) A borough levying a sales tax may also by ordinance levy a use tax on the storage, use or consumption of tangible personal property within the borough. The use tax rate must equal the sales tax rate and the use tax shall be levied only upon buyers.

(c) A person who furnishes proof, in the form required by the borough tax collector, that he has paid a sales tax on the source on which a use tax is levied by the borough is required to pay the use tax only to the extent of the difference between the amount of the sales tax paid and the amount of the use tax levied by the borough. This subsection applies to a sales tax levied in any taxing jurisdiction whether in or outside the state.

(d) If the assembly of a home rule or general law borough charges interest on sales taxes not paid when due, the rate of interest may not exceed eight percent a year upon the delinquent taxes and shall be charged from the due date until paid in full.

Sec. 29.45.590. (Sec. 29.53.420.) REFERENDUM, ADOPTION AND MODIFICATION. (a) The assembly shall hold a referendum vote on the question of enacting a sales tax or increasing the rate of levy of sales taxes. Borough sales tax propositions may be presented only once in any 12-month period. A sales tax proposition may be submitted to the voters at a regular or special election or at a general election of the state.

(b) If the proposition receives a majority of the votes cast, the assembly may enact the sales tax or increase the rate of the sales tax as a levy upon buyers, sellers, or both. The sales tax is collected at the time of sale or at the time of payment in credit transactions and transmitted to the borough.

ARTICLE 5. CITY SALES AND USE TAXES

Sec. 29.45.610. (Sec. 29.53.440.) POWER OF LEVY. Cities within a borough which levies and collects sales or use taxes for areawide borough functions may levy sales or use taxes upon all sources taxed by the borough in the manner provided for boroughs.

Sec. 29.45.620. (Sec. 29.53.450.) POWER OF LEVY AND COLLECTION. Cities within a borough which does not levy and collect sales or use taxes for areawide borough functions may levy and collect sales or use taxes in the manner provided for boroughs.

Sec. 29.45.630. (Sec. 29.53.460.) COMBINING SALES TAX WITH INCORPORATION. A petition for second class city incorporation may request that a sales tax proposal be placed on the same ballot. The petition must state the proposed tax rate. The petition may request that incorporation be dependent upon the passage of the sales tax proposition. If so, the incorporation proposition fails if the sales tax fails.

Re: Title 29 Review - Proposed Revisions to Chapter 53 "Municipal Assessment and Taxation"

Dear John:

In furtherance of our discussion this date, please find enclosed herewith the following:

(1) Draft of proposed revisions to existing chapter 53 (Assessments). Comments to each section indicate the purpose of each proposed change.

(2) Copy of mark-up of chapter 53 prepared by the Alaska Association of Assessing Officers.

(3) Tamara Cook's rewrite under date October 2, 1980, of the required exemptions provisions of existing section 29.53.020.

I would appreciate any observations or comments you may have regarding these proposed or other amendments to chapter 53.

As we also discussed, the major remaining area which I intend to address is the area relating to corrections, cancellations and refund of taxes which I believe will solve many problems currently confronting assessors and administrators of the tax provisions.

Yours very truly,

Russell W. Walker
Municipal Attorney

Enclosures

Sec. 29.45.030. Required exemptions. (a) The following property is exempt from general taxation:

(1) municipal, state or federally owned property, except that private leaseholds, contracts or other interest in the property shall be taxable to the extent of those interests;

(2) household furniture of the head of a family or a household [not exceeding $500 in value];

(3) property used exclusively for nonprofit religious, charitable, cemetery, hospital or educational purposes;

(4) property of a nonbusiness organization composed entirely of persons with 90 days or more of active service in the armed forces of the United States whose conditions of service and separation were other than dishonorable, or the property of the auxiliary of such organization;

(5) money on deposit;

(6) the real property of certain residents of the state to the extent and subject to the conditions provided in (e) of this section.

(7) real property to the extent and subject to the conditions provided in (j) of this section.

(b) "Property used exclusively for religious purposes" includes the following property owned by a religious organization:

(1) the residence of a bishop, pastor, priest, rabbi, minister or religious order of a recognized religious organization.

(2) a structure, its furniture and its fixtures used solely for public worship, charitable purposes, religious administrative offices, religious education or a nonprofit hospital;

(3) lots supporting and adjacent to a structure or residence mentioned in (1) or (2) of this subsection which are necessary to convenient use;

(4) lots required by local ordinance for parking near a structure defined in (2) of this subsection.

(c) Property described in (a) or (b) of this section from which income is derived is exempt only if that income is solely from use of the property by nonprofit religious, charitable, hospital or educational groups [for classroom space]. If used by nonprofit educational groups, the property is exempt only if used exclusively for classroom space.

(e) The real property owned and occupied as a permanent place of abode by a resident 65 years of age or over is exempt from taxation of the assessed value of the real property. Only one exemption may be granted with respect to the same property and, if two or more persons are eligible for an exemption with respect to the same property, the parties shall decide between or among themselves which shall receive the benefit of the exemption. No real property may be exempted under this subsection which the assessor determines, after notice and hearing to the parties concerned, has been conveyed to the applicant primarily for the purpose of obtaining the exemption. The determination of the assessor is appealable under AS 44.62.560-44.62.570.

(f) No exemption may be granted under (e) of this section except upon written application for the exemption on a form prescribed by the state assessor for use by local assessors. The claimant must file the application no later than January 15 of the assessment year for which the exemption is sought, but during the same year the governing body of the municipality for good cause shown may waive the claimant's failure to make timely application for the exemption for that year and authorize the assessor to accept the application as if timely filed. The claimant must file a separate application for each assessment year in which the exemption is sought. If an application is filed within the required time and is approved by the assessor, he shall allow an exemption in accordance with the provisions of this section. If a claimant whose failure to file by January 15 of the assessment year has been waived as provided in this subsection and the application for exemption is approved, the amount of tax which the claimant may have already paid for the assessment year with respect to the property exempted shall be refunded to him. The assessor may at any time require proof in the form he considers necessary of the right and amount of an exemption claimed under this section.

(g) The state shall reimburse a borough or city, as appropriate, for the real property tax revenues lost to it by the operation of (e) of this section. However, reimbursement will be made to a borough or city for revenue lost to it only to the extent that the loss exceeds an exemption which was granted by the borough or city, or which upon proper application by an individual would have been granted by the borough or city, under sec. 25(a) of this chapter.

(h) Except as provided in (g) of this section, nothing in (e)-(i) of this section affects similar exemptions from property taxes granted by municipalities on September 10, 1972 or prevents municipalities from granting similar exemptions by ordinance as provided in sec. 25 of this chapter.

(i) In (e)-(i) of this section the term "real property" includes but is not limited to mobile homes, whether classified as real or personal property for municipal tax purposes.

(j) Two percent of the assessed value of a structure is exempt from taxation if the structure contains a fire protection system approved under AS 19.70.081, in operating condition, and incorporated as a fixture or part of the structure. The exemption granted by this subsection is limited to

(1) an amount equal to two percent of the value of the structure based on the assessment for 1981, if the fire protection system is a fixture of the structure on January 1, 1981; or

(2) an amount equal to two percent of the value of the structure based on the assessment as of January 1 of the year immediately following the installation of the fire protection system if the fire protection system becomes a fixture of the structure after January 1, 1981.

Comments: Based on Alaska Association of Assessing Officers (AAAO) recommendation:

(1) Para. (a)(2): deletes $500 limit on exemption of household furniture;

(2) Para. (c): clarifies that "exclusively for classroom space" limitations on rental income under (c) only applies to rental use by an "educational group" and does not preclude the exemption when the income is derived from use by nonprofit religious, charitable, or hospital groups.

(3) Para. (f): clarifies filing of a claim for exemption is a requirement for only the senior citizen exemption under (e), and not for the other exemptions addressed in the section.

Sec. 29.45.050. Optional exemptions and exclusions.

(a) Municipalities may exclude or exempt or partially exempt residential property from taxation by ordinance ratified by the voters at a regular or special election. An exclusion or exemption authorized by this section may not exceed $10,000 for any one residence.

(b) Municipalities may by ordinance

(1) classify boats and vessels for purposes of taxation and may establish the assessed valuation of boats and vessels on the basis of their registered or certificated net tonnage; a tax based upon a tonnage valuation shall not exceed $5 a year for a boat or vessel of less than five net tons and shall not exceed $15 a year for a boat or vessel of more than five net tons;

(2) classify and exempt from taxation

(A) All or any portion of the household goods and furnishings in actual use by the owner thereof in equipping and outfitting his or her residence or place of abode and not for sale or commercial use, and all personal effects held by any person for his or her exclusive use and benefit and not for sale or commercial use. "Personal effects" shall be construed to mean and include such tangible property as usually and ordinarily attends the person such as wearing apparel, jewelry, toilet articles, and the like [the household furniture over $500 in value and the effects of the head of a family or a householder]; and

(B) the property of an organization not organized for business or profit-making purposes and used exclusively for community purposes, provided that income derived from rental of such property does not exceed the actual cost to the owner of the use by the renter; and

Comments: modifies and expands existing (a)(2)(A) relating to optional exemption of household furniture and effects. Based upon recommendation of AAAO since assessors currently do not include household furnishings and personal effects of family members.

Sec. 29.45.060. Mining claims. The assessed value of an unimproved unpatented mining claim which is not producing, and a nonproducing patented mining claim upon which the improvements originally required for patent have become useless and valueless through depreciation, removal or otherwise, is exempt [fixed at $200 for each 20 acres or fraction of 20 acres]. If the surface ground of a claim has a separate and independent value for nonmining uses, the real and personal property is assessed at its full and true value.

Formerly: AS 29.53.030

Comments: Deletes $200 valuation figure. AAAO recommends deletion since administrative costs exceed taxes to be realized in carrying property at $200 figure on roll.

Sec. 29.45.100. Tax limitations.

(a) No municipality may levy and tax for any purpose in excess of three percent of the assessed valuation of property within the municipality in any one year.

(b) No municipality, or combination of municipalities occupying the same geographical area, in whole or in part, may levy taxes (1) which will result in tax revenues from all sources exceeding $1,500 [$1,000] a year for each person residing within their boundaires or (2) upon values which, when combined with the value of property otherwise taxable by the municipality, exceed the product of 225 per cent of the average per capita assessed full and true value of property in the state multiplied by the number of residents of the taxing municipality. If two or more municipalities occupying the same geographical area, in whole or in part, attempt to levy a tax (1) the combined levy of which would result in tax revenues from all sources exceeding $1,500 [$1,000] a year for each person residing within their boundaries or (2) upon value which, when combined with the value of property otherwise taxable by the municipality, exceed the product of 225 per cent of the average per capita assessed full and true value of property in the state multiplied by the number of residents of the taxing municipality, the commissioner of community and regional affairs shall apportion the lawful levy and equitably divide these revenues on the basis of need, services performed and other considerations in the public interest. For the purpose of this subsection, population shall be determined by the commissioner or community and regional affairs based on the latest statistics of the United States Bureau of the Census or on other reliable population data. For purposes of this subsection the average per capita assessed full and true value of property in the state shall be calculated without regard to the assessed value of taxable property under AS 43.58.

Formerly: AS 29.53.050

Comments: Technical change requested by AAAO to conform with provisions of AS 29.53.045 (SLA 80)

Sec. 29.45.120. Full and true value.

(a) The assessor shall value [assess] property at its full and true value as of January 1 of the assessment year, except as provided in this section and sections 60 [30], 70 [35] and 240 [160] of this chapter. The full and true value is the estimated price which the property would bring in an open market and under the then prevailing market conditions in a sale between a willing seller and a willing buyer both conversant with the property and with prevailing general price levels.

(b) Assessment of business inventories may be based on the average monthly method of assessment rather than the value existing on January 1. The method used to assess business inventories shall be prescribed by the borough assembly.

(c) In case of cessation of business during the tax year, the assembly may provide for reassessment of business inventories using the average monthly method of assessment for the tax year rather than the value existing on January 1 of the tax year, and for reduction and refund of taxes. In enacting an ordinance authorized by this section, the assembly may prescribe procedures, restrictions, and conditions of assessing or reassessing business inventories and of remitting or refunding taxes.

Formerly: AS 29.53.060

Comments: Requested by AAAO

Sec. 29.45.180. Assessment notice.

(a) The assessor shall give every person named in the assessment roll a notice of assessment, showing the assessed value of his property. On each notice is printed a brief summary of the dates when taxes are payable, delinquent and subject to penalty and interest, [and the dates when the board of equalization will sit.]

(b) Sufficient assessment notice is given if mailed by first class mail 30 days before the equalization hearings. If the address is not known to the assessor, the notice may be addressed to the person at the post office nearest the property. Notice is effective on the date of mailing.

Deletes requirement that assessor include in the assessment notice the date the board of equalization will meet since many times assessors at that time do not know the dates at the time the notices are mailed. Based on the recommendation of AAAO.

Sec. 29.45.210. Board of Equalization. The assembly sits as a board of equalization for the purpose of hearing any appeal from determinations of the borough assessor, however, may delegate this authority to one or more boards appointed by it for that purpose. An appointed board may be composed of not less than three (3) persons, who may be members of the assembly, private individuals, or a combination thereof. [The board of equalization shall consist of at least that number of members of the assembly over and above the number required for a quorum to transact business.] The board is governed in its proceedings by such procedures consistent with general rules of administrative law and the laws governing equalization proceedings as may be adopted by ordinance, including but not limited to quorum and voting requirements. The assembly shall by ordinance establish the qualifications for membership and adopt rules of conduct of the board.

Formerly: AS 29.53.135

Comments: Change would clarify authority to establish boards of equalization composed of other than assembly members and by ordinance to establish qualifications. Deletion required to allow appointment of boards of three members or more which number may be less than number required for quorum of assembly.

Sec. 29.45.220. Hearing.

(a) If an appellant fails to appear, the board of equalization may proceed with the hearing in his absence.

(b) The appellant bears the burden of proof.

(c) The only grounds for adjustment is proof of unequal, excessive or improper valuation based on facts which are stated in a valid written appeal timely filed and [or] proved at the hearing.

(d) The board shall certify its actions to the assessor within seven days.

(e) The assessor shall enter the changes and certify the final assessment roll by June 1 except as to supplementary assessments.

(f) [an] The appellant and the assessor may appeal the board's action to the superior court as provided by rules of court applicable to appeals from the decisions of administrative agencies. Appeals are heard on and limited to the record established at the hearing before the board of equalization. [for, and is entitled to, trial de novo of the board's action. Either party to the appeal may demand a jury trial].

Comments:

(1) Para. (c): Based on recommendation of AAAO, substitutes and for or to assure must set forth factual grounds in written appeal and prove at hearing;

(2) para. (e): Based on recommendation of AAAO, clarifies that there may be further proceedings after June 1 in event there are supplementary assessments per former section 29.53.1

(3) para. (f): deletes provisions regarding trial de novo and jury trial and limits scope of review to substantial evidence rule and clarifies confusion created by Winegardner v. Greater Anchorage Area Borough (534 P.2d 541)

Sec. 29.45.230. Supplementary assessment rolls. The assessor shall include property omitted from the assessment roll on a supplementary roll, using the procedures set out in this chapter for the original roll. Any supplementary roll must be finalized and certified on or before September 1 of the assessment year.

Formerly: AS 29.53.150

Comments: Recommended by AAAO. State assessor requires for his purposes all proceedings to be completed not later than September 1, including any supplemental assessments.

Sec. 29.45.440. Expiration.

(a) At least 30 days before the expiration of the redemption period the clerk shall publish a redemption period expiration notice. The notice shall contain the date of judgment, the date of expiration or the period of redemption and a warning to the effect that all properties ordered sold under the judgment, unless redeemed, shall be deeded to the borough or city immediately in expiration of the period of redemption and that every right or interest of any person in the properties will be forfeited forever to the borough or city. The notice is published once a week for four consecutive weeks in a newspaper of general circulation distributed within the borough. If there is no newspaper of general circulation distributed within the borough, the notice is posted in three public places for at least four consecutive weeks. The clerk shall send a copy of the published notice by certified mail to each record owner of property against which a judgment of foreclosure has been taken and, if the assessed value of the property is more than $100,000 [$10,000], to all holders of mortgages or other liens of record on the property. The notice shall be mailed within five days of the first publication. The mailing shall be sufficient if mailed to the property owner and to the holder of a mortgage or recorded lien at the last address of record. The right of redemption shall expire 30 days after the date of the first publication notice.

(b) Costs incurred in the determination of holders of mortgages and other liens of record and costs of publication of notice incurred by a municipality under (a) of this section are a lien on the property and may be recovered by the municipality.

Formerly: AS 29.53.350

Comments: Based on recommendation of AAAO; raises assessed value of property which triggers duty of clerk to advise holders of security of judgment of foreclosure.

Re: Title 29 Review - Inclusion of Harbors and Marinas under Extraterritorial Jurisdiction

Dear Tamara:

Please find enclosed a proposed amendment to existing Section 29.48.037 [Extraterritorial Jurisdiction] (new 29.33.020) to clarify the authority of municipalities to provide harbors and marinas outside their boundaries.

As we have mentioned, the City of Ketchikan has for many years leased from the State of Alaska, and operates and regulates, several small but important boat harbors and marinas outside the boundaries of the City.

Yours very truly,

Sec. 29.33.020. Extraterritorial jurisdiction.

(a) A municipality may provide parks, roads, trails, playgrounds, cemeteries, harbors, marinas, and airports outside its boundaries, subject to AS 29.33.010, and may regulate their use and operation. A regulation adopted under this section must state that it applies outside the municipality.

(b) A municipality may adopt ordinances to protect its water supply and watershed and may enforce them outside its boundaries. Before this power may be exercised within the boundaries of another municipality, the approval of that municipality must be given by ordinance. This section applies to general law and home rule municipalities.

Formerly: As 29.48.037

Comments: Expands existing law to include harbors and marinas as facilities a municipality may acquire, operate and regulate outside its boundaries.

Dear Mr. Troll:

I have submitted copies of your letter to members of the Title 29 Policy Advisory Group so that they will be aware of your concern over AS 29.48.260. Your other comments which were originally sent to the Department of Community and Regional Affairs have been made available to the Title 29 Policy Advisory Group as well. Please send any additional comments which you have to me and I will see that members of the Policy Group receive copies.

I talked by phone with Mr. James N. Reeves on November 5, 1980. He indicated that he would like to address the Policy Group at the next meeting they hold in Anchorage. I will inform him of the meeting time and place as soon as it is set. Time is made available during meetings of the Policy Group to any person who wishes to address the group, so perhaps you would like to attend a meeting as well. I expect that the Policy Group will decide to meet again early in December and I will inform the group of your desire that the meeting be held in Anchorage.

Dear Ms. Cook:

I would like to request that discussion of A.S. 29.48.260 be placed on the agenda for the first meeting of the Title 29 Policy Advisory Group in December and that myself and James N. Reeves be permitted to make a presentation on this provision. Presently Mr. Reeves and I are working on legal problems related to property in St. Mary's under a Community Legal Assistance Grant from The Department of Community and Regional Affairs. The first project we have undertaken under the grant is an analysis of 29.48.260 and changes that should be made for the benefit of rural communities. 29.48.260 is a very unmanageable statute for this and I suspect most other rural communities. I would consider the work of the Policy Advisory Group successful if it can effect a workable change in this provision.

Hopefully, the meeting will be held in either Anchorage or Bethel as the City cannot afford to send me much further.

Sincerely,

Dear Senator Sturgulewski:

I am writing to you in your capacity as a member of the policy advisory group for the rewrite of Title 29. In that regard, several weeks previous the Kodiak City Council directed me to determine the level of interest among the home rule communities located within second class boroughs toward addressing the dual responsibilities of those governments. I have enclosed for your review a copy of the letter received back from the City of Palmer voicing their support for a coalition at the Alaska Municipal League to address these problem areas.

I understand that in your capacity on this advisory group board your input would be balanced by those representatives of boroughs who are also on the panel. However, your background in local government management provides a knowledge of the parameters of the problem we are trying to address.

As Mr. Curtis, Manager of Palmer, indicates in his correspondence, communities such as Anchorage, Juneau and Sitka have within these past several years resolved their dual government relationship problems by unifying. This is of course not the only answer. For many of the smaller communities the problem still remains. We would hope that you will be able to assist us by providing some input to your advisory group relative to our concerns. The communities will be requested to meet during the Alaska Municipal League to formulate specific ideas toward the end of clearly defining the relationship between home rule cities and second class boroughs. I will keep you advised of the progress of our coalition and wish to offer at this time our appreciation for your concern and interest in our problem.

Dear Gordon,

Your letter of September 17, 1980 was received and presented to the Council at their regular meeting of October 14, 1980. I would like to report that our Council wholeheartedly supports your initiatives in this matter of first class and home rule cities within second class boroughs. We are all aware of the gradual erosion of authority away from cities toward boroughs and will enthusiastically join with you and hopefully the other cities in this endeavor.

I will not in this letter attempt to get into specifics of problem areas in Title 29 but would like to suggest a formation of the coalition and the outright commitment of the individual cities involved to put some time and effort into this. Apparently the timeframe is extremely short as the Commission must have a document prepared and presented to the Legislature within the first thirty days of the new Legislative session. If the formation takes place at the AML meeting in November at Fairbanks, there will not be many days left. It would seem that if each city would appoint a person of knowledge and experience, i.e. manager, attorney, clerk, to attend one or two general meetings we could pick out specifics for rewrite and the writing of the new legislation and perhaps prepare resolutions for the adoption by the Council of the various communities as back-up and forward these a.s.a.p. to the Policy Advisory group. We would then have to be prepared to have a representative to care for them to defend our positions. This will not be an easy thing.

I think our Councils must understand that we have lost most of the support from the population areas, particularly Anchorage, which has half of the votes in the State of Alaska, along with Juneau and Sitka who have solved their problems by unification. This was not done without bitter struggles between their original cities and boroughs. In other words, the problems still exist for the remainder of us and I personally do not feel that unification is the solution to all of the problems. A further point to emphasize is that the Alaska Municipal League is severely watered down with boroughs and unified governments to where we cannot expect much support.

I will attempt to help expedite our feelings by sending a copy of this letter to each of the cities you have indicated correspondence with in your letter.

Looking forward to seeing you soon, I remain,

Sincerely,

Sec. 20.30.095. APPLICATION FOR PETITION. (a) An initiative or referendum is proposed by an application containing the bill to be initiated or the act to be referred. The application shall be signed by at least ten municipal voters who will sponsor the petition, shall contain the address to which all correspondence relating to the application may be sent and shall be filed with the municipal clerk. Within two weeks the clerk shall certify the application if he finds that it is in proper form, and, for an inititative petition, that the matter

(1) is not restricted by AS 29.30.090;

(2) includes only a single subject;

(3) relates to a legislative rather than to an administrative matter; and

(4) would not be unenforceable as a matter of law.

(b) A decision by the clerk on an application for petition shall be subject to judicial review.

EXPLANATION: This section is new. The first part is modeled after section 2 of the intiative article in the state constitution. As drafted, the section would require the clerk to review an initative for substantive legality, with his decision subject to appeal. This would allow for a judicial determination of the legality of an initiative prior to incurring the expense of an election.

Sec. 29.30.110. PETITION. (a) Within two weeks after certification of an application for petition, a petition shall be prepared by the municipal clerk. The petition shall

(1) contain a summary of the bill to be initiated or the act to be referred;

(2) set out fully the ordinance or resolution sought to be initiated or referred;

(3) state the date on which the petition is issued by the clerk;

(4) contain notice that signatures must be secured within 60 days of the date the petition is issued;

(5) contain spaces for each signature, the printed name of each signer, the date of each signature, and the residence and mailing address of each signer;

(6) contain a statement that the sponsor personally circulated the petition, that all signtures were affixed in his presence, that he believes the signatures to be those of the persons whose names they purport to be, that each signer had an opportunity before signing to read the petition, that he believes each signer to be a municipal voter, space for indicating the number of signatures on the petition, and space for the sponsor's sworn signature.

EXPLANATION: This section would require the clerk to provide the petition forms to the petitioners to insure that they are complete and legible. This is similar to the requirement imposed upon the Lieutenant Governor in state initiative proceedings. The petition contents are essentially the same as those provided in present law, with a shortening of the petition circulation time from 90 to 60 days, some expansion of the information the signers must provide, and the addition of the circulator's affidavit.

Sec. 29.30.120. REQUIRED SIGNATURES. (a) The necessary signatures on a petition shall be secured within 60 days of the date the clerk issues the petition. The statement provided under AS 29.30.110 (a)(6) shall be completed and signed by the sponsor. Signatures shall be in ink or indelible pencil.

(b) A petition shall be signed by a number of voters residing within the municipality based on the number of votes cast at the last regular municipal election held on or prior to the date the petition was issued equal to

(1) 25 percent, when a municipality has fewer than 7,500 persons; or

(2) 15 percent, when a municipality has 7,500 persons or more.

(c) Illegible signtures shall be rejected by the clerk unless accompanied by a legible printed name. Signatures not accompanied by a legible residence address shall be rejected.

(d) A petition signer may withdraw his signature upon written application to the clerk prior to certification of the petition.

EXPLANATION: This section carries forward the 60 day signature gathering period. It does not eliminate the possibility of an initiative or referendum on a matter which affects only a service area, but it does require that such petitions contain the same number of signatures as a petition on an areawide matter. Permitting a service area to initiate and vote on a matter on a service area basis is contrary to the concept of the service area being under the control of the entire legislative body, and service areas will then have the authority to become essentially automomous units of government. Changes have been made to require rejection of a signature not accompanied by a legible residence address and to allow a signer to withdraw his name up until the time the petition is certified, whereas now he must withdraw within seven days after the petition is filed.

Sec. 29.30.130. SUFFICIENCY OF PETITION. (a) The pages of a petition shall be assembled and filed as a single instrument. Within ten days of the date the petition is filed, the municipal clerk shall certify on the petition whether it is sufficient.

(b) If a petition is insufficient, it may be amended or supplemented with additional signatures obtained within 10 days after the date on which the petition is rejected.

(3) Within 10 days after the supplementary filing the clerk shall recertify the petition. If it is still insufficient, the petition is rejected and filed as a public record.

EXPLANATION: The only significant change makes it clear that in providing supplementary signatures, the sponsors have only ten days to gather the signatures and may not use signatures which were gather prior to the first filing but not submitted, and that they may not use signatures gathered during the period in which the clerk is checking the petition.

Sec. 29.30.140. PROTEST. Repeal

EXPLANATION: Since the clerk determines the sufficiency of a petition, it was felt that allowing a protest to the municipal executive when a petition is rejected to be considered by the assembly or council would serve no purpose. The assembly or council would simply rely upon the clerk, since he has the voter registration records.

Sec. 29.30.150. NEW PETITION. Failure to secure sufficient signatures does not preclude the filing of a new initiative or referendum petition. However, a new application for a petition on substantially the same matter may not be filed sooner than six months after the petition is rejected.

EXPLANATION: This section was changed slightly to take into account the application procedure and to clarify that a new petition may not be filed dealing with the same matter, but that a petition on a different matter may be filed sooner than the six month period.

Sec. 29.30.160. PRESENTATION OF INITIATIVE. (a) When a petition seeks enactment of an ordinance or resolution within the powers of the assembly or council the clerk, after certifying it, shall present it to the assembly or council at its next regular meeting or special meeting called for that purpose.

(b) Unless substantially the same measure is adopted, an iniatiative measure presented to the assembly or council shall be submitted to the voters at the next regular municipal election held more than 45 days after the measure was presented to the assembly or council. If the assembly or council adopts substantially the same measure and if it is not vetoed, the petition is void and the question shall not be submitted to the voters.

(c) The ordinance or resolution initiated shall be published in full in the notice of the election but may be summarized on the ballot to indicate clearly the proposal submitted.

EXPLANATION: The changes allow for the submission of a measure at any time of the year, but provides it would be placed before the voters at the first regular election occurring 45 days after submission to the assembly or council. Since the clerk determines whether the subject is within the restrictions and since this determination is subject to judicial review, the assembly or council no longer makes that determination. This section requires an areawide vote whether the mattter is areawide or nonareawide because a service area should not be allowed to become automonous.

Sec. 29.30.170. PRESENTATION OF REFERENDUM. (a) Unless the ordinance or resolution is repealed, when a petition seeks a referendum vote, the clerk shall submit the matter to the voters at the next regular or special election. If no regular or special election occurs within 75 days of the certification of a petition, the assembly or council shall hold a special election within 75 days of filing.

(b) If a petition for referendum is certified before the effective date of the matter referred, the ordinance or resolution against which the petition is filed shall be suspended pending the referendum vote. During the period of suspension, the assembly or council may not enact an ordinance or resolution substantially similar to the suspended measure.

(c) If the assembly or council repeals the ordinance or resolution before the referendum election, the petition is void and the matter referred shall not be placed before the voters.

(d) If a majority vote favors the repeal of the matter referred, it is repealed. Otherwise, the matter referred remains in effect or, if it is suspended, becomes immediately effective.

EXPLANATION: The ability to suspend an ordinance or resolution which had taken effect when a petition is filed within 20 days of the passage of the ordinance or resolution has been deleted to avoid the apparent ability of a part of the voters to exercise a temporary repeal. The reference to amending a charter by initiative or referendum was deleted as it is covered under AS 29.13.080. This section once again requires submission of the question to the areawide voters.

Sec. 29.30.180. EFFECT. (a) An ordinance or resolution adopted in an initiative election or adopted after a petition which contains substantially the same measure has been filed may not be repealed or amended by the assembly or council within two years of its effective date.

(b) If an ordinance or resolution is repealed in an referendum election or by the assembly or council after a petition which contains substantially the same measure has been filed, substantially similar legislation may not be enacted by the assembly or council for a period of one year.

(c) An unsuccessful initiative or referendum precludes the filing of a new petition application for substantially the same measure sooner than six months after the election results are certified by the assembly or council.

EXPLANATION: Technical revisions and a change in (c) to accommodate the petition application process.

Sec. 29.30.210. RECALL. An application for a petition for the recall of a mayor or a member of the assembly, council, or school board may be filed with the municipal clerk after the official has served six months of the term for which elected or appointed.

EXPLANATION. This section lists the municipal officials which may be recalled rather than providing for the recall of an elected official in order to avoid the possibility of recalling service area board members who may be elected officials. It clarifies the dates to be used in determining when the six month period has run and includes the possibility of recalling officials who are appointed to elected positions.

Sec. 29.30.220. GROUNDS. Grounds for recall may include any grounds which constitute failure to perform official duties to the satisfaction of petitioners.

EXPLANATION: This section broadens the grounds for recall in order to avoid forcing petitions to name a ground in a petition which has no connection with the real reasons which may inspire a recall effort. It is felt that an elected official ought not to be subjected to being labeled incompetent or guilty of misconduct or failure to perform his duties in a petition when the reason for a recall effort may not be based on any of those things.

Sec. 29.30.225. APPLICATION FOR RECALL PETITION. An application for a recall petition shall contain

(1) the signature and residence address of at least ten voters who will sponsor the petition;

(2) the address to which all correspondence relating to the application may be sent;

(3) a statement in 200 words or less of the grounds of the recall stated with particularity as to specific actions, pertinent ordinances, laws, regulations, or judicial decrees.

EXPLANATION: This section requires a submission of an application to the clerk for a recall petition. The clerk will provide petition forms and the application procedure is necessary in order to allow the official sought to be recalled to be given an opportunity to have his statement included on the petition.

Sec. 29.30.230. PETITION. (a) If the municipal clerk determines that an application for a recall petition meets the requirements of AS 29.30.230, he shall submit a copy of the application to the official who is the subject of the application. The official shall have ten days from receipt of the application to provide the clerk with a statement of 200 words or less if he so chooses.

(b) The clerk shall prepare a recall petition containing

(1) the name of the official sought to be recalled;

(2) The statement of the grounds for recall as set forth in the application;

(3) if provided, the statement of the official sought to be recalled;

(4) the date the petition is issued by the clerk;

(5) notice that signatures must be secured within 30 days of the date the petition is issued;

(6) spaces for each signature, the printed name of each signer, the date of each signature, and the residence and mailing address of each signer;

(7) a statement that the sponsor personally circulated the petition, that all signatures were affixed in his presence, that he believes the signatures to be those of the persons whose names they purport to be, that each signer had an opportunity before signing to read the petition, that he believes each signer to be a municipal voter, space for indicating the number of signatures on the petition, and space for the sponsor's sworn signature.

(c) Copies of the petition shall be provided to each sponsor by the clerk.

EXPLANATION: This section sets forth requirements similar to those proposed under the initiative and referendum procedures as it relates to petition content. Requiring the clerk to prepare the petition insures that it is complete and legible. The period of time within which signatures must be collected has been reduced to 30 days to minimize the period of disruption in government created by a recall effort.

Sec. 29.30.240. REQUIRED SIGNATURES. (a) The necessary signatures on a recall petition shall be secured within 30 days of the date the clerk issues the petition. The statement provided under AS 29.30.240(b)(7) shall be completed and signed by the sponsor. Signatures shall be in ink or indelible pencil.

(b) If a petition seeks to recall an official who represents the municipality at large, the petition shall be signed by 35 percent of the voters residing wthin the municipality based on the number of votes cast at the last regular election for that office. If a petition seeks to recall an official who represents a district, the petition shall be signed by 35 percent of the voters residing within the district based on the number of votes cast at the last regular election for that office.

(c) Illegible signatures shall be rejected by the clerk unless accompanied by a legible printed name. Signatures not accompanied by a legible residence address shall be rejected.

(d) A petition signer may withdraw his signature upon written application to the clerk prior to certification of the petition.

EXPLANATION: This section continues the 30 day signature gathering period and clarifies which election is to be used as a standard for determining the number of signatures required. The number of signatures required has been increased as compared to the number required for initiative and referendum because it is felt that recall is an especially disruptive process which should be more difficult to initiate. However, the signature requirement is based on the number who voted in a municipal rather than a state election. It is expected that is number will reflect a relatively low turnout, and therefore that it is not as difficult a requirement as may appear.

Sec. 29.30.250. SUFFICIENCY OF PETITION. (a) The pages of a petition shall be assembled and filed as a single instrument. Within ten days of the date the petition is filed, the municipal clerk shall certify on the petition whether it is sufficient.

(b) If a petition is insufficient, it may be amended or supplemented with additional signatures obtained within ten days after the date on which the petition is rejected, except that a petition which is insufficient on its face may not be supplemented. It shall be rejected and filed as a public record.

(c) Within ten days after the supplementary filing the clerk shall recertify the petition. If it is still insufficient, the petition is rejected and filed as a public record.

EXPLANATION: Unlike the situation in initiative and recall, this section does not allow additional time for obtaining signatures when a petition is filed which does not have enough signatures even before any are disqualified. This keeps a petitioner from filing an insufficient petition to gain additional time to gather signatures. Once again, it is felt that in the case of a recall effort, the process ought not to be prolonged.

Sec. 29.30.260. NEW PETITION. The rejection of a petition for any reason does not preclude the filing of a new recall petition. However, a new application may not be filed sooner than six months after a petition is rejected.

EXPLANATION: Filing a new petition prior to the six month waiting period is prohibited even though the petition is rejected for a reason other than failure to obtain sufficient signatures. Under existing law, failure to obtain sufficent signatures alone triggers the waiting period.

Sec. 29.30.270. SUBMISSION. If a recall petition is sufficient, the clerk shall submit it to the assembly or council at its next regular meeting.

EXPLANATION: This section requires the clerk to submit the petition at the next regular meeting rather than immediately as required under existing law.

Sec. 29.30.280. ELECTION. (a) If a regular election occurs within 75 days, but not sooner than 40 days after submission of the petition to the assembly or council, the assembly or council shall submit the recall at that election.

(b) If no regular election will occur within 75 days, the assembly or council shall hold a special election within 75 days but not sooner than 40 days after a petition is submitted to the assembly or council.

(c) If a vacancy occurs in the office after a sufficient recall petition is filed with the clerk, the petition shall not be submitted to the voters. The assembly or council may not appoint the official who resigns from an office after a sufficient recall petition is filed naming him to the same office.

EXPLANATION: The 40 days requirement was added to insure that a petition submitted after the legal notices of a regular election were published would not complicate the election. Added in section (c) is the prohibition against the appointment of an official who resigns after a sufficient recall petition is filed.

Sec. 29.30.290. FORM OF RECALL BALLOT. A recall ballot shall contain

(1) the grounds as stated in 200 words or less on the recall petition;

(2) the statement of the official which appeared on the recall petition or a statement of 200 words or less which is filed with the clerk for publication and public inspection within 20 days before the election;

(3) the following question: "Shall (name of person) be recalled from the office of (office)? YES () NO ()".

EXPLANATION: This section makes reference to the fact that the statement of the grounds is limited to 200 words or less and provides that the statement of the official used on the petition will appear on the ballot unless the official provides a different statement.

Sec. 29.30.300. ELECTION PROCEDURE. Procedures for conducting a recall election are those of a regular municipal election if the question is submitted at a regular election. Procedures for conducting a recall election are those of a special election if the question is submitted at a special election, except that 20 days notice shall be given notwithstanding an ordinance or charter provision to the contrary.

EXPLANATION: This section was changed to provide for cases in which a recall election is held as a special election.

Sec. 29.30.310. MAJORITY REQUIRED. A majority vote is required to recall an official. Only those voters residing in the district or area which elects an official may vote on the recall of the official.

EXPLANATION: This section adds a new sentence which makes it clear that if an official is elected by the voters of a district, then only those voters may vote to recall him.

Sec. 29.30.320. EFFECT. If a majority votes to recall an official, the official's seat shall become vacant immediately upon certification of the result of the election. If an incumbent is not recalled at a recall election, an new application for a petition to recall the same incumbent may not be filed sooner than six months after the date the election is certified.

EXPLANATION: The first sentence was added to make it clear when a recalled official looses his seat. The second sentence clarifies the fact that the commencement of the six month period is the date of certification of the election results.

Sec. 29.30.330. SUCCESSORS. (a) If one or more officials is recalled from an assembly or council, the assembly or council, by the affirmative vote of a majority of the remaining members, may appoint a qualified person to fill a vacancy created by the recall.

(b) If all members of the assembly or council are recalled, the governor shall appoint at least three qualified persons to the assembly or council. The appointees shall, by an affirmative vote of the majority, appoint additional members to fill remaining vacancies.

(c) If one or more officials are recalled from a school board the assembly or council may appoint a qualified person to fill a vacancy created by the recall.

(d) A person appointed under (a) - (c) of this section shall serve until a successor is elected and takes office.

EXPLANATION: This section has been expanded to prevent a local government from having to attempt to operate without a quorum of elected officials.

Anchorage, AK 99504

Dear Senator Sturgulewski:

I am writing to you in your capacity as a member of the policy advisory group for the rewrite of Title 29. In that regard, several weeks previous the Kodiak City Council directed me to determine the level of interest among the home rule communities located within second class boroughs toward addressing the dual responsibilities of those governments. I have enclosed for your review a copy of the letter received back from the City of Palmer voicing their support for a coalition at the Alaska Municipal League to address these problem areas.

I understand that in your capacity on this advisory group board your input would be balanced by those representatives of boroughs who are also on the panel. However, your background in local government management provides a knowledge of the parameters of the problem we are trying to address.

As Mr. Curtis, Manager of Palmer, indicates in his correspondence, communities such as Anchorage, Juneau and Sitka have within these past several years resolved their dual government relationship problems by unifying. This is of course not the only answer. For many of the smaller communities the problem still remains. We would hope that you will be able to assist us by providing some input to your advisory group relative to our concerns. The communities will be requested to meet during the Alaska Municipal League to formulate specific ideas toward the end of clearly defining the relationship between home rule cities and second class boroughs. I will keep you advised of the progress of our coalition and wish to offer at this time our appreciation for your concern and interest in our problem.

Respectfully yours,

Dear Gordon,

Your letter of September 17, 1980 was received and presented to the Council at their regular meeting of October 14, 1980. I would like to report that our Council wholeheartedly supports your initiatives in this matter of first class and home rule cities within second class boroughs. We are all aware of the gradual erosion of authority away from cities toward boroughs and will enthusiastically join with you and hopefully the other cities in this endeavor.

I will not in this letter attempt to get into specifics of problem areas in Title 29 but would like to suggest a formation of the coalition and the outright commitment of the individual cities involved to put some time and effort into this. Apparently the timeframe is extremely short as the Commission must have a document prepared and presented to the Legislature within the first thirty days of the new Legislative session. If the formation takes place at the AML meeting in November at Fairbanks, there will not be many days left. It would seem that if each city would appoint a person of knowledge and experience, i.e. manager, attorney, clerk, to attend one or two general meetings we could pick out specifics for rewrite and the writing of the new legislation and perhaps prepare resolutions for the adoption by the Council of the various communities as back-up and forward these a.s.a.p. to the Policy Advisory group. We would then have to be prepared to have a representative to care for them to defend our positions. This will not be an easy thing.

I think our Councils must understand that we have lost most of the support from the population areas, particularly Anchorage, which has half of the votes in the State of Alaska, along with Juneau and Sitka who have solved their problems by unification. This was not done without bitter struggles between their original cities and boroughs. In other words, the problems still exist for the remainder of us and I personally do not feel that unification is the solution to all of the problems. A further point to emphasize is that the Alaska Municipal League is severely watered down with boroughs and unified governments to where we cannot expect much support.

I will attempt to help expedite our feelings by sending a copy of this letter to each of the cities you have indicated correspondence with in your letter.

Looking forward to seeing you soon, I remain,

Sincerely,

Sec. 29.06.010. HOME RULE. A home rule municipality is a municipal corporation and a political subdivision. It is a city of the first class or an organized borough which has adopted a home rule charter, or it is a municipality unified in accordance with AS 29.12.190 - 29.12.350. A home rule municipality has all legislative powers not prohibited by law or charter.

EXPLANATION: A reference to unified municipalities along with a cross-reference to provisions dealing with the organization of unified municipalities has been included so that this section will provide a complete definition of home rule. No substantive change.

Sec. 29.06.050. Repeal

EXPLANATION: This section deals with the transition period following the 1972 revision of the Municipal Code and is of no effect. The reclassification of municipalities to conform to provisions of the 1972 Code were to have been essentially completed within two years of September 10, 1972.

Sec. 29.09.180. ORGANIZATION GRANTS. (a) For the purpose of defraying the cost of transition to a municipal form of government and in order to provide for initial government operations, each municipality incorporated after January 1, 1981, or, for a second class city, reclassified after January 1, 1981 is entitled to an organization grant of $150,000, except that a municipality which is merged, consolidated, or unified under AS 29.12. is not entitled to an organization grant.

EXPLANATION: Since no new municipality formed is likely to contain a great enough population to qualify for a grant over the minimum, the provision tying population to the amount of the grant has been eliminated in favor of a flat amount. The amount of the grant has been raised from $25,000 to $150,000 in recognition of the fact that setting up a government has become an expensive proposition and to encourage the formation of local governments despite this expense. In addition, a second class city will qualify to receive that grant as well as a city within an organized borough, whereas the existing law ties the amount of a grant to a second class city and to a first class city in an organized borough to its population. This change encourages the formation of local governments in rural areas where the population may be small. The formation of a city is expensive regardless of the size of the population. It is felt that the grant should be used to cover any initial government operation, so the terms "development and interim" were eliminated as unduly restrictive. The increased grant will be available only to a municipality formed after January 1, 1981.

Sec. 29.12.260. COMPOSITION OF CHARTER COMMISSION.

(b) If at least one nomination of a qualified charter commission candidate is not filed in accordance with AS 29.12.240. for each available seat the resolution or petition for unification is void and no election on the question of unification shall be held.

EXPLANATION: Subsection (b) has been added to avoid the expense and inconvenience of an election on unification where there is not enough interest in the question to assure that a charter commission can be formed. An alternative would be to provide for appointment of members when not enough nominations are received, but it was felt that in such cases basic interest in unification was probably lacking so the process should be halted.

Sec. 29.15.020. NOMINATION.

(b) A nomination petition shall be filed with the borough or city clerk on or before a date to be fixed by the borough assembly or city council. If at least seven nominations for qualified charter commission candidates are not filed, the petition or resolution calling for a charter commission is void and no election on the question shall be held.

EXPLANATION: Subsection (b) has been added to avoid the expense and inconvenience of an election on the question of forming a charter commission if not enough nominations for commission members are received. An alternative would be to provide for appointment of members in such cases but it was felt that failure to nominate a sufficient number of commission candidates indicated a general lack of interest in the formation of a charter commission.

Sec. 29.15.050. INITIATIVE AND REFERENDUM. (a) A municipal charter shall provide procedures for initiative and referendum.

EXPLANATION: This is technical clean-up creating no substantive change in existing law. However, it has been argued that the phrase "charters shall provide the procedures" refers to the procedures set out in Title 29 applicable to general law municipalities. Consequently, "the" has been dropped in order to clarify the fact that home rule municipalities are free to establish procedures which may differ from those set out in Title 29.

Sec. 29.15.110. LIMITATION OF HOME RULE POWERS.

(28) AS 29.33.220 (expenditure of borough revenue) Repeal.

EXPLANATION: AS 29.24.340(a) provides that a home rule city may prescribe additional residency requirements by charter for eligibility to hold the office of mayor. This is not a limitation and does not properly appear in the list of home rule limitations. That section also stipulates that a mayor must be a municipal voter, but it is felt that those sort of administrative decisions ought to be left up to a home rule municipality.

AS 29.30.010 provides that three judges shall be appointed for each polling place and that the assembly or council prescribe rules for conduction elections. These appear to be administrative decisions properly left up to a home rule municipality.

AS 29.30.030(b) provides that the assembly or council may call a special election upon at least 20 days notice. This is an administrative matter properly left up to home rule municipalities. However, it was felt that the section dealing with voter qualifications ought to be included as a limitation on home rule powers to preserve uniformity across the state in this area.

AS 29.33.220 provides that revenues collected on an areawide basis may be expended on general administrative costs and on areawide functions only. Likewise, revenues collected outside cites may be expended on general administrative costs and in providing services outside cities. It was felt that home rule municipalities ought to be given more flexibility in managing revenues.

Sec. 29.65.050. FULFILLMENT OF LAND ENTITLEMENTS.

(j) Notwithstanding AS 29.65.010 - 29.65.130, a municipality which is unable to satisfy its entitlement due to a shortage of vacant, unappropriated, unreserved land suitable for residential, commercial or industrial purposes may fulfill its remaining entitlement by selection of other state land which is vacant, unappropriated and unreserved.

EXPLANATION: This added subsection addresses a problem which has come up when a municipality is formed in an area with little vacant state land nearby. This allows a municipality the option of selecting land not suitable for residential, commercial or industrial purposes rather than being paid for the deficiency, if it desires land for other purposes.

Sec. 29.30.010. ADMINISTRATION. The borough assembly or city council shall prescribe the rules for conducting a municipal election and shall appoint an election board composed of at least three judges for each precinct. If possible, a judge shall be a voter of the precinct for which he is appointed.

EXPLANATION: Adds the provision that judges be appointed from among precinct voters in order to conform to the 1980 revision of AS 15.10.120. "The municipality may not alter voter qualification requirements of this title" was deleted because that issue is addressed in AS 29.28.030. Subsection (b) which makes this applicable to home rule municipalities was deleted to conform to the change suggested in the proposed draft of AS 29.15.110.

Sec. 29.30.020. NOMINATIONS. (a) The assembly or council shall provide by ordinance the procedure for the nomination of elected officers by declaration of candidacy, or petition requiring the signatures of not more than 10 voters, or both.

EXPLANATION: This is a technical revision which does not substantively alter existing law.

Sec. 29.30.030. ELECTION DATES. (a) Unless otherwise provided by ordinance, a regular municipal election shall be held annually on the first Tuesday of October.

EXPLANATION: This is a technical revision assuring maximum flexibility for local governments.

Sec. 29.30.040. VOTER QUALIFICATION. (a) A person may vote if he meets the requirements of AS 15.05.010 - 15.05.040, has been a resident of the municipality for 30 days immediately preceding the election, is registered to vote in state elections and is not disqualified under article V of the state constitution.

(b) Voter registration by the municipality may not be required, and a municipality may not alter voter qualification requirements except that a municipality may by ordinance require a person to be a resident of the precinct, district, or service area in which he votes.

(c) This section applies to home rule and general law municipalities.

EXPLANATION: A reference has been provided to the voter qualification requirements for state elections. A municipality has been granted the flexibility of imposing a requirement that a person be a resident of the area in which he votes to avoid the possibility of people voting on nonareawide matters who will not have to live with the outcome of the vote.

Sec. 29.30.050. MAJORITY ELECTIONS. (a) A municipality may by ordinance provide for a runoff election if no candidate receives over 40 percent of the votes cast for the office of mayor or member of the assembly, council or school board.

(b) A municipality may by ordinance require a majority vote for the election of officials. A runoff election or other means of obtaining a majority may be used.

(c) Unless provided otherwise by ordinance, a runoff election shall be held within three weeks from the date of certification of the election for which a runoff is required and notice of the runoff election shall be published at least five days prior to the election date.

EXPLANATION: Under existing law a runoff election is required if no candidate receives over 40 percent of the votes cast for his office. This has been liberalized to allow a municipality to provide for this by ordinance for certain offices only. Otherwise, the person who receives the greatest number of votes is elected. The provisions specifying when a runoff must be held and the notice requirements is no longer mandatory. In addition, the procedure set out in (c) for municipalities which desire more procedural guidance allows three weeks before the runoff is held rather than two. The additional time would enable cities within boroughs to coordinate their runoffs and hold them at the same time.

Senator Arliss Sturgulewski
2957 Sheldon Jackson St.
Anchorage, Alaska 99504

Dear Senator Sturgulewski,

I am sorry that I did not have the chance to speak to you or make a presentation at the Title 29 Revision Committee meeting on Monday. An illness in the family made me late and an airplane necessitated my leaving before noon. However, I was very pleased by what I witnessed. The discussions on the transfer of land and planning and zoning were very relavent to what we are presently facing. I heard only a portion of Dr. McGinnis' presentation and it upset me. If the Dept. of Health & Social Services is advocating that the second class cities should assume the responsibility for AFDC and Medicaid payments, they should be taken out and shot! Mike Wallerie was making several good points about what it is to be an Alaskan Native and the relationship between the individual and the rest of the community. The Department's plan would be doomed to failure in several communities around the state. This in turn would have other disasterous consequences for other small, second class cities.

Since I was unable to make my planned presentation, I would like to address my remarks to you. I will only be addressing small, second class cities. First, there are two major influences upon the small second class cities. They are their size and remoteness and the fact that the unorganized borough is over organized. I had hoped that Mike Wallerie would touch on this point but he didn't. The committee must realize that eventhough our communities are small that life is very complex in the "bush". A small second class cities must supply a seven member city council, a board of directors for the local ANSCA corporation, at least one advisory school committee (in many instances there are several standing educational committees such as JOM, Indian Ed. etc for the REAA and, if there is a BIA elementary school another set of committees), several members for the Native Village Council or IRA Council and members for other important local committees as well as representatives to regional organizations such as the regional corporation, regional housing authorities, fishand game advisory commissions, and State boards and committees.

Because of the small population and the over organization of the second class cities, it becomes extremely difficult to find qualified people to fulfill all the positions whether voluntary or for pay. This in turn results in lack of service being performed or offered by the second, class cities. The fact that there are so many second class cities whi ch are not functioning is an indication that the system needs to be simplified. I would offer the committee two recommendations. First, acknowledge that entity which is functioning most efficiently in the community whether it is an IRA Council, a Native Village Council, a community organization or association whatever. The State would be recognizing these organizations as providers of services. They would not have the power to enact ordinances or police functions. As a reciepient of State funds, these organizations would have to assure the State that services are being delivered in a non-discriminatory mannar. The new revenue sharing program does this to some extent. The desired result of this course of action would be the demise of second class cities which do not function, and a simplification of life in the "bush". Second, I would recommend the creation of home rule, second class cities. These cities would not be responsible for the local educational program nor would they be required to have a minimum population of 400. This would allow local communities to evolve a form of local government which is more compatible with local conditions. I acknowledge the fact that developing a charter is difficult and time consuming. However, I feel that it would go a long way to bridge the cultural gap in small, second class cities.

Finally, I would ask the committee to look at the relationship of the small second class cities to the executive branch of the State. Article X, Section 6 makes the legislature responsible for providing services to the unorganized borough through a maximum of local participation and responsibility. In fact, it is the executive branch which provides the services but withouth any local input. The recommendations developed by the C&RA Committees especially the development of service areas along REAA boundaries would simplify things greatly. However, there needs to exist both a means of making local concerns know to the executive branch and a means of recourse for local concerns which are impacted upon by executive branch executive decisions.

I want to thank you for the opportunity to sound off. Furthermore, I apologize for all the typing errors as I ran out of correcting ribbons for my typewriter.

Sincerely,

Robert S. Juettner
City Administrator

Dear Gentlemen;

We wish to give our full suport to the issue on Capitol Foundation fund. We find it very helpful to our situation because we don't have very much in matching costs to our capitol projects.

Right now we are trying to get funds to build a Cultural Facility but we don't have matching costs. If it is possible, we will introduce the amounts we are trying to get and the matching costs.

We have other capitol projects we would like to get on, but don't have funding.

If we have to fill out forms or questionaires to get those funds, Please don't hesitate to send them to us.

With our support,

TITLE 29 REVISION

PROPOSAL FOR RECALL

October 20, 1980

29.30.210 Recall. An application for a petition for the recall of an elected official of a home rule or general law municipality may be filed with the municipal clerk after the official has served six months of the term for which elected or appointed.

(This revision clarifies the dates to be used in determining when the six months period has run; it also adds officials who are appointed to elected positions.)

29.30.220 Grounds. Grounds for recall are

(1) violation of an ordinance, law, or regulation made applicable to the official by his candidacy for or holding of such elected office,

(2) judicially declared incompetence arising out of a medical or mental condition, or

(3) failure to perform a duty of the office prescribed by ordinance, law, or regulation.

(This revision retains the present grounds but attempts to remove some of the ambiguities of the present language.)

29.30.230 Application for Petition. (a) An application for a petition to recall an elected official shall be filed with the municipal clerk.

(b) The application shall contain

(1) the signatures and resident addresses of at least ten qualified voters of the municipality as sponsors,

(2) the address to which all correspondence relating to the application may be sent,

(3) a statement in 200 words or less of the grounds of recall stated with particularity as to specific instances, including reference to the pertinent ordinance, law, regulation, or judicial decree.

(This section requires a submission of an application to the clerk for a petition for recall. As provided in a later section, the clerk will provide the recall petition forms. The application procedure is necessary as a part of a new, proposed procedure whereby the official who is the subject of the petition will be given an opportunity to have his statement answering the accusation placed upon the petition before it is circulated.)

29.30.240 Petition. (a) If the municipal clerk determines that the application meets the requirements of §230, he shall submit a copy of the application to the officer who is the subject of the application.

(b) The officer shall have ten days from receipt of the application to provide the clerk with a statement of 200 words or less which shall be placed on the petition with the statement of the grounds for recall.

(c) The municipal clerk shall prepare a recall petition for circulation by the sponsors. A petition shall contain

(1) the name of the officer sought to be recalled,

(2) the statement of the grounds for recall as set forth in the application,

(3) the statement of the officer sought to be recalled, if provided,

(4) the date the petition is first issued by the clerk,

(5) a statement that the signatures on the petition must be secured within 60 days of the date first issued,

(6) spaces for the required signatures, the printed name of each person signing the petition, the date of each signature, and both the resident and mailing address of each signer,

(7) a statement to be signed and sworn to by the circulator stating the number of signatures on the petition page or pages, that the circulator personally circulated the page or pages, that all signatures were affixed in his presence, that he believes them to be genuine signatures of the persons whose names they purport to be, that each signer had an opportunity before signing to read the grounds for recall and the statement of the official printed on the petition, and that he believes each signer to be a qualified municipal voter.

(This section is part of the application-petition procedure and sets forth requirements similar to those proposed under the initiative and referendum procedures as it relates to petition content.)

29.30.250 Required Signatures. (a) Every petition shall be signed by a number of registered voters residing within the territorial limits of the municipality equal to 25 percent of the number of votes cast in the municipality at the last state general or primary election which was held on or prior to the date of the first issuance of the petition. The necessary signatures on the petition shall be secured within 60 days of the date the clerk first issues the petition.

(b) Illegible signatures shall be rejected by the clerk unless accompanied by a legible printed name. Signatures not accompanied by a legible residence address shall be rejected.

(c) A petition signer may withdraw his signature upon written application to the clerk at any time prior to certification of the petition by the clerk.

(d) The petition pages shall be assembled and filed as a single instrument within 60 days of the date of first issuance of the petition.

(This continues the current 60 day signature gathering period. It also clarifies the election which is to be used as a standard for determining the number of signatures required. It is proposed that a state election be used. Prior to the 1972 revision of Title 29, the last gubernatorial election was the standard.)

29.30.260 Sufficiency of Petition. (a) Within ten days of the date the petition is file, the municipal clerk shall certify on the petition whether or not it is sufficient.

(b) If the petition is insufficient, it may be supplemented within ten days with additional signatures which are obtained within ten days after the date on which the petition is rejected. If the petition is insufficient for any other reason, it shall be rejected and filed as a public record.

(c) Within ten days after the supplementary filing, the clerk shall recertify the petition. If it is still insufficient, the petition is rejected and filed as a public record.

(The only significant change to the corresponding section of the present law is that the proposed section makes it clear that signatures for the supplementary filing must be those which are gathered during the ten day period after the petition is first rejected.)

29.30.270 New Application. The rejection of a petition for failure to contain sufficient signatures or for any other reason does not preclude the filing of a new application for a recall petition. However, a new application may not be filed sooner than six months after a petition is rejected.

(The only significant change is to prohibit a new petition if the prior petition was rejected for any reason in addition to rejection for insufficient signatures.)

29.30.280 Submission. If a recall petition is sufficient, the clerk shall submit it to the assembly or council at its next regular meeting.

(No significant change.)

29.30.290 Challenge of Petition. (a) The officer who is the subject of a recall petition submitted to the assembly or council may, within 30 days of the date the petition is filed with the assembly or council, file an action in the superior court for a determination of any of the following questions:

(1) Whether any of the grounds for recall stated are not grounds under §220.

(2) Whether any of the acts alleged do not constitute one or more of the permitted and alleged grounds.

(3) Whether one or more of the accepted signatures should be rejected.

(b) Upon a finding that any of the acts alleged do not constitute a permissible and alleged ground or that any grounds alleged are not grounds set forth in §220 or that sufficient accepted signatures should have been rejected to cause the petition to be insufficient, or for any other reason which the court finds appropriate, the court shall order the petition rejected and shall order the name of the officer subject to the rejected petition to be removed from the ballot.

(c) If an officer who is the subject of a recall petition submitted to the assembly or council files suit under this section, no recall election may be held for the officer who has filed the suit nor for any other officer who is the subject of a recall petition until after the time for appeal of the superior court judgment has passed.

29.30.300 Election. (a) If a regular election occurs within 75 days, but not sooner than 40 days of the later of either the submission of a certified petition or the passage of the time for appeal of a judgment in a suit filed under §290, the assembly or council shall submit the recall at that election.

(b) If no regular election will occur within such time, the assembly or council shall hold a special election within 75 days, but not sooner than 40 days after, the later of the submission of a certified petition or the expiration of the time for the appeal of a judgment of a suit brought under §290.

(c) If a vacancy occurs in the office after a sufficient recall petition is filed with the clerk, the petition shall not be submitted to the voters. However, the assembly or council may not appoint to such a vacancy the officer who resigns from that office after a sufficient recall petition is filed.

(The 40 day minimum was added to insure that a petition submitted after the legal notices of the election were published would not complicate the election and that the election would not be held before the 30 days during which the official has to file suit. Added in section (c) is the prohibition against the appointment of an officer who resigns after a sufficient recall petition is filed.)

29.30.310 Form of Recall Ballot. A recall ballot shall contain:

(1) the grounds as stated in 200 words or less in the recall petition;

(2) the officer's statement of 200 words or less if the statement is filed with the clerk for publication and public inspection within 20 days before the election, otherwise the statement of the officer, if any, which appeared in the recall petition;

(3) the following question: "Shall (name of person) be recalled from the office of (office)? Yes [ ] No [ ]".

(The only significant change is to make reference to the fact that the statement of the grounds is limited to 200 words and also to provide that the statement of the officer which was used in the recall petition will appear on the ballot unless the officer provides a different statement.)

29.30.320 Election Procedure. Procedures for conducting a recall election are those of a regular municipal election if the question is submitted at a regular election; otherwise, the procedures shall be those applicable to a special municipal election.

(This section was changed to make reference to special election procedures if the election is a special election.)

29.30.330 Majority Required. A majority of those voting on the question must vote in favor of recall to recall an officer. Only those voters in the district or area which elects the officer may vote on the recall of the officer.

(This merely restates in different language the majority vote requirement. The section also adds a new sentence which makes it clear that if the officer is elected by the voters of a district, then only the voters in that district will vote on the recall question.)

29.30.340 Effect. If a majority of those voting on the question vote to recall the officer, the officer's seat shall become vacant immediately upon certification of the result of the election on the question. If an incumbent is not recalled at the recall election, a new application for a recall petition on the same incumbent may not be filed sooner than six months after the date of the certification of the recall election.

(The first sentence is added to this section to make it clear precisely when a recalled officer looses his seat. The second sentence has been slightly changed to peg the commencement of the six month period as the date of certification of the election results.)

29.30.350 Successors. (a) If one or more officers are recalled from an assembly or council, the assembly or council, by the affirmative vote of a majority of the remaining members, may appoint qualified persons to fill any vacancy created by the recall.

(b) If all members of the assembly or council are recalled, the governor shall appoint at least three qualified persons to the assembly or council. Such appointees, by an affirmative vote of a majority of the appointees, shall appoint such additional members as are required to fill any remaining vacancies.

(c) If one or more officers are recalled from a school board or from a body created by the assembly or council, then the assembly or council may appoint such qualified persons as it deems necessary to fill any vacancy created by the recall.

(d) A person appointed to fill a vacancy under sections (a) through (c) shall serve until a successor is elected, qualified, and takes office.

(e) If the voters recall an officer, the clerk shall conduct an election for a successor to fill the unexpired term. The election shall be held at least ten but not more than 60 days from the date of the certification of the recall election. However, if a regular or special election occurs within 75 days of the certification of the recall election, and the certification occurs at least 20 days prior to the latest date upon which first notice of the election must be published, the successor to the recalled official shall be chosen at that regular or special election. The procedures and requirements for the regular election for the office from which the incumbent is recalled apply to the election conducted under this section; provided, nominations may be filed until the later of seven days before the latest date upon which first notice of the election must be published or the deadline for the filing of nominations for regular elections. Nominations may not be filed before the certification of the recall election.

(Sections (a) through (d) are new and are submitted to prevent a local government from having to attempt to operate without a quorum of elected officers. Section (e) was changed to take into account times required for election notice and nominations.)

Dear Sir:

It has come to my attention that the second class cities and unincorporated village governments in the Bristol Bay Region will experience severe problems in meeting the September 20, 1980 deadline for mailing completed State Revenue Sharing applications to qualify for the $25,000 minimum entitlement provided for in the new law revising the State Revenue Sharing Program. It has further come to my attention that applications were only recently mailed to general law municipalities and that applications for traditional governing councils have yet to be mailed.

The September 20th time deadline is further compounded by the problem that many of the villages in our region are currently unaware of the provision in the new law which provides state aid to eligible governments recognized under the Alaska Native Claims Settlement Act. Another very real problem is the frequency of mail delivery service, which is sporatic at best, to many of the villages in the more remote areas.

A lot of work on the part of rural legislators went into FCCHB 192 reforming the State Revenue Sharing Program to include state aid to unincorporated governments and the $25,000 minimum entitlement provision for small rural municipalities with no tax base.

With the September 20th deadline for mailing applications just around the corner, it appears that many local governments that could take advantage of the new State Revenue Sharing program will be unable to do so. I would encourage your department to strongly consider extending the deadline to allow more local governments desperately in need of such monies to have the time to properly complete the application process.

Thank you.

Dear Senator Sturgulewski,

Back at the beginning of the summer, I attended a meeting called by the Division of Community Planning. It was a "loose meeting" in that the agenda was flexible and covered many areas and concerns. Somewhere in the meeting, we touched upon the changes proposed by the Community & Regional Affairs Committees. If I am not mistaken, everyone agreed that the committees were on the right track especially in regards to the establishment of service areas following REAA boundaries.

Well, it seems that those of us living in the "bush" know more about what happens in Juneau than some of the state employees living and working there. For example, the Dept. of Health & Social Services just unveiled a plan whereby the communities of Holy Cross, Anvik, Shageluk and Grayling which are all in the Iditarod Area School District, REAA 11, will now receive there public health nurse services from Bethel. Ms Lois Bergerson decided that those people would be better served from Bethel than McGrath. Was there any local input from those communities? Was any consideration given to the fact that those people are Athabascans and not Yupiks? Did anyone think to explore the logic behind the boundaries of REAA 11? The answer to all three questions is no. However, Ms Bergerson is adamant that the changes will take effect on Sept. 1 irregardless of any protests.

It is my firm hope that when the Legislature convenes in January, that the Community & Regional Affairs Committees will reintroduce the same package of bills.

Dear Commissioner McAnerney:

This letter is in response to your June letter requesting comments on the Title 29 Municipal Government Code Revision authorized under Senate Concurrent Resolution No. 66. As indicated by our prior correspondence, we are greatly interested in this area and wish to submit the following comments to be used in the Title 29 revision project.

RECOGNITION OF TRADITIONAL GOVERNMENTS

Local government in rural Alaska is extremely complex. This complexity is primarily due to the vast number of board, commissions, municipal corporations, ANCSA Native Village corporations, town site trusts, recognized entities for municipal trust lands, IRA councils, traditional councils, etc. For sometime TCC has been in favor of local government simplification. The problems of local government should not be addressed through the creation of new boards, commissions, corporate bodies, or new forms of municipal government. Rather, rural local government should be reorganized to utilize existing bodies and enhance those bodies. The introduction of new and novel forms of government may only lead to confusion as rural residents attempt to deal with their local governmental matters.

In connection with this policy of local government simplification, we believe it is important to fulfill the constitutional guarantee that the legislature shall provide for performance of services that it deems necessary or advisible in the unorganized borough and allow for maximum local participation and responsibility. This policy is substantially analogous to the federal policy of self-determination.

To meet these two basic policies, we feel it is necessary that the state of Alaska recognize the traditional governments which currently operate in Alaska. Such recognition will do several things. First, it will allow for the coordination of the funds currently available to local communities from sources other than the state, i.e., BIA, HUD, various CETA programs, etc.

To some degree this issue has already been addressed in the recognition of traditional governments for revenue sharing purposes. We feel, however, that more cooperation is needed between the state and these traditional governmental forms to fully realize maximum local participation and responsibility. To implement this, we favor such legislation as S.B. 565 introduced last session.

By extending such recognition to existing village and community organizations, we believe that rural government will be substantially enhanced. The recognition of such existing bodies will obviate the necessity for the specialized advisory committees, specialized service areas and boards and substantially contribute to local government simplification in the currently unorganized areas of rural Alaska. In addition, such recognition will fulfill the constitutional guarantee of maximum local participation and responsibility.

DECENTRALIZATION OF STATE SERVICES

It is sometimes difficult even for Alaskans to fully comprehend the geographical immenseness of Alaska. An appreciation of the sheer size of Alaska cannot be achieved through casual reference to a map. A full appreciation of Alaska's geographical size can only be appreciated by traversing this great land through conventional transportation systems. To the rural resident, this means being dependent on urban based state service personnel located at various sites throughout the state. Seldom is it possible for the rural resident to contact a state agency locally or even make a single phone call to a single urban government office to solve any problem. The urban Alaskan faces a similar problem in having to rely on state personnel based in other urban centers.

In both the rural and urban contexts, the root problem is the economy of scale. It is simply not economically feasible to establish free standing state agencies at the local level. The administrative cost to establish such programs would be enormous, but the need for decentralized state services is evident. State services should be available in the areas of need. State services should be available at a local level in all localities of the state to the extent that this is feasible. This problem can only be solved through the cooperation of local and state governments to provide maximum local services. This cooperation can be achieved by allowing the local governments to contract for the providing of state services. Basically, this will allow the merger of local and state program administration and allow a maximum amount of direct state financing directed toward program operations. Additionally, it is perceived that such cooperation would make the operation of state programs more responsive to local needs and desires.

It should be remembered, however, that the legislature under this theory will retain ultimate policy decision-making authority. It is only the administration of state and local programs which will be affected. Additionally, it should be recognized that not all state programs can be effectively decentralized, nor is it desirable that all state programs be decentralized. Rather, it is important that those state programs which are technically capable of being decentralized and for which there is a stated need and desire for local program operation shbuld be decentralized through contracting.

LOCAL GOVERNMENT CONSORTIUMS

During the last legislature, several bills were produced out of the interim work of the Senate and House Community and Regional Affairs Joint Local Government Study of 1979. These bills recognized the need for coordinated regional planning.

Last February, TCC submitted comments on this legislation. At that time, we stated that existing local governments should be used as much as possible and that regional concerns can best be addressed through consortiums of existing governments.

Consortiums are advisable for a number of reasons. First, they would be entirely voluntary. The committee hearings fairly indicated strong opposition to "mandatory" regional organization. Second, consortiums could easily coordinate existing programs allowing for current program and plan continuity. Third, a consortium would not create a new independent regional entity and, thus, it would be possible to avoid the type of intergovernmental conflicts which characteristically exist between boroughs and included cities. Finally, the consortium would be governed by a flexible agreement between communities. Such agreements could be flexible enough to address unique regional variations found within each area. In addition, a community's participation would be voluntary, and, therefore, presumably supported by the local community.

The arrangements which we propose are currently authorized under Article X, §13 of the Alaska Constitution which allows local governments to enter into compacts for the joint administration of functions and powers. What is needed is clarification of the permissible scope and impact of these agreements, and new legislation which would allow such consortiums to jointly exercise authority outside of their existing local boundaries.

Conceivably, these consortiums would do three things. First, they would provide for coordinated administration of local governments. By splitting costs and sharing staff, the consortiums could provide a higher quality of service at a reduced cost, where the fragmented governments that now exist cannot operate. Second, the consortiums could address regional concerns, provide a forum for expressing those concerns, and advise state agencies on regional needs and desires.

Third, they would jointly exercise those powers which they agree to jointly exercise outside their current respective boundaries, or within existing boundaries, upon consent of the respective municipal governments.

STATE SUPPORT OF LOCAL AUTHORITY

There are a number of disincentives to a rural municipal government which wishes to exercise its municipal authority. For example, a rural community which passes an ordinance, may not be able to enforce it. If a city attempts to enforce its ordinances, it is subject to substantial liability under current tort law. Where a civil plaintiff or criminal defendant often have free legal assistance available, a city has severely limited funding available to enforce its ordinances or defend against civil complaints. If a city looses a civil suit, the resulting judgment could bankrupt the city or substantially incumber future revenues. In this atmosphere, it is impossible to expect a responsible city official to fully exercise the local government functions.

It is important that the state assist rural municipal government if it is to succeed. Many of the problems can be addressed in Title 29 itself. For example, municipal liability can be reduced to acceptable levels by enactment of a rule raising the standard of municipal tort liability for only those official acts involving "wanton and willful" conduct rather than mere negligence alone. Municipal ordinances and regulations can be assimilated into state law to allow state prosecution of local violations. Such assimilation could be dependent upon compliance with a model municipal code enacted by regulation or dependent on approval of the attorney general's office or Department of Community and Regional Affairs. Communities enacting nonapproved regulations and ordinances, however, should still be able to enforce them in the conventional manner.

Initially, such a system seems expensive to implement. It should be noted, however, that the state is expanding its criminal justice presence in rural Alaska. The proposed Bush Justice Corrections Plan would provide the basic infrastructure required by the above model. In light of these developments, the above model is a minor addition to the planned infrastructure.

IMPLEMENTATION OF LOCAL INPUT

Often local governments and state agencies are not coordinated. Most notably, state land disposals have often conflicted with local land use/development plans. State law generally favors local control or at least local input in the organized areas of the state. In the unorganized areas of the state, however, the state agencies seem to dominate. This exists in spite of the constitutional promise of maximized local participation. We, therefore, propose that some mechanism be inserted into law to provide for fuller local participation.

Three alternatives exist. First, an administrative restraint may be placed on agencies' actions. Specifiically, a community or consortium must agree to agency actions/plans affecting the community or consortium. In the absence of such consent, the agency would have to show, in a locally neutral administrative hearing, that the best interest of the state requires such agency action/plan.

A second alternative would be a planning restraint on the agencies. The communities or consortiums would produce regional plans with which the agencies must comply. Without compliance, the agencies would have to get a waiver from the community or consortium or proceed through a local neutral hearing.

Third, a political mechanism could be established. State law could require agencies to have local plans/actions approved by a local hearing officer at a local hearing. This would allow affected communities and consortiums an opportunity to provide input and hopefully influence agency actions in their areas.

We hope that you find the above comments useful, and that these concerns find their way into the planned Title 29 revisions. We will be glad to respond to any questions regarding the above proposals and plan to augment these comments as needed.

RE: FCCSHB947

Being aware that you will be involved in the revision of Title 29, as per the requirements of CSSCR66 which directs the Alaska Legislative Council to review the Municipal Government statutes, I want to call your attention to an area of law, enacted by the Eleventh Legislature as FCCSHB947, which you will want to address during the course of your revision. In the haste of the last days of legislative activity, the following omissions went unnoticed when the Free Conference version of the bill was adopted.

Section 9 AS 29.23.025 (e) outlines the procedures to be followed if a reapportionment ordinance has not been approved by the voters after the assembly has determined that reapportionment is necessary. The law does not address what happens to the order--is it voted on by the people? Can the order be appealed? Is administrative or judicial review provided for?

In Section 29.23.029 and Section 29.23.031 there should be additional statutory references providing for judicial review and relief in all applicable instances and referencing all applicable voter approved ordinances and reapportionment orders under Sec. 031.

Both the draftsman, Jack Chenoweth, and Ginny Chitwood of the Municipal League which will be involved in the revision of Title 29 are familiar with the problems in the Free Conference law and would be able to answer any questions.

Elsie O'Brien (Houston city clerk) to Arliss Sturgulewski

(1) AS 29.28.190, recall provisions --

Should consider adding a requirement that the city council and city officials perform, with reference to recall petitions, within a time certain

(2) AS 29.63.090 -- service areas within boroughs

The Mat-Su borough loaned money to a road service area, apparently on promise of repayment within fiscal year, but without approval of the apparent indebtedness by voters of the affected service area. Should consider legislation to require that such debts are subject to prior approval by voters within service area.

General observation with respect to Title 29 -- would like greater information within the text of the ~~statute~~ volume. (This is probably not possible because of the strict format relating to what may be annotated. However, perhaps CRA Department should receive an amount so that each year, for small cities, a loose-leaf form of Title 29 may be prepared or updated which carries changes in law, applicable commentary, case decisions, AG opinion texts, etc. supplied by the Dept on a quarterly basis. -- The cities could reimburse for the service, or for a portion of it.)

Re: Recommendations for changes in Title 29
To Title 29 Policy Committee

Gentlemen:

At the request of Mayor Paukan I am submitting the following comments on some of the provisions of Title 29 that the City would like to see changed. The provisions I have commented upon are those that have proved somewhat troublesome during my duration as City Manager. There are no doubt many other provisions that require change.

29.23.570 VACANCIES: This year the City had one councilman leave town without resigning before departure. The City needed to fill the vacancy quickly. None of the provisions of 29.23.570 were helpful. However, 29.23.200 provides that a councilman who ceases to be a city voter immediately forfeits his office. The Council used this provision to justify filling the vacancy immediately. This provision of section 23.200 should be included under section 23.570

29.23.070 and 29.43.040 PLANNING, PLATTING AND ZONING The mandatory language of this section should be permissive. The wisdom of comprehensive plans and complicated zoning requirements are still subject to professional debate and Cities should have the option to develop other methods of control.

29.48.190 BUDGET AND CAPITAL PROGRAM Subsection (c) is unclear with respect to the procedures that must be followed to make transfer and supplemental appropriations. The language providing that no payment may be made except in accordance with appropriations may be troublesome in that it could be interpreted to give the City no leeway with respect to spending except though lengthy procedures to amend the budget. The suggested budget ordinance sent each year to municipalities by Community and Regional Affairs is more flexible and preferable but may not be legal under 29.48.190. This section should be changed to permit transfers without budget amendment if less than 10% or $10,000 whichever is less of the orignial appropriation.

29.48.220 POST AUDIT The audit requirement is burdensome for the City. As a first class city we are required to provide a certified audit of city finances. Second class cities need only submit certified financial statements prepared by the city bookkeeper. The City obtains little advantage and no tangible benefit from this requirement. The only people who review the audit are from DCRA. The audit requirement should not be tied to city class. Rather, the requirement should depend upon the size of the budget. It is the amount of money the city spends that justifies audits. Financial statements should be sufficient for cities with budgets less than one million

29.48.260 MUNICIPAL PROPERTIES I consider this to be the most troublesome provision in Title 29 for rural communities. Through the Department of Community and Regional Affairs the City has requested an Attorney General's opinion on some of the requirements of this provision and has recently received a Community Legal Assistance Grant to determine the effect the statute has on land disposal in St. Mary's. First the requirement of appraisals on land before disposal are difficult when most rural land is difficult if not impossible to appraise because comparable sales do not exist. Public auctions may cause the price of land to escalate beyond the means of local residents to afford, and may inhibit local residents who do not speak english from participating in auctions. The words "if any" in subsection (c)(3) seem to indicate public auction or sealed bids are optional but this is not clear. Cities should have the option of developing disposal procedures appropriate to its locality. Such procedures should be ratified by the voters.

I can see no reason for subjecting leases of City land to the same requirements that attach to sales of city land. This unduly restricts the City's ability to make land available for new businesses.

It is not clear whether the exception developed in subsection (e) is free from the requirements of prior appraisal and public auction or sealed bid.

29.68.010 LOCAL BOUNDARY COMMISSION The City recently annexed an adjacent community into its boundary. In order to facilitate the annexation the City wanted to and did make major concessions to the citizens of the adjacent community with respect to a voice in City affairs. Technically what the City has done is not legal because the annexation is not finalized until 45 days after the next legislative session has begun. The delay in time between the decision of the Local Boundary Comm'n. and the legislative disapproval time is unnecessary and can lead to legal complications. Since the legislature has never disapproved a Boundary Commission decision it seems this requirement of submission to the legislature has little utility. A workable alternative might be to preserve a right to appeal a boundary commission decision to the legislature.

I am delighted to see the efforts to review Title 29. I hope it produces some beneficial results. I trust these comments will prove helpful.

Sincerely,

CITY OF ST. MARY'S

AREAS OF AS 29 (MUNICIPAL CODE) REQUIRING ATTENTION

DICTATED 7/29/80 BUT NOT READ

BY GERALD L. SHARP

The use of the word election throughout the code should be examined with the eye to eliminating all those references to "general" election where it was meant to refer to a municipal election. Where a state general election was meant, the word "state" should be added.

AS 29.08.010, 29.13.010 and 100, and 29.78.010(1)(2)(8)

A careful reading of the code indicates that a unified unit of home rule local government is not a municipality. Under these sections, it is not a home rule municipality. If this was the intent, it should be clarified in the definitions. Along this same line, all sections which apply to home rule boroughs and home rule cities should be reviewed to determine whether they should also apply to unified units.

AS 29.08.020

An interpretive guide should be provided for the court so that it does not seize upon this section to revive Dillon's Rule.

AS 29.13.100

The effect of the phrase "acting otherwise than as provided" should be examined to determine whether this phrase means that a home rule municipality may do neither more nor less than is prescribed for home rule municipalities. See the Whitson case.

AS 29.18.130

We should probably address REAA's under this section.

AS 29.18.140(a)(b)

This section implies that a newly incorporated city or borough may succeed a home rule or previously incorporated general law city or borough. Was this meant?

AS 29.[illegible].180

Organizational grants under this section appear to be inadequate.

AS 29.18.330

The resident training and hire preference should be examined for constitutionality.

AS 29.23.060(a)

This section implies that there may be no special meetings if any member is not notified.

AS 29.23.060(d)

Some consideration should be given to reducing the quorum voting requirement by one vote for every two members of the body who are present who do not vote because they either have a conflict of interest or have been excused by the legislative body.

AS 29.23.070

This section seems to provide an unnecessary infringement of the chief administrator's prerogatives in appointing department heads.

AS 29.23.080

This section should be checked to determine whether it tracts with the new procedures on reapportionment as it relates to council appointments and dual seats.

AS 29.23.040 et. seq.

The residency requirements, terms of officers, powers, duties, and the procedures for the changing of terms and qualifications of officers as these relate to the mayor, council, and assembly memebers should be uniform as between a city and a borough.

AS 29.23.210

Does this require four votes on a procedural motion? This language should parallel the similar provisions for boroughs and both should be clarified as to whether there is a distinction between procedural and substantive motions.

AS 29.23.310

Reference within this section to repeal Section 100 should be corrected.

AS 29.23.340(d)

Perhaps this section should be clarified to permit the board to set rates.

AS 29.23.360

My question why there appears to be authority for the assembly or council to appoint administrative officers such as the treasurer and chief of police who do not serve the council or the assembly but must respond to the chief administrative officer.

AS 29.23.370

I question whether there may not be a conflict of interest for an attorney to provide legal advice to both the legislative and administrative branches. Perhaps, there should be a specific extension of the authority of the legislative body to retain its own legal counsel. Next, I question whether there isn't a conflict of interest for the clerk to serve two different masters, the legislative body, and the chief administrator.

AS 29.23.395 through .401

This sort of specific legislation ought to be deleted. If some sort of authority of this sort is required, it should be addressed in the general grant of powers.

AS 29.23.470

I question why the manager has no authority to appoint a temporary or interim manager during his own temporary absence.

AS 29.23.480

I suggest that the adoption of an ordinance at the very next meeting after the repeal of a manager plan is expecting too much of any council or assembly considering the careful deliberation which should be given to the reorganization.

AS 29.23.540

The seriousness of the conflict of interest which exists when an employee of the school board serves on the body which determines the school boards budget but is not lessened in any way by the existence of subsection (c) of this section. This section should be repealed. (Sour grapes on my part, perhaps.) Also, it appears that this section would permit a person working in the grants section of the Department of Community and Regional Affairs to serve on an assembly or a council.

AS 29.28.015

I question why the mayor in a manager type municipality should not be permitted to be a member of the legislative body so long as he does not have the veto power. This seems to be something that should be left to local option.

AS 29.28.030

It is not clear, under this section, how one deals with a person who has been present within the municipality for more than 30 days but who does not register with the state of Alaska until four days before the election. It appears they might be qualified to vote in the municipal election as they will certainly be qualified to vote in the next state election.

AS 29.28.080(a)

This section implies that the initiative ordinance or resolution must be something within the power of the assembly or council and must not fall within the restrictions of Section 60; however, it appears that the assembly or council may reject the initiative only if it is within the restrictions of Section 60. I also believe that this section should be tightened up to make it clear that the initiative process may not be used to take what are essentially administrative actions even though the assembly or council itself may take such actions by ordinance or resolution.

AS 29.28.110

This section establishes an observed public policy and should be modified to parallel the more liberal provisions which we find in our state constitution.

This section should be clarified to indicate whether a re-elected official may be recalled within six months within of his second election.

AS 29.28.140

This section should be changed to make it clear that elected officials may not be recalled for the manner in which they exercised a duty, e.g., the way they vote on a particular issue, but that they can be recalled for having voted on an issue on which they are prohibited from voting. They could be recalled for refusing to vote when they had neither a conflict nor been excused from voting. They could be recalled for failing to file a report required of individual public officials. They could not be recalled for having voted in favor of doing something prescribed by law nor could they be recalled for voting against doing something which is required by law.

AS 29.28.150

Some thought should be given to clarifying this section to require that the name of each elected official appear on a separate petition and not be on the same petition with any other elected official. The statement of the grounds should also be limited to 200 words.

AS 29.28.160

Either the clerk or the assembly or council should be given specific authority to review the petition for more than merely the superficial contents requirements. This determination should also go to whether or not the ground stated, if true, constitute grounds for repeal.

AS 29.28.170

I question why petitioners should have an additional ten days to gather signatures. Why not give them 70 days to begin with or just cut them off at 60. If the petitioners cannot do some of the leg work themselves of determining how many valid signatures they have collected, there seems to be little in public policy to require they be given an additional ten days for their sloppiness or inadequate performance.

AS 29.28.200(c)

If a public official who is the subject of a sufficient recall petition resigns prior to the election, and his name

[illegible] recall ballot. [illegible] appointed to his position by the remaining members prior to the recall election? May he be reappointed after the recall election?

AS 29.28.210

If we permit one petition to contain more than one name, how should the names appear on the ballot, separately so that the voters may express their desires as to each public official individually or should there be a single ballot giving the voters the same choice which the petitioners gave the petition signers, i.e., all or none?

AS 29.28.250

What happens when an entire assembly, city council, or school board are recalled? There should be some mechanism for providing for an interim legislative body.

AS 29.33.010

Some place here, and perhaps other sections, we should deal with the almost impossible antitrust situation which the United States Supreme Court cast upon us in its Lafayette decision.

AS 29.33.050

While the section is drafted so that it uses parallel verbs, I believe the "establishes, maintains, and operates" phrase should be changed to read "and shall establish, maintain, and operate."

AS 29.33.080(e)

Consideration should also be given here to reducing the majority vote requirement where there are two or more members of the commission who are present but do not vote because of a conflict of interest or because they have been excused by the remaining members.

AS 29.33.085(b)

The requirement that the commission present new recommendations on a comprehensive plan every two years should be redrafted so that it does not appear that the continued validity of the zoning ordinance is dependent upon such a review and so that it does not appear that there is any pursuant to a comprehensive plan which has not been reviewed for more than two years. Also, it may not hurt to throw in some sort of language within the planning and zoning article to make it clear that the adoption of any zoning map change is a legislative and discretionary act and is not administrative as some state supreme courts seem to believe.

AS 29.33.110(b)(1)

I strongly suggest that we not make the Board of Adjustment the board which hears appeals from building code enforcement actions. Some municipalities may prefer to place building code enforcement under some other department such as public works. The authority of the Board of Adjustment to hear building code appeals should be optional with the municipality. Also, whether the assembly or council sits as the Board of Adjustment should also be optional with the municipality.

AS 29.33.110(b)(3)

It is not clear what the phrase "which are not contrary to the public interest" modifies, "the zoning ordinance," or "variances from the terms of the zoning ordinance," or "requests....".

AS 29.33.120

It appears that a person may file for a variance or conditional use, be denied that application, and yet proceed with the denied use if they appeal to the Board of Adjustment because the appeal, under the terms of this section, stays any enforcement where imminent peril is not involved.

AS 29.33.130(b)

I question whether the legislature, and more particularly an assembly, has any authority to establish what the court may well consider as a procedural rule relating to establishing the time within which one may file an appeal to the superior court.

AS 29.33.150

It might be wise to indicate in this section that the platting board has authority to require subdivision exactions.

I suggest it be made clear in here that adequate access does not include access over other privately owned land by way of an easement in favor of the applicant. Adequate access consists solely of access by dedicated or publicly owned ways.

AS 29.33.150(b) and AS 29.33.160(c)

These sections need to be revised out of the code.

AS 29.33.190

This section needs to be beefed up by incorporating administrative procedures to prevent the recording of instruments which create unlawful subdivisions.

AS 29.33.200

This section needs to be coordinated with the procedures under the condemnation sections of Title 9 which require the state to submit its property acquisitions in condemnation proceedings to the platting board.

AS 29.33.240

I question why a second class city located outside an organized borough may obtain title to vacated ways if they intend to use the way for some other public purpose, while within an organized borough the property goes to the abutting owner. I also wonder why parks, greenbelts, and other areas which are vacated are split between abutting property owners while the title to a public square vest in a municipality upon vacation.

AS 29.41.010

Perhaps the idea of third class boroughs should be re-examined.

AS 29.48.010

I question the need for such subsections as (1)(2)(3) and (5) as these all seem to relate to internal administrative matters which are clearly within the authority of the municipality. Some of these sound more like delegations of authority to a specific branch within the municipality. Also, I should be a catch-all grant clause. Also, [illegible] should or could be added to this section to clarify the authority of the municipality to establish and enforce liens for the collection of sales taxes. There might also be a section clearly authorizing the municipality to establish both minimum and non-suspendible penalties for violation of municipal ordinances.

AS 29.48.030

This may be the appropriate section to deal with the Lafayette antitrust problems. Under subsection (b), someone to check to determine whether the reference to the Alaska Transportation Commission makes sense in the light of SB 577 (sorry, I do not have the bill with me as I dictate this).

AS 29.48.033

Again, I do not have the 1980 legislation which effected state regulatory authority over cable television, transportation services, and garbage disposal but I believe what the legislature (industry) did should be carefully reviewed.

AS 29.48.050

I question whether there is any justified public policy behind requiring franchises to be granted by ordinance ratified by the voters. This has serious Lafayette antitrust implications. It seems that a public utility ought to be granted a permit so long as they can show public convenience and necessity.

AS 29.48.070, .080, and .090

The idea of a council or assembly sitting through a protracted rate setting hearing is preposterous. Any hearing which the ordinary council or assembly would sit still through could not possibly be adequate to justify a rate. Also, it is beyond me why the rates should be established by ordinance.

AS 29.48.100(b)

Not only are the preceeding utility regulations outmoded, it seems ludicrous to have them apply to home rule municipalities.

AS 29.48.110

AS 29 48.110 should be changed to make it clear that a municipality may establish more than a [illegible] district.

AS 29.48.160(b)

If the procedure for regulating utilities and granting franchises has changed, this section should probably also be changed to correspond.

AS 29.48.190(b)

This section seems to imply that a municipality may enter into an obligation to make payments in a future year if it does so by ordinance. If this happens, I think you have a debt which must have first been approved by the voters and be for a capital improvement.

AS 29.48.200

The fine limitation and the imprisonment limitation both need to be raised. In addition, this may be the appropriate place to specifically authorize municipalities to establish both minimum fines and imprisonments and to provide clear authority for municipalities to make certain penalties non-suspendible.

AS 29.48.210

This section is a good example of the need to carefully distinguish between boroughs and cities on the one hand and unified units on the other. In any event, I believe this section should be changed to permit the expenditure of areawide revenues on a non-areawide basis.

AS 29.48.250

Since our supreme court seems to believe that a borough may not require central purchasing to include a school district, this section does not appear to have much, if any need. It should be deleted, as I believe this power is already possessed by a municipality.

AS 29.48.260

I believe the exemption which is set forth in (d) should be expanded to incompass any land which the municipality disposes of.

AS 29.48.270(b)(c)

These two sections do not seem to have anything to do with the catch line nor with the two remaining subsections. I am not sure why (b) is required in the first place unless it is to make the transfer of this one power optional rather than mandatory as required under AS 29.33.260. These two sections should be moved to a section dealing with a general grant of powers or with the transfer of powers.

AS 29.48.310, 320, and 330

Although these three sections seem to be very comprehensive, it appears that our courts prefer a contrary rule. Either we need to strengthen the language in these sections or we need to print up a Miranda Rights Card which we can read to the judge every time we go into court over a municipal powers question.

AS 29.53.010

Again the problem of how this is to apply to unified units of government; also, this section should be changed to permit the use of areawide revenues on a non-areawide basis.

AS 29.53.020(a)(1)

Some place in the code we need to deal with the method of valuing privately held interests in tax exempt property.

AS 29.53.020(a)(3)

A number of problems arise from the lack of definitions of terms such as religious, charitable, educational, and perhaps, hospital, which are used in this section. Also, there is a question which arises relating to when a property which is owned by, for example, a religious organization, becomes exempt; for example, does vacant land become exempt when it is first purchased by an exempt organization, when the organization has an intent to devote it to a particular exempt use, when the organization commences construction of a facility which will be used for the exempt purpose even though during construction it is not being used for the exempt purpose? (b)(2)(B)

AS 29.53.030

This section should be revised to reflect a realistic value for mining claims, particularly in light of the recent rise in the price of gold.

AS 29.53.060

Perhaps this is a section in which the valuation of leasehold and other possessory interest in tax exempt property should be exempt.

AS 29.53.135

This section should be clarified to indicate whether a majority of the number of members of the assembly. Also, either here or someplace else in the code, we should specifically address whether or not the Board of Equalization has the authority to determine whether property is exempt, and, if exempt, how much of the property is exempt if it is not totally devoted to the exempt use.

AS 29.53.150

A question arises as to whether property which goes from exempt property on January 1 of the tax year to non-exempt because of a change of use during the tax year can be put on a supplemental roll and taxed. Also, if it can be, should the taxes be a portion? In addition, something should be placed in the code to provide guidance for dealing with personal property which is in the municipality for only a part of the year.

AS 29.53.180

This section should be changed to reflect a reasonable interest rate and a penalty which is substantially above the interest.

AS 29.53.415 and .440

Something needs to be added to these sections to take care of the problem created by the Alaska Supreme Court when it ruled that there was no statutory authority for a general law municipality to establish a lead for sales taxes.

AS 29.73.020

This section needs to be divided into two subsections to separate the procedures for home rule and general law municipalities from those for second class municipalities. Presently, there is some question as to whether the last two sentences of the section apply only to second class cities or whether it applies to all municipalities.

Although an attempt has been made in this Chapter to classify the various kinds of Alaskan municipalities, more recent amendments to Title 29 and unification of several cities and boroughs have resulted in confusion over definitions of "cities", "boroughs", and "municipalities". It is not clear, for instance, whether the unified Municipality of Anchorage is a city, a borough, or unified municipality or all three forms of government within existing provisions of AS 29.

29.13.100

The Code should contain a uniform system for designating statutes that expressly apply to home rule municipalities and all such statutes should be consistently cross referenced.

29.23.050

The statutory residence requirement prescribed in this section is probably invalid. It is suggested that such residence requirements throughout AS 29 be reduced to a maximum of one year.

29.23.060(d)

Circumstances, other than financial interests, which allow a member to abstain should be better defined.

29.23.080

The procedure for determining vacancies under this section conflicts with the procedure established under AS 29.23.570.

29.23.130(B)

Once again, the three residency requirement in this section should probably be reduced to one year to assure its constitutional validity.

29.23.150 and AS 29.23.470

Both require assembly appointment of an acting borough manager in the absence of or disability of the manager. If these sections address different policy questions, they are unclear; if they do not, one should be eliminated as redundant.

29.23.170

This provision does not specify when a veto becomes effective or specify any time limit for the overriding of the veto. Moreover, it does not indicate what is the status of an ordinance between the time its veto is announced and the time the Assembly first has an opportunity to override the veto. For instance, if the mayor vetos a line item in the budget, may expenditures be made under that item until the mayor announces the veto at the next regular assembly meeting, or does the veto immediately strike the item until the veto is overridden?

The three year residency requirement here is probably invalid.

29.23.210

As with the provisions for boroughs, this section should provide more definite standards for abstention on other than conflict of interest grounds.

29.23.250

Another probably invalid three year residency requirement.

29.23.270

This provision has the same ambiguities with regard to the effectiveness of a veto and a veto override as the provision applying to boroughs.

29.23.555

This section has been superceded by AS 39.50.

29.28.070(b)

Reference to "last general election" in this subsection is unclear; considerable confusion has existed in the past over whether the term refers to the last state or municipal election.

29.28.130 et seq

Statutory provisions governing recall contents do not clearly define signature requirements by distinguishing between at large and district forms of representation. AS 29.28070(b) should be redrafted to state required percentages of votes cast for Assemblymen who are elected in districts and who are elected at large.

29.33.070--245

Serious thought should be given to the purpose of the planning, platting and zoning provisions in this code. Should they only prescribe minimum due process standards for rezonings and other land use decisions or should they detail all of the administrative procedures to be followed by local governments in this area. This article presently tries to do little of both and does neither very well.

This section makes it unlawful for any person to sell or attempt to sell land located within a subdivision which has not yet been approved by the borough platting authority and subjects violators to certain criminal sanctions. But AS 29.53.100 requires that the borough assessor assess real property to "the owner of record as shown on the records of the district recorder" even though that person may be the owner of record by virtue of an illegal subdivision in violation of AS 29.33.190. Moreover, AS 29.53 .310 allows persons holding security interest in illegally subdivided lands

29.33.070

It is unclear whether platting powers can be delegated to a second class borough or a city within the borough under this section.

29.33

The current language of this chapter, as it incorporates a traditional definition of zoning and makes zoning along with platting the principal means of land use regulations, is unduly restrictive and should be revised to allow more innovative forms of land use regulation by boroughs and municipalities.

29.33.250

Presumably the transfer required is one from all cities exercising the power rather than from a city.

29.33 and 29.38

Should there be a provision for a borough to exercise a power in some but not all cities (for example in second class cities but not in first class cities)?

29.48.030(b) AS 29.48.035(b) and (c)

These provisions are redundant. The limitations on the powers of second class boroughs should be stated in a more concise fashion in one easily accessible part of the code.

Moreover, AS 29.48.030 and .35, insomuch as those sections distinguish between "regulation" and provision of "municipal facilities and services", are at the very lease confusing and perhaps unnecessary.

Reference to powers granted to second class boroughs to construct and maintain Local Service Roads and Trails under AS 19.30.251 should be made in this section.

Reference to the power granted to local governments to regulate use of public streets, alleys and other public places under AS 42.05.251 should be made in AS 29.48.035 or AS 29.48.020.

29.48.030(a)(12)

The term transportation "system" used in this section should be defined.

29.48.260

Provisions of this section governing disposal of municipal properties should be clarified and revised to reflect increased land values throughout the state, to state who makes determinations of the value of lanc offered for sale and the date upon which such valuations must be based. Moreover,

29.58.135

The language regarding the composition of the Board of Equalization is unclear. The statute presently requires "at least that number of members of the assembly over and above the number required for a quorum to transact business"; the statute is unclear when applied to a lay board to whom the equalization function is delegated.

29.53

Should be amended to require payment of all taxes, even those due for more recent assessments on properties whose owners have requested issue of a quitclaim repurchase deed. Present law mandates issue of a quitclaim repurchase deed to the owner of record upon payment of those taxes assessed for the tax year stated in the clerk's deed even though the same property is the subject of other foreclosure proceedings brought in subsequent years. An amendment to AS 29.53 which would require payment of all taxes owing on a parcel before a quitclaim repurchase deed can be issued would eliminate substantial confusion in the minds of taxpayers, and would reduce administrative complexity for borough finance departments presently confronted with multiple foreclosure actions on the same parcels.

The present statute governing service areas does not adequately address the question of whether a service area may be used for exercise of a governmental regulatory power rather than for provision of municipal or services.

8.60.050-100

Regulation of junk yards in this section should be cross-referenced to those sections of Title 29. relating to areawide planning, platting and zoning powers.

9.25.110-120

It is unclear whether public records statutes apply at all to municipal government. If it is the intention of the Legislature to apply the public records laws of AS 9.25.110-120 to cities and boroughs, then those sections should be amended accordingly with an appropriate cross references to Title 29.

SUGGESTED CHANGES TO TITLE 29

From Elsie O'Brien (Houston City Clerk)

1. AS 29.28.190, recall provisions:
   Should consider adding a requirement that the city council and city officials perform, with reference to recall petitions, within a time certain.

2. AS 29.63.090, service areas within boroughs:
   The Mat-Su borough loaned money to a road service area, apparently on promise of repayment within fiscal year, but without approval of the apparent indebtedness by voters of the affected service area. Should consider legislation to require that such debts are subject to prior approval by voters within service area.

3. General observation: would like greater information within the text of the volume. (This may not be possible because of the strict format relating to what may be annotated. However, perhaps CRA should receive an amount so that each year for small cities a loose-leaf form of Title 29 may be prepared to update which carries changes in law, applicable commentary, case decisions, AG opinions, etc., supplied by the Dept. on a quarterly basis.)

From Senator Robert H. Ziegler, Sr.

1. I don't much like AS 29.53.080. What privately contracting parties sell or pay for property need not necessarily reflect f.m.v. Alaskan assessors are supposed to assess at 100% of true value. Ergo, if they can examine and inspect properties, why can't they appraise without involving the records of the buyer/seller? (I've lost this argument before!)

From Jack Chenoweth (Staff Counsel, Legislative Affairs)

1. Give some thought to inclusion of a provision somewhere by which a state officer -- governor, CRA commissioner or what have you -- enjoys authority to appoint municipal voters to fill elected city or borough offices when the number of incumbent members of city council council or borough assembly drops below the number required by law or charter to produce a quorum. For example, if the 5 members of the Juneau assembly are recalled, it may be that the four remaining cannot function as an assembly even to the point of filling a vacancy or calling for an election to fill the vacancy. Other quirks in charter provisions could operate to preclude councils or assemblies from operating if there are "mass" resignations or wholesale removals.

1. Section 9 AS 29.23.025 (e) outlines the procedures to be followed if a reapportionment ordinance has not been approved by the voters after the assembly has determined that reapportionment is necessary. The law does not address what happens to the order--is it voted on by the people? Can the order be appealed? Is administrative or judicial review provided for?

2. In Section 29.23.029 and Section 29.23.031 there should be additional statutory references providing for judicial review and relief in all applicable instances and referencing all applicable voter approved ordinances and reapportionment orders under Sec. 031.

From Clara M. Eccles (Anchorage)

1. I'm interested in SB 154 "Extending property tax exemption to include disabled veterans of any age." (Note: SB 154 did not pass last regular session.)

From Bruce Aronson (Ombudsman's Office)

1. AS 29.28.130 is unclear as to whether an official may be subject to recall within 6 months of being re-elected. It would seem that the original intent of this section was to protect rookies rather than encumbants. Recommendation: all officials may be recalled after 6 months have been served in office. The 6 month grace period would not apply if a person is re-elected to the same office.

2. The grounds for recall listed in AS 29.28.140 are too narrow in scope. Since the grounds stated in recall petitions need not be proven, people are forced to name one of the three listed grounds even when the real reason behind the petition bears little relation to it.

3. AS 29.28.150 should be changed so that it is clear that a recall petition can seek to recall only one named official. A separate petition should be filed for each offical sought to be recalled. A petition should be required to contain the mailing address of each person who signs it.

4. AS 29.28.180 should be changed so that a new petition may not be filed sooner than 6 months after the original is rejected for insufficient content. However, the waiting period should not apply when a petition is rejected for lack of signatures.

5. There has been a fear that once a sufficient petition has been submitted and accepted, members of the council could resign and be re-appointed to the council. The statutes should preclude this possibility.

6. The statutes should be clear that the local recall effort is based on the last regular municipal election for purposes of determining the number of signatures required on a petition, not on the state election.

7. It is unclear whether a person recalled is removed from his office at once after the election has been certified, without any transition period. Some sort of transition period should be provided by statute to allow a government to continue to operate when a majority has been recalled from office.

8. Eliminate third class boroughs. There is no need for them now that REAAs have been established. If a borough is organized, it should assume minimal responsibilities, such as land use planning.

9. There should be a clear statutory statement as to when a city rather than the state must provide local enforcement services and what types of enforcement services a city must provide. This will never be done voluntarily on a local level because the state currently provides free police services. A statute should identify the types of local problems which the state troopers will not pursue, such as dog control.

10. There is a problem with local control of service areas. Community councils are getting direct support form the state and this creates mini-municipalities within the municipality which sets up the service area. The resulting overlapping jurisdiction causes confusion as to policy and citizens cannot determine who to deal with regarding particular problems. The councils should be advisory only by statute and money from the state ought to be appropriated for the city, not the council.

11. Statutes should be clarified and strengthened regarding the annexation process. Cities ought not to be able to annex territory without providing services to the annexed area and people living outside cities who are receiving services ought to help pay for them.

From Palmer McCarter (C & RA)

1. Clarify whether "health and hospital power" is one or two separate local powers.

2. Adopt uniform definitions of "municipality," "borough," and use the terms consistently throughout the title.

3. Clarify the use of the terms "general" and "regular" election. Use the term "general" election to refer to state, not local elections.

The following items as pertain to Title 29 were included in the preliminary draft of the Alaska Municipal League 1981 policy statement as agreed upon by the AML Legislative Committee at their meeting in Palmer, August 21 & 22, 1980.

Final action on the 1981 policy statement will be taken by the delegates of the Alaska Municipal League conference when it convenes its business meeting in Fairbanks on November 15, 1980.

PART I - TAXATION AND FINANCE

E. Funding the Newly Organized Municipalities.

1. The League requests the enactment of legislation to provide adequate block grants to assist in the formation of new municipalities.

F. Funding the Study and Formation of New Municipalities

1. The League requests the enactment of legislation to provide adequate block grants to assist in the implementation of newly organized municipalities.

PART II - EDUCATION

B. Assembly/Council-School Board Relationships

1. The League supports legislation to clarify assembly/council-school board relationships and opposes legislation which would diminish assembly/council authority in education matters.

PART IV - LAND USE

A. Local Options

1. The League feels strongly that laws pertaining to the powers of local planning and zoning must allow for the greatest flexibility at the local level.

E. Coastal Management

1. The League supports continued and maximum local control in the development and management of the coastal policies, coastal planning and implementation of coastal policies.

2. The League supports the concept of "extra-territorial" planning by municipalities in the unorganized borough with statutory provisions to permit the Alaska Coastal Policy Council to adopt said "extra-territorial" planning as part of the Alaska Coastal Management Program until such time as a resource district plan is adopted.

3. The League urges the state agencies to abide by a municipality's interpretation of coastal management standards from the time of conceptual approval by the municipality until fiscal approval by the Legislature.

F. Subdivisions

1. Subdivision of land is a major factor in community development, creating patterns which have long lasting effects. Although present legislation clearly recognizes the need for regulation of subdivision, means of enforcement are inadequate. The League supports legislation which would require proof of approval by local authorities prior to the filing of an instrument affecting the boundaries of land and prior to any judicial partition of real property.

2. The League supports legislation which would require legal access to all state land disposals; and that, except for state subdivisions in remote areas or for dispersed entry, local subdivision improvement requirements be honored by the state by either installing such improvements or by acquiescing in the formation of service areas and local improvement districts containing such property and honoring the obligation to pay LID assessments on such property while it is in state ownership.

3. The League supports the concept of an Enterprise Fund as a means for the state to provide required improvements in state land disposals.

PART V - TRANSPORTATION, DOCKS AND PORTS

11. Port Authorities: Insufficient mechanisms exist under Alaska law to create joint port authorities, free port of entries and trade zones. Therefore, the League supports legislation to expand the powers of home rule and general law municipalities to create, finance and operate port facilities and ancillary authorities to enhance commerce within the State of Alaska.

PART VII - MUNICIPAL ELECTIONS

A. Majority Elections

1. The League strongly supports legislation which would permit a municipality, with voter ratification, to opt out of the 40% plurality requirement for election to office and which would clarify the 40% rule for municipalities that continue to use it.

G. Qualifications for Elective Office

1. The League supports legislation that would include provisions in Title 29 for municipalities to set qualifications for all elected municipal officials and to delete that section in Title 14 relating to municipal school board member qualifications.

2. The League supports legislation that would amend Title 29 to include reference to the requirements of AS 15.13 and AS 39.50 pertaining to qualifications of candidates.

H. Title 29 Revisions

1. The League supports legislation which would clarify AS 29.28.070(b) to specify that signature requirements for petitions be based upon the last regular election held just preceeding the date of first circulation of the petition.

2. The League supports legislation amending AS 29.28.070 to provide that the number of signatures required to initiate a petition for referendum, initiative or recall be 30% of the number of voters voting in the last regular election regardless of population of the municipality.

3. The League supports revision of the reapportionment provisions of Title 29 for clarification, simplification, flexibility and autonomy at the local level.

PART VIII - LOCAL GOVERNMENT POWERS

A. Local Autonomy

5. The League supports the community council concept and also supports legislation which would require that the local governing body be the management unit for local community councils. The local governing body should be both the requester and receiver of state funds that will be used to fund community councils.

C. Third Class Borough

1. The League supports elimination of language from Alaska Statutes which would allow for the future creation of third class boroughs. Any existing third class borough would be allowed to continue in existence until such time as it reclassifies. The League believes that a third class borough, as currently defined in statute, does not meet standards for a general purpose local government.

RE: A.S. 29.63.090, Service Area

As we discussed, Judi pointed out a problem in the following excerpt from A.S. 29.63.090:

> ...the exercise of the powers must be approved by a majority of the qualified voters residing within the service area...

This doesn't correspond with A.S. 29.63.015, outlining procedures for special assessments, where the borough notifies the legal owner of record of real property of the proposed assessment, and where, if the bearers of 50% of the assessment protest, the process stops. These two sections are too interdependent for such a discrepancy.

The wording under service areas is unclear. Who has the right to vote: the renter residing on the property in the proposed service area or the absent property owner, who will bear the assessment? I'd guess the legislature envisioned the property owner residing on the lot; your point about the absentee land owner living in Florida is well taken. Moving owners onto their property in trailers long enough to hold an election is equally absurd. More research is needed to find clear and equable wording, but as a start I suggest the following for discussion:

> ...the exercise of powers must be approved by a majority of the qualified voters who are legal owners of real property within the service area...

*(Judi: Please note your comments.)

Russ - I feel that making this just real property owners is very limiting - would approach the problem from a petition standpoint - i.e., if there is a number of residents that has problems also

Amend to include "harbors" as type of facility municipality may own or operate outside its boundaries.

Comments: The City of Ketchikan currently leases from State and operates several boat harbors outside the boundaries of the City.

2. AS 29.53.135 - Board of Equalization:

Amend to clarify authority of assembly to appoint a board composed of not less than three (3) persons who may be (a) members of the assembly, (b) private individuals with certain experience, or (c) combination of (a) and (b). [See attorney Tesche memorandum, page 3]

3. Interest Rate:

The legal rate of interest now provided for in various tax enforcement provisions is eight (8%) percent.[1] Consideration should be given as to whether this rate should be increased. Also, interest rate on special assessments [AS 29.60.060(a)] is linked to the interest on real property taxes.

4. AS 40.15.030; AS 40.15.050 - Dedication of Streets, Alleys and Thoroughfares:

Add language to specifically provide that although second class borough may, as the platting authority, require, as a condition of approval of a subdivision of property, the dedication of rights-of-way and easements, and the installation of roads, sewers, and other utilities and improvements, and the dedication of such rights-of-way and improvements to the public, that the borough does not by such action become liable or responsible for any maintainance, operation, or inspection thereof, or for injuries to any person using the improvements (i.e., child drowns in drainage culvert not covered, cleaned, inspected, or maintained).

AS 29.53.375
AS 29.53.415(d) (sales tax)

Comments: Since a second class borough does not have road or other maintenance powers, but via the planning commission is the agency that requires and approves, incident to its platting authority, the design, construction and installation of subdivision improvements, which by AS 40.15.030 - AS 40.15.050 are "deemed to have been dedicated to public use," a question regarding ownership and duty to inspect and repair the facilities arises (See 9.65.070 - [immunity applies only "when the municipality is neither the owner nor lessee of the property involved"]). State law has addressed certain aspects of the matter in AS 38.08.090.

7. Implementation of Grants:

Amend AS 37.05.315 [HB 578] to require the State Department of Community and Regional Affairs to receive, administer, and implement any State grants which a municipality does not have the power to administer and implement (such as those appropriated by Ch. 50 SLA 80 as is now the procedure regarding grants to unincorporated communities where there is no incorporated entity qualified to receive the grant (AS 37.05.315(h)(3)). Also amend AS 37.05.315(c) to not impose covenant requirements on municipality with no power to operate and maintain the facility.

6. AS 29.33 - Planning, Platting and Zoning:

(a) AS 29.33.085 - Comprehensive Plan: Amend section to require comprehensive plan review every five (5) years rather than every two (2) years.

Comments: See paragraph (1) of Planning Director's memorandum dated July 22, 1980.

(b) AS 29.33.090 - Zoning: Expand on enabling language to assure borough is not restricted in forms of zoning permitted.

Comments: See paragraph (2) of Planning Director's memorandum dated July 22, 1980.

(c) AS 29.33.150 - Platting Jurisdiction and Power: Amend subsection (b) to delete the following language in brackets and adds the underlined language to clarify the responsibility of State to comply with design and other requirements and only exempts State from actual construction requirements:

"(b) The regulations adopted under (a) of this section apply to subdivision plat of undeveloped state land for disposal under AS 38.05 or AS 38.08 filed with the platting board, except that the platting board [may not disapprove the subdivision plat or adopt regulations which require the state to construct access roads or capital improvements on state land included in the subdivision plat] must approve the subdivision plat if the plat meets all local platting regulations other than those requiring the construction of roads or capital improvements on state land included in the subdivision plat. Subdivision plats of undeveloped state land for disposal shall be accompanied by engineering plans for all improvements required by local regulations applicable to the subdivision of private land."

Comments: See paragraph (3) of Planning Director's memorandum dated July 22, 1980.

(d) AS 29.33.200 - Alteration of Replat: Amend or add a new section to allow for approval and recording of plats for minor boundary adjustments without going through formal planning commission hearings where no new lots are created, and no new dedications of roads or other rights-of-way are involved.

Comments: See paragraph (4) of Planning Director's memorandum dated July 22, 1980.

(e) AS 9.55.275: Add language to recognize that a change in boundary pursuant to AS 09.55.275 may result in a substandard size lot, and that compliance with normal subdivision requirements is not required with waiver by assembly permitted.

Comments: Cities or other public agencies frequently acquire in fee narrow strips or areas for road widening, sewer, park or other facilities which are very small in size (i.e., pump station for sewer system 25 x 25 etc.) and the public agency may in fact be prohibited from acquiring excess area not actually required for the public improvement. Such acquisitions frequently result in a change of boundary within the provisions of AS 09.55.275 and planning commission approval of a preliminary plat and also a final plat, is required.

(f) State Filing of Acquisitions. Filing of a plat with the local planning authority should be required if State acquires easements or rights-of-way across platted parcels.

Comments: See paragraph (4) of Planning Director's memorandum dated July 22, 1980, addressing need for filing with the local planning authority.

(g) AS 29.33.170 - Waiver of Subdivision Requirements: Amend section to make waiver permissive and clarify access which must be found to exist before platting authority may waive plat approval and recording requirements.

Comments: See paragraph (5) of Planning Director's memorandum dated July 22, 1980.

7. AS 29.53 - Corrections, Cancellations, Refunds and Transfers of Taxes. Add sections to provide procedures for correction of tax roll, refund or cancellation of taxes after confirmation and certification of final tax roll when required to correct clerical or mathematical errors, assessment of non-existent property, errors in legal description, or other administrative problems. AS 29.53.390 does not accommodate the foregoing.

Comments: The Borough assessor advises the State assessor, with assistance and input from local assessors, will be making suggestions and proposals regarding the above.

RE: Title 29 Revisions

Last week, Bill, Jim, and I met to discuss improvements to Title 29; following are our recommendations --- add, (delete):

1. Section 29.33.085. Comprehensive plan. (b)...The planning commission shall undertake an overall review of the plan at least once every (two) five years.

   To do justice to the time and money invested to develop the original policies, an overall review of the comprehensive plan every two years is impossible for a small department like ours with other major projects. We prefer revision every five years to allow us time to detect and incorporate changes in economic, population, and land use trends and to undertake other major planning efforts without increasing our existing staff.

2. Section 29.33.090. Zoning. We intend to do additional research on this section. Our concern is that performance zoning may not be allowed under this section.
   AS 29.33.090 states in part "The assembly shall regulate... use of land...by districts or contract zoning." Contract zoning being a hybrid of a district (Euclidean) type zoning. Many performance systems do not employ districting as a control element. Therefore present state law may not include enabling language for other than land use controls based on traditional Euclidean zoning.

3. Section 29.33.150. Platting jurisdiction and power. (b)...the platting board (may not disapprove the subdivision plat or adopt regulations which require the state to construct access roads or capital improvements on state land included in the subdivision plat) must approve the subdivision plat if the plat meets all local platting regulations other than those requiring the construction of roads or capital improvements on state land included in the subdivision plat. Subdivision plats of undeveloped state land for disposal shall be accompanied by engineering plans for all improvements required by local regulations applicable to the subdivision of private land.

Of course we prefer to see this section deleted altogether, but clarification along these lines will be an improvement.

4. Section 29.33.200. Alteration of replat petition. See attached memo from Jim re: feasibility of shortened plat procedure.

   This section needs language to distinguish plat alterations from subdivisions.

   Also, AS 09.55.275 requires plat approval for parcels condemned for public purposes - e.g. city condemnation of the Wingren property for the sewer pump station - but AS 29.33 does not have corresponding language speaking to approval of substandard parcels for public purposes. See Attachment 2.

   See Attachment 3 for Bill's explanation of problems resulting from condemnations for state right-of-ways.

5. Section 29.33.170. Waiver in certain cases. (a) The platting authority (shall) may...

   (1) each tract or parcel of land will be located on or have (adequate access to a) developed road access to a public highway or street;...

   (3) the conveyance is not made for the purpose of, or in connection with, a present (or projected) subdivision development;

   For purposes of maintaining accurate platting records Section 29.33.170 should be deleted entirely; as a minimum, we recommend the above clarifications. The first is intended to define "adequate access." The second deletes the reference to projected development; for all practical purposes it's a meaningless criteria.

RE: Feasibility of Shortened Plat Procedure

At the January 14, 1980 workshop on the proposed new subdivision ordinance considerable discussion centered on the possibility of shortened plat procedures for "minor" subdivisions. A minor subdivision is basically one that does not involve the creation of additional lots or new streets. An example would be, two neighbors wishing to swap a 10' wide strip of land along their common side lot line in order to correct a house siting error. Proposed Section 55.10.045 (attached) provides a mechanism for such a shortened procedure.

This proposed section, as presented to the Borough Assembly, calls for a one step approval by the Platting Board, as opposed to the usual two step approval. As originally recommended by the Planning Commission in their review of the new ordinance, this provision was made an entirely administrative responsibility. Provided the limitations of Section 55.10.045 were honored, the designated planning official would approve the plat, obtain necessary signatures (Borough Manager, Planning Commission Chairperson, etc.) and see to its recording. However, the Municipal Attorney, in reviewing the Planning Commission's recommendations, found that Alaska Statutes Title 29 and Title 40 mandated approval by the full Platting Board in all cases.

Alaska Statute 29.33.200 sets out a replat alteration procedure that states that the petition shall be filed for approval by the Platting Board. This is reinforced by Alaska Statute 40.15, Dedications and Subdivisions, which calls for platting authority action in several instances. Alaska Statute 29.33.200 is the only vehicle suggesting the application of a minor subdivision procedure and unfortunately perhaps does not accomodate the greatest possible shortening of the process.

Administrative approval of short plats is a practice widely used in other areas and has several advantages, such as reduced processing times and costs. In order to protect neighboring properties, I would suggest that public notices be sent out for short plats with a five day response limitation. If any significant problems come to light as a result, an administrative decision would be made to present the plat to the full Board. Amendments to Alaska Statute 29 would be necessary for Ketchikan to adopt such a policy. Section 55.10.045 of the revised subdivision ordinance is the most expeditious route available at present. If a change in state law is desired, I suggest the Assembly refer the matter to legal and planning staff for preparation of language addressing the necessary changes and subsequent discussion of this issue with our state legislators.

City is submitting this plan as a matter of form. The statute requiring the plat is AS 09.55.275, quoted here in full:

> "Replat approval. No agency of the state or municipality may acquire property located within a municipality exercising the powers conferred by AS 29.33.150 - 29.33.245 which results in a boundary change unless the agency or municipality first obtains from the municipal platting authority preliminary approval of a replat showing clearly the location of the proposed public streets, easements, rights-of-way, and other taking of private property. Final approval of replat shall be similarly obtained. However, if a state agency clearly demonstrates an overriding state interest, a waiver to the approval requirements of this section may be granted by the governor. The platting authority shall treat applications for replat made by state or local governmental agencies in the same manner as replat petitions originated by private landowners."

RE: Title 29

In reviewing Title 29 I was not able to identify any specific section which would apply to the State of Alaska "taking" land for rights-of-way without the benefit of a replat. My concern is that these defacto subdivisions often become obstacles to proper land development.

The following sketch illustrates the problem and I have included questions that "local planners" are often asked about results they were powerless to affect.

Can I use the square footage to subdivide or increase density ?

Can I put a culvert under the road and use it for a drainfield ?

Can I sell it to someone else ?

Just what can I do with it ?

Dear Ms. Scott:

Thank you for your letter. I have provided copies of the material you sent to all members of the Title 29 Advisory Policy Group.

For your information the Superior Court opinion City of Kodiak v. Kodiak Island Borough was never appealed. Unfortunately, I am not aware of any additional case law construing the statutory provision which limits the authority to form service areas. I will forward any additional information I receive on the subject to you. You have suggested that AS 29.63.090(d) be rewritten to provide more flexibility to municipal governments in creating service areas. Since that section is essentially a restatement of language contained in the state constitution, I doubt that rewritting the statute would accomplish your purpose.

Please send me any other suggestions which you may have regarding proposed changes to the Municipal Code and I will gladly forward them on to the Policy Group. Our next meeting is scheduled to be held in Fairbanks on November 10th and 11th. I hope to see you there.

Dear Tam:

At this late date I am submitting the transcipt of my comments at the September meeting. As attachments you will find the various letters and attorneys' opinions I refer to.

There is an item I would like to draw to the technical committee's attention regarding service areas. AS 29.63.090 (d) states that :

> A new service area may not be established if, consistent with the purposes of article X of the state constitution, the new service can be provided by an existing service area, by annexation to a city, or by incorporation as a city.

In 1979 there was a superior court opinion in the City of Kodiak vs. Kodiak Island Borough which clarified this statute. Basically, the opinion was that annexation would provide for more services than the service area residents desire and that additional taxing jurisdictions are not created since the taxing authority for the service district remains the the Borough.

Even if the statute is not re-written to provide a little more latitude in the creation of service districts, perhaps the decision could be referenced in a foot note. However, I do not know if the decision was appealed. If you have any more recent information, or access to information, I would appreciate a lead.

Sincerely yours,

Stephanie K. Scott

Juneau, Alaska 99811

Dear David:

I am enclosing a copy of the superior court opinion in City of Kodiak vs. Kodiak Island Borough which clarifies 29.63.090(d). Perhaps your department has more recent data on this decision. Was it appealed? If the decision stands perhaps it would be wise to recommend to the Title 29 Technical Committee that it re-write 29.63.090(d) to give a bit more latitude to the creation of service districts, or that it at least provide in a foot note for reference to the decision.

Let me know if there is any opinion in your department regarding the above suggested revision to 29.63.090(d).

Sincerely yours,

Stephanie K. Scott
Administrative Secretary

Case No. 3KO-78-120 Civ

MEMORANDUM OF DECISION

The "Complaint for Declaratory Judgment and Injunction" filed by plaintiff City of Kodiak prays for equitable relief, including an injunction prohibiting the Kodiak Island Borough from operationg Service District No. 1. Plaintiff further seeks a declaration that the Borough's establishment of Service District No. 1 was illegal. This action is based upon plaintiff's contention that the Borough's establishment of the Service District is contrary to Article X, Section 5 of the Alaska Constitution and AS 29.63.090(d) since the City of Kodiak, which lies contiguous to the Service District, has the legal capability to tax and provide municipal services of sewer, sewage treatment, water and roads. Further, plaintiffs assert that the Service District is unlawful under Article X, Section 1 of the Alaska Constitution as it creates another taxing entity.

On February 7, 1979 this court heard oral argument on plaintiff, City of Kodiak's Motion for Summary Judgment and defendant, Kodiak Island Borough's Cross-Motion for Partial Judgment on the Pleadings. After reviewing the pleadings, the memoranda submitted, and the arguments of counsel; and being fully advised, the court enters this, its Memorandum of Decision.

A BOROUGH IS NOT PROHIBITED AS A MATTER OF LAW FROM STABLISHING A SERVICE DISTRICT SIMPLY BECAUSE IT CAN BE ANNEXED Y A CITY THAT CAN PROVIDE THE SERVICE.

Plaintiff's Complaint and Motion for Summary Judgment re premised upon the following contentions:

> The establishment of the Service District in unlawful under AS 29.63.090(d) and unconstitutional under Section 5, Article X, Alaska Constitution in that the roads, sewer and water service function and power can be provided by the City of Kodiak through annexation to the City, without any necessity for the creation of the Service District. Complaint, paragraph 15, p. 3.[1]

Thus, as a basis for its Complaint and Motion for Summary Judgment, the plaintiff is maintaining that, as a matter of law, the existence of the City of Kodiak with the legal capacity to provide sewer, water and road services prohibits the Borough from forming a service district to provide such services.

Plaintiff's construction of Section 5, Article X and AS 29.63.090(d) as literal and absolute directives to this court would have the consequence of prohibiting any new service area from ever being established anywhere in Alaska, as every borough in Alaska contains at least one city which, in a literal

[1] Section 5, Article X, Alaska Constitution provides in pertinent part:

> "Service areas to provide special services within an organized borough may be established, altered, or abolished by the assembly, subject to the provisions of law or charter. A new service area shall not be established if, consistent with the purposes of this article, a new service can be provided by an existing service area, by incorporation as a city, or annexation to a city."

AS 29.63.090(d) provides in pertinent part:

> (d) A new service area may not be established if, consistent with the purposes of Article X of the State Constitution, the new service can be provided by an existing service area, by annexation to a city, or by incorporation as a city.

the borough were annexed to it. Plaintiff's construction would enable cities to force annexation upon areas which do not want to be annexed and which only need and desire a limited number of services that could be provided more effectively and economically by a service district.

Even if a purely rural borough with no existing cities were established, it is difficult to imagine an area where the need for services would arise in which the population was not large enough to provide the legal basis for a second class city. This, under plaintiff's construction, would activate the statutory prohibition against establishment of a service district where the service "can be provided . . . by incorporation as a city". Such a legalistic interpretation of Alaska's constitutional and statutory provisions could not have been intended, and no court should find the law to be so literal in its requirements. Certainly the language of both the constitutional and statutory provisions to be considered in this case is ambiguous and is, of necessity, subject to construction as to the intention of the framers. [2]

A. Constitutional Framers' Intent

(1) Drafting of Section 5 of Article X of the Constitution.

The first public draft of Section 5, Article X of the Alaska Constitution, referred to as Proposal No. 6, was never considered and voted upon by the constitutional convention. Instead, the Local Government Committee which drafted the proposal simply introduced it to the convention and then recalled it prior to debate or vote.

[2] In addition to other ambiguous language contained in the pertinent constitutional and statutory provisions, the words "can be provided by . . ." necessitates construction and ascertainment of the framers' intent. For example, it is unclear as to what is meant by those words, how it is to be determined whether the requirement is satisfied, and who is to make that determination. The words "consistent with the purposes of Article X" also are in need of judicial construction.

new or additional services can be provided better by a new service area, by annexation to a city, by an existing service area, or by incorporation as a new city. Section 5, Article X must be construed to have the same meaning.

(2) Framers' Intent as Revealed in Constitutional Minutes

The Constitutional Minutes are most helpful in understanding the framers' intent as to the meaning of Section 5, Article X.

In particular, the testimony of Delegate Taylor is enlightning. The following is an extremely relevant portion of Mr. Taylor's testimony:

> "Now there is no forced annexation in this matter as I can see it, so there is a wide choice. They can be either a service district or those functions can be performed by an already existing service area. They can incorporate as a city or they can be annexed to a city. It is up to the body in which they are represented. It is the American way of doing things that the body decides, that it be for the best interests of this area. The body can decide that it would be possibly to the financial betterment of the people in that area if they did incorporate another service district or if they incorporated as a city. So, I think it should be left in here so that the body, the assembly, could meet and consider all factors and recommend as to whether they could organize as a service district or whether they could secure the same service from an adjacent service district or whether they could incorporate as a city or whether they could be annexed to a city that is already incorporated. It is a wide latitude that they are given and I think that in an assembly in which they are represented and are a part of that body, I think they would receive proper consideration. [emphasis added]." pp. 2716-17, Constitutional Minutes.

The consensus behind the views expressed by Delegate Taylor is confirmed by testimony of other delegates which can be found at pages 2712 - 17 of the Constitutional Minutes.

Clearly, the Constitutional Minutes reflect that the framers intended that cities were not to be permitted to prevent the borough's establishment of a service district by forcing or threatening annexation.

Proposal No. 6/a[3] was the first draft actually considered and voted upon by the Constitutional Convention. Proposal No. 6/a was the subject of extensive debate at the Convention (see e.g. pages 2610-2730 of Constitutional Minutes). It was this proposal that was voted upon by the Convention, adopted and enrolled.

Proposal No. 6/a as adopted was sent to the Style and Drafting Committee. Under the applicable Constitution Convention Rules, the Style and Drafting Committee had no authority to make substantive changes to Proposal No. 6/a. See Rule 16c of the Permanent Rules, Constitutional Convention of Alaska.[4] The Style and Drafting Committee authored the final version of Section 5, Article X and delivered it to the convention for consideration. At no time during the Convention's consideration of the Style and Drafting Committee's draft was it either stated or suggested that a substantive change had been made to the provisions of Proposal No. 6/a as adopted by the Convention. Thus, under the rules applicable to the Convention, Section 5, Article X was to have a substantively equivalent meaning to original Proposal No. 6/a. Proposal No. 6/a expressly provided that "the judgment of the

> "Section 6. Service areas to provide special services within portions of an organized borough may be established altered or abolished by the assembly, subject to the provisions of law. The assembly may authorize levying such taxes, charges or assessments within any service area as may be necessary to finance the activities. No new service area shall be created when, in the judgment of the assembly, the objectives of Section 1 of this article would be better served by giving a new function to an existing service area, incorporation of the area as a city, or annexation of the area to a city. (emphasis added)

[4]Rule 16(c) provides in pertinent part:

> "The committee on Style and Drafting . . . shall have the authority to rephrase or to regroup proposed language or sections of the proposed constitution but shall have no authority to change the sense or purpose of any proposal referred to it."

THE SERVICE DISTRICT DOES NOT CREATE A DUPLICATION OF TAX-LEVYING JURISDICTIONS IN VIOLATION OF ARTICLE X, SECTION 1 OF THE ALASKA CONSTITUTION.

Paragraph 17 of plaintiff's Complaint asserts that the Service District is unlawful under Article X, Section 1 of the Alaska Constitution as it creates another taxing entity. This contention is without merit because the establishment of new service areas by the Borough does not create new tax-levying jurisdictions.

Under both the relevant constitutional and statutory provisions,[5] the tax-levying authority for new service districts is retained and exercised solely by the Borough. No new local government unit has been established with authority to exercise local government power at the policy level. Even where administrative functions are delegated by the Borough to a service district, the Borough nevertheless has full control over those functions.

The Constitutional Minutes reflect that the concern of the Delegates was to avoid a multiplicity of independent tax-levying jurisdictions, such as would have been the case had such entities as school districts been given tax-levying authority independent of cities and boroughs.[6] The delegates foreclosed

[5]Article X, Section 5 provides in part:

> "The assembly may authorize the levying of taxes, charges, or assessments within a service area to finance special services. [emphasis added]."

AS 29.63.090(b) provides:

> The assembly may levy or authorize the levying of taxes, charges, or assessments in service areas to finance the special services. [emphasis added] the problem by granting local tax-levying authority to only two bodies, cities and boroughs (See Alaska Constitution Article X, Section 2), and by permitting the establishment of service districts only under the control and auspices of boroughs. See Article X, Section 5 and AS 29.63.090. The fact that the framers of the Alaska Constitution authorized the establishment of service districts rebuts the suggestion that they viewed the creation of such districts as the creation of new tax-levying jurisdictions.

CONCLUSION

Since plaintiff's interpretation of the relevant constitutional and statutory provisions is incorrect, not only must its Motion for Summary Judgment fail, but also its Complaint must be dismissed because of the failure of plaintiff to state a viable cause of action against defendants.

IT IS ORDERED that defendant's Motion for Partial Judgment on the Pleadings is granted and plaintiff's Complaint is dismissed with prejudice.

TRANSCRIPT OF COMMENTS MADE BY

STEPHANIE K. SCOTT, HAINES BOROUGH,

SEPTEMBER 29, TITLE 29 REVISION

COMMITTEE, ANCHORAGE, ALASKA

STEPHANIE SCOTT, Haines Borough: I am taking you from the government with the most responsibilities to the least responsibilities. The Haines Borough is a third class borough. I am here today to say that we want to participate in your discussions and decisions on the revisions of Title 29, specifically as it applies to the third class borough. We felt somewhat overlooked when the Senate-House C.R.A. interim committee,formed last year,developed House Bill 354 which eliminated the third class borough,never did enter into a discussion with the residents of the Haines Borough. We have a good record in terms of our consideration of different forms of government. We rejected a first class borough proposal in 1964; we rejected a second class borough proposal in 1967 and again in May of 1968; the third class borough was accepted August 20 of 1968. Recently in 1980 we rejected an advisory issue to consider a unified City-borough government. We have a first class city of about 2.6 square miles within the Haines Borough, which encompasses about 2200 square miles.

A letter recently came to our attention written by a deputy commissioner of Community and Regional Affairs which suggested circumscribing the portion of Title 29 that applies to the general powers of all municipalities. Her concern is that the general powers ought to perhaps only adhere to service districts in the Haines Borough. I believe you have probably received such a recommendation from Community and Regional Affairs.

SENATOR ARLISS STURGULEWSKI, Chairwoman, Title 29 Revision Committee: I don't recall a copy of that letter coming to the committee.

SCOTT: The letter we received was written to the City of Haines on September 4, 1980 and it says: "More specifically we have recommended that section 29.41.010 be re-written to include or exclude all or part of the provisions of Chapter 48 (powers applicable to all municipalities) with particular attention to 29.48.010 and 29.48.260." Our concern is that we believe that portion of the statutes that details powers general to all municipalities provides for the limited scope of various municipalities by saying that these powers are "subject to other provisions of law." In the third class borough we have the two area-wide powers of education and taxation assessment and collection. We have various attorneys' opinions, attorneys hired by the Haines Borough, and one 1977, Jan. 6 opinion from Assistant Attorney General

Roger Pegues, that those general powers apply to a third class borough insofar as they are exercised in relation to our two area-wide powers of tax assessment and collection and education. That really should take care of the controversy. I will make those attorney's opinions available to you.

STURGULEWSKI: Correct me if I am wrong: One issue then will be the clarification of the powers of the third class borough.

SCOTT: Yes. I would like to read a little more from the letter we received: "As an example of the uncertainty of these sections as they apply to the third class borough we cite the last sentence of paragraph (a) of Section 29.41.010 which states that: "Area wide exercise of powers other than education and tax assessments and collection is not authorized"." The question she is posing is: "Are third class boroughs prohibited except on a service area basis from acquiring, using and disposing of real property; the power to sue and be sued; or the power to expend funds for the good of the municipality?" She states: "The literal application of section 29.41.010 would seem to limit the exercise of these and other general municipal powers, to service areas created especially for the purpose, but we are not sure." In other words, she is saying that we need service areas in order to sue or be sued. I would contend that that's not the case. It's really quite clear that the statutes say we can enter into suits and buy and sell land insofar as it applies to the two functions of taxation and education. I would like to point out that in a second class borough the only additional area-wide power granted by the statutes is planning, platting and zoning. Every other power has to be voted by the citizens, although it can be adopted area-wide and we cannot adopt any other powers on an area-wide basis. So the same limited interpretation would have to apply to second class boroughs. I think such an interpretation would be unworkable. There are also footnotes in the statutes behind the section on the general powers which state that the intention is that the powers be liberally construed. The liberal understanding of those powers has been the fact.

There are a couple of places that the statutes "have their legs crossed" in terms of the third class borough. They are technical and I think that you should take them to your technical committee. I will get these to you in writing. One is 29.41.020 which says that the school board may provide for weighted voting, but in the chapter on the assembly (29.23.021-c) it states that the assembly may not provide for weighted voting. Since in a third class borough the assembly is the school board it is inconsistent for one body to have weighted voting and one body to be denied weighted voting. Probably when weighted voting for the assembly was eliminated, the elimination of weighted voting for the school board was overlooked. So please note the conflict between 29.41.020 and 29.23.021(c).

The other technical revision is also in 29.41.020 which says that the borough executive is the presiding officer of the school board. That is confusing because elsewhere in the statutes it defines the presiding officer as someone elected from the body of the assembly and you can't have a borough executive who is elected from the assembly. This could be rectified by saying that the borough executive is president of the school board. Eliminate the reference of a presiding officer with respect to the third class borough. The object of the third class borough is to create the simplest form of government and we don't need a separate borough executive, a presiding officer and a president of the school board. They are all the same person.

I have been asked by the Borough Chairman to convey two recommendations: One is that we do support the recommendation from the Division of Community Planning in the Department of CRA to rewrite 29.48.260(e) to relieve the procedural requirements for the lease or sale of land to a beneficial new industry, which result from the court decision in Libbly vs. the City of Dillingham. This is important to us right now because like everybody else we are involved in Municipal Entitlements and disposals and we are looking at our own disposal ordinances. Getting the economy together in Haines is of primary importance and it may help us to be able to negotiate a lease to beneficial industry.

Chapter 53 concerns us. It has to do with taxation. We would like to be able, in some way, to provide for the optional exemption of inventory from personal property tax. We don't have any specific ideas on how to do this; but the Haines Borough would like to be able to put that exemption before its citizens if it were permitted by the Statutes. Presently there is no way to provide for the consideration of that option.

STURGULEWSKI: What is the status of exemption of inventory under personal property tax for other boroughs?

SCOTT: If you are a home rule municipality you can exempt it, but if you are a general law municipality you must tax inventory unless you exempted it prior to 1972. The definition of personal property includes inventory. Perhaps you could provide for the exemption through definition.

Other than that I wanted to let you know that by October 26 a teleconference system will be operative in Haines and that there are lots of people in Haines interested in our form of government. We would really like to be heard on the decisions, particularly if you are going to take a strong look at the recommendation from the Deputy Commissioner from the Department of Community and Regional Affairs and particularly if you are going to change the general powers of municipalities. We would like to be involved and we don't want to be surprised with a bill that provided for the elimination of our form of government without having a good chance to talk about it before it comes before the legislation. Other than that I will be here for two days listening and learning and available for questions.

STURGULEWSKI: We appreciate the fact that you're here. We are glad to know that you do have teleconference capability. I know that we talked to a number of people from your area when the third class was up. There was a pretty early decision made that that particular legislation (HB 584) was not going to pass or there would certainly have been a public hearing in your community. I think there is some concern on the part of certain divisions in the State that the third class borough has not always been a happy thing for people to live with and we are looking at some other areas that are looking at it. I think that if we are going to keep it we need to look at it very carefully.

SCOTT: I think that it deserves to be pointed out that the third class borough can plan, platt and zone on a service area basis. In order to do that there first has to be an area-wide vote to grant the third class borough the power to adopt service areas for planning, platting and zoning. And then of course the service areas have to vote on that power. We had a vote on that and it was voted down. Another thing to bear in mind is that the Haines Borough, as a third class borough, is a very large borough, but its population is confined to a very small area so it would not be impossible to develop a service area that would affect just the populated area and handle planning on that basis. I know that that is the problem with the third class borough as far as the state is concerned. I think that you have to talk to the people who live in a third class borough to find out what kind of a problem they feel they have, if they feel they have a problem. Then if there is still an overriding concern that it is a problem from the state level, it's the state's responsibility to come in and tell the people, or teach them, what the problem is. In other words, there may be people in the Haines Borough who feel that they don't have a problem.

RUSSELL W. WALKER, Attorney, City of Ketchikan and Ketchikan Gateway Borough: I would appreciate it if you could give this information to Tam Cook. I am interested in seeing what you are driving at.

STURGULEWSKI: We really appreciate you're being here. We know that it is a major effort to send someone. We will see that we use your teleconference equipment when it comes on line.

SCOTT: Thank you.

The Honorable Mayor Jon Halliwill
City of Haines
P.O. Box 576
Haines, Alaska 99827

Dear Mayor Halliwill:

I apologize for the delay in responding to your query concerning the powers of the third class borough to acquire and dispose of land conveyed to it by the State. I had my staff contact your city administrator, Vern McCorkel, the Attorney General's Office and review appropriate sections of Title 29 to better ascertain the nature of your concerns.

It is my understanding that, although you only expressed interest in the land disposal issue, your underlying concerns are of a broader nature. They stem from the fact that the City of Haines is a first class city with full planning, platting and zoning powers located within a third class borough with only the limited powers of education and taxation. The fundamental issue, then, is not just whether a third class borough can acquire State land and dispose of it but whether the implied powers of Chapter 48 "Powers applicable to all municipalities" are applicable to a third class borough or not. These general powers address such functions as disposal of municipal property, the ability to establish departments, pay salaries, enter into agreements and to sue or be sued, among others.

We informally approached the Attorney General's Office about the possibility of receiving a timely response to your questions regarding the third class borough's authority to acquire and dispose of municipally owned property. The response we received was that they prefer to handle factual situations and not hypothetical ones. There was also some question whether this particular issue was of statewide concern as is necessary to warrant an Attorney General's opinion.

The feeling of my staff was that even if the land disposal questions were independently addressed by Attorney General's opinion, the other concerns and questions relating to the authorized general powers of the third class borough would still not be satisfied.

To effectively deal with the basic concerns as you and your city administrator have described them, the Department has suggested, in accordance with Senate Concurrent Resolution 66, that Title 29, the Municipal Government Code, be revised to clarify the general powers of the third class borough. More specifically, we have recommended that Section 29.41.010 be rewritten to include or exclude all or part of the provisions of Chapter 48 (powers applicable to all municipalities) with particular attention to Sections 29.48.010 and 29.48.260. As an example of the uncertainty of these sections as they apply to the third class borough we cite the last sentence of paragraph (a) of Section 29.41.010 which states that: "Area wide exercise of powers other than education and tax assessments and collection is not authorized". Paragraph (b) states that a third class borough may, under certain circumstances, exercise any power exercised by a second class borough but only on a service area basis. Are third class boroughs prohibited, except on a service area basis, from: acquiring, using, and disposing of real property; the power to sue and be sued; or the power to expend funds for the good of the municipality? The literal application of Section 29.41.010 would seem to limit the exercise of these and other general municipal powers to service areas created especially for the purpose but we are not sure.

I feel that a legislative approach (through revision of Title 29) could provide a comprehensive solution to your concerns. The Municipal League is also actively involved in the Title 29 revisions (along with the Rural Alaska Community Action Program, Inc.) and may be an appropriate avenue for the City to express its concerns regarding this matter.

Attached for your information is an interpretation by Departmental staff of appropriate sections of Title 29 as they would apply to the ability of the third class borough to acquire and dispose of land. However, I would caution you to consult your municipal attorney prior to acting on the basis of any of these interpretations.

I appreciate your request for assistance and hope that I have adequately addressed your concerns.

Sincerely,

M

SUBJECT: Powers of Third Class Borough
Our File No. J-66-227-77

By: Rodger W. Pegues
Assistant Attorney General

This responds to your request for an opinion on this subject of December 29, 1976. Pursuant to your request, we have reviewed our informal opinion of August 8, 1968, on this subject and AS 29.41.

We agree with your views on the matter. The third class borough's sole function is to provide education. It is empowered to levy and collect taxes, to borrow money and to establish service areas to that end. It has no other function. It would in inconsistent with AS 29.41 for a third class borough to exercise a power of a first or second class borough which is not in furtherance of its assigned function and prescribed powers. Thus, in order to collect taxes, a third class borough obviously must possess the power to file tax liens and foreclose on them. To operate a school system, it must possess the power to acquire and manage property and enter into contracts. This is what the last sentence of AS 29.41.010(a) means.

The third class borough is but an up-dated version of the pre-statehood independent or incorporated school districts. Indeed, AS 29.41.020, which constitutes the assembly the school board as well, is conclusive on this point. It is irrefutable evidence of the legislature's intent that the third class borough has no other function.

The opinion on this subject of August 8, 1968, is in error on these points and is overruled.

The Honorable Martin Tengs
Chairman
Haines Borough Assembly
Box H
Haines, Alaska 99827

Re: Opinion Respecting Authority of Lobbying Expenditures by Third Class Borough

Dear Mr. Tengs:

Your letter of April 2, 1979 inquires into the authority of the Haines Borough, as a borough of the third class, to expend funds for purposes which may be generally described as "lobbying" for specifically enumerated purposes. The answer, in short, is a qualified "no".

This opinion is limited to the factual particulars recited in your letter. Further, it is not intended to address the issue of the Borough's liability for unlawful appropriation of funds, nor a taxpayer's remedy for same, nor intended to prescribe the relationship between the City-Borough.

The powers of third class boroughs are enunciated in Alaska Statute Section 29.41.010. A copy of the statute is attached for your quick reference. Subsections (a) and (b) are particularly relevant. Subsection (a) is basically a carry-over from the 1972 Revised Municipal Code. The 1972 statute prescribed in AS 29.41.010(a) that:

> "A third class borough shall exercise the area-wide powers of education and tax assessment and collection in the manner provided for second class boroughs. Provisions of law relative to first and second class organized boroughs apply with respect to third class boroughs only to the extent they are consistent with this chapter."

The intent of the 1972 legislation which basically reoganized and reclassified the system of boroughs and municipality classification was addressed in legislative notes accompanying the 1972 amendment. The June 17, 1972 Senate Journal Supplement No. 3 contained in relevant part the following language of interpretative assistance:

> "Third class borough powers are unchanged. Acquisition of powers in the borough area outside cities is intended, as under present law, to be governed by provisions of law applying to second class boroughs."

Stopping at that juncture in 1972 to analyze those powers, a third class borough was limited to powers to (1) education and (2) tax assessment and collection (presumably limited to the exclusive purpose of education). Subsections (b) and (c) of the 1972 legislation on AS 29.41.010 are irrelevant to our inquiry, however, the statutes are sufficiently clear in permitting third class boroughs to assume additional powers if appropriate procedures are followed. Those procedures were prescribed in AS 29.33.250 which recites that "first and second class boroughs acquire additional area-wide municipal powers by transfer from a city or by holding an area-wide election on the question, except as provided otherwise in AS 29.48.030 and AS 29.48.035(b)." (emphasis added). Accordingly, even under the 1972 legislation there existed a grant of statutory authority for third class boroughs to assume powers in addition to education and taxation conditions upon area-wide election as to the specific functions for which the borough sought authority.

That proposition was further clarified with subsequent legislation amending the 1972 version of AS 29.41.010. Amendments to that section occurred in 1974, 1975, and 1977. They are embodied in the attached photocopy of the relevant statute and you will observe that it is broken into four subsections. Succinctly stated, subsection (a) prohibits a third class borough from exercising powers other than education and taxation. Subsection (b) does not qualify (a) so much as create an exception to it, specifically reciting the methods by which a third class borough may assume additional powers.

Taking a step back to examine the various legislative provisions in perspective, it may be succinctly stated that the third class Haines Borough may exercise only the area-wide powers of education and tax assessment; additional powers of more limited scope under AS 29.41.010(b) may be assumed by following election procedures. Additionally, it is important to examine the specific purpose of the so-called "lobbying" effort. Lobbying per se would not qualify as a general administrative function. Instead, the specific purpose or purposes toward which the effort is directed must be analyzed. Your letter recites that the purposes for which expenditures are intended include legislation toward a federally-funded eagle study in the Chilkat Valley, expenses associated with information and registering opposition to the Udall Bill, and part of the cost associated with keeping the Assembly informed as to Washington, D.C. developments on D-2 legislation. In my opinion, those functions fall quite easily into the land use planning category, which is a component or subpart of the planning, platting and zoning power. Accordingly, unless the Haines Borough has opted to exercise planning and zoning powers pursuant to AS 29.41.010(b) and followed the procedures prescribed therein, an appropriation of funds for the purposes recited in your letter will be subject to successful challenge.

The contents of your letter does not disclose and I am unfamiliar with the present circumstances in Haines as to whether or not the Borough voters in a general or special election have opted to provide for planning, platting and zoning. The answer to your question pivots on that factual determination. Going further, there is one additional aspect to the planning function which requires elaboration. Assuming that there has been an election in compliance with AS 29.41.010(b), there exists the question of the appropriateness of the expenditure from a common or general fund source. Under AS 29.41.010 as it existed in 1972 a third class borough could assume additional area-wide municipal powers under AS 29.33.250, assuming the Senate Journal notes which serve as the official legislative history are to be accorded veracity. But the powers referred to in AS 29.33.250 are area-wide. The new legislation seems to impose a limitation. AS 29.41.010 prescribes in the last sentence of subsection (a) that "Area-wide exercise of powers other than education and tax assessment and collection is not authorized." That language constitutes a specific limitation which gains even further support in the second sentence of subsection (b) which prescribes that "Powers assumed by a third class borough under this section may be exercised only within service areas." At that point, one would logically inquire as to whether or not the Haines Borough may presently make such an appropriation under its planning, platting and zoning function which applies to all of the borough area outside the City of Haines. I think not; the statutes apparently contemplate separate or individualized services areas rather than permitting a "unified" service area comprised of all of the borough territory outside a city. AS 29.63.090 seems to be dispositive. It provides in relevant part that > "(a) Service areas to provide special services within a borough may be established, operated, altered or abolished by the assembly by ordinance. Special services include services not provided on an area-wide basis within the borough or the borough area outside cities or a higher or different level of service than that provided on an area-wide basis or in the borough area outside cities... "

Subsection (b) of AS 29.63.090 which pertains to service areas prescribes that the assembly is authorized to levy taxes in the service areas to finance the special services.

In conclusion, the Assembly's appropriation of moneys for the purposes prescribed in your letter of April

2, 1979 will appear to be within prescribed statutory authority only if the Haines Borough has conducted an election to permit planning, platting and zoning, and further, that said function be implemented and taxed on a service area basis as contrasted with an area-wide basis.

Very truly yours,

MEMORANDUM
TO: Haines Borough Chairman and Assemblypersons
FROM: Borough Attorney
SUBJECT: Lobbying expenditures by the Borough

The question has been asked recently and now again about the Haines Borough's authority to expend monies for lobbying purposes.

The Haines Borough is a member, I believe, of both the Alaska Schoolboard Association and Alaska Municipal League, two well known lobbying organizations, that have represented Alaska cities and boroughs for many years before the executive and legislative branches concerning many tax, educational and other issues of vital nature to the Haines Borough. Expenditure of Borough monies for these memberships is legal, in my opinion, since lobbying by the two entities involves substantially the issues of taxes and education, the two powers that the Borough can presently expend Borough funds for.

The City of Haines is requesting the Borough to appropriate lobbying funds in conjunction with City funds for retaining a law firm to represent the governments in Washington on the issue of HR-39. Whether this is a legal expenditure of funds for the Borough is a question that should be addressed prior to the Boroggh meeting next Tuesday. As a member of Lynn Canal Conservation, Inc. I do not feel I should give an opinion, but suggest that the Borough ask another attorney for his opinion on the question.

Memorandum to: Haines Borough Assembly Members
From: Administrative Secretary
Subject: Conversation with Bill Pfitchard, Department of Community and Regional Affairs re lobbying and the Third Class Borough

January 24, 1979

Telephone conversation wtih Bill Pritchard, Community and Regional Affairs 465-4707

Mr. Pritchard stated that the Borough could undertake to lobby if:

(1) funds were used which were not specifically designated for education. Federal Revenue Sharing funds, and Payment-in-lieu of taxes might be used.

(2) a special account was set up for this particular expenditure.

Mr. Pritchard reasoned that lobbying was not a Borough wide power and that therefore, to lobby was not misusing the two area wide powers of taxation and education, although lobbying against the eagle study as designated in H.B. 39, Special Studies subsection, would have area-wide effect.

Mr. Pritchard compared the ability of the Borough to lobby to the ability of the Borough to sue and to defend itself in court . Mr. Pritchard did not seem to think that the nature of the lobbying effort had to have a pecessary relationship to taxation or education. Mr. Pritchard added that he was of the opinion that running a public library was beyond the province of a third class borough.

In closing, Mr. Pritchard stated that he would talk to some other individuals in the office and that he would get back to the Borough if he was able to turn up any more relevant advice and/or information. Mr. Pritchard allowed that there is no definite legal opinion on the precise powers of a third class borough and that one way to obtain legal opinion is to go ahead and lobby, and then go to court if the Borough is taken to task for misuse of its powers.

Dear Stephanie:

Your February 4, 1980, letter raised two questions regarding the ability of a third class borough to dispose of land:

1. It appears that a third class borough does have the authority to dispose of land, and to subdivide it pursuant to the disposal. AS 29.48.010(9), in the Chapter titled "Powers Applicable to All Municipalities", establishes the general power "to acquire, manage, control, use and dispose of real and personal property for the purpose authorized under this title...". If Municipal land were sold to provide revenue for educational purposes, it would appear to be within the authority of any municipality. This is further supported by the footnotes in Title 29 that cites court cases which establish a broad, liberal construction of powers to municipalities. The platting, planning, and zoning powers, are powers to regulate land subdivision; though your borough could not regulate the subdivision of land by use of the police power, it certainly would not prohibit your borough from subdividing land.

2. The answer to your second question is answered by the above response: There appears to be no problem expending funds from the sale of land for a valid purpose, such as education. The 1979 amendment to AS 29.48.010(9) is permissive only, and creates no prohibition or limitation on a municipality. A municipality would not be prevented from expending moneys otherwise that is allowed under the amendment.

These answers to your questions relating to land disposal are staff opinions only, I would strongly suggest that you ask your borough attorney to give you further advice.

It the land disposals within your borough raise other problems or questions, do not hesitate to contact me.

Sincerely,

Geo. K. Hollis

& classroom space

[illegible] by a resident 65 years of age or over is exempt from taxation of the assessed value of the real property. Only one exemption may be granted with respect to the same property and, if two or more persons are eligible for an exemption with respect to the same property, the parties shall decide between or among themselves which shall receive the benefit of the exemption. No real property may be exempted under this subsection which the assessor determines, after notice and hearing to the parties concerned, has been conveyed to the applicant primarily for the purpose of obtaining the exemption. The determination of the assessor is appealable under AS 44.62.560 — 44.62.570.

(d) No exemption may be granted except upon written application for the exemption on a form prescribed by the state assessor for use by local assessors. The claimant must file the application no later than January 15 of the assessment year for which the exemption is sought, but during the same year the governing body of the municipality for good cause shown may waive the claimant's failure to make timely application for the exemption for that year and authorize the assessor to accept the application as if timely filed. The claimant must file a separate application for each assessment year in which the exemption is sought. If an application is filed within the required time and is approved by the assessor, he shall allow an exemption in accordance with the provisions of this section. If a claimant whose failure to file by January 15 of the assessment year has been waived as provided in this subsection and the application for exemption is approved, the amount of tax which the claimant may have already paid for the assessment year with respect to the property exempted shall be refunded to him. The assessor may at any time require proof in the form he considers necessary of the right and amount of an exemption claimed under this section.

(g) The state shall reimburse a borough or city, as appropriate, for the real property tax revenues lost to it by the operation of (e) of this section. However, reimbursement will be made to a borough or city for revenue lost to it only to the extent that the loss exceeds an exemption which was granted by the borough or city, or which upon proper application by an individual would have been granted by the borough or city, under § 25(a) of this chapter.

(h) Except as provided in (g) of this section, nothing in (e)—(f) of this section affects similar exemptions from property taxes granted by municipalities on September 10, 1972 or prevents municipalities from granting similar exemptions by ordinance as provided in § 25 of this chapter.

(am §§ 1, 2 ch 60 SLA 1973; am § 1 ch 65 SLA 1975; am § 1 ch 191 SLA 1976; am § 1 ch 217 SLA 1976; am §§ 1, 2 ch 229 SLA 1976; am § 1 ch 97 SLA 1977)

(i) In (e)—(i) of this section the term "real property" includes but is not limited to mobile homes, whether classified as real or personal property for municipal tax purposes. (§ 2 ch 118 SLA 1972)

History of section. — See City of Anchorage v. Cnugach Elec. Ass'n, 17 Alaska 481, 282 F.2d 412 (9th Cir. 1960).

This section was enacted pursuant to Alaska Const., art. IX, § 6. Harmon v. North Par. Union Conference Ass'n of Seventh Day Adventists, Sup. Ct. Op. No. 581 (File No. 1030), 462 P.2d 422 (1969).

Intent of constitutional convention. —The constitutional convention intended that only so much of the property used for religious purposes as was being used to produce income should be taxable, that such other parts should be exempt, and that a proration between taxable and nontaxable parts should be made. 1962 Op. Att'y Gen., No. 15.

Purpose.—The purpose of this section is to encourage the establishment of privately supported nonprofit educational institutions; the motivation for their establishment is largely irrelevant. McKee v. Evans, Sup. Ct. Op. No. 743 (File No. 1382), 490 P.2d 1224 (1971).

[illegible] — The 1975 amendment deleted "where gross annual income from use does not exceed $10,000" preceding "is exempt" in the first sentence of subsection (e), deleted the language beginning "whenever" from the end of the present second sentence of that subsection, and deleted the language following "exemption allowed under this section" from the end of the fourth sentence of subsection (f).

The 1975 amendment, effective May 16, 1975, in subsection (f) deleted the former second sentence into the present second and third sentences by substituting "The claimant" for "and" at the beginning of the present third sentence, added the language beginning "but during the same year" to the end of the present second sentence, and added the present fifth sentence.

The first 1976 amendment, effective January 1, 1977, in subsection (b), substituted "a taxing power" for "the power" in paragraph (1) and inserted "religious administrative offices" in paragraph (2).

The second 1976 amendment, in subsection (e), deleted "After January 1, 1977" from the beginning of the first sentence, added the language beginning "up to and including an assessed value limit" to the end of that sentence, and added the former second sentence.

The third 1976 amendment, effective June 28, 1976, added the second sentence of subsection (g), added "Except as provided in (g) of this section," to the beginning of subsection (h), and deleted the former second sentence of subsection (h), which read "However, under (e) — (i) of this section only the amount of revenue lost to the municipality by reason of the exemption authorized in those provisions may be reimbursed to the municipality by the state."

The 1977 amendment, effective June 18, 1977, and retroactive to January 1, 1977, in subsection (e), deleted "up to and including an assessed value level determined no later than January 15 of each year by the commissioner of the Department of Community and Regional Affairs" from the end of the first sentence and deleted the former second sentence, which read "The assessed value level determined shall equate also to a beginning distribution of private real property values in the state."

As the rest of the section was not affected by the amendments, it is not set out.

Editor's note. — Section 1, ch. 12, SLA 1972, provides: "Notwithstanding the provisions of AS 29.53.025(2), for the 1972 assessment year the filing date for application for the exemptions granted under AS 29.53.025(a) is extended to March 15, 1973."

Strict construction.

The courts must narrowly construe statutes granting tax exemptions. Greater Anchorage Area Borough v. Sisters of Charity of House of Providence, Sup. Ct. Op. No. 1259 (File No. 2445), 568 P.2d 467 (1976).

Burden of showing eligibility for exemption. — A taxpayer claiming a tax exemption has the burden of showing that the property is eligible for the exemption. Greater Anchorage Area Borough v. Sisters of Charity of House of Providence, Sup. Ct. Op. No. 1259 (File No. 2445), 568 P.2d 467 (1976).

Exclusive use for nonprofit religious, etc., purposes must be shown. In order to qualify for an exemption, the taxpayer must show not benefits, but exclusive use for nonprofit religious, charitable, cemetery, hospital or educational purposes. Greater Anchorage Area Borough v. Sisters of Charity of House of Providence, Sup. Ct. Op. No. 1259 (File No. 2445), 568 P.2d 467 (1976).

When the property in question is used even in part by nonexempt parties for their private business purposes, there can be no exemption. Greater Anchorage Area Borough v. Sisters of Charity of House of Providence, Sup. Ct. Op. No. 1259 (File No. 2445), 568 P.2d 467 (1976).

Actual use rather than owner's use should be analyzed in determining eligibility for an exemption. Greater Anchorage Area Borough v. Sisters of Charity of House of Providence, Sup. Ct. Op. No. 1259 (File No. 2445), 568 P.2d 467 (1976).

Office space rented to doctors engaged in private practice. — Office space in a building partially used exclusively for nonprofit hospital purposes, rented to doctors engaged in the private practice of medicine by a nonprofit charitable and religious corporation, was not exempt from taxation. Greater Anchorage Area Borough v. Sisters of Charity of House of Providence, Sup. Ct. Op. No. 1259 (File No. 2445), 568 P.2d 467 (1976).

While the use of office space by doctor-tenants in conducting their private practices does provide incidental benefits to the adjacent hospital, the office space is not used exclusively for hospital purposes. Greater Anchorage Area Borough v. Sisters of Charity of House of Providence, Sup. Ct. Op. No. 1259 (File No. 2445), 568 P.2d 467 (1976).

Sec. 29.53.025. Optional exemptions and exclusions. (a) Municipalities may exclude or exempt or partially exempt residential property from taxation by ordinance ratified by the voters at a regular or special election. An exclusion or exemption authorized by this section may not exceed $10,000 for any one residence.

(b) Municipalities may by ordinance

(1) classify boats and vessels for purposes of taxation and may establish the assessed valuation of boats and vessels on the basis of their registered or certificated net tonnage; a tax based upon a tonnage valuation shall not exceed $3 a year for a boat or vessel of less than five net tons and shall not exceed $15 a year for a boat or vessel of more than five net tons;

(2) classify and exempt from taxation

(A) the household furniture over $100 in value and the effects of the head of a family or a householder; and

(B) the property of an organization not organized for business or profit-making purposes and used exclusively for community purposes, provided that income derived from rental of such property does not exceed the actual cost to the owner of the use by the renter; and

Sec. 29.53.035. Farm or agricultural lands. (a) Farm use lands included in a farm unit and not dedicated or being used for nonfarm purposes shall be assessed on the basis of full and true value for farm use, and shall not be assessed as if subdivided or used for some other nonfarm purpose. The assessor shall maintain records valuing the farm use land for both full and true value and farm use value. Should the farm use land be sold, leased, or otherwise disposed of for uses incompatible with farm use or be converted to a use incompatible with farm use by the owner, the owner is liable to pay an amount equal to the additional tax at the current mill levy together with eight per cent interest for the preceding seven years, as though the land had not been assessed for farm use purposes. Payment by the owner shall be made to the state to the extent of its reimbursement for revenue loss under (e) of this section for the preceding seven years. The balance of the payment shall be made to the city or borough.

(b) An owner of farm use land must, to secure the assessment, make application to the assessor before May 15 of each year in which the assessment is desired. The application shall be made upon forms prescribed by the state assessor for the use of the local assessor and shall include information which may reasonably be required to determine the entitlement of the applicant. If the farm use land is leased for farm use purposes, the applicant shall furnish to the assessor a copy of the lease bearing the signatures of both lessee and lessor along with the completed application. The applicant shall furnish the assessor a copy of the lease covering the period for which the exemption is requested.

(c) In this section "farm use" means the use of land for raising and harvesting crops or for the feeding, breeding and management of livestock or for dairying or another agricultural use for profit or any combination thereof. To be farm use land, the owner or the lessee must be actively engaged in farming the land, and derive at least 10 per cent of his yearly gross income from the farm use land. The provisions of this section do not apply to land respecting which the owner has granted, and has outstanding, a lease or option to buy the surface rights. A property owner wishing to file for farm use classification having no history of farm-related income may submit a declaration of intent at the time of filing the application with the assessor setting out the intended use of the land and the anticipated percentage of income. An applicant using this procedure shall file with the assessor before February 1 of the following year a notarized statement of the percentage of gross income attributable to the farm use land. Failure to make the filing required in this subsection forfeits the exemption.

(d) In the event of a crop failure by an act of God the previous year, the owner or lessee may submit an affidavit affirming that 10 per cent of his gross income for the past three years was from farming.

(e) Subject to legislative appropriations for the purpose, the state shall reimburse a borough or city, as appropriate, for the real property tax revenues lost to it by the operation of this section. (§ 2 ch 118 SLA 1972; am § 1 ch 90 SLA 1974; am § 3 ch [illegible] SLA 1976; am § 1 ch 66 SLA 1978)

Effect of amendments. — The 1974 amendment made extensive changes in subsections (a), (b), and (c) as to make a detailed comparison impracticable and added subsections (d) and (e).

The 1976 amendment, effective June 21, 1976, and retroactive to January 1, 1975, in subsection (a), substituted "uses incompatible with farm use" for "other than farm use purposes," "a use incompatible with farm use" for "nonfarm use" and "eight per cent" for "five per cent" in the third sentence, inserted "at the current mill levy" in that sentence, and added "for the preceding seven years" at the end of the fourth sentence.

The 1978 amendment substituted "May 15" for "February 1" in the first sentence of subsection (b).

Sec. 29.53.050. Tax limitations. (a) No municipality may levy and use for any purpose in excess of three per cent of the assessed valuation of property within the municipality in any one year.

(b) No municipality, or combination of municipalities occupying the same geographical area, in whole or in part, may levy taxes (1) which will result in tax revenues from all sources exceeding $1,000 a year for each person residing within their boundaries or (2) upon values which, when combined with the value of property otherwise taxable by the municipality, exceed the product of 225 per cent of the average per capita assessed full and true value of property in the state multiplied by the number of residents of the taxing municipality. If two or more municipalities occupying the same geographical area in whole or in part attempt to levy a tax (1) the combined levy of which would result in tax revenues from all sources exceeding $1,000 a year for each person residing within their boundaries or (2) upon value which, when combined with the value of property otherwise taxable by the municipality, exceed the product of 225 per cent of the average per capita assessed full and true value of property in the state multiplied by the number of residents of the taxing municipality, the commissioner of community and regional affairs shall apportion the lawful levy and equitably divide these revenues on the basis of need, services performed and other considerations in the public interest. For the purpose of this subsection, population shall be determined by the commissioner of community and regional affairs based on the latest statistics of the United States Bureau of the Census or on other reliable population data. For purposes of this subsection the average per capita assessed full and true value of property in the state shall be calculated without regard to the assessed value of taxable property under AS 43.58. Effect of amendments. — The 1973 amendment, effective January 1, 1974, substituted "limitations provided for in §§ 45 or 50 of this chapter do" for "limitation provided for in § 45 of this chapter does" in the first sentence.

The 1977 amendment, effective June 3, 1977, and retroactive to January 1, 1976, added "regardless of whether the bonds are in default or in danger of default" to the end of the section.

This section, literally read, does not render AS 29.53.045 and 29.53.050 meaningless. This section applies only to debt financing. The limitations of AS 29.53.045 and 29.53.050 apply to operating revenues. Merely because they do not also curb taxes to pay for bonds does not render them nullities. North Slope Borough v. Sohio Petroleum Corp., Sup. Ct. Op. No. 1750 (Dec. Nos. 3441, 3542, 3650, 3651 P.2d 834 (1978)

Chapter 84, SLA 1977, relating to both state and local taxation does not violate Alaska Const., art. II, § 13, which requires every bill to be confined to one subject. North Slope Borough v. Sohio Petroleum Corp., Sup. Ct. Op. No. 1758 (File Nos. 2068, 2512, 2620), 585 P.2d 534 (1978).

Authority to pay for municipal bonds. — This section and AS 29.28.100(a) authorize taxes to pay for municipal bonds, independent of the limitations of AS 29.53.045 or 29.53.050, and regardless of whether the bonds are in default or default is pending. North Slope Borough v. Sohio Petroleum Corp., Sup. Ct. Op. No. 1758 (File Nos. 2068, 2512, 2620), 585 P.2d 534 (1978).

Alaska Supply Statutes assume taxation of AS 43.56 property. — The last sentence of this section adds to exemptions and limitations imposed by AS 29.53.045 and by the language which authorizes taxation of AS 43.56 property. North Slope Borough v. Sohio Petroleum Corp., Sup. Ct. Op. No. 1758 (File Nos. 2068, 2512, 2620), 585 P.2d 534 (1978).

The second sentence of this section does not create independent authorizing language. "[A]ssessors . . . may be treated," but may not be construed as a grant to tax AS 43.56 property independent of the authority of AS 29.53.045(a) (as distinct from the limitations) because AS 43.56.010 and 43.56.010(d) provide that municipalities may tax AS 43.56 property only under AS 29.53.045. North Slope Borough v. Sohio Petroleum Corp., Sup. Ct. Op. No. 1758 (File Nos. 2068, 2512, 2620), 585 P.2d 534 (1978).

Sec. 29.53.060. Full and true value. (a) The assessor shall assess property at its full and true value as of January 1 of the assessment year, except as provided in this section and §§ 30, 35 and 160 of this chapter. The full and true value is the estimated price which the property would bring in an open market and under the then prevailing market conditions in a sale between a willing seller and a willing buyer both conversant with the property and with prevailing general price levels.

(b) Assessment of business inventories may be based on the average monthly method of assessment rather than the value existing on January 1. The method used to assess business inventories shall be prescribed by the borough assembly. (§ 2 ch 118 SLA 1972)

(c) In the case of cessation of business during the tax year, the assembly may provide for reassessment of business inventories using the average monthly method of assessment for the tax year rather than the value existing on January 1 of the tax year, and for reduction and refund of taxes. In enacting an ordinance authorized by this section, the assembly may prescribe procedures, restrictions, and conditions of assessing or reassessing business inventories and of remitting or refunding taxes.

Effect of amendments. — The 1973 amendment deleted "of a municipality" following "assessor" in the first sentence of subsection (a).

The 1974 amendment added subsection (c).

As the rest of the section was not affected by the amendments, it is not set out.

Editor's note. — The enactment in the main pamphlet, reading "This section applies only to the tax year during which a disaster takes place," was incorrectly located under this section. It appears in AS 29.53.160.

Determining portion of property devoted to purposes of organization. — Determination of what portion of property owned by a charitable, religious, or educational organization is devoted to purposes of the organization, is a factual function devolving upon the assessor and the board of equalization by law. Sisters of Charity v. Greater Anchorage Area Borough, 8 Alas. L.J. No. 11, p. 372 (Sept., 1970).

Sec. 29.53.110. Assessment notice. (a) The assessor shall give every person named in the assessment roll a notice of assessment, showing the assessed value of his property. On each notice is printed a brief summary of the dates when taxes are payable, delinquent and subject to penalty and interest, and the dates when the board of equalization will sit.

(b) Sufficient assessment notice is given if mailed by first class mail 30 days before the equalization hearings. If the address is not known to the assessor, the notice may be addressed to the person at the post office nearest the property. Notice is effective on the date of mailing. (§ 2 ch 118 SLA 1972)

Mandatory provisions of section not complied with. — Mandatory provisions of AS 29.53.110 and this section relating to assessment procedures were not complied with by the North Slope Borough. Such non-compliance is in violation of the rights of plaintiffs to due process in the levy of tax against them. Arco Pipe Line Co. v. North Slope Borough, Superior Court, 4th Jud. Dist., C.A. No. 73-336 and C.A. Nos. 73-294 to 73-306 (1973).

Sec. 29.53.120. Corrections. (a) A person receiving an assessment notice shall advise the assessor of errors or omissions in the assessment of his property. The assessor may correct errors or omissions in the roll before the board of equalization hearing.

(b) If errors found in the preparation of the assessment roll are adjusted, the assessor shall mail a corrected notice allowing 30 days for appeal to the board. (§ 2 ch 118 SLA 1972)

Sec. 29.53.130. Appeal. (a) A person whose name appears on the assessment roll or his agent or assigns may appeal to the board of equalization for relief from an alleged error in valuation not adjusted by the assessor to the taxpayer's satisfaction.

(b) The appellant shall, within 30 days from the date of mailing of notice of assessment, submit to the assessor a written appeal specifying grounds in the form which the board may require. Otherwise, the right of appeal ceases unless the board finds that the taxpayer was unable to comply.

(c) The assessor shall notify appellants by mail of the time and place of their hearing.

(d) The assessor shall prepare for use by the board a summary of assessment data relating to each assessment which is appealed.

(e) A city may appeal an assessment to the board of equalization in the same manner as a taxpayer. Within five days after receipt of the appeal, the assessor shall notify the person whose property assessment is being appealed by the city. (§ 2 ch 118 SLA 1972)

Taxpayer may contest valuation. — Under this section a taxpayer may contest valuation before a board of trustees meeting as a board of equalization. Yakutat & S. Ry. v. City of Yakutat, 16 Alaska 16, 227 F.2d 9 (9th Cir. 1955).

Sec. 29.53.135. Board of equalization. The assembly sits as a board of equalization for the purpose of hearing any appeal from determinations of the borough assessor, or it may delegate this authority to a board appointed by it for that purpose. The board of equalization shall consist of at least that number of members of the assembly over and above the number required for a quorum to transact business. The board is governed in its proceedings by such procedures consistent with general rules of administrative law and the laws governing equalization proceedings as may be adopted by ordinance, including but not limited to quorum and voting requirements. The assembly shall by ordinance adopt rules for the membership and conduct of the board. (§ 2 ch 118 SLA 1972)

(b) The appellant bears the burden of proof.

(c) The only grounds for adjustment is proof of unequal, excessive or improper valuation based on facts which are stated in a valid written appeal timely filed or proved at the hearing.

(d) The board shall certify its actions to the assessor within seven days.

(e) The assessor shall enter the changes and certify the final assessment roll by June 1.

Scope of review. — The superior court will not substitute its judgment for the judgment of those upon whom the law confers the authority and duty to assess and levy taxes. The superior court is concerned with nothing less than fraud or the clear adoption of a fundamentally wrong principle of evaluation. Sisters of Charity v. Greater Anchorage Area Borough, 8 Alas. L.J. No. 1, p. 272 (Sept., 1970); Twentieth Century Inv. Co. v. City of Juneau, Sup. Ct. Op. No. 28 (File No. 42), 359 P.2d 783 (1961).

When valuation or assessment violates due process.—The valuation and assessment of property for taxes does not contravene the due process clause of the 14th amendment unless it is plainly demonstrated that there is involved, not the exercise of the taxing power, but the exertion of a different and forbidden power, such as the confiscation of property. Such a demonstration is not made simply by showing overvaluation; there must be something which, in legal effect, is equivalent to an intention or fraudulent purpose to place an excessive valuation on property, and thus violate fundamental principles that safeguard the taxpayer's property rights. Twentieth Century Inv. Co. v. City of Juneau, Sup. Ct. Op. No. 28 (File No. 42), 359 P.2d 783 (1961).

Broad reading of subsection (c) held unconstitutional. — A broad reading of subsection (c) to implicitly permit the jury to set the valuation of property by finding that the valuation set by the assessor is "excessive" or "improper" is violative of the doctrine of separation of powers, while a more limited reading of subsection (c) is constitutionally permissible. Winegardner v. Greater Anchorage Area Borough, Sup. Ct. Op. No. 1133 (File No. 2066), 534 P.2d 641 (1975).

Subsection (f) delegates to a jury the power previously held exclusively by the borough assembly. Winegardner v. Greater Anchorage Area Borough, Sup. Ct. Op. No. 1133 (File No. 2066), 534 P.2d 641 (1975).

There is no constitutional right to a trial by jury to determine proper tax assessments. Winegardner v. Greater Anchorage Area Borough, Sup. Ct. Op. No. 1133 (File No. 2066), 534 P.2d 641 (1975).

Taxes, powers reserved by Alaska Const., art. IV, §§ 1 and 16 not encroached on. — The right to jury review of municipal tax assessments does not encroach upon the judicial power reserved to the courts by Alaska Const., art. IV, §§ 1 and 16. Wiregardner v. Greater Anchorage Area Borough, Sup. Ct. Op. No. 1133 (File No. 2046), 534 P.2d 541 (1975).

Subsection (f) does not violate the constitutional principle of separation of powers. Wiregardner v. Greater Anchorage Area Borough, Sup. Ct. Op. No. 1133 (File No. 2046), 534 P.2d 541 (1975).

Proceeding on appeal is not new proceeding. — Subsection (f) speaks of an "appeal to the superior court" and gives an indication that this proceeding, even though authorized as de novo and by jury, constitutes a new proceeding. Wiregardner v. Greater Anchorage Area Borough, Sup. Ct. Op. No. 1133 (File No. 2046), 534 P.2d 541 (1975).

Though review resembles original proceeding. — De novo jury trial does expand judicial review beyond the limited scope associated with a classic appeal and features under subsection (f) the jury may disregard some of the findings of a board [illegible] proceeding, the review resembles an appeal pursuant to Wiregardner v. Greater Anchorage Area Borough, Sup. Ct. Op. No. 1133 (File No. 2046), 534 P.2d 541 (1975).

No right to fresh assessment of taxes on appeal. — Subsection (f) creates a taxpayer's right to have the judgment of a jury substituted for that of the borough assembly sitting as an over board of equalization. The right, however, is not to a fresh assessment of taxes of the property. Wiregardner v. Greater Anchorage Area Borough, Sup. Ct. Op. No. 1133 (File No. 2046), 534 P.2d 541 (1975).

But section (f) does not purport to authorize judicial formulation of general tax policies. It vests the courts to endorse, with the aid of a jury, only the traditional judicial task in the case of determining in particular instances whether policy to be followed in the assessment of taxes has been accurately applied. Wiregardner v. Greater Anchorage Area Borough, Sup. Ct. Op. No. 1133 (File No. 2046), 534 P.2d 541 (1975).

Contention that board cannot be administrative agency because its decisions are subject to judicial review under subsection (f) held without merit. — See Wiregardner v. Greater Anchorage Area Borough, Sup. Ct. Op. No. 1133 (File No. 2046), 534 P.2d 541 (1975).

Erroneous omissions from assessment roll do not invalidate all taxes. —The omission of property from an assessment roll, through error of judgment or of law, will not invalidate all taxes, thus practically putting an end to the operations of government. Valentine v. City of Juneau, 36 F.2d 904 (9th Cir. 1929).

Sec. 29.53.160. Tax adjustments on property affected by a natural disaster. (a) The assembly may provide for reassessment and reduction of taxes for property destroyed, damaged, or otherwise reduced in value as a result of a natural disaster.

(b) A reassessment may be made by the assessor only upon the receipt of a sworn statement of the taxpayer that his losses exceed $1,000. A reduction of taxes may be made only on losses in excess of $1,000 for the remainder of the year following the disaster. Upon reassessment, the borough shall recompute this tax and refund taxes which have already been paid.

(c) The borough shall make notice of assessment or reassessment and shall hold an equalization hearing as provided in this chapter, except that a notice of appeal is filed with the board of equalization within 10 days after notice of assessment is given to the person appealing. Otherwise, the right of appeal ceases unless the board finds that the taxpayer is unable to comply.

(d) In enacting an ordinance or resolution authorized by this section, the assembly may, consistent with this section, prescribe procedures, restrictions and conditions of assessing or reassessing property and of remitting, refunding or forgiving taxes.

(e) In this section "disaster" means a major disaster declared by the President of the United States under the provisions of the Federal Disaster Act of 1950, Title 42, United States Code, sec. 1855-1855g, or other federal law. (§ 2 ch 118 SLA 1972)

Sec. 29.53.350. Redemption period; publication of redemption period expiration notice. The redemption period ends one year after the date of judgment of foreclosure, but if the property is sold for less than the amount of the judgment, the redemption period ends one year after the date of confirmation of the sale. At least [illegible] before the expiration of the redemption period the clerk shall publish a redemption period expiration notice. The notice shall contain the date of judgment, the date of expiration of the period of redemption and a warning to the effect that all properties ordered sold under the judgment, unless redeemed, shall be deeded to the borough or city immediately on expiration of the period of redemption and that every right or interest of any person in the properties will be forfeited forever to the borough or city. The notice is published once a week for four consecutive weeks in a newspaper of general circulation distributed within the borough. If there is no newspaper of general circulation distributed within the borough, the notice is posted in three public places for at least four consecutive weeks. The clerk shall send a copy of the published notice by certified mail to each record owner of property against which a judgment of foreclosure has been taken and, if the assessed value of the property is more than $10,000, to all holders of mortgages or other liens of record on the property. The notice shall be mailed within five days of the first publication. The mailing shall be sufficient if mailed to the property owner and to the holder of a mortgage or recorded lien at the last address of record. The right of redemption shall expire 30 days after the date of the first publication notice.

(b) Costs incurred in the determination of holders of mortgages and other liens of record and costs of publication of notice incurred by a municipality under (a) of this section are a lien on the property and may be recovered by the municipality. (§ 2 ch 118 SLA 1972; am §§ 2, 3 ch 48 SLA 1977)

Effect of amendment. — The 1977 amendment designated the provisions of this section as subsection (a) and in that subsection, substituted "At least" for "Not earlier than" at the beginning of the first sentence, substituted the language beginning "which a judgment of foreclosure has been taken and" for "whom a judgment of foreclosure has been taken" at the end of the fifth sentence, and inserted "and to the holder of a mortgage or recorded lien" in the seventh sentence. The amendment also added subsection (b).

Sec. 29.53.360. Deed to borough or city. (a) Unredeemed properties in the area of the borough outside cities are deeded to the borough by the clerk of the court. Unredeemed properties within a city are deeded to the city subject to the payment by the city of unpaid borough taxes and costs of foreclosure levied against the property before foreclosure. The deeds shall be recorded in the recording district in which the property is located.

(b) Conveyance gives the borough or the city clear title except for prior recorded liens of the United States and the state.

(c) If unredeemed property lies within a city and if the city has no immediate public use for the property but the borough does have an immediate public use, the city shall deed the property to the borough. If unredeemed property lies within the borough outside a city and if the borough does not have an immediate public use for the property but the city does have an immediate public use, the borough shall deed the property to the city.

(d) No deed is invalid for irregularities, omissions or defects, unless the former owner has been misled to his injury. After two years from the date of the deed, its validity is conclusively presumed and any claim of the former owner is forever barred. (§ 2 ch 118 SLA 1972)

Upon foreclosure, municipality receives new title to property, free from encumbrances. — The general rule in Alaska and the great majority of jurisdictions is that when a municipality forecloses on property for failure to pay taxes, it receives a new title to the property free from all encumbrances. Jefferson v. Metropolitan Mtg. & Sec. Co., Sup. Ct. Op. No. 849 (File No. 1438), 508 P.2d 1306 (1973).

And a buyer of the property at a subsequent tax sale receives a new, independent title and not that of the former owner. Jefferson v. Metropolitan Mtg. & Sec. Co., Sup. Ct. Op. No. 849 (File No. 1438), 508 P.2d 1306 (1973).

As a general rule the purchaser of property at a tax sale receives a new title free from all encumbrances. Jefferson v. Metropolitan Mtg. & Sec. Co., Sup. Ct. Op. No. 849 (File No. 1438), 508 P.2d 1306 (1973).

Unless the buyer is the owner. — An owner of property may not perfect his own title to property by failing to pay his taxes and either directly or indirectly repurchasing the property at a tax sale. Jefferson v. Metropolitan Mtg. & Sec. Co., Sup. Ct. Op. No. 849 (File No. 1438), and P.2d 1306 (1973).

It is the general rule that when the owner of record redeems or repurchases his property, his purchase merely operates as a payment of the taxes and he receives the same title he held before the municipality's foreclosure. He cannot evade the purpose of the exemption by allowing the property to be sold to a third person and then buying from him, or by any other arrangement which would defeat or adversely affect the operation of the rule. Jefferson v. Metropolitan Mtg. & Sec. Co., Sup. Ct. Op. No. 849 (File No. 1438), 508 P.2d 1306 (1973).

Sec. 29.53.375. Proceeds of tax sale. (a) Upon sale of foreclosed real or personal property the borough or city shall divide the proceeds less cost of collection, between the borough and the city having unpaid taxes against the property. The division is in proportion to the respective municipal taxes against the property at the time of foreclosure.

(b) The former record owner of tax-foreclosed real property which has been held by a municipality for less than 10 years after the close of the redemption period and never designated for a public purpose which is sold at a tax-foreclosure sale is entitled to the portion of the proceeds of the sale which exceeds the amount sufficient to satisfy unpaid taxes, delinquent taxes assessed and levied as if the property had continued in private ownership, penalty, interest and costs of property sold, including costs incurred under § 350(a) of this chapter. If the proceeds of the sale of tax-foreclosed property exceed the total of unpaid and delinquent taxes, penalty, interest, and costs, the borough or city shall provide the former owner of the property written notice advising of the amount of the excess and the manner in which a claim for the balance of the proceeds may be submitted. Notice is sufficient under this subsection if mailed to the former owner at his last address of record. Upon presentation of a proper claim, the municipality shall remit the excess to the former record owner. A claim for the excess filed after six months of the date of sale is forever barred. (§ 2 ch 118 SLA 1972; am § 7 ch 48 SLA 1977)

Sec. 29.53.385. Payment of taxes upon public utilization. If a city or borough holds or takes title to tax-foreclosed property for a public purpose, the city or borough shall satisfy unpaid taxes and assessments against the property held by other municipalities, with accrued interest but without penalty. If the amount required to satisfy the unpaid taxes and assessments exceeds the assessed valuation of the property, the city or borough shall pay the other municipalities the assessed valuation, which shall be divided between the other municipalities in proportion to their respective taxes and assessments against the property at the time of foreclosure. (§ 2 ch 118 SLA 1972)

Sec. 29.53.390. Refund of taxes. (a) If a taxpayer pays taxes under protest, he may bring suit in the superior court against the borough for recovery of the taxes. If judgment for recovery is given against the borough, the borough shall refund the amount of the taxes to the taxpayer with interest at eight per cent from the date of payment plus costs.

(b) If, in payment of taxes legally imposed, a remittance by a taxpayer through error or otherwise exceeds the amount due, and the borough, on audit of the account in question, is satisfied that this is the case, the borough shall refund the excess to the taxpayer with interest at eight percent from the date of payment. A claim for refund filed after one year of the due date of the tax is forever barred. (§ 2 ch 118 SLA 1972)

29.53.390.(a) Following the words: "If judgment for recovery is given...", Delete: "...against the borough, the borough shall refund the amount of the taxes to the taxpayer...". Article 3. City Property Tax.

Sec. 29.53.400. Power of levy. Home rule and first class cities within boroughs may levy a general property tax. A property tax, if levied, shall be levied in the manner provided for borough levies in § 170(a) of this chapter and is subject to §§ 10—25, 60—85 and 310—350 of this chapter. The council shall by June 15 of each year present to the borough assembly a statement of the city's rate of levy, unless a different date is agreed upon by the borough and city. (§ 2 ch 118 SLA 1972; am § 5 ch 147 SLA 1972)

Effect of amendment. — The 1972 amendment, effective September 10, 1972, in the second sentence, inserted "shall be levied in the manner provided for borough levies in § 170(a) of this chapter and," inserted "10—25," and inserted "85."

September 26, 1980

The Department of Environmental Conservation performs some functions which might be handled by local communities. Local governments, being closer to the people and environment affected, might serve its citizens far better than the State can in some instances, a fact recognized by the Legislature in the 1980 session.

ACTIVITIES

The following activities are suitable for local assumption:

1. On-lot Inspections

(The material for this review was taken from Alex Viteri's "Draft Investigation of the State of Alaska Department of Environmental Conservation's On-site Certification Program and Suggested Recommendations," July 1980.)

"The need for the on-site certification program is two-fold. First, it is used as a means of ensuring that the proposed house loan matches the fair market value. Major lending institutions place this responsibility on local banks and mortgage companies which process the loan application. Without an on-site certification program, local banks and mortgage companies would not be able to process loans for houses with on-site water or sewer systems in a manner which would be satisfactory to the lending institutions.

Secondly, the on-site certification program is used as a means of ensuring that the home buyer is protected from health hazards encountered with faulty on-site water and/or sewer systems and the cost associated with their repair. Nationwide, the responsibility for on-site certification is traditionally accepted by either State or local government health authorities. It is presumed that this is because of the health authorities' familiarity with the subject matter and its interrelationship with their goals.

The State of Alaska has recently authorized the Alaska Housing Finance Corporation to bond up to five hundred million dollars for the financing of house loan mortgages. By performing the on-site program, the Department is ensuring that the health, safety, and welfare of the people of the State and their overall economic well-being is protected, in keeping with AS 46.03.010. It is also protecting the financial credibility of the State of Alaska."

2. Subdivision Review

This activity entails the review of subdivision plans for adequate sanitary waste disposal and accompanying field inspections. Adequate subdivision plan review must be done by a competent engineer; however, most communities with an existing public works department might be able to utilize existing staff as long as State standards and guidelines are explicitly stated and followed.

3. Environmental Sanitation

This program includes all activities listed in Appendix I. Most states retain only 2-3 sanitarians on the public or environmental health staff. Their main function is to provide technical assistance and guidance to local or county health jurisdictions. Anchorage is the only municipality in Alaska which has assumed all environmental sanitation activities. Others, notably Ketchikan and Fairbanks, have assumed responsibility only for hospitals.

4. Small Oil Spills

This would involve the containment and cleanup of small spills which frequently occur around canneries, tank farm fueling sites and boat harbors. According to Andy Spear, who recently drafted a paper entitled "Local Involvement in Oil Spill Response:""With the right training and equipment, the chronic small spill can be contained and cleaned up by local personnel, reducing the damage to the local environment and reducing the overall costs to federal and state governments. Coupled with local ordinances, local involvement in spill response could substantially reduce the total number of spill incidents."

5. Surface Oiling and Oily Waste Burn Permits

The oily gravels, earth and cleanup materials from an oil spill have to be disposed of somehow. While the potential for air pollution is the main deterrent to open burning of oily wastes, in some cases open burning might be preferable to other alternatives. If a municipality assumes part of the Small Oil Spill Program, it is reasonable to consider allowing similar control over the wastes generated by cleanup. However, since a high level of expertise is necessary to make judgements regarding oily wastes, probably only the larger communities would be capable of this function. Likewise, technical expertise is also required to make the correct decision whether to allow waste oil to be used on local roads as a dust suppressant. Note: If waste oil is declared a hazardous waste, the subject will be moot.

6. Litter Control

The intent here is for local jurisdictions to assume control over litter receptacles, youth litter programs, and litter in general. Communities, of course, often sponsor spring cleanup campaigns and several include litter prohibition in a general ordinance. But few, if any, have a comprehensive, functional program similar to that envisioned in the Litter Control and Resource Recovery Act, which is designed to specifically to combat litter. Since the Department is considering instituting its program only in areas outside organized municipalities, the latter may be faced with no program at all or with devising some systematic control effort to match that in the rural areas.

7. Vehicular Emissions

This responsibility pertains only to Anchorage and Fairbanks. Deterioration of air quality due to carbon monoxide emissions has not occurred in other parts of the State and is not of concern. The primary method of reducing CO emissions is through an Inspection and Maintenance (I/M) Program, and through transportation planning and strategies. Both municipalities are lead agencies in these control efforts, but at least 2 full-time DEC positions are currently devoted to transportation planning and auto emissions control in the two cities.

ASSISTANCE

The Department recognizes that, although the State now may be wealthier due to oil revenues, the financial situation in most municipalities remains as dismal as in earlier years. Local governments everywhere are feeling a powerful fiscal crunch and Alaskan communities, even with higher revenue sharing are no different.

Ginny Chitwood of the Alaska Municipal League has stated that, when the question of subdivision review came up over a year ago, the concern was raised that most local communities didn't have the sophistication to the do the job, couldn't afford to do it right, and, if they did it right, could go bankrupt. She also stated that, if DEC did adopt minimum standards for the functions it wanted to see municipalities assume, the larger municipalities might be willing to assume responsibility.

We want to assure local communities that, if they assume the above functions and State staff is no longer needed to perform them, State positions will be indeed be cut, with financial transfers as a method of assistance promoted on all levels.

In the meantime, the following are already available:

1. Grants

Two types of grants, both legislative, might be available. One is a direct grant to a community, usually for a specific community for a specific project. The second is a general legislative or Congressional grant authorization included in a law. The Litter Control and Resource Recovery Act is an example of such a grant. The State agency in this case basically passes through the money to the municipality. The only grants that DEC can make immediately available are those for litter control, which probably will not be over $90,000 for this fiscal year.

2. Revenue Sharing

The revenue sharing formula and the qualified uses was drastically changed by the 1980 Legislature. Previously qualified uses were listed and quantified and, based on them, communities submitted their requests. Now a community receives an automatic $25,000, but, beyond that, receives funding based on its own incentive to tax itself. Except for health and transportation-related activities, no activities are listed by type. Therefore, given this flexibility, a community can request funding for programs which were previously not covered by revenue sharing.

3. Technical Assistance

The primary assistance which we can give to communities assuming these activities and programs is a consistent set of standards and guidelines for implementation coupled with regularly scheduled workshops and courses for instruction for local staff.

Re: S.1181; Native Village of Tanacross Proposal
Our File: A66-417-80

Dear Mr. Walleri:

I am sorry it has not been possible to respond substantively to your letter of April 4, 1980 to our Juneau office until today but my East Coast travel on state business lasted several days longer than I had originally intended, and I did not return to the office until April 28. I have received from you a copy of S.1181 which I understand is pending, together with other proposed amendments regarding Title 18 of the United States Code. It is my further understanding, based upon conversations with senatorial offices in Washington, that no action is expected on S.1181 during 1980, but that it may advance sometime after the first of the year. Your letters indicate that you do not feel the passage of S.1181 is necessary in order for the State to consider the proposed agreement with Tanacross for law enforcement, which was the subject of your April 4 letter.

CSLH

Your letter of April 4 specifically requests participation by the State in discussions on the following subjects:

1. A mutual understanding of the definition of Indian country which reflects the federal law on the subject;

2. A cross-deputization agreement respecting tribal and state officials, including magistrates, constabulary and prosecutors;

3. An agreement respecting the regulatory authority of the State in Native villages, including planning, platting, zoning, taxing and other home-rule regulatory authority; and

4. Duration of such agreements.

I have discussed these matters with Wilson Condon, Deputy Alaska Attorney General and assure you that representatives of the Attorney General's Office, including Debra Vogt and Tom Koester of our Juneau office, as well as myself, would welcome the opportunity to discuss with you the topics you have mentioned, as well as others. However, in fairness I feel that you should be apprised of the State's legal position regarding these matters at the outset, so that you may have the opportunity to analyze whether the approach you have suggested, or some alternative approach, might be legally possible while at the same time meeting the needs of the people of Tanacross. The purpose of the remainder of this letter is to outline for you, in summary fashion, the position of the State regarding the points you have raised.

1. "Indian country". It is the State's position that, with the possible exception of the Metlakatla Indian Reservation on Annette Island, Alaska is not, nor has it ever been, "Indian country" as that term is used in 18 U.S.C. 1162 and 28 U.S.C. § 1360(b). Your assertion that the State is free, even in the absence of the enactment of S.1181, to enter into agreements such as you have proposed with Tanacross or other villages "since Alaska is a mandatory P.L. 83-280 state" has no direct bearing on your concerns because only the "Indian country", if any, within Alaska falls within the ambit of P.L. 83-280 (18 U.S.C. § 1162, 28 U.S.C. § 1360). Further, because in our view only the Metlakatla Reservation may possibly be defined as "Indian country", the obligation (or indeed the authority) of the State to enter into the type of agreement you have suggested regarding lands not within the Metlakatla Reservation does not exist. It has long been recognized as a matter of federal law that Alaska, as a territory or as a state, was not "Indian country" as that term has been defined in statute and court decisions. U.S. v. Seveloff, Fed. Case No. 16,252 (D. Ct. Ore. 1872) stated in part as follows,

> Under these circumstances, I conclude that the Territory of Alaska is not a part of "the Indian country," so declared by law, whatever it may be in fact, . . . I am inclined to the opinion that if Congress had intended this or any other provision of the Intercourse Act to be enforced in Alaska, it would, in accordance with its common practice, have so declared in the Act of July 27, 1868. p. 1024.

With the exception of subsequent specific statutory prohibitions against the introduction of spiritous liquor within the Territory of Alaska, Alaska did not later become "Indian country" by act of Congress or otherwise. In Re Carr, 5 Fed. Case No. 2,432 (D. Ct. Ore. 1875); 14 Op. A.G. 327 (1873); 16 Op. A.G. 141 (1878); Waters v. Campbell, 29 Fed. Case No. 17,264 (Ct. App. Ore. 1876); U.S. v. Williams, 2 Fed. 61 (Cir. Ct. Ore. 1880); U.S. v. Stephens, 12 Fed. 52 (Cir. Ct. Ore. 1882); U.S. v. Kie, Fed. Case No. 15,528A, 15,528B (D. Ct. Ak. 1885); Aff'd., Kie v. U.S., 27 Fed. 351 (Cir. Ct. Ore. 1886); In Re Sah Quah, 31 Fed. 327 (D. Ct.)

Ak. 1886). This consistent view of the non-existence of "Indian country" in Alaska is summarized by the eminent Indian law commentator Felix Cohen, in his Handbook of Federal Indian Law (1948), as follows:

> A license to trade is not required in Alaska. The Act of June 30, 1834, was not extended ex proprio vigore to the Territory upon its cession to the United States.
> The court, in United States v. Seveloff, in 1872, decided that this new possession was not Indian country, as defined and limited by the Trade and Intercourse Act. After this decision, on March 3, 1873, Congress extended to Alaska the provisions of Sections 21 and 22 of this statute relating principally to the interdiction of liquor traffic. The presumption seems clear that by singling out, mentioning, and extending two sections only, the intention of Congress was to withhold or exclude from the Territory all other sections of the Act. Apparently Alaska was intended to be considered "Indian country," in connection with Indian trade only to the extent of that specifically prohibited traffic. p. 350.

More recently, the Superior Court for the State of Alaska, Third Judicial District, specifically found in the case of Paug-Vik, Inc., Ltd. vs. LeResche, et al., (No. 77-17158) that, > 25 U.S.C. § 177 of the Indian Non-intercourse Act has never applied in Alaska, and Alaska has never become "Indian country"; Kie v. United States, 27 F. 351; 31 F. 327 (D. Ore. 1886); Supp. Brief of State re: 28 U.S.C. § 1360(b), May 25, 1978). Specifically, with the exception of certain reservations not relevant to this proceeding, the federal government has never closed Alaska to travel and settlement by any ethnic group. Decision, p. 16 (Sept. 12, 1979).

On the basis of this consistent and long-standing legal interpretation of the term "Indian country" as it might otherwise be applied to Alaska, it is the state's view that with the exception of Metlakatla, Alaska is not "Indian country" and thus is not a "mandatory P.L. 83-280 state", with that single exception. Thus the state is not required to recognize law enforcement, regulatory, or other police-power authority claimed by other native villages unless those villages are in fact incorporated as municipalities under state law, pursuant to Title 29 of the Alaska Statutes. Similarly, the concept of "tribal" officials is foreign to the law in Alaska, since there were no designated or recognized "tribes" or discrete jurisdictional territories within the state (again, with the exception of Metlakatla), and passage of the Alaska Native Claims Settlement Act (as will be set forth more fully below) specifically "closed the door" on the concept of any subsequent grant of "tribal" status to native regions or to villages receiving benefits under that act. Thus, to the extent that S. 1181 defines an "Indian tribe" as an "organized group or community exercising powers of self-government . . . including any Alaska Native villages included in the Alaska Native Claims Settlement Act . . . ", such a reference is both factually and legally erroneous, and cannot elevate the status of Alaska villages or village corporations to "tribal" status. The apparently well-meaning but incorrect reference to ANCSA Native villages as "tribes" will be the subject of continuing state communication to appropriate congressional committees so long as such language remains in the bill (though certainly the limitation of the scope of the entire bill to "Indian country" only should remove Alaska, with the exception of Metlakatla, from coverage by the bill).

2. The Alaska Native Claims Settlement Act. It is our view, and one which we believe is widely shared, that the Alaska Native Claims Settlement Act of 1971 represents the most "assimilationist" effort yet achieved by the United States in the settlement of aboriginal claims of indiginous native peoples, and the integration of those peoples and the property granted them by way of settlement into the mainstream of economic and governmental relations within a state.

Whether this approach was, in retrospect, beneficial or detrimental is not the question; what is important is the relationship of the state to the United States and to Alaska's Natives, their corporations, and the lands conveyed to those corporations under the act. ANCSA is explicit in its avoidance of the creation of a "reservation system" in Alaska, through its adoption of a plan conveying 44 million acres of federal lands in fee to Native village and regional corporations, without the trusteeship of the Secretary of the Interior as was the case when reservations were created in the lower 48 states. The land conveyed to Alaska Native corporations was to be held and managed as any private corporation might own and manage its lands, and the relationship of that corporation to the State of Alaska was to be the same as that of any other private corporation.

For example, Section 2 of ANCSA states in part as follows:

> Congress finds and declares that --
> (b) The settlement should be accomplished rapidly, with certainty, in conformity with real economic and social needs of Natives, without litigation, with maximum participation by Natives in decisions affecting their rights and > property, without establishing any permanent racially defined institution, rights, privileges, or obligations, without creating a reservation system or lengthy wardship or trusteeship, and without adding to the categories of property and institutions enjoying special tax privileges or to the legislation establishing special relationships between the United States government and the State of Alaska;

> * * *
> [Emphasis supplied]

In our view, the recognition by the State of Alaska of the "Native village of Tanacross" as a local government with police-power jurisdiction over lands conveyed to the village corporation of Tanacross (and to other lands?) would in fact perpetuate "racially-defined institutions, rights, privileges, and obligations." Your statement that the incorporation of Tanacross as a municipality under State law would "fail to fully represent the predominantly Native character of the community" appears to confirm the intent to seek state recognition of a "racially-defined institution." By seeking an agreement with the State which defines the "regulatory authority of the Native village", including law enforcement, planning, zoning, and taxing, the possibility of "adding to the categories of property and institutions enjoying special tax privileges" is clearly raised. The inability of the state to enter into an agreement with a village "tribe", where no such "tribe" has been recognized in law, whose claimed existence is antithetical to the purposes and implementation of ANCSA, poses a substantial barrier to state involvement in the manner you have suggested.

The Alaska Native Claims Settlement Act is replete with clear indications that Congress intended (or required) that Native villages incorporate as profit or non-profit corporations under the laws of the State of Alaska (Sections 3(j), 8(a)-(c)), that Native groups do the same (Section 14(h)(2), and that de facto Native villages be, or become, municipalities pursuant to the laws of the State of Alaska (Section 14(c)). Land conveyed to Native corporations was to enjoy a 20-year immunity from state and local real property taxation only; it was not to be forever immune as "Indian country" might otherwise be. Section 21(d). Nothing in ANCSA attributes powers of self-government over lands conveyed by ANCSA to unincorporated villages, or to IRA village councils. While the future utility, if any, of IRA village councils was not finally decided by ANCSA, it is the state's position that such councils, if they attempt to assert local police-power jurisdiction as a "tribe" or a local government entity, are acting contrary to law and to the express purposes of ANCSA.

In the state's view the role of IRA Councils cannot, after ANCSA, include the function of local self-government within a defined geographic area or over non-Natives, or as a recognized, lawful alternative to incorporation as a municipality under the laws of the State of Alaska. Therefore, the state is simply without authority to enter into "tribal" or "village council" agreements respecting law enforcement, land-use planning, taxation, and other "home-rule regulatory authority" as you have suggested in your letter, unless the state is negotiating with a unit of local government organized under the laws of the state.

I sincerely hope that this expression of the state's position on these matters does not in any way indicate that the state is not interested in or willing to work with Tanacross or any other village to solve recognized land-use planning, law enforcement, or similar matters. The state most certainly is interested in finding the best way, within its lawful powers, to meet such challenges, for both its rural and urban citizens, without regard to ethnic background. However, the state cannot meet these challenges by ceding its police power jurisdiction or authority to entities which are not now recognized under state or federal law, whose expressed desires are contrary to the purposes and implementation of the Alaska Native Claims Settlement Act, and whose functions in Alaska since 1971 are dubious and speculative at best.

Members of the Attorney General's Office would certainly be willing to meet with you and those whom you represent at your convenience regarding this or any other matter which you might wish to discuss, including alternative means which are within the state's authority, to reach many of the same goals which you have expressed in your letter. Thank you for this opportunity to discuss these matters with you.

Sincerely yours,

Re: Local Zoning Authority Over
State Oil and Gas Development
Our File No.: J-66-536-80

Dear Ms. Ulmer and Mr. Gilman:

You have asked in your letter of March 4, 1980 1/ for an opinion on the following questions:

1. Can home rule and other municipalities adopt coastal management plans which impose restrictions upon state or federal lessees engaged in exploration, development and production of hydrocarbons and minerals?

2. If so, can local government administer its plans through a permitting system?

The answer to both questions is a qualified yes.

This opinion will first address the permissible limits of municipal regulation of state and federal lessees and then discuss the validity of a permitting system.

1/ The issuance of this opinion was delayed for 30 days in order to accommodate the request of both the North Slope Borough and Sohio B.P. for time in which to submit their views in writing.

I. Regulation of Oil and Gas Activities Conducted Pursuant to State Leases.

Home rule municipalities have broad constitutional authority to "exercise all legislative powers not prohibited by law or charter." Alaska Constitution, Article X, section 11. This authority is to be liberally construed. Alaska Constitution, Article X, section 1. The contours of this constitutional limitation have been addressed in a line of decisions of the Alaska Supreme Court. 2/ Those cases stand for the proposition that mere inconsistency with a state statute is not sufficient to invalidate a municipal ordinance as unconstitutional. In Jefferson v. State, 527 P.2d 37 (Alaska 1974), the court explained:

> The test we derive from Alaska's Constitutional provisions is one of prohibition, rather than traditional tests such as statewide versus local concerns. A municipal ordinance is not necessarily invalid in Alaska because it is inconsistent or in conflict with a state statute. The question rests on whether the exercise of authority has been prohibited > to municipalities. The prohibition must be either by express terms or by implication such as where the statute and ordinance are so substantially irreconcilable that one cannot be given its substantial effect if the other is to be accorded the weight of law.

2/ See, e.g., Wright v. Municipality of Anchorage, 590 P.2d 425 (Alaska 1979); City of Kodiak v. Jackson, 584 P.2d 1130 (Alaska 1978); DeHusson v. City of Anchorage, 583 P.2d 791 (Alaska 1978); Johnson v. City of Fairbanks, 583 P.2d 181 (Alaska 1978); Cremer v. Anchorage, 575 P.2d 306 (Alaska 1978); Area Dispatch, Inc. v. City of Anchorage, 544 P.2d 1024 (Alaska 1976); State v. City of Petersburg, 538 P.2d 263 (Alaska 1975); Chugach Electric Association v. City of Anchorage, 476 P.2d 115 (Alaska 1970).

527 P.2d at 43 (footnotes omitted). 3/ Jefferson plainly rejects a quantitive standard of conflict, which would look only to the actual terms of allegedly conflicting statutes and ordinances, in favor of a qualitative standard, which examines the impact of each upon the other's operation and purposes.

This approach was recently affirmed in Liberati v. Bristol Bay Borough, 584 P.2d 1115 (Alaska 1978), which held that constitutional conflict exists "only where an ordinance substantially interferes with the effective functioning of a state statute or regulation or its underlying purpose." 584 P.2d at 1122. The exercise of local regulatory authority over hydrocarbon and mineral exploration and development must therefore be measured against all existing state statutes and regulations concerning that use. 4/ Where an express or implied prohibition is found, under Jefferson, or a substantial interference is found, under Liberati, the local ordinance must fall. If, on the other hand, there exists

3/ Accord, DeHusson v. City of Anchorage, 583 P.2d 791 (Alaska 1978); Area Dispatch, Inc. v. City of Anchorage, 544 P.2d 1024 (Alaska 1976).

4/ There is no prohibition against this regulation in the North Slope Borough charter. Each municipal charter will have to be examined for any prohibiting language.

neither prohibition, express or implied, nor a substantial interference, the local government ordinance may stand.

The first statute which must be scrutinized for a potential conflict with municipal oil and gas regulation is the Alaska Coastal Management Act (the act), AS 46.40.-010-.210, and its implementing regulations. It is this act which is the foundation for the enactment of local coastal management plans which, when approved by the Coastal Policy Council (Council) become part of the Alaska Coastal Management Program (ACMP). AS 46.40.010(c)(1). 5/ The act expressly prohibits council approval of a local coastal management plan which "arbitrarily restricts or excludes a use of state concern." AS 46.40.060(a). "Uses of state concern" include:

> (A) Use of national interest, including the use of resources for the siting of ports and major facilities which contribute to meeting national energy needs, construction and maintenance of navigational facilities and systems, resource development of federal land, and national defense and related security facilities that are dependent upon coastal locations;
> (B) uses of more than local concern, including those land and water uses which confer significant environmental, social, cultural, or economic benefits or burdens beyond a single coastal resource

---

5/ A recent Attorney General Opinion concluded that State v. A.L.I.V.E. Voluntary, 606 P.2d 769 (Alaska 1980) has rendered void the legislative approval requirements for amendments to the ACMP, including local district programs, contained in AS 46.40.080. Op. Atty. Gen. April 29, 1980.

district;

(C) the siting of major energy facilities, activities pursuant to a state oil and gas lease, or large-scale industrial or commercial development activities which are dependent on a coastal location and which, because of their magnitude or the magnitude of their effect on the economy of the state or the surrounding area, are reasonably likely to present issues of more than local significance;

(D) facilities serving statewide or interregional transportation and communication needs; and

(E) uses in areas established as state parks or recreational areas under AS 41.20 or as state game refuges, game sanctuaries or critical habitat areas under AS 16.20. (am § 3 ch 129 SLA 1978.)

AS 46.40.210(6). 6/

6/ This section of the Alaska Coastal Management Act sets out priorites for consideration in each local plan but it does not establish a hierarchy among these priorities. If, for instance, a particular coastal management plan embraces a geographical area rich in fishery resources but is also proposed as the site of a coastal dependant energy facility likely to present issues of more than local significance, there is created a tension between two uses of state concern having equal stature.

The notion that Congress sought through the federal Coastal Zone Management Act, 16 U.S.C. § 1451 et seq. (CZMA) to require the states to give preference to energy facilities has been emphatically discarded in the recent Ninth Circuit decision in American Petroleum Institute v. Knecht, 609 F.2d 1307 (9th Cir. 1979). There, in a per curiam opinion, the court of appeals rejected a claim by the appellants that it was the intent of congress to induce the states to adopt coastal management plans which would include "explicit commitments" to energy facilities. Rather, the court concluded that the federal requirement that "adequate consideration" be

However, AS 46.40.070(c) provides that the council "shall approve a restriction or exclusion of state concern" if it finds that it is based upon (1) consultation with, and consideration of the views of, state, federal and regional agencies, (2) the availability of reasonable alternative sites, and (3) a showing that the proposed use of state concern is incompatible with the proposed site. Assuming that a municipality can demonstrate that any given restriction is not arbitrary by satisfaction of these three criteria, its local coastal program may properly restrict a use of state concern. To return to the example previously offered, 7/ a municipality exercising jurisdiction over an area for coastal management purposes may decide that preservation of a rich fishery is of paramount concern in its coastal management plan. In order to protect the fishery, the municipality adopts a coastal management plan which limits oil and gas exploration and development activities pursuant to a state lease. Under the Coastal Management Act, the council must given to energy facilities of national interest, 16 U.S.C. section 1455(c)(8), was designed to achieve "equitable balance", involving "consideration of the (federal) act's broader finding of a national interest in the . . . beneficial use, protection and development of the coastal zone . . . including the requirement of subsection 302(g) of the Act that "high priority" be given to the protection of natural systems." Id. at 1314. The ACMP, in tacit recognition of that principle requires adequate consideration of, rather than unilateral commitment to, any given use of state concern.

approve such a plan, even though it restricts a use of state concern, as long as that restriction is not arbitrary. In order to demonstrate the reasonableness of the restriction, the municipality must show that it considered the views of appropriate federal, state and local agencies on the matter, that there are reasonably available alternative sites for exploration and development activities, and that the lease activities are incompatible with the maintenance of the fishery. This restriction is neither impliedly or expressly prohibited by the act, nor does it substantially interfere with the act. The act not only contemplates, but mandates, approval of such a local district program. AS 46.40.070(c).

To summarize, a municipality enacting a local district coastal management program may restrict or exclude a use of state concern without falling afoul of the constitutional limitations on the exercise of municipal authority if that restriction or exclusion is reasonable, within the meaning of AS 46.40.070(c).

A similar analysis applies with reference to the Alaska Lands Act, AS 38.05.005-.370, which, inter alia, provides for the leasing of state lands for mineral extraction and concomitant uses, such as pipeline rights-of-way.

The leasing of lands in the coastal zone for exploration and development of oil and gas resources must, as with other state agencies actions, be accomplished in a manner which is harmonious with the ACMP.

State agencies may not authorize a use or activity in the coastal zone unless "the agency finds that the use or activity is consistent with the applicable district program and the standards [of the ACMP]." 6 AAC 80.010(b). 8/ Indeed, the legislative directive of the Alaska Lands Act to lease lands only after a finding that the "interests of the state will best be served," 9/ AS 38.05.35(a)(14), compliments the balancing of demands on coastal resources which is a linchpin of the ACMP. See AS 46.40.020. Statutes relating to the same subject matter should be read together as a whole in order that a total scheme emerges which preserves the integrity of each. This is particularly true where both can be harmonized to further a specific legislative policy: balanced use of natur-

8/ Once land is leased and exploration for oil and gas commences, each lessee must secure a permit to drill any well. 11 AAC 22.005. The grant of such a permit is state agency action with the meaning of 6 AAC 80.010(b) and must therefore be conditioned upon compliance with the ACMP.

9/ AS 38.05.180(a) provides in pertinent part:

> (2) It is in the best interests of the state to encourage an assessment of its oil and gas resources and to allow the maximum flexibility al resources. Hafling v. Inland Boatmen's Union of Pacific, 585 P.2d 870, 878-79 (Alaska 1978).

Any local coastal management plan approved by the council is by definition based upon a balancing of all demands on land and water in the coastal zone. Therefore, properly drawn coastal management plan would not be in conflict with the Alaska Lands Act.

Finally, for the reasons stated above, the Alaska Oil and Gas Conservation Act, AS 31.05.005 et seq., which mandates the conservation of oil and gas and prohibits their waste, would not be contravened by a local coastal management plan which comports with the ACMP. Conservation of these valuable resources is one of the objectives of the ACMP ("the orderly, balanced utilization and protection of the resources of the coastal area consistent with sound conservation and sustained yield principles", AS 46.40.020(3)), to be balanced with other objectives of the act. As long as a local coastal plan achieves this balancing in a reasonable manner, no implied or express prohibition or substantial interference will exist between a local coastal management plan and the Oil and Gas Conservation Act.

To sum up, a local coastal management plan which does not arbitarily or unreasonably restrict or exclude oil and gas exploration and development is a constitutionally permissible exercise of municipal authority. The test for reasonableness of any restriction or exclusion is set forth in AS 46.40.070(c). If a local plan survives scrutiny under that test, it must be approved by the coastal policy council. Approved plans become part of the ACMP, AS 46.40.010(c)(1), and have equal dignity with other state statutes which will read in harmony with it. State, Dept. of Highways, v. Green, 586 P.2d 595 (Alaska 1978); Hafling v. Inland Boatmen's Union of Pacific, supra.

There is a very large caveat which accompanies this analysis. The state constitution mandates "the utilization, development, and conservation of all natural resources belonging to the state . . . for the maximum benefit of its people." Alaska Const., art. VIII, § 2. The determination of what constitutes this maximum benefit necessarily involves questions of basic policy formulation for the state. Swindel v. Kelly, 499 P.2d 291 (Alaska 1972); Kelly v. Zamarello, 486 P.2d 906

(Alaska 1971); Pan American Petroleum Corp. v. Shell Oil Co., 455 P.2d 12 (Alaska 1969). Reading AS 46.40.070(b) as vesting local officals with complete control over the basic policy formulation would probably render the act unconstitutional. Accordingly, it may not be read as authorizing a local permit system which would have the effect of overruling the state's basic policy formulation as to what use of its resources will provide the maximum benefit for all of the state's people.

B. Regulation of Oil and Gas Activities Conducted Pursuant to Federal Leases in the Coastal Zone.

The question of municipal authority to regulate exploration and development of oil and gas by federal lessees requires a somewhat different analysis. On-shore lands which are subject solely to the discretion of the federal government are excluded from the coastal zone as defined, section 304(1) of the federal act. 10/ In spite of the fact that the regulations implementing the federal act suggest that certain impacts from activities conducted on excluded federal lands may be regulated as part of a local coastal management program, 11/ municipal regulation of federal lessees may be prohibited under the recent opinion in Ventura County v. Gulf Oil, 601 F.2d 1080 (9th Cir. 1979) summarily aff'd _____ U.S. _____, 48 USLW 3622 (April 1, 1980). There, the court of appeals concluded that in light of extensive federal regulation of the field, federal lessees could not be required to obtain a local zoning permit in order to drill a well.

The leases in question were granted under the Mineral Lands Leasing Act of 1920 which the court found to pre-empt local regulation "standing as an obstacle to the islands transitional and intertidal areas, salt marshes, wetlands, and beaches. The zone extends, in Great Lakes waters, to the international boundary between the United States and Canada and, in other areas, seaward to the outer limit of the United States territorial sea. The zone extends inland from the shorelines only to the extent necessary to control shorelands, the uses of which have a direct and significant impact on the coastal waters. Excluded from the coastal zone are lands the use of which is by law subject solely to the discretion of or which is held in trust by the Federal Government, its officers or agents.

11/ 15 CFR section 923.33(c) states:

> (c) Comment. The exclusion of Federal lands does not remove Federal agencies from the obligation of complying with the consistency provisions of section 307 of the Act when Federal actions on these excluded lands have spillover impacts that significantly affect coastal zone areas, uses or resources within the purview of a State's management program.

accomplishment and execution of the full purposes and objectives of Congress." 607 F. 2d at 1086. 12/ Apparently, the facts of that case did not call into question the effect of the federal CZMA, and, on that basis, it appears to be distinguishable.

Exploration, development and production plans for off-shore federal lands leased under the Outer Continental Shelf (OCS) Lands Act, 43 U.S.C. Section 1331 et seq., are treated differently. They require state consistency determinations under the federal CZMA, section 307(c)(3)(B). That is, all federal license and permit activities described in detail in OCS plans and which affect the coastal zone must be conducted in a manner which is consistent with the Alaska Coastal Management program. See, 15 CFR 930.70. (The consistency determination is made by the Division of Policy, Development and Planning, within the Office of the Governor.)

12/ The State of Alaska joined in an amicus brief in the Supreme Court urging reversal of the Ninth Circuit's decision, protesting that "the decision below radically curtails traditional state power to secure the public interest, just at the time when burgeoning private development of public land resources is giving new urgency to that long established state and local role." Brief Amicus Curiae of the Western Governor's Policy Office (WESTPO) at 3.

It would therefore appear that reasonable restrictions on oil and gas activities embodied in a local coastal management plan, incorporated into the ACMP, would be enforceable against off-shore federal lessees. The doctrine of federal pre-emption, derived from the supremacy clause of the United State Constitution, Article VI, clause 2, would not apply to state regulation of OCS activities in the coastal zone. This appears from both the language of section 307(c)(3) of the federal CZMA and the legislative history of that act. 13/

In conclusion, municipal authority to regulate oil and gas activities of federal lessees depends upon whether the leases are on-shore or off-shore. In the case of the former, the doctrine of federal pre-emption may prohibit local coastal zone ordinances from affecting any measure

13/ The senate committee report in support of the federal act expressly states that Congress did not intend to pre-empt state authority:

> There is no attempt to diminish state authority through federal pre-emption. The intent of this legislation is to enhance state authority by encouraging and assisting the states to assure planning and regulatory powers over their coastal zones.

S. Rep. No. 753, 92nd Cong., 2d Sess., reprinted in [1972] U.S. Code Cong. & Adm. News 4776.

of control. In the case of the latter, local coastal management programs which are approved by the council and thus part of the ACMP will become one of the touchstones in the state consistency determination required by section 307(c)(3) of the CZMA. Of course, under the federal act, the Secretary of Commerce has the authority to override a state consistency determination on the basis of national security or a finding that the proposed activity is consistent with the federal act, section 307(c)(3)(B)(iii). A local permit system which seriously interfered with oil or gas production might be overridden.

II

A lease confers a property interest 14/ the diminution of which warrants protection under constitutional requirements of due process and equal protection, Nichols v. Eckert, 504 P.2d 1359 (Alaska 1973). A local district program which reasonably restricts oil and gas development may be administered through a permitting system as long as that system is itself reasonably drawn to achieve its legitimate ends. Kelly v. Zamarello, 486 P.2d 906 (Alaska 1974). The plan must be sufficiently specific to give notice of what it prohibits or conditions upon a permit, Herscher v. State, Dept. of Commerce 568 P.2d 996 (Alaska 1977), and sufficiently definite so that it does not confer unbridled discretion upon its administrator, Brown v. Municipality of Anchorage, 584 P.2d 35 (Alaska 1978). Any classification system established in the plan must be reasonable and not arbitrary: that is, it must rest upon some ground of difference which has a fair and substantial relationship to the object of the plan so that all applicants for permits who are similarly situated will be treated alike. Herscher v. State, supra.

In short, any permitting system to be valid must comport with fundamental constitutional requirements of due process and equal protection. In the absence of any existing plan to test against these principles, it can only be said that such scrutiny must await the submission of a specific permitting plan to the council.

Re: State of Alaska's Objection to Provisions of S. 1181
(Tribal-State Compact Bill)

Dear Senator Stevens:

On behalf of the Attorney General for the State of Alaska, I wish to register the strong objection of the State to certain provisions of S. 1181, which I have today learned is on the Senate's unanimous consent calendar. For the reasons which I will outline in this letter, we strongly urge that you seek to have this bill removed from the unanimous consent calendar and held over until the objections stated in this letter have been resolved.

The State of Alaska is certainly not opposed to the laudable objectives set forth in S. 1181 regarding jurisdictional agreements between states and Indian tribes. However, the state opposes the inclusion of Alaska Native vilaeges in the statutory definition of an "Indian tribe", and the implicit assumption in the bill that these village "tribes" are situated in "Indian country" within the State of Alaska. These concerns have been previously expressed by the state regarding pending congressional legislation, as the attachment to this letter demonstrates. I will briefly outline the state's position in the remainder of this letter.

With the exception of the Metlakatla Indian Reservation on Annette Island, Alaska has never been "Indian country", as that term is defined in 18 U.S.C. § 1151 (regarding criminal jurisdiction) or 28 U.S.C. § 1360 (with regard to civil actions). Thus, on its face, S. 1181, which is limited to agreements regarding civil or criminal jurisdiction over Indians "within Indian country" (Section 101 of the bill), would apply in Alaska only to the Metlakatla Indian Reservation on Annette Island. References to "Alaska Native villages" in the definition of an "Indian tribe" in Section 3(a) of the bill would achieve no legal purpose, because the Metalakatla Indian community was specifically excluded from coverage of the Alaska Native Claims Settlement Act by Section 19(a) of that Act (43 U.S.C. § 1618(a)); thus it is not an "Alaska Native village" mentioned in Section 3(c) of ANCSA (43 U.S.C. § 1602(c)) and defined therein as a "Native village". Therefore, on its face the bill's applicability only to "Indian country" and the definition of an "Indian tribe" as including "Alaska Native villages" creates an inherent inconsistency, since the only "Indian country" in Alaska is not one of the Alaska Native villages defined in Section 3(c) of ANCSA or listed in Section 11 or 16 of ANCSA.

This inconsistency in the bill if allowed to remain, might in the future be interpreted as an instance of legislative misinformation or oversight, in which case the inconsistency might optimistically be termed "harmless". However, since judicial or administrative interpretations of congressional action as being mistaken or misinformed are strongly disfavored, it is the state's concern that, if S. 1181 remains in its present proposed form, unwarranted interpretations may be made that Congress, by this bill, has broadened the definition of "Indian country" with respect to Alaska, or has elevated Alaska Native villages named in ANCSA to "tribal" status, or both. Such interpretations, the state feels, are diametrically opposed to the purposes and structure of the Alaska Native Claims Settlement Act, and would thwart its successful implementation.

The Alaska Native Claims Settlement Act ("ANCSA") represents a congressional approach to the final settlement of Native claims of aboriginal title which is strikingly different from settlements (by treaty, allotments, reservations, etc.) in the remainder of the United States. Section 2(b) of ANCSA (43 U.S.C. § 1601(b)) states:

> (b) the settlement should be accomplished rapidly, with certainty, in conformity with the real economic and social needs of Natives, without litigation, with maximum participation by Natives in decisions affecting their rights and property, without establishing any permanent racially defined institutions, rights, privileges, or obligations, without creating a reservation system or lengthy wardship or trusteeship, and without adding to the categories of property and institutions enjoying special tax privileges or to the legislation establishing special relationships between the United States government and the State of Alaska;

[Emphasis supplied]. Thus ANCSA specifically rejected the usual approach of creating "permanent racially-defined institutions, rights, privileges, or obligations," and furthermore rejected the implication of "creating a reservation system or lengthy wardship or trusteeship." The remainder of ANCSA consistently implements this congressional declaration of policy. For example, existing executive order or statutory reservations in Alaska, with the sole exception of the Metlakatla community, were specifically revoked by Section 19(a) of ANCSA (43 U.S.C. § 1618(a)), and the village corporations for the villages located within these former reservations were given the option of either obtaining title in fee to the former reservation lands, or selecting lands withdrawn under the formula applicable to all other Native village selections under Section 11(a) of ANCSA (43 U.S.C. § 1610).

Section 3(c) of ANSCA (43 U.S.C. § 1602(c)), defines a "Native village" for purposes of ANCSA as follows:

> "Native village" means any tribe, band, clan, group, village, community, or association in Alaska listed in Sections 11 and 16 of this Act, or which meets the requirements of this Act, in which the Secretary determines was, on the 1970 census enumeration date . . . composed of twenty-five or more Natives;

ANCSA did not establish any "Native village" as a recognized "tribe, band, nation, or other group formally organized as such. Nor did ANCSA establish or attribute any powers of self-government to those Native villages defined in ANCSA and listed in Sections 11 and 16 (43 U.S.C. §§ 1610, 1615). The only criteria required to fit within the definition of "Native village" in ANCSA were that there be 25 or more persons, that they in fact be identifiable as a distinct group, and that they be Natives.

Certainly, some of the Native villages listed in Sections 11 and 16 of ANCSA had organized, prior to ANCSA, as IRA village councils under the Indian Reorganization Act (Wheeler-Howard Act, 25 U.S.C. § 473a). Such organization, if it had occurred, had no relationship to the later passage of ANCSA, and any councils so organized do not owe their identity to the definition of a "Native village" in Section 3 of ANCSA or their listing in Sections 11 or 16 of that Act. If such councils do in fact possess powers of self-government today, they would fit within the definition of an "Indian tribe" in S. 1181 without regard to ANCSA.

The majority of the villages listed in Sections 11 and 16 of ANCSA did not possess any IRA council structure prior to ANCSA, and none has been created since (nor, the state would argue, could it lawfully be created after ANCSA). Even with regard to the villages which possessed some type of recognized IRA council prior to ANCSA, they did not possess tribal court and law enforcement powers, nor, after the revocation of reservations by Section 19 of ANCSA, do any remaining IRA village councils have defined jurisdictional boundaries or any "Indian country".

ANCSA left unclear what role, if any, former village IRA councils would have after implementation of the land and monetary grants made by the Settlement Act. It is clear, however, that no "Indian reservations" were created by ANCSA. The land conveyed to Native corporations is conveyed in fee, with no continuing trust responsibility or oversight by the United States. The Act does not restrict the village corporations' ability to sell that land, and it may be conveyed to third parties immediately upon its receipt from the United States. The land conveyed to Native village corporations will become fully taxable by state and local governments 20 years after the enactment of ANCSA.

Section 21(d) of ANCSA (43 U.S.C. § 1620(d)). In order to receive land and monetary benefits under ANCSA, each "Native village", as defined in Section 3(c) of ANCSA, was required to incorporate as a "Village corporation" pursuant to Section 3(j) of ANCSA (43 U.S.C. § 1602(j)). Each of the Native villages listed in the Act has in fact incorporated as a profit-making corporation under the laws of the State of Alaska. This status under state law does not carry with it any inherent powers of community self-government, such as taxation, law-enforcement, fish and game management, or other police powers attributable to representative government at the local or municipal level. In short, the Native village corporations receiving land and monetary benefits under ANCSA are private, profit-making corporations, and are neither recognized units of municipal government under state law, nor sovereign "tribes" or "nations" under federal law.

Therefore, the state strongly urges that the definition of "Indian tribe" set forth in Section 3(a) of S. 1181 be amended to delete the phrase "including any Alaska Native village as defined in Section 3(c) of the Alaska Native Claims Settlement Act (85 Stat. 688-689)." If so amended, the bill will still apply to the single recognized Indian community in Alaska (Metlakatla) which is located within "Indian country" and which has retained statutorily-recognized powers of self-government after enactment of ANCSA. It will also include any other Indian community (if indeed there are any) similarly situated. As amended, it would exclude those Alaska Native villages which, after passage of ANCSA, do not have recognized powers of self-government and are not located within "Indian country", and would avoid any implicit elevation of these villages and their village corporations to the status of 'Indian tribes", a result certainly disfavored by ANCSA.

OFFICE OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL / FOURTH FLOOR - STATE CAPITOL

September 12, 1978

Honorable Donald E. Young
House of Representatives
1210 Longworth House Office Bldg.
Washington, D.C. 20515

Re: S. 2502 defining Alaska Native Villages as tribes.

Dear Representative Young:

I am writing to express the state's concern with a phrase in the definition section of S. 2502, "A bill to authorize States and Indian tribes to enter into mutual agreements and compacts respecting jurisdiction and governmental operations in Indian country". I have discussed this concern with Lynn Ager of your staff several times over the last two weeks.

On its face, this bill appears to have little effect on Alaska since we have only one true "tribe" and very little "Indian country" in the state (i.e. Metlakatla). The bill is apparently offered primarily as a solution to recent problems concerning jurisdiction over management of fish and game on reservations in such states as Washington and Montana and in response to recent court decisions which have very little impact on Alaska.

Nonetheless, § 3(a) of the most recent committee print (dated July 24, 1978) contains the following definition:

> Sec. 3. For purposes of this Act:
> (a) "Indian tribe" means any Indian tribe, band, nation, or other organized group or community exercising powers of self-government which is recognized as eligible for services provided by the United States to Indians because of their status as Indians, [including any Alaska Native villages included in the Alaska Native Claims Settlement Act] (85 Stat. 688,697). (Emphasis added.)

This definition is nearly identical to the definition of the recent Indian Child Welfare Act of 1978, Pub. L. 95-1386. The appropriateness of those definitions is, of course, not at issue now. The state's present concern is that defining Indian tribes to include Alaska Native villages included in the Settlement Act, in this bill, is entirely inappropriate.

This bill is directed at tribes which have their own civil, criminal and regulatory laws as well as their own tribal court (Sec. 101 (a)(1)-(3)). The bill would authorize compacts between such tribes and states respecting jurisdiction and governmental operations in Indian country. The only such tribe in Alaska, is the Metlakatla Indian Community which occupies the only Indian country in the state.

Therefore, the state urges that every effort be made to delete the last phrase in the definition which refers to Settlement Act villages. Ironically, that phrase would seem to exclude the Metlakatla Indians, the only tribe in Alaska which could actually properly enter into a compact with the State of the type envisioned by the bill.

Even though the bill would not require the state to enter compacts with other village entities, the retention of the objectionable phrase in the definition would only serve to further confuse the status of the approximately 210 Alaska Native village corporations and the approxmiately 155 village councils (including approximately 90 "traditional" councils and approximately 65 "IRA" councils, under the Indian Reorganization Act, 48 Stat. 985). According to our Department of Community and Regional Affairs and the Tribal Operations Division of the Bureau of Indian Affairs Office in Juneau, Metlakatla is the only IRA council with a charter authorizing any true law making and enforcement powers. All the other councils essentially function only as providers of social services and administrators or conduits for welfare oriented programs and funds. Likewise, village corporations under the Settlement clearly have no "powers of self government".

The definition of "Indian tribe" in the bill, as written, would have serious implications for the implementation of the Settlement Act, and for the creation and subsequent authority of municipal governments under Alaska law in each of the villages eligible for benefits under that Act. In its broadest context, the bill would raise serious questions regarding the ability of the State of Alaska to exercise all of its tax and police powers, including law enforcement, fish and wildlife management, water and resource allocation, property and income taxation, licensing, and other functions inherent in the division of governmental power between the federal and state governments. This

The bill, with the objectionable inclusion of Alaska Native villages, appears dangerously close to a de facto amendment of the Settlement Act to vest Alaska village corporations and/or councils with implicit federally established powers of self-government and federally "imposed immunity from the full range of inherent state government powers which apply uninformily to all other citizens, corporations, municipalities and communities. Indeed, a logical, though admittedly extreme, extension of the bill as written would be the establishment of 40 million acres of "Indian country" in Alaska.

We urge you to help prevent all these undesirably implications and confusion by making every effort to amend the bill by simply deleting the last phrase in Section 3(a). This minor change, while solving the state's problems with the bill, would not affect the accomplishment of its intent and purpose on reservations in the rest of the country and on Annette Island. It seems that curative action is easiest and most appropriate now, before the bill reaches the house floor.

Please contact me in Juneau (465-3684) or Douglas Riggs in Washington D.C. (624-5858) if we can provide any further information or assistance on this bill.

Thank you for your help and cooperation.

SUGGESTED REVISIONS - TITLE 29

Sec. 29.28.140. Grounds (for recall)

This section differs from AS 15.45.510 which provides grounds for recall of State officials; there could be an argument made for consistency between the two:

Municipal grounds for recall AS 29.28.140	State grounds for recall AS 15.45.510
1) misconduct in office	1) lack of fitness
2) incompetence	2) incompetence
3) failure to perform prescribed duties	3) neglect of duties
	4) corruption

Sec. 29.28.150. Petition (for recall)

Should be rewritten to include a requirement of the name and office of the person (singular) to be recalled and a clarification that if more than one official is considered for recall a petition for each individual must be circulated.

Sec. 29.28.190. Submission (of recall petition)

The present wording is too vague with the use of the word "immediately" and should specify a specific time frame, i.e. 10 days

Sec. 29.48.035 (14). Regulatory powers (of municipalities)

"building, housing and related codes, which may be provided by cities within cities. . ." needs rewording (cities within its own boundaries?)

Sec. 29.48.037. Extraterritorial jurisdiction (of municipalities)

(b) states that a city can protect its watersheds and enforce such protection outside its boundaries ONLY upon the approval, by ordinance, of the municipality where the watersheds are located. This poses a problem when a city tries to exercise the protection of its water supply which lies outside the city limits but within the organized borough and where the borough is not actively involved in any such protection but refuses to allow the city to exercise such. If a borough has, in effect, veto power over the city's action in this regard, the borough government should be required to be actively involved in the exercise of such protected activity itself.

If a first class or home city is located more than 25 miles from the boundary of the borough seat, the planning, platting and zoning responsibilities within the city may be exercised by the city after a city ordinance providing for the exercise thereof is approved by a majority of the electors within the city voting on the question at a regular or special election.

or by Council ordinance

AS 29.48.050(d)

For purposes of AS 29.48.050 - .070 a public utility which is not regulated as to rates and services by the Alaska Public Utilities Commission shall not be considered as regulated by AS 42.05.

Dear Ms. Cook:

There are two aspects of Title 29 revision which I wish to comment upon.

First, I urge consideration be given to the American Law Institute's (1975) Model Land Development Code which represents a major improvement over the Hoover-era model upon which the present provisions of Title 29 governing the conduct of local planning are based. I particularly urge that the Code's recommendations concerning the division of responsibility between State and local planning responsibilities be considered.

Second, there are other statutes which can be interpreted to impose duties upon general purpose units of local government which are not specifically tied to Title 29. I have in mind, in particular, Chapter 35 of Title 46, the Alaska Coastal Management Program. This program and any similar program enacted in the attempt to attain consistency should be accompanied by a definitive tie to Title 29 which establishes an affirmative obligation on the part of local governments to exercise their substantive powers if this is the intent of the Legislature. Otherwise, Title 29 should indicate that it is the complete statement of the substantive duties and powers of municipalities.

Sincerely,

Dear Ms. Cook:

RE: TITLE 29 Review

I have had one general problem with Title 29. As City Manager in Dillingham, Kodiak and now Nome, it seems obvious that Title 29 has been organized and written for governments who have an attorney that interprets each provision.

Many times one refers to Title 29 and needs an attorneys interpretation to understand what it means. This is not practical in a smaller city because of the cost and the amount of time it takes to get an opinion.

More specifically, I am referring to references to boroughs that apply to first class cities. This is very confusing because it's hard to understand when borough statutes apply. First class cities should be set out specifically to end the confusion.

There are a number of specific problems I'd like to bring to the Policy Advisory Groups attention.

29.28.040. Majority elections. The 40 per cent runoff election should be thoroughly considered if allowed to remain in the Statutes.

Article 3. Recall. These provisions should also be researched and grounds 29.28.140 should be made more clear.

Chapter 33. Areawide Borough Powers & Duties. 29.33.010 Scope. From this point on, Boroughs are given too much power. To be more specific, the fact that a borough plans for a city is a disaster in my experience. How can a city possibly exist as a city and not have control over its destiny? In Kodiak, while I was the manager, the Borough continually attempted to manage the City through its planning powers. This caused creation of service areas (another issue) and confusion where the City was to extend its services. City planning must be a responsibility of the government that is going to implement the projects planned for. In the case of Kodiak, I personally had to attend each planning commission and assembly meeting to make certain the City's interests were considered. Since the City Council had no real influence over the assembly or the planning commission, it became an unbelievable political struggle that wound up in Court. In this case, the City's taxpayers footed the bill for both attorneys since the majority of the tax base was inside the City.

The conflict with the Borough and the City regarding Borough powers adjacent to a City is a similar issue. In the case of Kodiak, the Borough wanted to establish a water, sewer and road service area that would utilize the City's water and sewer system and possibly contract for road service. This was their attempt to stop the City from annexing an area immediately adjacent to the City that needed to do something about those services. The competing aspects of this caused undue hardship and strains on the political as well as the social systems on the island. As far as I was concerned, the whole problem was the result of Chapter 38. Borough Powers and Duties in the Area Outside Cities. This chapter actually allowed the establishment of another taxing entity that was going to increase the cost of services to the users in the service area. It also made it more difficult for the city to plan for use and expansion of its facilities and equipment.

The conflicts described above are in direct conflict with Article X, Local Government of the Constitution of the State of Alaska.

> Section 1. Purpose & Construction. The purpose of this article is to provide maximum local self-government with a minimum of local government units, and to prevent duplication of tax levying jurisdictions.

If the system of using Boroughs is to continue and expand into the Unorganized Borough, then the items I have mentioned, plus others will have to be straightened out.

I believe that 29.48.150. Ordinance. Procedure should be redone to clarify the number of times an ordinance should be voted upon. The question has come up a number of times.

Thank you for the opportunity to make suggestions regarding the Title 29 revisions. I am quite interested in these items as well as what others are suggesting and would like to be kept fully informed as to the Groups deliberations.

Sincerely,

Ivan L. Widom

Agenda Sugge[illegible]tems from the Title 29 [illegible]rking Group to the Title 29 Policy Group

1. Are unified municipalities home rule or general law? This needs to be clarified.

2. We recommend that AS 29.08.050 Transition be repealed as out of date.

3. We recommend that the statute concerning REAAs be expanded to include procedures for integrating REAAs into newly organized boroughs.

4. AS 29.18.180. Organization Grants. The dollar amounts of the organizational grants are inadequate. We recommend the amount be tripled.

5. AS 29.68.290 Nomination of charter commission candidates. Should a legislative body be authorized to make appointements to the charter commission in case of vacancies on the commission because of a failure to elect enough people?

6. AS 29.68.440. Powers of a unified municipality. What is a unified municipality?

7. Should the percentage requirements for signatures on petitions be lowered?

8. AS 29.68.500 Methods of dissolution. The section regarding the methods of dissolution are confusing, in that the two methods outlined involve substantially the same processes.

9. AS 29.13.050 Initiative and Referendum. This section should be clarified so that Home Rule municipalities are not bound by the procedures set out in the statute.

10. We need a more precise way of dealing with inconsistencies between Home Rule and state enactments.

11. AS 29.13.100 Limitation of home rule powers. This "laundry list" of limitations on Home Rule needs to be reviewed. Should there be cross-referencing to the home rule provisions in other statutes?

12. Chapter 18. Development cities. The chapter on development cities should either be reviewed and improved or deleted.

13. Chapter 23. Municipal Officers and Employees. This chapter should have provisions for dealing with the public records of municipalities. Municipalities should have a public records policy such as "except as provided by ordinance, all records shall be public."

14. Should municipalities be allowed to set residency requirements for voters? Should the three year residency requirement for elected officials which municipalities are permitted to set be lowered to one year in view of Castner v. City of Homer, specifically upholding one year requirements?

15. We feel there should be alternate methods for majority requirements of the votes of municipal assemblies.

16. AS 29.23.021 Assembly composition and apportionment. We feel there should be a greater delineation between composition and reapportionment.

17. There should be provisions for emergency situations arising when there is a lack of a quorum.

18. AS 29.48.130 (a) This should be amended to make possible budget transfers and supplemental appropriations by resolution instead ordinance.

19. What should mayoral veto powers encompass?

20. How are planning responsibilities to be divided between cities and boroughs?

21. We recommend that the sections of chapter 23 dealing with the involvement of young people in local government be repealed.

RE: Title 29 Review

DATE: September 2, 1980

I have reviewed the material relating to the review of Title 29 and approve and support those portions pertaining to chapter 53 of this title.

A few other changes which might be considered are listed below:

1. Sec. 29.53.025 the classification of boats for purposes of taxation by tonnage should be changed to more realistic amounts.

2. Sec. 29.53.060 include the words having a situs within the taxing district after the word property. Many property owners believe that property not within the taxing district on January 1 of the taxing year is free of tax. Boats and airplanes are commonly removed from the taxing district during the first month of the year to avoid taxation.

3. Sec. 29.53.320 change person to receive redemption monies from clerk to tax collector who has in his/her possession the records of assessment and taxation, applied penalties, interest & costs.

A BILL

For an Act entitled: "An Act relating to determination of full and true assessed value for municipalities."

BE IT ENACTED BY THE LEGISLATURE OF THE STATE OF ALASKA:

 Section 1. AS 29.88.020(e)(3) is amended to read:

(3) all other second class cities, by comparision, on an individual city basis, with the most comparable cities [DETERMINING THE AVERAGE FULL AND TRUE ASSESSED PROPERTY VALUE OF ALL CITIES HAVING A POPULATION OF LESS THAN 750 PERSONS IN WHICH AN ASSESSMENT HAS BEEN COMPLETED BY A MUNICIPALITY OR] for which a determination is [NOT] made under (1) or (2) of this subsection. The department shall establish which cities are most comparable for purposes of the determination.

public funds aimed at economic development [illegible] burdening the public purse, or at the very least, merely transferring income burdens from one public agency (welfare) to another, rather than obtaining private means for achieving reductions in unemployment. Public investment in designated economic development projects should be directed primarily toward stimulating private investment, since the costs to society are lessened. Except for manpower training, transferring income burdens from a welfare agency to a social program budget generally results in zero benefits and non-zero costs. The net result is an additional and needless cost to society. Most of the key investment guidelines that are appropriate for publicly-supported commercial and industrial projects can be derived from this simple observation. ALNA's project appraisal criteria and process translates these guidelines into a workable and systematic format. The advantages of this appraisal process are that (1) it provides decision-makers the information needed to adequately assess differences between private and social returns to capital; (2) it provides the decision-maker with a common analytical framework so that valid comparisons among projects can be made; and (3) it provides for a common language among the actors in the economic development field. (This common language is no small matter. Decision-making will be less than adequate as long as decision-makers attribute different meanings to the words used among them).

PROJECT APPRAISAL AS AN INSTRUMENT OF ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT POLICY

ALNA views the project as the basic unit of analysis of commercial and industrial development. Each project should pass nine feasibility tests in a specific order. Projects failing to pass a test in the designated sequences would not proceed to the next test. For example, under the alternative sequence below, a project which is not technically feasible would not be expected to be financially feasible. A project which is not financially and economically feasible would not be expected to impact on poverty, etc. Ordering the feasibility tests in this manner achieves the following: (1) it clearly distinguishes the trade-offs between the main elements of a project; (2) it assures a project being financially and economically feasible before consideration of its poverty impact; and (3) it saves time for the analyst or the decision-maker. The nine feasibility tests for judging the worth of any project are:

Technical Feasibility

The test of technical justification is passed if the project is physically capable of performing its intended function. The key components to technical justification are appropriate engineering design, appropriate market, appropriate management, appropriate location, and appropriate comparative advantage. A technical analysis would involve the types of analyses listed below:

Re: Senate C. R. 66

Dear Terry:

During my brief tenure, two provisions of title 29 pertaining to property taxes have caught my attention.

First, concerning the Farm Use Exemption; presuming its passage was directed toward encouraging agriculture in the State, and discounting the resistance some farmers in this area exhibit by their reluctance to sign up for it, I think the income requirement should either be reduced (say to 5%) or eliminated.

Take a farmer beginning a livestock operation. Nature dictates that it will be several years before productive breeder stock can be developed, let alone producing enough progeny to sell, sufficient to meet the income requirement.

Furthermore, any new farm venture demands high initial investment for equipment, clearing of land and the aforementioned stock developement. They need an incentive to begin - not merely hope they will get relief if successful. I am prejudiced toward preferential treatment as an alternative. This is more consistent with current State agricultural use land sales, tending to establish land values in the eye of the taxpayer and creating a hard argument for and presumption of farm land value to overcome by local assessor.

Second, the Senior Citizen Exemption; and 29.53.020 (G) in particular. It is logical, and only fair, that reimbursement to the City or Borough be limited to that amount which exceeds a local exemption that was granted; but to extend it to a local exemption that if properly applied for "would have been granted" is too much. It is worse than ex post facto, it relates to something that never happened, and I fail to see any logic at all.

Possibly a third subject I would like to see addressed concerns Mobile Homes. I have experienced assessing them (twice now) and enjoyed the euphoria of not assessing them. By their very nature - mobile and subject to title ownership--they are hard to find outside of an established park and by collection time hard to catch up with, in many instances; even becoming personal property when repossessed. I realize this Borough is unique in Alaska regarding personal property, but that is not the basis for my objection to assessing them.

A much more efficient method of taxing them is to require a license (like motor vehicles) at which time a specific ownership tax is charged. That way the tax is paid and collected at the beginning of the tax year and distributed according to the pro-ration formula of the property tax.

Although not changing existing law, I have several suggestions for additional statues which I understand have been tried before and fly in the face of popular public opinion. Nevertheless, if the legislature is sincere in wanting to improve the administration of the property tax then serious consideration should be given them.

One, a Documentary Fee on Conveyance of Real Property. Enclosed is a copy of the Colorado law for what it is worth. I do know, however, that it worked beautifully and was an inestimable aid in the appraisal process.

Two, Confidentiality of Information as well as a corresponding penalty statute for devulging same. Enclosed are copies of pertinent statutes which I am familiar with. It is difficult to obtain written confirmation of verbal information relating, in particular, to income data, and in some instances cost data, if every Tom, Dick, and Harry has access to it. The penalty statute for divulging information is an added safegaurd for the taxpayer as that puts the assessor under the gun in keeping confidential supportive data from which the final total assessment (clearly public information) may evolve.

Lastly, I am intrigued with assessing exempt property used by a non-exempt person. Terry, I refer to the Michigan statute, upheld by the Supreme Court, which allowed taxing such property. It was tried in Colorado (copy of law attached) but it was so emasculated by amendments ((3), (4), & (5) of enclosed law) that it was in the process of being declared unconstitutional as being discriminatory-i.e., the only property not excepted was Federal owned - when I last heard about it.

Such a law would cover our railroad, airport, and University of Alaska leases as well as State and Federal lands. Just a thought.

I guess that about covers it for now.

Very truly yours,

Dave

Documentary Fee on Conveyances of Real Property

39-13-101. LEGISLATIVE DECLARATION. (1) The general assembly declares that in enacting laws relating to the general property tax, it has provided that certain property in each county of the state shall be appraised and the actual value thereof determined by the assessor and that one of the several factors to be considered by him in determining the actual value of any property shall be "comparison with other properties of known or recognized value."

(2) It further declares that such comparison may be best effected if there is available to the assessor a continuing record of the consideration paid or to be paid by purchasers of real property evidenced, prior to recording, on the document conveying title to such property and recorded in the office of the county clerk and recorder in the several counties of the state in the manner provided by law and that this article is enacted to provide a means of developing such continuing record and making such record available for use primarily by assessors. (L 67)

39-13-102. DOCUMENTARY FEE IMPOSED - AMOUNT - TO WHOM PAYABLE. (1) There is imposed and shall be paid, by every person offering for recording in the office of the county clerk and recorder any deed or instrument in writing wherein or whereby title to real property situated in this state is granted or conveyed, a fee, referred to in this article as "documentary fee," measured by the consideration paid or to be paid for such grant or conveyance, which documentary fee shall be in addition to any other fee fixed by law for the recording of such deed or instrument in writing.

(2) The amount of documentary fee payble in each case shall be as follows:

(a) When there is no consideration or when the consideration, inclusive of the amount of any lien or encumbrance against the property granted or conveyed, is five hundred dollars or less, no documentary fee shall be payable.

(3) All documentary fees shall be payable to and collected by the county clerk and recorder.

(4) In those cases in which real property located in two or more counties is granted or conveyed in a single transaction, each county clerk and recorder shall collect a portion of the total documentary fee referred to in subsection (2) of this section in the same ratio that the consideration fairly attributable to the part of such property located in his county bears to the total consideration. The allocation of the total consideration between counties is to be made by the person offering such deed or instrument in writing for recording. (L 68)

39-13-103. EVIDENCE OF PAYMENT OF FEE. Each county clerk and

39-3-110. PAYMENT OF TAXES ESTINGUISHES LIEN. Payment to the treasurer of prorated taxes for the current year, as provided in sections 39-3-108 and 39-3-109, together with payment of any other unpaid taxes and penalty interest or charges, shall extinguish the lien for taxes on such property, or a portion thereof; but if only a portion of any parcel, tract or lot of property becomes legally exempt from general taxation and no taxes are collected at that time, the lien of taxes levied or to be levied shall attach to the remaining portion of said property. (L 64)

39-3-111. CONDEMNATION BY TAX EXEMPT AGENCY - TREASURER'S DUTIES. In all cases where an entire property, or a portion of any parcel, tract, or lot of property is likely to become legally exempt from general taxation through exercise of the power of eminent domain, the treasurer shall be joined as a party respondent in any such action, and upon joinder and notice of the proceedings, he shall assert a claim for the amount of any prorated taxes for the current year on such property, and all other unpaid taxes, penalty interest, or charges thereon with the clerk of the court in which the proceedings are filed. Upon institution of any such proceedings, the lien of general taxes levied and to be levied shall be transferred from the property acquired or sought to be acquired to any money awarded or to be awarded for the taking of such property. Nothing in this section shall require any treasurer to file a claim in any such proceedings involving acquisition of only a portion of any property, if he is satisfied that there is sufficient taxable property remaining after the taking of such portion to satisfy any lien for the amount of taxes payable on such portion taken. (L 64)

★ 39-3-112. TAXATION OF EXEMPT PROPERTY - TAXES NOT TO BECOME LIEN. (1) When any property which for any reason is exempt from taxation is leased, loaned, or otherwise made available to and used by a private individual, association, or corporation in connection with a business conducted for profit, the lessee or user thereof shall be subject to taxation in the same amount and to the same extent as though the lessee or user were the owner of such property, except as provided in this subsection (1) and as provided in subsections (3), (4), and (5) of this section. (L 75)

(2) Taxes shall be assessed to such lessee or user of property and collected in the same manner as taxes assessed to owners of such property; except that such taxes shall not become a lien against the property. When due, such taxes shall be a debt due from the lessee or user to the board of county commissioners for the county where said property is located, and in the city and county of Denver to such other body as is authorized by law to levy taxes, and shall be recoverable by such body by direct action in debt on behalf of each governmental entity for which a tax levy has been made. (L 75)

(3) This section shall not vary in any manner the taxation of mines or oil and gas or oil shale or geothermal leaseholds and lands under articles 1 to 13 of this title. The valuation for assessment of mines or oil and gas or oil shale or geothermal leaseholds and lands shall be determined pursuant to articles 6 and 7 of this title. (L 75)

(4) (a) This section shall not apply to any property owned by a home rule or statutory county, city and county, city, or town, or by a territorial charter city, if such property is subject to payments in lieu of taxes under section 29-3-120, C.R.S. 1973 (L 76)

(b) This section shall not apply to any property owned by a home rule or statutory county, city and county, city, or town or by a territorial charter city, if such property was, before July 1, 1976, leased, loaned, or otherwise made available to and used by a private individual, association, or corporation in connection with a business conducted for profit; but such exemption shall not extend beyond the term of such lease or loan or option included in the agreement in effect before said date. (L 76)

(c) This section shall not apply to rights-of-way or easements acquired by public utilities or for access roads. (L 76)

(d) This section shall not apply to any property owned by a political subdivision of the state which is used in the provision of normal facilities, services, or operations authorized by constitution or statute to be provided by such political subdivisions. (L 76)

(5) This section is not applicable to lands used solely for agricultural purposes and improvements thereon. (L 75)

(6) The valuation for assessment of lands owned by the United States and used for recreational purposes shall be thirty percent of the fees paid by the user of said lands to the United States for the use thereof in the previous calendar year. (L 75)

(7) Nothing in this section shall be construed to apply to properties exempted by territorial charter. (L 75)

RE: Revisions to Title 29

DATE: August 14, 1980

I support the revision of AS 29.53.135 (see attached copy) as stated in your memorandum dated July 31, 1980.

Attached are my suggestions for further revisions of Chapter 53. Revisions are stated in the right margin, and deletions are highlighted in the body of the text.

Sec. 29.53.029. Required exemptions. (a) The following property is exempt from general taxation:

(1) municipal, state or federally owned property, except that private leaseholds, contracts or other interest in the property shall be taxable to the extent of those interests;

(2) household furniture of the head of a family or a householder not exceeding $500 in value;

(Housekeeping)

(3) property used exclusively for nonprofit religious, charitable, cemetery, hospital or educational purposes;

(4) property of a nonbusiness organization composed entirely of persons with 90 days or more of active service in the armed forces of the United States whose conditions of service and separation were other than dishonorable, or the property of the auxiliary of such organization;

(5) money on deposit;

(6) the real property of certain residents of the state to the extent and subject to the conditions provided in (e) of this section.

(b) "Property used exclusively for religious purposes" includes the following property owned by a religious organization:

(1) the residence of the pastor, priest, rabbi, minister or religious order of a recognized religious organization;

(2) a structure, its furniture and its fixtures used solely for public worship, charitable purposes, religious education or a nonprofit hospital;

(3) lots supporting and adjacent to a structure or residence mentioned in (1) or (2) of this subsection which are necessary to convenient use;

(4) lots required by local ordinance for parking near a structure defined in (2) of this subsection.

(c) Property described in (a) or (b) of this section from which income is derived is exempt only if that income is solely from use of the property by nonprofit religious, charitable, hospital, or educational groups for classroom space.

If used by educational groups, the property must be used exclusively for classroom space.

(d) Laws exempting certain property from execution under the Code of Civil Procedure (AS 09) do not exempt the property from taxes levied and collected by municipalities.

(Housekeeping)

(e) After January 1, 1973 the real property owned and occupied as a permanent place of abode by a resident 65 years of age or over whose gross annual income totals less than $10,000 is exempt from taxation of the assessed value of the real property. Only one exemption may be granted with respect to the same property and, if two or more persons are eligible for an exemption with respect to the same property, the parties shall decide between or among themselves which shall receive the benefit of the exemption; however, in the case of more than one party eligible for an exemption with respect to the same property, the total combined gross annual income of the parties may not exceed $10,000. No real property may be exempted under this subsection which the assessor determines, after notice and hearing to the parties concerned, has been conveyed to the applicant primarily for the purpose of obtaining the exemption. The determination of the assessor is appealable under AS 44.62.560—44.62.570.

(f) No exemption may be granted except upon written application for the exemption on a form prescribed by the state assessor for use by local assessors. The claimant must file the application no later than January 15 of the assessment year for which the exemption is sought and must file a separate application for each assessment year in which the exemption is sought. If an application is filed within the required time and is approved by the assessor, he shall allow an exemption in accordance with the provisions of this section. The assessor may at any time require proof in the form he considers necessary of the right and amount of an exemption claimed under this section, and in that respect may as one form of proof require authorization from the taxpayer to verify gross income level by reference to gross income shown in the latest state income tax return available for all or part of the assessment year for which an exemption is sought.

(g) The state shall reimburse a borough or city, as appropriate, for the real property tax revenues lost to it by the operation of (e) of this section.

(h) Nothing in (e)—(i) of this section affects similar exemptions from property taxes granted by municipalities on September 10, 1972 or prevents municipalities from granting similar exemptions by ordinance as provided in § 25 of this chapter. However, under (e)—(i) of this section only the amount of revenue lost to the municipality by reason of the exemption authorized in those provisions may be reimbursed to the municipality by the state.

(i) In (e)—(i) of this section the term "real property" includes but is not limited to mobile homes, whether classified as real or personal property for municipal tax purposes. (§ 2 ch 118 SLA 1972)

History of section. — See City of Anchorage v. Chugach Elec. Ass'n, 17 Alaska 481, 252 F.2d 412 (9th Cir. 1958).

This section was enacted pursuant to Alaska Const., art. IX, § 4. Harmon v. North Pac. Union Conference Ass'n of Seventh Day Adventists, Sup. Ct. Op. No. 591 (File No. 1060), 462 P.2d 432 (1969).

Intent of constitutional convention. —The constitutional convention intended that only so much of the property used for religious purposes as was being used to produce income should be taxable, that such other parts should be exempt, and that a proration between taxable and nontaxable parts should be made. 1962 Op. Att'y Gen., No. 15.

Purpose.—The purpose of this section is to encourage the establishment of privately supported nonprofit educational institutions; the motivation for their establishment is largely irrelevant. McKee v. Evans, Sup. Ct. Op. No. 740 (File No. 1382), 490 P.2d 1226 (1971).

tioned in this section, is not subject to valuation by first class cities for the purposes of AS 14.17.010 et seq., to the extent that it is exempt from taxation. 1962 Op. Att'y Gen., No. 18.

Exclusive employment of occupants of properties sought to be taxed was such as to bring these properties within the exemptions provided in subsections (b)(1) and (b)(2) for residences of ministers owned by religious organizations, or property used for "solely charitable purposes" or "religious education." North Pac. Union Conference Ass'n of Seventh Day Adventists v. Harmon, 5 Alaska L.J. No. 11, p. 228 (Nov., 1967).

The providing of recreational facilities, such as accommodations for campers, is a charitable use of the property. Matanuska-Susitna Borough v. King's Lake Camp, Sup. Ct. Op. No. 472 (File No. 857), 439 P.2d 441 (1968).

Ordinance exempting from local taxation any class of real or personal property.—A home rule city has the power to enact an ordinance exempting from local taxation any class of real or personal property, if such an exemption is not prohibited by the city's home rule charter. 1969 Op. Att'y Gen., No. 1.

Electric cooperative operating under arrangement with federal agency is not exempt.—A nonprofit cooperative is not an agency of the United States government simply by virtue of an "arrangement" with the Rural Electrification Administration pursuant to 7 USC §§ 901—915, and therefore immune from local taxation. City of Anchorage v. Chugach Elec. Ass'n, 17 Alaska 481, 252 F.2d 412 (9th Cir. 1958).

There is no statutory authority exempting the property of Chugach Electric Association from taxation by the city of Anchorage and the Anchorage independent school district. City of Anchorage v. Chugach Elec. Ass'n, 17 Alaska 481, 252 F.2d 412 (9th Cir. 1958).

Exemption of property on federal land inapplicable to Railroad Reserve. — The doctrine that property located upon federally owned land is immune from local taxation is inapposite where it is not shown that the Railroad Reserve is "federal property" or under the exclusive jurisdiction of the federal government. City of Anchorage v. Chugach Elec. Ass'n, 17 Alaska 481, 252 F.2d 412 (9th Cir. 1958).

Sec. 29.53.025. Optional exemptions and exclusions. (a) Municipalities may exclude or exempt or partially exempt residential property from taxation by ordinance ratified by the voters at a regular or special election.

(b) Municipalities may by ordinance

(1) classify boats and vessels for purposes of taxation and may establish the assessed valuation of boats and vessels on the basis of their registered or certificated net tonnage; a tax based upon a tonnage valuation shall not exceed $5 a year for a boat or vessel of less than five net tons and shall not exceed $15 a year for a boat or vessel of more than five net tons;

(2) classify and exempt from taxation

(A) the household furniture over $500 in value and the effects of the head of a family or a householder; and

(B) the property of an organization not organized for business or profit-making purposes and used exclusively for community purposes, provided that income derived from rental of such property does not exceed the actual cost to the owner of the use by the renter; and

See § 29.53.020.(a)(2)

(Housekeeping)

(C) historic sites, buildings and monuments.

(c) The provisions of (a) of this section notwithstanding,

(1) a home rule or first or second class borough may, by ordinance adopted without weighted voting, adjust its property tax structure in whole or in part to the property tax structure of a city within it, including but not limited to, excluding personal property from taxation, establishing exemptions, and extending the redemption period;

(2) a home rule or first class city shall have the same power to grant exemptions or exclude property from borough taxes that it has as to city taxes, provided that the exemptions or exclusions have been adopted as to city taxes and further provided that the city appropriate to the borough sufficient money to equal revenues lost by the borough because of the exemptions or exclusions, the amount to be determined annually by the assembly without weighted voting.

(d) Exemptions or exclusions from property tax which have been granted by home rule municipalities in addition to exemptions authorized or required by law, and which are in effect on September 10, 1972 and not later withdrawn, are not affected by this Act. (§ 2 ch 118 SLA 1972)

City may not exempt property without express authority.—The authority of a municipal corporation to allow exemptions of particular property from taxation, unless expressly conferred by law, has very generally been denied. Valentine v. City of Juneau, 36 F.2d 904 (9th Cir. 1929).

Ordinance exempting from local taxation any class of real or personal property.—A home rule city has the power to enact an ordinance exempting from local taxation any class of real or personal property, if such an exemption is not prohibited by the city's home rule charter. 1969 Op. Att'y Gen., No. 1.

Valuation of full and true value not precluded. — The fact that first class cities may choose the tonnage valuation of ships for the purposes of taxation does not preclude them from making a valuation of full and true value for the purposes of taxation. It necessarily follows that boats and vessels should be valued at full and true value for the purpose of AS 14.17.010 et seq. 1962 Op. Att'y Gen., No. 18.

Rules applicable to second class cities.—The rules applicable to boats and vessels in first class cities apply equally to those under the jurisdiction of second class cities. 1962 Op. Att'y Gen., No. 18.

Sec. 29.53.030. Mining claims. The assessed value of an unimproved unpatented mining claim which is not producing, and a nonproducing patented mining claim upon which the improvements originally required for patent have become useless and valueless through depreciation, removal or otherwise, is fixed at $200 for each 20 acres or fraction of 20 acres. If the surface ground of a claim has a separate and independent value for nonmining uses, the real and personal property is assessed at its full and true value. (§ 2 ch 118 SLA 1972)

Replace with local Severance tax on all resources (timber, fill, minerals, etc.)

Sec. 29.53.110. Assessment notice. (a) The assessor shall give every person named in the assessment roll a notice of assessment, showing the assessed value of his property. On each notice is printed a brief summary of the dates when taxes are payable, delinquent and subject to penalty and interest, and the dates when the board of equalization will sit.

(b) Sufficient assessment notice is given if mailed by first class mail 30 days before the equalization hearings. If the address is not known to the assessor, the notice may be addressed to the person at the post office nearest the property. Notice is effective on the date of mailing. (§ 2 ch 118 SLA 1972)

Sec. 29.53.120. Corrections. (a) A person receiving an assessment notice shall advise the assessor of errors or omissions in the assessment of his property. The assessor may correct errors or omissions in the roll before the board of equalization hearing.

(b) If errors found in the preparation of the assessment roll are adjusted, the assessor shall mail a corrected notice allowing 30 days for appeal to the board. (§ 2 ch 118 SLA 1972)

Sec. 29.53.130. Appeal. (a) A person whose name appears on the assessment roll or his agent or assigns may appeal to the board of equalization for relief from an alleged error in valuation not adjusted by the assessor to the taxpayer's satisfaction.

(b) The appellant shall, within 30 days from the date of mailing of notice of assessment, submit to the assessor a written appeal specifying grounds in the form which the board may require. Otherwise, the right of appeal ceases unless the board finds that the taxpayer was unable to comply.

(c) The assessor shall notify appellants by mail of the time and place of their hearing.

(d) The assessor shall prepare for use by the board a summary of assessment data relating to each assessment which is appealed.

(e) A city may appeal an assessment to the board of equalization in the same manner as a taxpayer. Within five days after receipt of the appeal, the assessor shall notify the person whose property assessment is being appealed by the city. (§ 2 ch 118 SLA 1972)

Taxpayer may contest valuation.—Under this section a taxpayer may contest valuation before a board of trustees meeting as a board of equalization. Yakutat & S. Ry. v. City of Yakutat, 16 Alaska 18, 227 F.2d 9 (9th Cir. 1955).

Determining portion of property devoted to purposes of organization.—Determination of what portion of property owned by a charitable, religious, or educational organization is devoted to purposes of the organization, is a factual function devolving upon the assessor and the board of equalization by law. Sisters of Charity v. Greater Anchorage Area Borough, 8 Alas. L.J. No. 11, p. 272 (Sept., 1970).

within 30 days of the effective date of the notice.

(b)If the property owner disagrees with the assessed value, the assessor shall review the assessment and inform the property owner of his findings allowing 10 days for appeal to the board. If the assessed value changes, the assessor shall send a revised notice to the property owner.

Sec. 29.53.135. Board of equalization. The assembly sits as a board of equalization for the purpose of hearing any appeal from determinations of the borough assessor, or it may delegate this authority to a board appointed by it for that purpose. The board of equalization shall consist of at least that number of members of the assembly over and above the number required for a quorum to transact business. The board is governed in its proceedings by such procedures consistent with general rules of administrative law and the laws governing equalization proceedings as may be adopted by ordinance, including but not limited to quorum and voting requirements. The assembly shall by ordinance adopt rules for the membership and conduct of the board. (§ 2 ch 118 SLA 1972) not fewer than three members.

Borough assembly as administrative body. — When the borough assembly functions as a board of equalization or adjustment, it acts as an administrative, not a legislative, body. 1965 Op. Att'y Gen., No. 7.

When the borough assembly sits as an administrative body, whether as a board of equalization or adjustment, the weighted vote may not be used. 1965 Op. Att'y Gen., No. 7.

Sec. 29.53.140. Hearing. (a) If an appellant fails to appear, the board of equalization may proceed with the hearing in his absence.

(b) The appellant bears the burden of proof.

(c) The only grounds for adjustment is proof of unequal, excessive or improper valuation based on facts which are stated in a valid written appeal timely filed or proved at the hearing.

(d) The board shall certify its actions to the assessor within seven days.

(e) The assessor shall enter the changes and certify the final assessment roll by June 1.

(f) An appellant may appeal to the superior court for, and is entitled to, trial de novo of the board's action. Either party to the appeal may demand a jury trial. (§ 2 ch 118 SLA 1972)

Scope of review. — The superior court will not substitute its judgment for the judgment of those upon whom the law confers the authority and duty to assess and levy taxes. The superior court is concerned with nothing less than fraud or the clear adoption of a fundamentally wrong principle of evaluation. Sisters of Charity v. Greater Anchorage Area Borough, 8 Alas. L.J. No. 11, p. 272 (Sept., 1970); Twentieth Century Inv. Co. v. City of Juneau, Sup. Ct. Op. No. 28 (File No. 42), 359 P.2d 783 (1961).

When valuation or assessment violates due process.—The valuation and assessment of property for taxes does not contravene the due process clause of the 14th amendment unless it is plainly demonstrated that there is involved, not the exercise of the taxing power, but the exertion of a different and forbidden power, such as the confiscation of property. Such a demonstration is not made simply by showing overvaluation; there must be something which, in legal effect, is equivalent to an intention or fraudulent purpose to place an excessive valuation on property, and thus violate fundamental principles that safeguard the taxpayer's property rights. Twentieth Century Inv. Co. v. City of Juneau, Sup. Ct. Op. No. 28 (File No. 42), 359 P.2d 783 (1961).

Sec. 29.53.150. Supplementary assessment rolls. The assessor shall include property omitted from the assessment roll on a supplementary roll, using the procedures set out in this chapter for the original roll. (§ 2 ch 118 SLA 1972)

Erroneous omissions from assessment roll do not invalidate all taxes. —The omission of property from an assessment roll, through error of judgment or of law, will not invalidate all taxes, thus practically putting an end to the operations of government. Valentine v. City of Juneau, 36 F.2d 904 (9th Cir. 1929).

Sec. 29.53.155. Manifest errors discovered on the assessment roll may be corrected by the assessor and an adjustment made to the roll subsequent to its certification.

Sec. 29.53.160. Tax adjustments on property affected by a natural disaster. (a) The assembly may provide for reassessment and reduction of taxes for property destroyed, damaged, or otherwise reduced in value as a result of a natural disaster.

(b) A reassessment may be made by the assessor only upon the receipt of a sworn statement of the taxpayer that his losses exceed $1,000. A reduction of taxes may be made only on losses in excess of $1,000 for the remainder of the year following the disaster. Upon reassessment, the borough shall recompute this tax and refund taxes which have already been paid.

(c) The borough shall make notice of assessment or reassessment and shall hold an equalization hearing as provided in this chapter, except that a notice of appeal is filed with the board of equalization within 10 days after notice of assessment is given to the person appealing. Otherwise, the right of appeal ceases unless the board finds that the taxpayer is unable to comply.

(d) In enacting an ordinance or resolution authorized by this section, the assembly may, consistent with this section, prescribe procedures, restrictions and conditions of assessing or reassessing property and of remitting, refunding or forgiving taxes.

(e) In this section "disaster" means a major disaster declared by the President of the United States under the provisions of the Federal Disaster Act of 1950, Title 42, United States Code, sec. 1855-1855g, or other federal law. (§ 2 ch 118 SLA 1972)

Sec. 29.53.170. Tax levy and rate. (a) The power granted to the assembly to assess, levy and collect a general property tax shall be exercised by means of general ordinances, but the rate of levy, the date of equalization and the date when taxes become delinquent shall be fixed by resolution.

(b) The assembly shall annually determine the rate of levy before June 15. By July 1 the tax collector shall mail tax statements setting out the levy, dates when taxes are payable and delinquent, and penalties and interest. (§ 2 ch 118 SLA 1972)

Sec. 29.53.180. Rates of penalty and interest. (a) If the taxpayer is required to pay the entire tax on the due date set by the assembly, a penalty not to exceed 10 per cent may be added to all date of repurchase, together with delinquent taxes assessed and levied as though it had continued in private ownership.

(b) After termination of the right of redemption there is no right to repurchase property held for, or devoted to, a public purpose. (§ 2 ch 118 SLA 1972)

Payment of taxes constitutes an application to repurchase property from foreclosure. Jameson v. Wurtz, Sup. Ct. Op. No. 259 (File No. 431), 396 P.2d 68 (1964).

Sec. 29.53.380. Proceeds of tax sale. Upon sale of foreclosed real or personal property the borough or city shall divide the proceeds less cost of collection, between the borough and the city having unpaid taxes against the property. The division is in proportion to the respective municipal taxes against the property at the time of foreclosure. (§ 2 ch 118 SLA 1972)

Sec. 29.53.385. Payment of taxes upon public utilization. If a city or borough holds or takes title to tax-foreclosed property for a public purpose, the city or borough shall satisfy unpaid taxes and assessments against the property held by other municipalities, with accrued interest but without penalty. If the amount required to satisfy the unpaid taxes and assessments exceeds the assessed valuation of the property, the city or borough shall pay the other municipalities the assessed valuation, which shall be divided between the other municipalities in proportion to their respective taxes and assessments against the property at the time of foreclosure. (§ 2 ch 118 SLA 1972)

Sec. 29.53.390. Refund of taxes. (a) If a taxpayer pays taxes under protest, he may bring suit in the superior court against the borough for recovery of the taxes. If judgment for recovery is given against the borough, the borough shall refund the amount of the taxes to the taxpayer with interest at eight per cent from the date of payment plus costs.

(b) If, in payment of taxes legally imposed, a remittance by a taxpayer through error or otherwise exceeds the amount due, and the borough, on audit of the account in question, is satisfied that this is the case, the borough shall refund the excess to the taxpayer with interest at eight percent from the date of payment. A claim for refund filed after one year of the due date of the tax is forever barred. (§ 2 ch 118 SLA 1972)

, or if in the absence of suit, the borough assembly determines that judgment for the recovery of the taxes would be obtained if legal proceedings were brought, the amount of the taxes shall be paid to the taxpayer

Sec. 29.53.050. Tax limitation. (a) No municipality may levy and tax for any purpose in excess of three per cent of the assessed valuation of property within the municipality in any one year.

(b) No municipality, or combination of municipalities occupying the same geographical area, in whole or in part, may levy taxes (1) which will result in tax revenues from all sources exceeding $1,000 a year for each person residing within their boundaries or (2) upon values which, when combined with the value of property otherwise taxable by the municipality, exceed the product of 225 per cent of the average per capita assessed full and true value of property in the state multiplied by the number of residents of the taxing municipality. If two or more municipalities occupying the same geographical area, in whole or in part, attempt to levy a tax (1) the combined levy of which would result in tax revenues from all sources exceeding $1,000 a year for each person residing within their boundaries or (2) upon value which, when combined with the value of property otherwise taxable by the municipality, exceed the product of 225 per cent of the average per capita assessed full and true value of property in the state multiplied by the number of residents of the taxing municipality, the commissioner of community and regional affairs shall apportion the lawful levy and equitably divide these revenues on the basis of need, services performed and other considerations in the public interest. For the purpose of this subsection, population shall be determined by the commissioner of community and regional affairs based on the latest statistics of the United States Bureau of the Census or on other reliable population data. For purposes of this subsection the average per capita assessed full and true value of property in the state shall be calculated without regard to the assessed value of taxable property under AS 43.58. (§ 2 ch 118 SLA 1972; am § 4 ch 1 FSSLA 1973; am § 5 ch 159 SLA 1975)

Needs to be changed to $1,500 to be consistent with § 29.53.045..

Effect of amendments. — The 1973 amendment, effective January 1, 1974, added subsection (b).

The 1975 amendment, effective June 26, 1975, in subsection (b), inserted "(1)," "upon values which," and "exceed" in both the first and second sentences, deleted "either (1)" preceding "$1,000" in those sentences, and added the fourth sentence.

Editor's note. — Section 8, ch. 159, SLA 1975, contains a severability clause.

Alaska Statutes 29.53.055 and 29.58.180(a) authorize taxes to pay for municipal bonds, independent of the limitations of this section or AS 29.53.045, and regardless of whether the bonds are in default or default is pending. North Slope Borough v. Sohio Petroleum Corp., Sup. Ct. Op. No. 1750 (File Nos. 3460, 3513, 3659), 585 P.2d 534 (1978).

Alaska Statute 29.53.055, literally read, does not render this section and AS 29.53.045 meaningless. AS 29.53.055 applies only to debt financing. The limitations of this section and AS 29.53.045 apply to operating revenues. Merely because they do not also curb taxes to pay for bonds does not render them nullities. North Slope Borough v. Sohio Petroleum Corp., Sup. Ct. Op. No. 1750 (File Nos. 3460, 3513, 3659), 585 P.2d 534 (1978).

Regulation denying credit against tax levied under AS 43.56 was invalid. An emergency regulation which denied a credit against the tax levied by the state under AS 43.56.010(a) for property taxes collected by municipalities in excess of the limitations set forth in AS 29.53.045 and subsection (b) of this section was invalid since AS 43.56.010(d) mandates that all taxes paid under AS 29.53.045 are to be credited against the levy of AS 43.56.010(a). North Slope Borough v. Sohio Petroleum Corp., Sup. Ct. Op. No. 1750 (File Nos. 3460, 3513, 3659), 585 P.2d 534 (1978).

SUBJECT: Title 29 Revisions

As requested, this memo is a list of suggestions and comments for revision of Title 29 of the Alaska Statutes. Some of these comments are products of the consensus viewpoint of the staff. Some are the products of a particular staff member's concern and experience with a given provision. Several otherwise meritorious suggestions do not appear in this memo because the provisions to which they are addressed are located in other titles and could not easily be integrated into Title 29 or they are primarily a matter of DCRA's jurisdiction vis a vis other State agencies. It is my feeling that these issues must be dealt with separately in order to avoid the appearance that our Department is attempting to restructure its statutory authority under the guise of revising Title 29 or construing the mandate of SCR 66 in an excessively broad fashion.

Many of the suggestions concern policy questions which are sure to be debated extensively as the revision process continues. I do not feel it is appropriate, at this point, to offer statutory drafts implementing these policy considerations. In some cases, a mere substitution, addition, or clarification is all that is suggested and these are presented with more specificity than questions with broader policy implications. In one or two instances, a model draft of a new provision is offered as a guide where it is appropriate to do so.

Other suggestions were modified or eliminated because, after some reflection, I felt that Title 29 already adequately addressed the question or that the suggested change would have unanticipated and unwanted consequences. Given that I was not guided by the divine revelation in excerising my editorial license, I invite other staff members to continue to advocate revisions I have not favored or overlooked.

General Consideration

Title 29 provides a framework for municipal authority and function in Alaska. The relationships among the entities it creates are complex and intertwined. Therefore, the language of the statute is necessarily complex and requires a certain sophistication and studied familiarity to master. This is perhaps unavoidable given the striking diversity of conditions in Alaska. However, the burden of using this complex blueprint falls unevenly on smaller communities. Larger urban communities usually possess the technical and professional resources to deal with Title 29's requirements and options. Many smaller communities do not.

Because of this lack of expertise and resources some basic concepts are not well understood and some functions are performed badly or not at all by these small municipalities. It is ironic that many larger municipalities have home rule status which relieves them of the burden of conforming to most of the finer details of Title 29 while most smaller communities must do so.

If Title 29 is to serve as both a mandate and as a guide, it will be most effective where it is clearest and most straightforward. A primary goal of revision should be to clarify, define and simplify to the greatest extent possible. To do so comprehensively would require a great deal of work but would undoubtedly be worth the effort if the result were better local government.

On the other hand, there are areas which would benefit from a bit more complexity. Wherever a public body, commission, or board performs a discretionary or quasi-judicial duty there should be standards, guidelines, criteria, and legislative intent spelled out with some specificity. Too often these entities do not understand the necessity of procedural regularity and therefore do not function at an acceptable level of competence and evenhandness.

Chapter 18, Article 4-Development Cities

The development cities statute should be eliminated or, in the alternative, thoroughly restructured in light of the experience gained in the few abortive attempts at implementing its provisions. The case for elimination of the development cities law has been convincing laid out in prior DCRA analyses. The following is a lengthly quote from an April 20, 1976 intra-Division memo:

> The Development City law has been a failure. As of this date, this statute has been applied to only one area, notorious Lost River, and that project fizzled and then went "dud". A stunning indication of the value of the Development City law is found in the fact that it was substantially instigated, according to an Anchorage Times editorial (January 31, 1975), by the very group sponsoring its most egregious failure, Lost River.
> Once a petition is offered for development city, a great deal of State authority is set in motion, but no development city petitions other than Lost River have or will be forthcoming because development cities are usually undesirable or impractical public and private investments. Let me elaborate on this point.
> Building a community from scratch--and that is what a development city is essentially--is a very costly proposition to the public purse. The more costly it becomes, the more controversial and the less willing the State and public are to commit public funds to

to finance the proposed city's service and facilities requirements. Remember how nearby Nome jealously questioned the potentially great expenditure of State and Federal energy and financial resources for Lost River.

Lost River was bound to a State policy--which should also apply to future development city proposals--that State fiscal support of a development city will be forthcoming only if the development city first demonstrates economic feasibility without State subsidies. Considering the nature of the kind of development most likely to foster a development city proposal this is impossible. Most will be based on single industry natural resource development, be it mining like Lost River, or possibly lumbering and associated wood processing or activities supporting onshore or offshore oil and gas development. Absent the creation of a diversified regional economy, a development city isolated in the bush has virtually no potential for attracting further permanent industrial growth and only limited possibilities for commerical growth. Thus, the city collapses when the natural resource upon which it is founded becomes depleted.

Spending public funds on a community bound for extinction is not a sound investment unless the economic returns to the public substantially exceed public investment costs. Substantial public investment can cause a development city to generate a regional economy attracting more lasting industrial and commerce development, especially through State and federal investment for a regional transportation network--i.e., for airport, port and/or highway transportation facilities. However, even with such public investment, there is no guarantee that the regional economy created will be self-sustaining without continued substantial public investment. Bethel, a regional center created by substantial federal and State investment in public services and facilities, cannot sustain its regional economy without ever constant and substantial federal and State subsidy.

The development city will not only be fiscally infeasible from the State's point of view, but also as a functioning municipality. Lost River, which should fairly well exemplify any new city built from the ground up in the hinterlands, was hardly an attractive prospect in the municipal bond market. Its assessed valuation was extremely low while required bonded indebtedness was astronomically high. Not a good bond investment. Projected municipal expenditure for community development in Lost River was reported as extremely high due to the high construction and maintenance cost characteristic of bush Alaska. On the other hand, expected revenue was extremely low, attributable to the usual absence of other revenue-producing industrial and commercial operations in a single-industry city, and a low public ability-to-pay taxes, since an unusually large share of individual and family consumer expenses in remote high cost-of-living Alaskan settlements are required for the purchase of necessities. Under these foregoing circumstances, municipal fiscal health would be the exception and not the rule for a development city.

A development city will have just as hard a time becoming a socially viable community. The Bethel magneticism syndrome is a premier problem. A new community situated in the middle of the bush and chockfull of services and facilities of a high-quality never before experienced in a region could, and probably would, create an in-migration of bush citizens. The phenomenon of in-migration from rural to urban areas has been discussed and analyzed about the world for years and as of yet no one has formulated a workable, humane solution to the tremendous physical, social and governmental problems and pressures it creates in the receiving urban settlement. Bethel says it all.

Natural resource cities cannot seem to hold their workforce, having a high labor turnover and, resultantly, a high turnover of families whose continued presence is the prime ingredient for community stability. Faro, a development city (mining) in the Yukon is geographically the closest example of this instability. It was well designed and provided every essential amenity. Today, visitors and many of its former residents remark that Faro is a tedious place lacking the community spirit and cohesiveness that inexplicably only organic community development can provide. Only close to genius planning can create a brand new development city with the vitality and stability natural to communities created and evolving organically. Tapiolas, however, are exceptional and almost more a result of fortuity of circumstances than of deliberate planning.

The private sector has not exactly been flooding the Local Boundary Commission with petitions for development city incorporation. Private reluctance to jump on the bandwagon of the Development City concept is based on a good capitalist economic sense and the company-town mentality.

First, most conventional industrial development will not locate in the bush away from the established markets and amenities and thus reassuring to developers in existing cities. Second, past experience reveals that those kinds of natural resource ventures, large or small, most likely to be candidates for development city treatment > want to avoid association with any kind of municipal organization whether a development city or a regular municipality. Go it alone is the ethic, with the principal developer providing the facilities and services to the employees of the operation. Look to Prudhoe Bay, Thorne Bay and Red Bay as examples of this company-town mentality. The principal developer knows he can provide needed services for his development if he so wishes to assume the obligation. He does not have the same degree of assurance where these services are promised by a newly created municipal entity with no experience or demonstrated financial or functional capability in providing essential services supportive of industrial activity and concommitant residential and commercial build-up. The company town reaction will probably extend to any new industrial settlements arising as a consequence of offshore oil and gas development occurring well away from existing municipalities of any consequence. (Memo from Sid Wolf, Senior Planner to Kevin Waring, Directory Division of Community Planning, April 20, 1976).

The case against development cities is reinforced by the experience gained from the proposed development city of Afognak. The developer of Afognak was an ANCSA village corporation with large holdings of timber lands located within the boundaries of the proposed city. Also located within the boundaries were timber lands owned by other village corporations, permanent logging camps, and up to eighty private landowners. These various groups protested the formation of the development city and the local boundary commission finally disapproved the incorporation petition. It was argued that the development of timber land other than those held by the city's developer might be subject to land use controls designed to inhibit competition. Private land holders complained that the composition of the City Council during the development stage denied them representation and that the council meetings would not be public. They also argued the City might use its power to issue revenue bonds excessively and that there was no voter approval as a check on this power. Due to the particular status of ANSCA lands, it was feared that the ultimate liability for bonding for other municipal indebtedness would fall on the private non-Native landholders. Objections were also raised to what was perceived as a massive and unjustified State subsidy to private industry.

In retrospect, it has been argued that the Afognak case was a misapplication of the development cities statute. Perhaps the better viewpoint is that the statute was not designed to anticipate the variety of conditions to which its general application would make it susceptible. It is clear that the statute was intended primarily for the Lost River type of situation i.e., a reasonably compact development located in an isolated and virtually unpopulated area with no diversity in land ownership and no competing development. Given the complex land ownership pattern created by ANCSA, the large amount of land required for some types of resource development and the somewhat random pattern of rural population it can be anticipated that future development cities, if any, have a good chance of facing the same problems as Afognak. Some of these problems could be ameliorated by restructuring the statute but others are likely to remain as latent political questions.

Perhaps the best framework for judging the development cities law is the utilitarian propective. To date no development city exists and no serious proposal is on the horizon. The statute books are thick enough without special interest legislation which even the special interests have not found useful.

Chapter 33, Article 4-Planning, Platting and Zoning

Section 29.33.070 (b)(2). The present language of this provision was adopted by amendment in 1979. DCRA is on record as favoring the language of this provision as it existed prior to its 1979 amendment. The department was concerned that allowing a borough to delegate planning authority to a city within the borough may lead to gaps and inconsistency in planning. This is still a valid objection. The previous language allowed a borough to delegate only administrative and enforcement responsibilities to a city within the borough. This was a reasonable and efficient arrangement which struck a balance between the need for areawide continuity and the need for local responsibility. The Department should therefore recommend a return to the pre-1979 statutory language.

Section 29.33.080 (b)(4). The term "official" map needs to be defined as it has a technical meaning which is not apparent by reference to common usage. An official map is a document adopted by the legislative body of the community. It pinpoints the location of future streets and other public facilities. The official map serves as notice on developers that the municipality intends to acquire certain specified property(it is not however, a comprehensive or general plan). (A good discussion of official maps is contained in Principals and Practice of Urban Planning, International City Managers Association, Wash., D.C., 1968).

Section 29.33.080 (f). Among other things, paragraph (f) requires that "the commission shall establish, subject to approval by the assembly, rules and regulations for the conduct of its meeting." The assembly is not required to adopt these rules and regulations by ordinance. The wording of paragraph (f) should be changed to require the adoption of these rules and regulations by ordinance. In the alternative, a new section could be added to Title 29 which requires that the rules and regulations of all municipal boards, commissions, and departments be codified and published. Either of these changes would increase public access to these rules and regulations and thereby help to insure procedural regularity in the performance of administrative and quasijudical functions.

Section 29.33.090. This section should be rewritten to eliminate the use of the term "zoning" and a broader term such as "land use regulation" or "land use management" should be substituted. Euclidian zoning, whereby land is divided into use restricted districts, has not always proved to be the best or most appropriate method for regulating community development in Alaska, particularly in rural communities. "Permit" and "performance standards" systems are examples of devices used in other parts of the country to accommodate the needs for flexibility in planning. The use of the broader concept of land use regulation would include traditional zoning but would not limit communities to this device. It would also help to avoid the rather narrow and inflexible interpretion given to zoning powers by some courts.

Enabling legislation should be added to section 29.33.090 for the transfer of development rights. This land use device has evolved in recent years as a way to accomodate extensive use of community police powers to zone for open space or to preserve historic buidlings with the right of property owners to the reasonable use of their property. Other devices such as comprehensible regulation, eminent domain and acquisition of conservation easements accomplish the same public goal but require large expenditures of public funds.

The transfer of development rights system creates zones where development is greatly restricted for some public purpose. The owners of the restricted property are given the power to sever the right to develop from the rest of the fee in the land to transfer (sell) that right to an adjacent or remote parcel of land. The receiving property is no longer limited by the bulk and density requirements of its zone and may be over-developed in an amount equal to the transferred right.

The use of this device could be an important tool in shaping attractive and functional communities while at the same time allowing appropriate development to the greatest extent possible. A good discussion of this concept along with model enabling legislation can be found in: Rose, "A Proposal for the Separation and Marketability of Development Rights as a Technique to Preserve Open Space," 2 Real Estate Law Review 635 (Winter, 1974.).

Section 29.33.150.245. Paragraph (a) of section 29.33.150 should be rewritten to explicity state that all subdivisions are required to be platted and that these plats must be recorded except where the requirement is waived in specified circumstances. Chapter 15 of Title 40 of the Alaska Statutes concerning subdivisions and dedications should be integrated into Title 29.

Section 29.33.170. The waiver provisions of section 29.33.170 should be modified and a new section added authorizing short subdivisions and short plats. Under present waiver provisions, a large tract of land could be successively subdivided into four or less parcels without ever triggering the platting requirements. Short plat authority would avoid this result by requiring simplified plats and summary approval for small subdivisions. A model short plat and short subdivision statute is set out below:

> Section 29.33. . The assembly or council may adopt regulations and procedures for the summary approval of short plats and short subdivisions or revisions thereof. Such regulations shall be adopted by ordinance and may contain wholly different requirements than those governing the approval of preliminary and final plats of subdivisions and may require surveys and monumentations and shall require filling of the short plat for record in the office of the recorder: provided, that regulations shall contain a requirement that land in short subdivisions may not be further divided in any manner [within a period of five years] without filing of a final plat.
> Section 29.33. . Definitions 1) "Short subdivision" is the division of land into four or less lots, tracts, parcels, sites, or subdivisions for the purpose of sale or lease. 2) "Short plat" is the map or representation of a short subdivision.

If the provisions of AS 40.15 relating to subdivisions and dedication, were integrated into Title 29 a new section should be added as follows:

> Section 29.33. . Purpose: The purpose of this chapter is to regulate the subdivision of land to promote the public health, safety, and general welfare in accordance with standards established by the State to prevent the overcrowding of land; to lessen congestion in the streets and highways; to provide for adequate light and air; to facilitate adequate provision for water, sewage, parks and recreation area, sites for schools and school grounds and other public requirements; to provide for proper ingress and egress; and to require uniform momumenting of land subdivision and conveyancing by accurate legal description.

Chapter 41-Powers of Third Class Boroughs

Section 29.41.010. This section should be rewritten to specifically include or exclude all or part of the provisions of Chapter 48 'powers applicable to all municipalities) with particular attention paid to Section 29.48.010 and Section 29.48.260.

The last sentance of paragraph (a) of Section 29.41.010 states that: "Area wide excerise of powers other than education and tax assessments and collection is not authorized." Paragraph (b) states that a third class borough may, under certain circumstances, excerise any power excerised by a third class borough but only on a service area basis. Are third class boroughs prohibited, except on a service area basis, from:

aquiring, using, and disposing of real property; the power to sue and be sued; or the power to expend funds for the good of the municipality? The literal application of section 29.41.010 would seem to limit the excerise of these and other general municipal powers to service areas created especially for the purpose.

Chapter 48 Article I-General Powers

Section 29.48.010. Sub-section (9) of this section allows the disposal of real and personal property for purposes authorized under this or other law. Unlike section 29.48.260, this provision requires no procedural safeguards nor does it require that such action be done by ordinance.

Sub-section (9) should also be rewritten to allow for land exchanges between municipalities and private persons in certain circumstance which will occur as a result of the implementation of section 14 (c)(3) of ANSCA. Under section 14 (c)(3) municipalities will receive 1280 acres of land to be used for future municipal expansion. Several municipalities will not be able to select appropriate land in or near the municipality because most or all of the available land has been conveyed to private persons pursuant to section 14 (c)(1). It would be advantageous for a municipality to be able to exchange some of this inconveniently located land for parcels more suited to municipal purposes. Procedural safeguards should be built in to guard against improper exchanges.

Section 29.48.020. This section should be placed in another chapter. Chapter 48, in which this section is located, is entitled "Powers Applicable to all Municipalities". This section deals with powers of second class boroughs in areas outside cities and not with municipalities in general. It should be placed in another chapter.

Chapter 48 Article 4-Miscellaneous Provisions

The provisions of Section 29.48.260 relating to disposal of municipal properties could be improved by several additions and changes as outlined below:

The term "municipal purpose" in subsection (a) should be defined, or in the alternative, standards or criteria for determing when municipal land is no longer required for municipal purposes should be added to this section.

Certain procedural requirements are specified in subsection (c). The authorized methods for sale of municipal land are auction or by opening of sealed bids. Adding authority for disposal by lottery at fair market value, or some lesser figure set by the municipal legislative body, would give municipalities a fair and reasonable way to distribute land to persons of low or moderate income. The State has used this method for some time and there is no apparent reason why it would not be appropriate for municipalities. Another provision of sub-section (c) requires voter ratification of any ordinance for the sale, lease or disposition of real property or interest of real property valued at $25,000 or more. The ravages of inflation has made this provision unnecessarily burdensome to municipalities. In today's market, this provision could require voter ratification for the sale of one lot in some urban municipalities. An appropriate figure would be two to four times the present figure.

Sub-section (d) exempts municipal lands acquired from the State from the procedural requirements of subsection (c). The policy behind this provision is not apparent from reading the statute. It has been suggested that the purpose of this provision is to facilitate the transfer of excess municipal to private ownership, particularly for residential use. If this indeed is the policy behind this subsection, it should be rewritten to exempt transfers for specific purposes regardless of the source of the land. Many municipalities have or will soon receive land from non-State sources (Townsite Trust land, section 14(c)(3) ANCSA land, etc.) which may be equally appropriate for transfer to residential or other private use. It doesn't make much sense to require all the procedural steps of subsection (c) if this land is to be disposed for the same purpose as State land.

The Alaska Supreme Court has recently interpreted sub-section (e) in the case of Libby v. Dillingham. After considering competiting in terpretations of this paragraph, the court said that municipal land leased to "benefical new industries" must comply with the procedural requirements of paragraph (c) of the same section. As a result of the Libby decision, communities cannot now negotiate the lease or sale of municipal property to industries which they wish to attract into the community without first engaging into an elaborate competitive bid procedure. This provision should be rewritten to specifically exclude these kinds of transactions from the requirements of paragraph (c).

Many rural communities have expressed the desire to make residential land available to local residents but fear that under present land disposal procedures much of the land would pass to wealthy non-residents who are able to pay a higher price for the land. A new provision should be written which allows for preferances to certain classes of people (e.g. heads of household, non-owners of residential property, etc.) to insure that municipalities have some control over this problem. By listing which classes of preferences are appropriate, guidance would be given to communities so that they would not attempt to exclude classes of people protected by State or Federal law. This is especially important since many communities have expressed an interest in using durational residency requirements for land disposal preference purposes without realizing that such preferences are clearly unconstitutional. At the time of this memo, the Zobel case has not been decided by the Alaska Supreme Court. The outcome of that case may have broad implications for all classes of preference rights. Therefore, any proposed system of preference rights should be carefully reviewed in light of the final holding in the Zobel case.

One type of preference right deserves particular attention because of the inequities created by the application of section 14 of ANCSA. Section 14 (c)(1) of the Act requires that village corporations reconvey those lands occupied prior to Dec. 18, 1971 as a primary place of residence, primary place of business, subsistence campsite or headquarters for reindeer husbandry. After these claims are satisfied, section 14(c)(3) requires the village corporation to reconvey 1280 acres of land for future expansion to any municipality located in the village or, if no municipality exists, to the State in trust for a future municipality. Unfortunately conveyance of land to the various village corporations has not proceeded in the expeditious manner envisioned by ANCSA. It has been over eight years since the passage of the Act and the process of conveyance if far from complete. As a result community expansion and new development has continued in the traditional fashion from Dec. 18, 1971 to the present. Most of this expansion has occurred with the tacit or express permission of the community. However, the village corporations will not be able to convey title to land occupied after Dec. 18, 1971.

Much of this occupied land will eventually be conveyed to municipalities under section 14(c)(3) and many of these communities have expressed a desire to convey those lands occupied after Dec. 18, 1971 to present occupants. However, there is no provision in Title 29 allowing them to do so. These occupants, many of whom have made expensive improvements such as houses or businesses on the land, will have to compete for the land under the present land disposal provisions of section 29.48.260.

A new sub-section should be added to section 29.48.260 which would permit a municipality, if it so chooses, to grant these occupiers a preference right to acquire land they have substantially improved. Such a provision would avoid the injustice of denying the legitimacy of traditional land practices in rural Alaska and the hardships of forefiture which will inevitably fall on many families and small businesses.

The following is a tenative draft of a new sub-section designed to implement this policy:

> Section 29.48.260( ). Notwithstanding the provisions of (c) of this section, the assembly or council may by ordinance establish a formal procedure for the disposal of land received pursuant to section 14(c)(3) of the Alaska Native Claims Settlement Act (P.L. 92-203,85 Stat.638) to any person who substantially improves the land prior to the date on which title is conveyed to the municipality. The amount of land disposed to any person shall not exceed an amount necessary for the reasonable use and enjoyment of the improvements. The ordinance shall require notice of intent to dispose of the land in the manner provided in (c)(2) of this section. Upon written request submitted prior to disposal, the assembly or council shall hold a hearing and issue written findings of fact to resolve disputed claims. The ordinance shall provide a right of appeal to the Superior Court if filed within 60 days of a hearing. Disposal may be without or with consideration not to exceed fair market value of the land prior to improvement. Expenses, if any, for notice appraisal and survey shall be paid by the grantee.

Chapter 78 General Provisions

This chapter contains the "definitions" section of Title 29. This section should be expanded to include the terms specifically mentioned in this memo and any other terms which, upon review and reflection, are suspectable to an ambiguous or technical meaning.

Index

The present index is inadequate. Many topics are not adequately cross referenced or are not mentioned at all. A careful revision and update would be extremely useful.

Dear Mr. Earley:

The City of Valdez would like to submit a comment with regard to the current plans to revise Alaska Municipal Code - Title 29 as it pertains to property tax - specifically the Senior Citizen Property Exemption program.

During a recent council meeting it was suggested that the age limit to qualify for the Senior Citizen Property Tax Exemption program be reduced to something less than 65 - perhaps 62. Council felt this would be one means by which people who chose to retire earlier than 65 could be benefitted

Thank you for your consideration.

Sincerely,

CITY OF VALDEZ, ALASKA

TITLE 29 REVISION COMMITTEE
Policy Advisory Group Meeting

Minutes of August 27 & 28 1980

The first meeting of the Policy Advisory Group of the Title 29 Revsion Committee was held August 27, 1980 in the Conference Room of the Legislative Information Office, 1024 6th Avenue, Anchorage, Alaska. The meeting was called to order by Billy G. Berrier, Director of the Division of Legal Services at 9:00 am.

Present were: Ted Berns, Terry Cook, Marilyn Dimmick, James Kohler, Gene Moore, Donna Sherby, Jonathan Solomon, Russell W. Walker, Ronald Larson, Senator Arliss Sturgulewski, Senator Bob Mulcahy, Representative Margaret Branson, Representative Charles H. Parr as members of the Policy Group. Also present were Phil Smith and Mr. Palmer McCarter, Ex Officio Members of the Policy Advisory Group. Allan E. Tesche attended representing the Technical Committee. Ted Berns and Russell Walker are also members of the Technical Committee. Mike Walleri of the Tanana Chiefs Conference, Inc., and Glen Svendsen, Administrative Assistant to the Senate Community and Regional Affairs Committee were present. Billy Berrier and Tamara Cook were present representing the Division of Legal Services, Legislative Affairs. Tam Cook explained that Ginny Chitwood from the Alaska Municipal League could not be present but would attend future meetings as an Ex Officio member.

The first order of business was the selection of a chairman for the committee. Nominations were opened and Senator Sturgulewski was nominated by Representative Parr. The nomination was seconded and Senator Sturgulewski was elected Chairman by acclamation.

Mr. Berrier spoke on the role of the Technical Revision Committee and asked for an appointment of a group. A motion to set up a Technical Revision Group was made by Representative Branson. The motion was seconded and carried. The Technical Revision Committee members will be Ted Berns, Richard Garnett, III; John Messenger, Jim Nordale, JoAnne Shanley, Gerald Lee Sharp, Allan Tesche, and Russell Walker.

The Ex Officio members were introduced and there was discussion as to their role. It was agreed that they should sit at the table and take part in the discussion. Palmer McCarter spoke about the role of Community and Regional Affairs. He said that there would be a representative of C&RA at every meeting, either he or Patrick Poland would attend. Mr. McCarter also presented a letter from the Local Boundary commission requesting the statutes regarding Development cities be left in Title 29 but improved. Phil Smith spoke on the concerns of RuralCAP regarding the impact of government on villages and rural areas.

Representative Parr suggested directions for the Policy Committee: 1). greater self determination and latitude for local governments; and 2.) that elected officials should be able to understand Title 29 without the help of attorneys. Senator Sturgulewski agreed that Title 29 needed clarification.

The members present of the Technical Committee met briefly and Ted Berns, as spokesman, gave a report regarding the ideas they discussed. The group recommended that Title 29 be broken down into three sections.

1. The first section to be general provisions applying to all local government.
2. The second section to be delineation of procedures and additional limits on specific forms of government.
3. The third section to be directory provisions to be used unless the local government adopts ordinances of their own.

It was decided that the Technical Committee should attempt to reorganize Title 29 along these lines and present a draft at the next meeting.

Mike Walleri, Village Government Specialist, Tanana Chiefs Conference, Inc., spoke, saying he would like a simplification of government.

A list of items pertaining to Title 29 included in the preliminary draft of the Alaska Municipal League 1981 policy statement was handed out. .

Future meeting dates and places were discussed. None were decided upon.

The kinds of things applicable to all municipalities were discussed, such as incorporation, dissolution, boundary changes, classification of government, extraterritorial powers, merger/consoldiation, revenue, taxation, bonding, and intergovernmental relations.

Protection of people in service areas who are not represented by local government, such as persons living outside city limits, was discussed.

The meeting recessed at 4:00 pm.

The meeting was called to order the second day at 9:00 am., Chairman Sturgulewski presiding. In addition to the persons present at the first day's meeting, Chris Johnson of House Research and Nels Franklin from near Dillingham were present, and introduced by Chairman Sturgulewski.

Ted Berns gave a recap of the first days meeting.

Terry Cook was appointed repository of ridiculous laws.

Senator Mulcahy spoke on the problem of getting information, drafts, and policy issues to all municipalities within the time constraints. Phil Smith suggested a teleconference and said that he would be presenting material at the Alaska Federation of Natives Convention (23-25 October 1980, in Anchorage). It was decided that the problem of getting materials and information to the public would be an agenda item at the next meeting. Palmer McCarter, Phil Smith, and Ginny Chitwood of the Alaska Municipal League were appointed to a committee to research this problem and make recommendations.

Melissa Fouse was introduced as the new secretary to the Title 29 Revision Committee.

As part of the reorganization of Title 29, there was discussion as to which statutues belonged in which category.

Representative Parr wants a uniform provision on executive session. There was discussion on executive sessions.

The question of retaining present categories of government was raised and discussed. Ted Berns suggested only two classes of boroughs and home rule, pointing out that there are no first class boroughs.

The question of development cities was raised and discussed. Should we retain, restructure, or eliminate development cities?

There was discussion on the third category. If a municipality choses to follow procedures, should they be required to follow all of them?

Senator Mulcahy's legislation regarding the recognition of village governments was discussed. Copies of HB 192 are to be mailed to committee members.

There was discussion of persons representing committee members being allowed to vote. Mr. Berrier had reservations based on the appointment of the members of the commission according to resolution. It was decided that persons filling in for committee members be allowed to take part in the discussion, but would not be allowed to vote.

The meeting was adjourned at 12:00 pm.

Respectfully submitted,

Melissa Aber Fouse

Dear Senator Sturgulewski,

Back at the beginning of the summer, I attended a meeting called by the Division of Community Planning. It was a "loose meeting" in that the agenda was flexible and covered many areas and concerns. Somewhere in the meeting, we touched upon the changes proposed by the Community & Regional Affairs Committees. If I am not mistaken, everyone agreed that the committees were on the right track especially in regards to the establishment of service areas following REAA boundaries.

Well, it seems that those of us living in the "bush" know more about what happens in Juneau than some of the state employees living and working there. For example, the Dept. of Health & Social Services just unveiled a plan whereby the communities of Holy Cross, Anvik, Shageluk and Grayling which are all in the Iditarod Area School District, REAA 11, will now receive there public health nurse services from Bethel. Ms Lois Bergerson decided that those people would be better served from Bethel than McGrath. Was there any local input from those communities? Was any consideration given to the fact that those people are Athabascans and not Yupiks? Did anyone think to explore the logic behind the boundaries of REAA 11? The answer to all three questions is no. However, Ms Bergerson is adamant that the changes will take effect on Sept. 1 irregardless of any protests.

It is my firm hope that when the Legislature convenes in January, that the Community & Regional Affairs Committees will reintroduce the same package of bills.

Dear Sir:

It has come to my attention that the second class cities and unincorporated village governments in the Bristol Bay Region will experience severe problems in meeting the September 20, 1980 deadline for mailing completed State Revenue Sharing applications to qualify for the $25,000 minimum entitlement provided for in the new law revising the State Revenue Sharing Program. It has further come to my attention that applications were only recently mailed to general law municipalities and that applications for traditional governing councils have yet to be mailed.

The September 20th time deadline is further compounded by the problem that many of the villages in our region are currently unaware of the provision in the new law which provides state aid to eligible governments recognized under the Alaska Native Claims Settlement Act. Another very real problem is the frequency of mail delivery service, which is sporatic at best, to many of the villages in the more remote areas.

A lot of work on the part of rural legislators went into FCCHB 192 reforming the State Revenue Sharing Program to include state aid to unincorporated governments and the $25,000 minimum entitlement provision for small rural municipalities with no tax base.

With the September 20th deadline for mailing applications just around the corner, it appears that many local governments that could take advantage of the new State Revenue Sharing program will be unable to do so. I would encourage your department to strongly consider extending the deadline to allow more local governments desperately in need of such monies to have the time to properly complete the application process.

Thank you.

Very sincerely,

SUBJECT: Designation of "Village"

Thank you for your letter of August 13 concerning the use of the term "City" rather than "Village" for small rural incorporated communities. A term I find even more offensive is the word "bush" as a substitute for "rural."

I fear, however, that "village" may be with us a long time. AS 46.07.080(2) reads:

> "'village' means an unincorporated community which has between 25 and 600 people residing within a two-mile radius, or a second class city." (Emphasis added)

We have tried to encourage the Legislature to revise this language; perhaps we can ask them to replace "village" with a term such as "eligible rural community."

RE: A.S. 29.63.090, Service Area

As we discussed, Judi pointed out a problem in the following excerpt from A.S. 29.63.090:

> ...the exercise of the powers must be approved by a majority of the qualified voters residing within the service area...

This doesn't correspond with A.S. 29.63.015, outlining procedures for special assessments, where the borough notifies the legal owner of record of real property of the proposed assessment, and where, if the bearers of 50% of the assessment protest, the process stops. These two sections are too interdependent for such a discrepancy.

The wording under service areas is unclear. Who has the right to vote: the renter residing on the property in the proposed service area or the absent property owner, who will bear the assessment? I'd guess the legislature envisioned the property owner residing on the lot; your point about the absentee land owner living in Florida is well taken. Moving owners onto their property in trailers long enough to hold an election is equally absurd. More research is needed to find clear and equable wording, but as a start I suggest the following for discussion:

> ...the exercise of powers must be approved by a majority of the qualified voters who are legal owners of real property within the service area...

*(Judi: Please note your comments.)

Russ - I feel that making this just real property owners is very limiting - would approach the problem from a petition standpoint if there is a number of residents that has problems also

1. AS 29.40.037 - Extraterritorial Jurisdiction:

Amend to include "harbors" as type of facility municipality may own or operate outside its boundaries.

Comments: The City of Ketchikan currently leases from State and operates several boat harbors outside the boundaries of the City.

2. AS 29.53.135 - Board of Equalization:

Amend to clarify authority of assembly to appoint a board composed of not less than three (3) persons who may be (a) members of the assembly, (b) private individuals with certain experience, or (c) combination of (a) and (b). [See attorney Tesche memorandum, page 3]

3. Interest Rate:

The legal rate of interest now provided for in various tax enforcement provisions is eight (8%) percent.[1] Consideration should be given as to whether this rate should be increased. Also, interest rate on special assessments [AS 29.63.060(a)] is linked to the interest on real property taxes.

4. AS 40.15.030; AS 40.15.050 - Dedication of Streets, Alleys and Thoroughfares:

Add language to specifically provide that although second class borough may, as the platting authority, require, as a condition of approval of a subdivision of property, the dedication of rights-of-way and easements, and the installation of roads, sewers, and other utilities and improvements, and the dedication of such rights-of-way and improvements to the public, that the borough does not by such action become liable or responsible for any maintainance, operation, or inspection thereof, or for injuries to any person using the improvements (i.e., child drowns in drainage culvert not covered, cleaned, inspected, or maintained).

[1] See: AS 29.53.180(a)(1), (a)(2), and (c)
AS 29.53.375
AS 29.53.415(d) (sales tax)

Comments: Since a second class borough does not have road or other maintenance powers, but via the planning commission is the agency that requires and approves, incident to its platting authority, the design, construction and installation of subdivision improvements, which by AS 40.15.030 - AS 40.15.050 are "deemed to have been dedicated to public use," a question regarding ownership and duty to inspect and repair the facilities arises (See 9.65.070 - [immunity applies only "when the municipality is neither the owner nor lessee of the property involved"]). State law has addressed certain aspects of the matter in AS 38.08.090.

7. Implementation of Grants:

Amend AS 37.05.315 [HB 578] to require the State Department of Community and Regional Affairs to receive, administer, and implement any State grants which a municipality does not have the power to administer and implement (such as those appropriated by Ch. 50 SLA 80 as is now the procedure regarding grants to unincorporated communities where there is no incorporated entity qualified to receive the grant (AS 37.05.315(h)(3)). Also amend AS 37.05.315(c) to not impose covenant requirements on municipality with no power to operate and maintain the facility.

6. AS 29.33 - Planning, Platting and Zoning:

(a) AS 29.33.085 - Comprehensive Plan: Amend section to require comprehensive plan review every five (5) years rather than every two (2) years.

Comments: See paragraph (1) of Planning Director's memorandum dated July 22, 1980.

(b) AS 29.33.090 - Zoning: Expand on enabling language to assure borough is not restricted in forms of zoning permitted.

Comments: See paragraph (2) of Planning Director's memorandum dated July 22, 1980.

(c) AS 29.33.150 - Platting Jurisdiction and Power: Amend subsection (b) to delete the following language in brackets and adds the underlined language to clarify the responsibility of State to comply with design and other requirements and only exempts State from actual construction requirements:

"(b) The regulations adopted under (a) of this section apply to subdivision plat of undeveloped state land for disposal under AS 38.05 or AS 38.08 filed with the platting board, except that the platting board [may not disapprove the subdivision plat or adopt regulations which require the state to construct access roads or capital improvements on state land included in the subdivision plat] must approve the subdivision plat if the plat meets all local platting regulations other than those requiring the construction of roads or capital improvements on state land included in the subdivision plat. Subdivision plats of undeveloped state land for disposal shall be accompanied by engineering plans for all improvements required by local regulations applicable to the subdivision of private land."

Comments: See paragraph (3) of Planning Director's memorandum dated July 22, 1980.

(d) AS 29.33.200 - Alteration of Replat: Amend or add a new section to allow for approval and recording of plats for minor boundary adjustments without going through formal planning commission hearings where no new lots are created, and no new dedications of roads or other rights-of-way are involved.

Comments: See paragraph (4) of Planning Director's memorandum dated July 22, 1980.

(e) AS 9.55.275: Add language to recognize that a change in boundary pursuant to AS 09.55.275 may result in a substandard size lot, and that compliance with normal subdivision requirements is not required with waiver by assembly permitted.

Comments: Cities or other public agencies frequently acquire in fee narrow strips or areas for road widening, sewer, park or other facilities which are very small in size (i.e., pump station for sewer system 25 x 25 etc.) and the public agency may in fact be prohibited from acquiring excess area not actually required for the public improvement. Such acquisitions frequently result in a change of boundary within the provisions of AS 09.55.275 and planning commission approval of a preliminary plat and also a final plat, is required.

(f) State Filing of Acquisitions. Filing of a plat with the local planning authority should be required if State acquires easements or rights-of-way across platted parcels.

Comments: See paragraph (4) of Planning Director's memorandum dated July 22, 1980, addressing need for filing with the local planning authority.

(g) AS 29.33.170 - Waiver of Subdivision Requirements: Amend section to make waiver permissive and clarify access which must be found to exist before platting authority may waive plat approval and recording requirements.

Comments: See paragraph (5) of Planning Director's memorandum dated July 22, 1980.

7. AS 29.53 - Corrections, Cancellations, Refunds and Transfers of Taxes. Add sections to provide procedures for correction of tax roll, refund or cancellation of taxes after confirmation and certification of final tax roll when required to correct clerical or mathematical errors, assessment of non-existent property, errors in legal description, or other administrative problems. AS 29.53.-390 does not accommodate the foregoing.

Comments: The Borough assessor advises the State assessor, with assistance and input from local assessors, will be making suggestions and proposals regarding the above.

RE: Title 29 Revisions

Last week, Bill, Jim, and I met to discuss improvements to Title 29; following are our recommendations --- add, (delete):

1. Section 29.33.085. Comprehensive plan. (b)...The planning commission shall undertake an overall review of the plan at least once every (two) five years.

   To do justice to the time and money invested to develop the original policies, an overall review of the comprehensive plan every two years is impossible for a small department like ours with other major projects. We prefer revision every five years to allow us time to detect and incorporate changes in economic, population, and land use trends and to undertake other major planning efforts without increasing our existing staff.

2. Section 29.33.090. Zoning. We intend to do additional research on this section. Our concern is that performance zoning may not be allowed under this section.
   AS 29.33.090 states in part "The assembly shall regulate... use of land...by districts or contract zoning." Contract zoning being a hybrid of a district (Euclidean) type zoning. Many performance systems do not employ districting as a control element. Therefore present state law may not include enabling language for other than land use controls based on traditional Euclidean zoning.

3. Section 29.33.150. Platting jurisdiction and power. (b)...the platting board (may not disapprove the subdivision plat or adopt regulations which require the state to construct access roads or capital improvements on state land included in the subdivision plat) must approve the subdivision plat if the plat meets all local platting regulations other than those requiring the construction of roads or capital improvements on state land included in the subdivision plat. Subdivision plats of undeveloped state land for disposal shall be accompanied by engineering plans for all improvements required by local regulations applicable to the subdivision of private land.

Of course we prefer to see this section deleted altogether, but clarification along these lines will be an improvement.

4. Section 29.33.200. Alteration of replat petition. See attached memo from Jim re: feasibility of shortened plat procedure.

   This section needs language to distinguish plat alterations from subdivisions.

   Also, AS 09.55.275 requires plat approval for parcels condemned for public purposes - e.g. city condemnation of the Wingren property for the sewer pump station - but AS 29.33 does not have corresponding language speaking to approval of substandard parcels for public purposes. See Attachment 2.

   See Attachment 3 for Bill's explanation of problems resulting from condemnations for state right-of-ways.

5. Section 29.33.170. Waiver in certain cases. (a) The platting authority (shall) may...

   (1) each tract or parcel of land will be located on or have (adequate access to a) developed road access to a public highway or street;...

   (3) the conveyance is not made for the purpose of, or in connection with, a present (or projected) subdivision development;

   For purposes of maintaining accurate platting records Section 29.33.170 should be deleted entirely; as a minimum, we recommend the above clarifications. The first is intended to define "adequate access." The second deletes the reference to projected development; for all practical purposes it's a meaningless criteria.

RE: Feasibility of Shortened Plat Procedure

At the January 14, 1980 workshop on the proposed new subdivision ordinance considerable discussion centered on the possibility of shortened plat procedures for "minor" subdivisions. A minor subdivision is basically one that does not involve the creation of additional lots or new streets. An example would be, two neighbors wishing to swap a 10' wide strip of land along their common side lot line in order to correct a house siting error. Proposed Section 55.10.045 (attached) provides a mechanism for such a shortened procedure.

This proposed section, as presented to the Borough Assembly, calls for a one step approval by the Platting Board, as opposed to the usual two step approval. As originally recommended by the Planning Commission in their review of the new ordinance, this provision was made an entirely administrative responsibility. Provided the limitations of Section 55.10.045 were honored, the designated planning official would approve the plat, obtain necessary signatures (Borough Manager, Planning Commission Chairperson, etc.) and see to its recording. However, the Municipal Attorney, in reviewing the Planning Commission's recommendations, found that Alaska Statutes Title 29 and Title 40 mandated approval by the full Platting Board in all cases.

Alaska Statute 29.33.200 sets out a replat alteration procedure that states that the petition shall be filed for approval by the Platting Board. This is reinforced by Alaska Statute 40.15, Dedications and Subdivisions, which calls for platting authority action in several instances. Alaska Statute 29.33.200 is the only vehicle suggesting the application of a minor subdivision procedure and unfortunately perhaps does not accomodate the greatest possible shortening of the process.

Administrative approval of short plats is a practice widely used in other areas and has several advantages, such as reduced processing times and costs. In order to protect neighboring properties, I would suggest that public notices be sent out for short plats with a five day response limitation. If any significant problems come to light as a result, an administrative decision would be made to present the plat to the full Board. Amendments to Alaska Statute 29 would be necessary for Ketchikan to adopt such a policy. Section 55.10.045 of the revised subdivision ordinance is the most expeditious route available at present. If a change in state law is desired, I suggest the Assembly refer the matter to legal and planning staff for preparation of language addressing the necessary changes and subsequent discussion of this issue with our state legislators.

City is submitting this plan as a matter of form. The statute requiring the plat is AS 09.55.275, quoted here in full:

> "Replat approval. No agency of the state or municipality may acquire property located within a municipality exercising the powers conferred by AS 29.33.150 - 29.33.245 which results in a boundary change unless the agency or municipality first obtains from the municipal platting authority preliminary approval of a replat showing clearly the location of the proposed public streets, easements, rights-of-way, and other taking of private property. Final approval of replat shall be similarly obtained. However, if a state agency clearly demonstrates an overriding state interest, a waiver to the approval requirements of this section may be granted by the governor. The platting authority shall treat applications for replat made by state or local governmental agencies in the same manner as replat petitions originated by private landowners."

RE: Title 29

In reviewing Title 29 I was not able to identify any specific section which would apply to the State of Alaska "taking" land for rights-of-way without the benefit of a replat. My concern is that these defacto subdivisions often become obstacles to proper land development.

The following sketch illustrates the problem and I have included questions that "local planners" are often asked about results they were powerless to affect.

Can I use the square footage to subdivide or increase density ?

Can I put a culvert under the road and use it for a drainfield ?

Can I sell it to someone else ?

Just what can I do with it ?

RE: FCCSHB947

Being aware that you will be involved in the revision of Title 29, as per the requirements of CSSCR66 which directs the Alaska Legislative Council to review the Municipal Government statutes, I want to call your attention to an area of law, enacted by the Eleventh Legislature as FCCSHB947, which you will want to address during the course of your revision. In the haste of the last days of legislative activity, the following omissions went unnoticed when the Free Conference version of the bill was adopted.

Section 9 AS 29.23.025 (e) outlines the procedures to be followed if a reapportionment ordinance has not been approved by the voters after the assembly has determined that reapportionment is necessary. The law does not address what happens to the order--is it voted on by the people? Can the order be appealed? Is administrative or judicial review provided for?

In Section 29.23.029 and Section 29.23.031 there should be additional statutory references providing for judicial review and relief in all applicable instances and referencing all applicable voter approved ordinances and reapportionment orders under Sec. 031.

Both the draftsman, Jack Chenoweth, and Ginny Chitwood of the Municipal League which will be involved in the revision of Title 29 are familiar with the problems in the Free Conference law and would be able to answer any questions.

More grist for the Title 29 mill:

Elsie O'Brien (Houston city clerk) to Arliss Sturgulewski

(1) AS 29.28.190, recall provisions --

Should consider adding a requirement that the city council and city officials perform, with reference to recall petitions, within a time certain

(2) AS 29.63.090 -- service areas within boroughs

The Mat-Su borough loaned money to a road service area, apparently on promise of repayment within fiscal year, but without approval of the apparent indebtedness by voters of the affected service area. Should consider legislation to require that such debts are subject to prior approval by voters within service area.

General observation with respect to Title 29 -- would like greater information within the text of the ~~statute~~ volume. (This is probably not possible because of the strict format relating to what may be annotated. However, perhaps CRA Department should receive an amount so that each year, for small cities, a loose-leaf form of Title 29 may be prepared or updated which carries changes in law, applicable commentary, case decisions, AG opinion texts, etc. supplied by the Dept on a quarterly basis. -- The cities could reimburse for the service, or for a portion of it.)

Dear Commissioner McAnerney:

This letter is in response to your June letter requesting comments on the Title 29 Municipal Government Code Revision authorized under Senate Concurrent Resolution No. 66. As indicated by our prior correspondence, we are greatly interested in this area and wish to submit the following comments to be used in the Title 29 revision project.

RECOGNITION OF TRADITIONAL GOVERNMENTS

Local government in rural Alaska is extremely complex. This complexity is primarily due to the vast number of board, commissions, municipal corporations, ANCSA Native Village corporations, town site trusts, recognized entities for municipal trust lands, IRA councils, traditional councils, etc. For sometime TCC has been in favor of local government simplification. The problems of local government should not be addressed through the creation of new boards, commissions, corporate bodies, or new forms of municipal government. Rather, rural local government should be reorganized to utilize existing bodies and enhance those bodies. The introduction of new and novel forms of government may only lead to confusion as rural residents attempt to deal with their local governmental matters.

In connection with this policy of local government simplification, we believe it is important to fulfill the constitutional guarantee that the legislature shall provide for performance of services that it deems necessary or advisible in the unorganized borough and allow for maximum local participation and responsibility. This policy is substantially analogous to the federal policy of self-determination.

To meet these two basic policies, we feel it is necessary that the state of Alaska recognize the traditional governments which currently operate in Alaska. Such recognition will do several things. First, it will allow for the coordination of the funds currently available to local communities from sources other than the state, i.e., BIA, HUD, various CETA programs, etc.

To some degree this issue has already been addressed in the recognition of traditional governments for revenue sharing purposes. We feel, however, that more cooperation is needed between the state and these traditional governmental forms to fully realize maximum local participation and responsibility. To implement this, we favor such legislation as S.B. 565 introduced last session.

By extending such recognition to existing village and community organizations, we believe that rural government will be substantially enhanced. The recognition of such existing bodies will obviate the necessity for the specialized advisory committees, specialized service areas and boards and substantially contribute to local government simplification in the currently unorganized areas of rural Alaska. In addition, such recognition will fulfill the constitutional guarantee of maximum local participation and responsibility.

DECENTRALIZATION OF STATE SERVICES

It is sometimes difficult even for Alaskans to fully comprehend the geographical immenseness of Alaska. An appreciation of the sheer size of Alaska cannot be achieved through casual reference to a map. A full appreciation of Alaska's geographical size can only be appreciated by traversing this great land through conventional transportation systems. To the rural resident, this means being dependent on urban based state service personnel located at various sites throughout the state. Seldom is it possible for the rural resident to contact a state agency locally or even make a single phone call to a single urban government office to solve any problem. The urban Alaskan faces a similar problem in having to rely on state personnel based in other urban centers.

In both the rural and urban contexts, the root problem is the economy of scale. It is simply not economically feasible to establish free standing state agencies at the local level. The administrative cost to establish such programs would be enormous, but the need for decentralized state services is evident. State services should be available in the areas of need. State services should be available at a local level in all localities of the state to the extent that this is feasible. This problem can only be solved through the cooperation of local and state governments to provide maximum local services. This cooperation can be achieved by allowing the local governments to contract for the providing of state services. Basically, this will allow the merger of local and state program administration and allow a maximum amount of direct state financing directed toward program operations. Additionally, it is perceived that such cooperation would make the operation of state programs more responsive to local needs and desires.

It should be remembered, however, that the legislature under this theory will retain ultimate policy decision-making authority. It is only the administration of state and local programs which will be affected. Additionally, it should be recognized that not all state programs can be effectively decentralized, nor is it desirable that all state programs be decentralized. Rather, it is important that those state programs which are technically capable of being decentralized and for which there is a stated need and desire for local program operation should be decentralized through contracting.

LOCAL GOVERNMENT CONSORTIUMS

During the last legislature, several bills were produced out of the interim work of the Senate and House Community and Regional Affairs Joint Local Government Study of 1979. These bills recognized the need for coordinated regional planning.

Last February, TCC submitted comments on this legislation. At that time, we stated that existing local governments should be used as much as possible and that regional concerns can best be addressed through consortiums of existing governments.

Consortiums are advisable for a number of reasons. First, they would be entirely voluntary. The committee hearings fairly indicated strong opposition to "mandatory" regional organization. Second, consortiums could easily coordinate existing programs allowing for current program and plan continuity. Third, a consortium would not create a new independent regional entity and, thus, it would be possible to avoid the type of intergovernmental conflicts which characteristically exist between boroughs and included cities. Finally, the consortium would be governed by a flexible agreement between communities. Such agreements could be flexible enough to address unique regional variations found within each area. In addition, a community's participation would be voluntary, and, therefore, presumably supported by the local community.

The arrangements which we propose are currently authorized under Article X, §13 of the Alaska Constitution which allows local governments to enter into compacts for the joint administration of functions and powers. What is needed is clarification of the permissible scope and impact of these agreements, and new legislation which would allow such consortiums to jointly exercise authority outside of their existing local boundaries.

Conceivably, these consortiums would do three things. First, they would provide for coordinated administration of local governments. By splitting costs and sharing staff, the consortiums could provide a higher quality of service at a reduced cost, where the fragmented governments that now exist cannot operate. Second, the consortiums could address regional concerns, provide a forum for expressing those concerns, and advise state agencies on regional needs and desires.

Third, they would jointly exercise those powers which they agree to jointly exercise outside their current respective boundaries, or within existing boundaries, upon consent of the respective municipal governments.

STATE SUPPORT OF LOCAL AUTHORITY

There are a number of disincentives to a rural municipal government which wishes to exercise its municipal authority. For example, a rural community which passes an ordinance, may not be able to enforce it. If a city attempts to enforce its ordinances, it is subject to substantial liability under current tort law. Where a civil plaintiff or criminal defendant often have free legal assistance available, a city has severely limited funding available to enforce its ordinances or defend against civil complaints. If a city looses a civil suit, the resulting judgment could bankrupt the city or substantially incumber future revenues. In this atmosphere, it is impossible to expect a responsible city official to fully exercise the local government functions.

It is important that the state assist rural municipal government if it is to succeed. Many of the problems can be addressed in Title 29 itself. For example, municipal liability can be reduced to acceptable levels by enactment of a rule raising the standard of municipal tort liability for only those official acts involving "wanton and willful" conduct rather than mere negligence alone. Municipal ordinances and regulations can be assimilated into state law to allow state prosecution of local violations. Such assimilation could be dependent upon compliance with a model municipal code enacted by regulation or dependent on approval of the attorney general's office or Department of Community and Regional Affairs. Communities enacting nonapproved regulations and ordinances, however, should still be able to enforce them in the conventional manner.

Initially, such a system seems expensive to implement. It should be noted, however, that the state is expanding its criminal justice presence in rural Alaska. The proposed Bush Justice Corrections Plan would provide the basic infrastructure required by the above model. In light of these developments, the above model is a minor addition to the planned infrastructure.

IMPLEMENTATION OF LOCAL INPUT

Often local governments and state agencies are not coordinated. Most notably, state land disposals have often conflicted with local land use/development plans. State law generally favors local control or at least local input in the organized areas of the state. In the unorganized areas of the state, however, the state agencies seem to dominate. This exists in spite of the constitutional promise of maximized local participation. We, therefore, propose that some mechanism be inserted into law to provide for fuller local participation.

Three alternatives exist. First, an administrative restraint may be placed on agencies' actions. Specifically, a community or consortium must agree to agency actions/plans affecting the community or consortium. In the absence of such consent, the agency would have to show, in a locally neutral administrative hearing, that the best interest of the state requires such agency action/plan.

A second alternative would be a planning restraint on the agencies. The communities or consortiums would produce regional plans with which the agencies must comply. Without compliance, the agencies would have to get a waiver from the community or consortium or proceed through a local neutral hearing.

Third, a political mechanism could be established. State law could require agencies to have local plans/actions approved by a local hearing officer at a local hearing. This would allow affected communities and consortiums an opportunity to provide input and hopefully influence agency actions in their areas.

We hope that you find the above comments useful, and that these concerns find their way into the planned Title 29 revisions. We will be glad to respond to any questions regarding the above proposals and plan to augment these comments as needed.

Sincerely,

AREAS OF AS 29 (MUNICIPAL CODE) REQUIRING ATTENTION

DICTATED 7/29/80 BUT NOT READ

BY GERALD L. SHARP

The use of the word election throughout the code should be examined with the eye to eliminating all those references to "general" election where it was meant to refer to a municipal election. Where a state general election was meant, the word "state" should be added.

AS 29.08.010, 29.13.010 and 100, and 29.78.010(1)(2)(8)

A careful reading of the code indicates that a unified unit of home rule local government is not a municipality. Under these sections, it is not a home rule municipality. If this was the intent, it should be clarified in the definitions. Along this same line, all sections which apply to home rule boroughs and home rule cities should be reviewed to determine whether they should also apply to unified units.

AS 29.08.020

An interpretive guide should be provided for the court so that it does not seize upon this section to revive Dillon's Rule.

AS 29.13.100

The effect of the phrase "acting otherwise than as provided" should be examined to determine whether this phrase means that a home rule municipality may do neither more nor less than is prescribed for home rule municipalities. See the Whitson case.

AS 29.18.130

We should probably address REAA's under this section.

AS 29.18.140(a)(b)

This section implies that a newly incorporated city or borough may succeed a home rule or previously incorporated general law city or borough. Was this meant?

AS 29.18.180

Organizational grants under this section appear to be inadequate.

AS 29.18.330

The resident training and hire preference should be examined for constitutionality.

AS 29.23.060(a)

This section implies that there may be no special meetings if any member is not notified.

AS 29.23.060(d)

Some consideration should be given to reducing the quorum voting requirement by one vote for every two members of the body who are present who do not vote because they either have a conflict of interest or have been excused by the legislative body.

AS 29.23.070

This section seems to provide an unnecessary infringement of the chief administrator's prerogatives in appointing department heads.

AS 29.23.080

This section should be checked to determine whether it tracts with the new procedures on reapportionment as it relates to council appointments and dual seats.

AS 29.23.040 et. seq.

The residency requirements, terms of officers, powers, duties, and the procedures for the changing of terms and qualifications of officers as these relate to the mayor, council, and assembly memebers should be uniform as between a city and a borough.

AS 29.23.210

Does this require four votes on a procedural motion? This language should parallel the similar provisions for boroughs and both should be clarified as to whether there is a distinction between procedural and substantive motions.

AS 29.23.310

Reference within this section to repeal Section 100 should be corrected.

AS 29.23.340(d)

Perhaps this section should be clarified to permit the board to set rates.

AS 29.23.360

My question why there appears to be authority for the assembly or council to appoint administrative officers such as the treasurer and chief of police who do not serve the council or the assembly but must respond to the chief administrative officer.

AS 29.23.370

I question whether there may not be a conflict of interest for an attorney to provide legal advice to both the legislative and administrative branches. Perhaps, there should be a specific extension of the authority of the legislative body to retain its own legal counsel. Next, I question whether there isn't a conflict of interest for the clerk to serve two different masters, the legislative body, and the chief administrator.

AS 29.23.395 through .401

This sort of specific legislation ought to be deleted. If some sort of authority of this sort is required, it should be addressed in the general grant of powers.

AS 29.23.470

I question why the manager has no authority to appoint a temporary or interim manager during his own temporary absence.

AS 29.23.480

I suggest that the adoption of an ordinance at the very next meeting after the repeal of a manager plan is expecting too much of any council or assembly considering the careful deliberation which should be given to the reorganization.

AS 29.23.540

The seriousness of the conflict of interest which exists when an employee of the school board serves on the body which determines the school boards budget but is not lessened in any way by the existence of subsection (c) of this section. This section should be repealed. (Sour grapes on my part, perhaps.) Also, it appears that this section would permit a person working in the grants section of the Department of Community and Regional Affairs to serve on an assembly or a council.

AS 29.28.015

I question why the mayor in a manager type municipality should not be permitted to be a member of the legislative body so long as he does not have the veto power. This seems to be something that should be left to local option.

AS 29.28.030

It is not clear, under this section, how one deals with a person who has been present within the municipality for more than 30 days but who does not register with the state of Alaska until four days before the election. It appears they might be qualified to vote in the municipal election as they will certainly be qualified to vote in the next state election.

AS 29.28.080(a)

This section implies that the initiative ordinance or resolution must be something within the power of the assembly or council and must not fall within the restrictions of Section 60; however, it appears that the assembly or council may reject the initiative only if it is within the restrictions of Section 60. I also believe that this section should be tightened up to make it clear that the initiative process may not be used to take what are essentially administrative actions even though the assembly or council itself may take such actions by ordinance or resolution.

AS 29.28.110

This section establishes an observed public policy and should be modified to parallel the more liberal provisions which we find in our state constitution.

AS 29.28.130

This section should be clarified to indicate whether a re-elected official may be recalled within six months within of his second election.

AS 29.28.140

This section should be changed to make it clear that elected officials may not be recalled for the manner in which they exercised a duty, e.g., the way they vote on a particular issue, but that they can be recalled for having voted on an issue on which they are prohibited from voting. They could be recalled for refusing to vote when they had neither a conflict nor been excused from voting. They could be recalled for failing to file a report required of individual public officials. They could not be recalled for having voted in favor of doing something prescribed by law nor could they be recalled for voting against doing something which is required by law.

AS 29.28.150

Some thought should be given to clarifying this section to require that the name of each elected official appear on a separate petition and not be on the same petition with any other elected official. The statement of the grounds should also be limited to 200 words.

AS 29.28.160

Either the clerk or the assembly or council should be given specific authority to review the petition for more than merely the superficial contents requirements. This determination should also go to whether or not the ground stated, if true, constitute grounds for repeal.

AS 29.28.170

I question why petitioners should have an additional ten days to gather signatures. Why not give them 70 days to begin with or just cut them off at 60. If the petitioners cannot do some of the leg work themselves of determining how many valid signatures they have collected, there seems to be little in public policy to require they be given an additional ten days for their sloppiness or inadequate performance.

AS 29.28.200(c)

If a public official who is the subject of a sufficient recall petition resigns prior to the election, and his name is removed from the recall ballot, may he then be reappointed to his position by the remaining members prior to the recall election? May he be reappointed after the recall election?

AS 29.28.210

If we permit one petition to contain more than one name, how should the names appear on the ballot, separately so that the voters may express their desires as to each public official individually or should there be a single ballot giving the voters the same choice which the petitioners gave the petition signers, i.e., all or none?

AS 29.28.250

What happens when an entire assembly, city council, or school board are recalled? There should be some mechanism for providing for an interim legislative body.

AS 29.33.010

Some place here, and perhaps other sections, we should deal with the almost impossible antitrust situation which the United States Supreme Court cast upon us in its Lafayette decision.

AS 29.33.050

While the section is drafted so that it uses parallel verbs, I believe the "establishes, maintains, and operates" phrase should be changed to read "and shall establish, maintain, and operate."

AS 29.33.080(e)

Consideration should also be given here to reducing the majority vote requirement where there are two or more members of the commission who are present but do not vote because of a conflict of interest or because they have been excused by the remaining members.

AS 29.33.085(b)

The requirement that the commission present new recommendations on a comprehensive plan every two years should be redrafted so that it does not appear that the continued validity of the zoning ordinance is dependent upon such a review and so that it does not appear that there is any question as to the validity of an ordinance which is adopted pursuant to a comprehensive plan which has not been reviewed for more than two years. Also, it may not hurt to throw in some sort of language within the planning and zoning article to make it clear that the adoption of any zoning map change is a legislative and discretionary act and is not administrative as some state supreme courts seem to believe.

AS 29.33.110(b)(1)

I strongly suggest that we not make the Board of Adjustment the board which hears appeals from building code enforcement actions. Some municipalities may prefer to place building code enforcement under some other department such as public works. The authority of the Board of Adjustment to hear building code appeals should be optional with the municipality. Also, whether the assembly or council sits as the Board of Adjustment should also be optional with the municipality.

AS 29.33.110(b)(3)

It is not clear what the phrase "which are not contrary to the public interest" modifies, "the zoning ordinance," or "variances from the terms of the zoning ordinance," or "requests....".

AS 29.33.120

It appears that a person may file for a variance or conditional use, be denied that application, and yet proceed with the denied use if they appeal to the Board of Adjustment because the appeal, under the terms of this section, stays any enforcement where imminent peril is not involved.

AS 29.33.130(b)

I question whether the legislature, and more particularly an assembly, has any authority to establish what the court may well consider as a procedural rule relating to establishing the time within which one may file an appeal to the superior court.

AS 29.33.150

It might be wise to indicate in this section that the platting board has authority to require subdivision exactions.

AS 29.33.170(a)(1)

I suggest it be made clear in here that adequate access does not include access over other privately owned land by way of an easement in favor of the applicant. Adequate access consists solely of access by dedicated or publicly owned ways.

AS 29.33.150(b) and AS 29.33.160(c)

These sections need to be revised out of the code.

AS 29.33.190

This section needs to be beefed up by incorporating administrative procedures to prevent the recording of instruments which create unlawful subdivisions.

AS 29.33.200

This section needs to be coordinated with the procedures under the condemnation sections of Title 9 which require the state to submit its property acquisitions in condemnation proceedings to the platting board.

AS 29.33.240

I question why a second class city located outside an organized borough may obtain title to vacated ways if they intend to use the way for some other public purpose, while within an organized borough the property goes to the abutting owner. I also wonder why parks, greenbelts, and other areas which are vacated are split between abutting property owners while the title to a public square vest in a municipality upon vacation.

AS 29.41.010

Perhaps the idea of third class boroughs should be re-examined.

AS 29.48.010

I question the need for such subsections as (1)(2)(3) and (5) as these all seem to relate to internal administrative matters which are clearly within the authority of the municipality. Some of these sound more like delegations of authority to a specific branch within the municipality. Also, I believe some consideration should be given to whether or not there should be a catch-all grant clause. Also, something should or could be added to this section to clarify the authority of the municipality to establish and enforce liens for the collection of sales taxes. There might also be a section clearly authorizing the municipality to establish both minimum and non-suspendible penalties for violation of municipal ordinances.

AS 29.48.030

This may be the appropriate section to deal with the Lafayette antitrust problems. Under subsection (b), someone to check to determine whether the reference to the Alaska Transportation Commission makes sense in the light of SB 577 (sorry, I do not have the bill with me as I dictate this).

AS 29.48.033

Again, I do not have the 1980 legislation which effected state regulatory authority over cable television, transportation services, and garbage disposal but I believe what the legislature (industry) did should be carefully reviewed.

AS 29.48.050

I question whether there is any justified public policy behind requiring franchises to be granted by ordinance ratified by the voters. This has serious Lafayette antitrust implications. It seems that a public utility ought to be granted a permit so long as they can show public convenience and necessity.

AS 29.48.070, .080, and .090

The idea of a council or assembly sitting through a protracted rate setting hearing is preposterous. Any hearing which the ordinary council or assembly would sit still through could not possibly be adequate to justify a rate. Also, it is beyond me why the rates should be established by ordinance.

AS 29.48.100(b)

Not only are the preceeding utility regulations outmoded, it seems ludicrous to have them apply to home rule municipalities.

AS 29.48.110

AS 29.48.110 should be changed to make it clear that a municipality may establish more than a single historic district.

AS 29.48.160(b)

If the procedure for regulating utilities and granting franchises has changed, this section should probably also be changed to correspond.

AS 29.48.190(b)

This section seems to imply that a municipality may enter into an obligation to make payments in a future year if it does so by ordinance. If this happens, I think you have a debt which must have first been approved by the voters and be for a capital improvement.

AS 29.48.200

The fine limitation and the imprisonment limitation both need to be raised. In addition, this may be the appropriate place to specifically authorize municipalities to establish both minimum fines and imprisonments and to provide clear authority for municipalities to make certain penalties non-suspendible.

AS 29.48.210

This section is a good example of the need to carefully distinguish between boroughs and cities on the one hand and unified units on the other. In any event, I believe this section should be changed to permit the expenditure of areawide revenues on a non-areawide basis.

AS 29.48.250

Since our supreme court seems to believe that a borough may not require central purchasing to include a school district, this section does not appear to have much, if any need. It should be deleted, as I believe this power is already possessed by a municipality.

AS 29.48.260

I believe the exemption which is set forth in (d) should be expanded to incompass any land which the municipality disposes of.

AS 29.48.270(b)(c)

These two sections do not seem to have anything to do with the catch line nor with the two remaining subsections. I am not sure why (b) is required in the first place unless it is to make the transfer of this one power optional rather than mandatory as required under AS 29.33.260. These two sections should be moved to a section dealing with a general grant of powers or with the transfer of powers.

AS 29.48.310, 320, and 330

Although these three sections seem to be very comprehensive, it appears that our courts prefer a contrary rule. Either we need to strengthen the language in these sections or we need to print up a Miranda Rights Card which we can read to the judge every time we go into court over a municipal powers question.

AS 29.53.010

Again the problem of how this is to apply to unified units of government; also, this section should be changed to permit the use of areawide revenues on a non-areawide basis.

AS 29.53.020(a)(1)

Some place in the code we need to deal with the method of valuing privately held interests in tax exempt property.

AS 29.53.020(a)(3)

A number of problems arise from the lack of definitions of terms such as religious, charitable, educational, and perhaps, hospital, which are used in this section. Also, there is a question which arises relating to when a property which is owned by, for example, a religious organization, becomes exempt; for example, does vacant land become exempt when it is first purchased by an exempt organization, when the organization has an intent to devote it to a particular exempt use, when the organization commences construction of a facility which will be used for the exempt purpose even though during construction it is not being used for the exempt purpose? (b)(2)(B)

AS 29.53.030

This section should be revised to reflect a realistic value for mining claims, particularly in light of the recent rise in the price of gold.

AS 29.53.060

Perhaps this is a section in which the valuation of leasehold and other possessory interest in tax exempt property should be exempt.

AS 29.53.135

This section should be clarified to indicate whether a majority of the number of members of the assembly. Also, either here or someplace else in the code, we should specifically address whether or not the Board of Equalization has the authority to determine whether property is exempt, and, if exempt, how much of the property is exempt if it is not totally devoted to the exempt use.

AS 29.53.150

A question arises as to whether property which goes from exempt property on January 1 of the tax year to non-exempt because of a change of use during the tax year can be put on a supplemental roll and taxed. Also, if it can be, should the taxes be a portion? In addition, something should be placed in the code to provide guidance for dealing with personal property which is in the municipality for only a part of the year.

AS 29.53.180

This section should be changed to reflect a reasonable interest rate and a penalty which is substantially above the interest.

AS 29.53.415 and .440

Something needs to be added to these sections to take care of the problem created by the Alaska Supreme Court when it ruled that there was no statutory authority for a general law municipality to establish a lead for sales taxes.

AS 29.73.020

This section needs to be divided into two subsections to separate the procedures for home rule and general law municipalities from those for second class municipalities. Presently, there is some question as to whether the last two sentences of the section apply only to second class cities or whether it applies to all municipalities.

BOROUGH ATTORNEY'S OFFICE

Lee McAnerney, Commissioner
Department of Community & Regional Affairs
State of Alaska
Pouch B
Juneau, Alaska 99811

Dear Commissioner McAnerney:

As you, Phil Smith of Rural CAP and Ginny Chitwood of the Alaska Municipal League recently requested, I am happy to enclose a list of revisions the Legislature and its Policy Committee may wish to consider in connection with revision of AS 29. Let me emphasize this is only a partial list of areas where AS 29 may be improved.

Cordially,

Allan E. Tesche
Borough Attorney

er

Enclosure

RECEIVED
AUG - 1 1980
DEPT. OF COMMUNITY AND REGIONAL AFFAIRS

29.08

Although an attempt has been made in this Chapter to classify the various kinds of Alaskan municipalities, more recent amendments to Title 29 and unification of several cities and boroughs have resulted in confusion over definitions of "cities", "boroughs", and "municipalities". It is not clear, for instance, whether the unified Municipality of Anchorage is a city, a borough, or unified municipality or all three forms of government within existing provisions of AS 29.

29.13.100

The Code should contain a uniform system for designating statutes that expressly apply to home rule municipalities and all such statutes should be consistently cross referenced.

29.23.050

The statutory residence requirement prescribed in this section is probably invalid. It is suggested that such residence requirements throughout AS 29 be reduced to a maximum of one year.

29.23.060(d)

Circumstances, other than financial interests, which allow a member to abstain should be better defined.

29.23.080

The procedure for determining vacancies under this section conflicts with the procedure established under AS 29.23.570.

29.23.130(B)

Once again, the three residency requirement in this section should probably be reduced to one year to assure its constitutional validity.

29.23.150 and AS 29.23.470

Both require assembly appointment of an acting borough manager in the absence of or disability of the manager. If these sections address different policy questions, they are unclear; if they do not, one should be eliminated as redundant.

29.23.170

This provision does not specify when a veto becomes effective or specify any time limit for the overriding of the veto. Moreover, it does not indicate what is the status of an ordinance between the time its veto is announced and the time the Assembly first has an opportunity to override the veto. For instance, if the mayor vetos a line item in the budget, may expenditures be made under that item until the mayor announces the veto at the next regular assembly meeting, or does the veto immediately strike the item until the veto is overridden?

29.23.200

The three year residency requirement here is also probably invalid.

29.23.210

As with the provisions for boroughs, this section should provide more definite standards for abstention on other than conflict of interest grounds.

29.23.250

Another probably invalid three year residency requirement.

29.23.270

This provision has the same ambiguities with regard to the effectiveness of a veto and a veto override as the provision applying to boroughs.

29.23.555

This section has been superceded by AS 39.50.

29.28.070(b)

Reference to "last general election" in this subsection is unclear; considerable confusion has existed in the past over whether the term refers to the last state or municipal election.

29.28.130 et seq

Statutory provisions governing recall contents do not clearly define signature requirements by distinguishing between at large and district forms of representation. AS 29.28070(b) should be redrafted to state required percentages of votes cast for Assemblymen who are elected in districts and who are elected at large.

29.33.070--245

Serious thought should be given to the purpose of the planning, platting and zoning provisions in this code. Should they only prescribe minimum due process standards for rezonings and other land use decisions or should they detail all of the administrative procedures to be followed by local governments in this area. This article presently tries to do little of both and does neither very well.

This section makes it unlawful for any person to sell or attempt to sell land located within a subdivision which has not yet been approved by the borough platting authority and subjects violators to certain criminal sanctions. But AS 29.53.100 requires that the borough assessor assess real property to "the owner of record as shown on the records of the district recorder" even though that person may be the owner of record by virtue of an illegal subdivision in violation of AS 29.33.190. Moreover, AS 29.53 .310 allows persons holding security interest in illegally subdivided lands to obtain release for portions of lots or tracts [illegible] though such lands were illegally subdivided in violation of AS [illegible].

29.33.070

It is unclear whether platting powers can be delegated to a second class borough or a city within the borough under this section.

29.33

The current language of this chapter, as it incorporates a traditional definition of zoning and makes zoning along with platting the principal means of land use regulations, is unduly restrictive and should be revised to allow more innovative forms of land use regulation by boroughs and municipalities.

29.33.250

Presumably the transfer required is one from all cities exercising the power rather than from a city.

29.33 and 29.38

Should there be a provision for a borough to exercise a power in some but not all cities (for example in second class cities but not in first class cities)?

29.48.030(b) AS 29.48.035(b) and (c)

These provisions are redundant. The limitations on the powers of second class boroughs should be stated in a more concise fashion in one easily accessible part of the code.

Moreover, AS 29.48.030 and .35, insomuch as those sections distinguish between "regulation" and provision of "municipal facilities and services", are at the very lease confusing and perhaps unnecessary.

Reference to powers granted to second class boroughs to construct and maintain Local Service Roads and Trails under AS 19.30.251 should be made in this section.

Reference to the power granted to local governments to regulate use of public streets, alleys and other public places under AS 42.05.251 should be made in AS 29.48.035 or AS 29.48.020.

29.48.030(a)(12)

The term transportation "system" used in this section should be defined.

29.48.260

Provisions of this section governing disposal of municipal properties should be clarified and revised to reflect increased land values throughout the state, to state who makes determinations of the value of lanc offered for sale and the date upon which such valuations must be based. Moreover, the statute should be clarified to either include or exclude rights-of-way or easements from its provisions.

29.58.135

The language regarding the composition of the Board of Equalization is unclear. The statute presently requires "at least that number of members of the assembly over and above the number required for a quorum to transact business"; the statute is unclear when applied to a lay board to whom the equalization function is delegated.

29.53

Should be amended to require payment of all taxes, even those due for more recent assessments on properties whose owners have requested issue of a quitclaim repurchase deed. Present law mandates issue of a quitclaim repurchase deed to the owner of record upon payment of those taxes assessed for the tax year stated in the clerk's deed even though the same property is the subject of other foreclosure proceedings brought in subsequent years. An amendment to AS 29.53 which would require payment of all taxes owing on a parcel before a quitclaim repurchase deed can be issued would eliminate substantial confusion in the minds of taxpayers, and would reduce administrative complexity for borough finance departments presently confronted with multiple foreclosure actions on the same parcels.

29.63.090

The present statute governing service areas does not adequately address the question of whether a service area may be used for exercise of a governmental regulatory power rather than for provision of municipal or services.

8.60.050-100

Regulation of junk yards in this section should be cross-referenced to those sections of Title 29. relating to areawide planning, platting and zoning powers.

9.25.110-120

It is unclear whether public records statutes apply at all to municipal government. If it is the intention of the Legislature to apply the public records laws of AS 9.25.110-120 to cities and boroughs, then those sections should be amended accordingly with an appropriate cross references to Title 29.

Re: Recommendations for changes in Title 29
To Title 29 Policy Committee

Gentlemen:

At the request of Mayor Paukan I am submitting the following comments on some of the provisions of Title 29 that the City would like to see changed. The provisions I have commented upon are those that have proved somewhat troublesome during my duration as City Manager. There are no doubt many other provisions that require change.

29.23.570 VACANCIES: This year the City had one councilman leave town without resigning before departure. The City needed to fill the vacancy quickly. None of the provisions of 29.23.570 were helpful. However, 29.23.200 provides that a councilman who ceases to be a city voter immediately forfeits his office. The Council used this provision to justify filling the vacancy immediately. This provision of section 23.200 should be included under section 23.570

29.23.070 and 29.43.040 PLANNING, PLATTING AND ZONING The mandatory language of this section should be permissive. The wisdom of comprehensive plans and complicated zoning requirements are still subject to professional debate and Cities should have the option to develop other methods of control.

29.48.190 BUDGET AND CAPITAL PROGRAM Subsection (c) is unclear with respect to the procedures that must be followed to make transfer and supplemental appropriations. The language providing that no payment may be made except in accordance with appropriations may be troublesome in that it could be interpreted to give the City no leeway with respect to spending except though lengthy procedures to ammend the budget. The suggested budget ordinance sent each year to municipalities by Community and Regional Affairs is more flexible and preferable but may not be legal under 29.48.190. This section should be changed to permit transfers without budget amendment if less than 10% or $10,000 whichever is less of the orignial appropriation.

29.48.220 POST AUDIT The audit requirement is burdensome for the City. As a first class city we are required to provide a certified audit of city finances. Second class cities need only submit certified financial statements prepared by the city bookkeeper. The City obtains little advantage and no tangible benefit from this requirement. The only people who review the audit are from DCRA. The audit requirement should not be tied to city class. Rather, the requirement should depend upon the size of the budget. It is the amount of money the city spends that justifies audits. Financial statements should be sufficient for cities with budgets less than one million

29.48.260 MUNICIPAL PROPERTIES I consider this to be the most troublesome provision in Title 29 for rural communities. Through the Department of Community and Regional Affairs the City has requested an Attorney General's opinion on some of the requirements of this provision and has recently received a Community Legal Assistance Grant to determine the effect the statute has on land disposal in St. Mary's. First the requirement of appraisals on land before disposal are difficult when most rural land is difficult if not impossible to appraise because comparable sales do not exist. Public auctions may cause the price of land to escalate beyond the means of local residents to afford, and may inhibit local residents who do not speak english from participating in auctions. The words "if any" in subsection (c)(3) seem to indicate public auction or sealed bids are optional but this is not clear. Cities should have the option of developing disposal procedures appropriate to its locality. Such procedures should be ratified by the voters.

I can see no reason for subjecting leases of City land to the same requirements that attach to sales of city land. This unduly restricts the City's ability to make land available for new businesses.

It is not clear whether the exception developed in subsection (e) is free from the requirements of prior appraisal and public auction or sealed bid.

29.68.010 LOCAL BOUNDARY COMMISSION The City recently annexed an adjacent community into its boundary. In order to facilitate the annexation the City wanted to and did make major concessions to the citizens of the adjacent community with respect to a voice in City affairs. Technically what the City has done is not legal because the annexation is not finalized until 45 days after the next legislative session has begun. The delay in time between the decision of the Local Boundary Comm'n. and the legislative disapproval time is unnecessary and can lead to legal complications. Since the legislature has never disapproved a Boundary Commission decision it seems this requirement of submission to the legislature has little utility. A workable alternative might be to preserve a right to appeal a boundary commission decision to the legislature.

I am delighted to see the efforts to review Title 29. I hope it produces some beneficial results. I trust these comments will prove helpful.

Sincerely,

CITY OF ST. MARY'S

SUMMARY OF ATTORNEY GENERAL MEMOS AND OPINIONS CONCERNING TITLE 29 - 1972-80

1. AS 29.03.210 - .240 - (M) July 3, 1979
Vacation of a state easement across state-owned land does not constitute "disposal of an interest in land" and strict statutory requirements of notice for disposals of state land are not required. Notice required by due process are fulfilled by the notice procedures set when the state is acting as a platting authority in the unorganized borough and in third class boroughs under AS 40.15.075.

2. AS 29.13.010, 29.53.055 - (O) August 29, 1978
A strict tax-limit ordinance conflicts with state law and is void. An ordinance which, without exception, limits property tax rates would impair the obligation of contracts.

3. AS 29.13.100 - (M) July 10, 1978
Home rule boroughs are not precluded from establishing their own postsecondary educational institution which is independent of the University of Alaska.

4. AS 29.13.100, 29.48.037 - (O) May 5, 1977
Because AS 29.48.037 is identified by AS 29.13.100 as among those provisions which a home rule municipality may not provide to the contrary, it is exclusive and no additional services may be provided or jurisdiction exercised extraterritorially by any municipality. Only the matters provided for in AS 29.48.037 are within a municipality's power and it may not levy an extraterritorial tax. Insofar as revenue sharing is available for providing a serive or facility identified in AS 29.48.037, a municipality providing the service or facility extraterritorially should qualify. Ownership of the situs of the facility should have no effect except insofar as a provision on revenue sharing may contemplate ownership as a condition of eligibility. If a municipality operates a park, it makes no difference that it is on federally owned land.

5. AS 29.13.100, 29.53.035 - (O) May 19, 1972
Farm lands must be assessed at their value for farm use only.

6. AS 29.18 - (M) July 27, 1979
The Department of Natural Resources may not grant municiapl and ANCSA selections of state land within the capital site at Willow.

7. AS 29.18.180, 29.18.200-.460 - (M) February 22, 1978
Development cities are not entitled to an organization grant, only to land (AS 29.18.420) and to shared revenue (AS 29.18.440).

8. AS 29.18.190 - (M) February 14, 1974
Lands leased for oil and gas are not vacant for municipal selection. Lands classified "resource management" are appropriated and removed from municipal selection.

9. AS 29.18.201 et seq. - (M) May 22, 1979
The Department of Natural Resources should not put land selected by municipalities or by Cook Inlet Regional Corp. into the land disposal bank even though there is insufficient state land available to meet the acreage limits suggested by the letter of intent accompanying the provision creating the land disposal bank.

10. AS 29.18.201 et seq. (M) May 18, 1979
The Department of Natural Resources is obligated to approve and convey leased land which has been selected by a unified municipality prior to July1, 1979, the effective date of the act changing this obligation.

11. AS 29.18.202 - (M) October 19, 1978
The director of the Division of Lands may use AS 38.053.315 to do substantial equity for municipalities which do not contain "vacant, unappropriated, unreserved general grant land" for purposes of municipal selection. Mental health lands are not "general grant lands" for purposes of municipal selection.

12. AS 29.18.205(e) - (M) December 15, 1978
A nomination of land for selection by a municipality segregates it from homestead appropriation. (Interpretation of the Alaska Homestead Act.)

13. AS 29.28.030 - (M) December 15, 1978
Re-registration in a new municipality is not required before a person may vote in the municipal elections. The statute requires only 30 days residency and registration to vote in state elections.

14. AS 29.18.213(12) - (M) June 20, 1979
Kodiak Borough selections of land classified as timber land on Shutak Island should not be approved. Timber land is not "vacant, unappropriated, unreserved land" unless classified in accordance with an agreement between a municipality and the state providing for state management of municipal land.

15. AS 29.18.340, 29.23.555 - (O) September 27, 1972
A conflict of interest would arise in the event that a state employee who serves as a member of a Development City Council should also have a stock interest in the major development company.

16. AS 29.18.360, .460, 29.33.010(b), .050, .070 - (M) April 6, 1978
A development city, during its development stage, could take over planning and zoning under AS 29.33.080 from the borough, though it need not do so. An organized borough retains full authority over any schools. It is the borough, and not the development city, which must develop and adopt the district coastal management program, however, the development city's plan must be considered by the borough when it develops and adopts the coastal management program.

17. AS 29.23.020 - (M) November 6, 1978
Re-apportionment must occur when the existing apportionment does not meet equal protection (one-man, one-vote) standards. Redistribution of voting power among the existing membership (weighted voting) does not meet re-apportionment requirements for borough assemblies.

18. AS 29.23.020 - (O) February 25, 1974
The municipal code, not AS 14.12.030(a), governs the size of assembly-school boards in third class boroughs. Localities were intended to have broad latitute in determining the composition of their assemblies and the narrow restrictions on size of school boards ought not to be applied where the assembly also serves as school board.

19. AS 29.23.020(a) - (O) February 9, 1973
Inclusion of non-resident military personnel and dependents in the population base for purposes of apportioning representation on a borough assembly is not constitutionally required.

20. AS 29.23.021 - (M) March 21, 1980
Apportionment plan may provide for district-at-large representation absent an attempt to underrepresent a racial or political minority.

21. AS 29.23.021 - (M) March 20, 1980
Weighted or fractional voting is not a constitutionally valid method of reapportionment.

22. AS 29.23.100 - (O) October 31, 1974
School boards must be elected at large rather than from zones. (Incorrect - see (O) Aug. 29, 1977)

23. AS 29.23.170(a) - (O) May 2, 1977
The mayor may veto the "local source" resolution but he may not exercise an item veto upon it (or the subdequent appropriation) to strike or to reduce any of its items. The item veto is to be used solely on appropriations and my not be used on school budget "items." The "local source" resolution (setting the total amount of local money to be used to finance schools) is not itself an appropriation but rather sets the limit and advises school officials of it. A subsequent enactment makes the appropriation.

24. AS 29.23.310 - (O) August 29, 1977
Borough school board members may be elected from zones, but they must be elected only at-large from zones (while they represent the zone in which they reside, they are responsible to the entire borough electorate).

25. AS 29.28 - (O) June 6, 1977
Inaccuracy of recall petition's allegations is not concern of election officials or the courts and is irrelevant. The only question to be decided is whether or not the charges are sufficiently specific to allege incompetence or misfeasance if they were in fact true.

26. AS 29.28.140, .150(a) - (O) April 12, 1977
Recall petitions must allege specific instance of misconduct, incompetence, or failure to perform prescribed duties. Voters alone determine merits of recall petitions.

26. AS 29,23.010(b), 29.58.340 - (M) January 24, 1980
A power becomes areawide with respect to a borough and any city within it upon the duly authorized transfer of the power from the city to the borough. With respect to a city in the borough which did not transfer the same power, it is not areawide. A city which has transferred a power is not prohibited from exercising that power if the borough failed to do so.

27. AS 29.33.150 - (O) March 24, 1980
State subdivision legislation does not pre-empt local zoning of post-sale private development. A municipality may not disapprove a state subdivision plat, or prevent the sale of lots in that subdivision, based upon the fact that the land is not residentially zoned by the municipality. In the platting process, the municipality may attach reasonable terms and conditions -- including conditions relating to lot size, configuration and layout. Private buyers of lots within a state subdivision are not immune from local zoning, so, although the zoning ordinance may not be used to prohibit platting of the subdivision, or the subsequent sale of lots, the ordinance does control subsequent private development.

28. AS 29.33.150 - (M) January 21, 1980
A borough cannot require the state to do the following work in relation to a subdivision of state land: 1. define transportation corridors to be utilized for access to subdivisions; 2. analyze defined transportation corridors as to grade and soils to insure the feasibility of borough standard road contruction; 3. in all areas in the subdivision proposal where existing grades indicate potential problems, submit proposed road plans and profiles to the satisfaction of the engineering department.

29. AS 29.33.250 - .290, 29.38.020 - .030 - (M) July 26, 1979
While a first class or home rule borough can acquire additional areawide powers merely by transfer from the city, a second class borough can do so only with respect to powers which it has already acquired to be exercised in the area outside cities. That requires an election in most instances.

30. AS 29.33.010(b), .260(b), .290(c) - (M) January 24, 1980
The borough is under a duty to exercise the powers which are transferred to it when it approved the transfer. City ordinances become borough ordinances and the borough has a duty to enforce them until they are repealed or amended by the borough assembly. A city may no longer exercise power transferred to the borough, except that a city may exercise a power which is not being exercised by the borough.

31. AS 29.33.290, .360, .550 - (M) April 20, 1979
A general law municipality may not provide by ordinance for the powers to confirm appointments, suspensions, and discharges of municipal officers and employees to be extended to include more than is prescribed by the Municipal Code.

32. AS 29.33.290, 29.48.030 - (M) February 6, 1979
No authority exists for a borough to divest itself of an areawide power and thereby restoreit to a city from which it was previously transferred. Cities may presumably act as agents or contractors of the borough for carrying out its exercise of the power.

33. AS 29.33.290(c) - (O) - March 5, 1973
North Star Borough succeeds to Fairbank's interest in Alaska land notwithstanding statutory conditions on forgiving the loan by the State Bond Committee

34. AS 29.41 - (M) January 6, 1977
Third class boroughs are nothing more than school districts.

35. AS 29.43.020, 29.48.010(7), 29.53.415(a), .440, .450 - (M) January 9, 1980
The limitation placed on a borough's sales tax is three percent. A bed tax on hotel occupants should be considered a sales tax subject to the limitation.

36. AS 29.48.010, .440 - (O) August 14, 1979
A city of any class has the power to levy and collect sales taxes. Sale of utility services is a sale for sales tax purposes. Public utility cooperatives are exempt from all local sales and use taxes however. No local tax upon a utility company can be passed on to utility subscribers outside the local unit of government.

37. AS 29.48.010 - .035, 29.68.440 - (M) September 30, 1976
The Municipality of Anchorage has the power to contract to maintain local roads and trails.

38. AS 29.48.010(4) - July 16, 1975
Powers and functions may be conferred on municipalities by statutes not contained in the Municipal Code. AS 44.47.180-.230 constitute effective law and second class boroughs need not acquire additional powers under AS 29 in order to authorize expenditures of administrative costs required by those sections.

39. AS 29.48.010(11), .210 - (M) May 12, 1975
Boroughs may advance monies from their general funds to their service areas even in the absence of specific statutory authority.

40. AS 29.48.130(a)(5) - (M) October 21, 1977
Implementation of a CETA regulation regarding retirement benefits may require action by Anchorage to fund retirement contributions. Under state law, municipal funds may be used to fund these benefits only if the municipal assembly or council enacts an ordinance to that effect.

41. AS 29.48.200 - (M) July 24, 1979
Municipalities can precribe mandatory sentencing for OMVI. The maximum for violating any local ordinance is $500 and 30 days.

42. AS 29.48.260 - (M) August 22, 1979
For the limited purpose of providing certain facilities in rural areas, Regional Housing Authorities may be considered political subdivisions of the state. A municipality may dispose of its property to a political subdivision, so a racially exclusive regional association can receive municipal property for public housing programs.

43. AS 29.53.020, .045 - (M) November 9, 1977
A city may prohibit hunting as a safety measure within city limits, but not for wildlife management purposes.

44. AS 29.53.020(a) - (M) March 7, 1979
No amendment to AS 29.53.020 could modify the definition of taxable property for purposes of the general statewide property tax. The "business inventories" exemption form municipal property taxation will not affect total state revenue.

45. AS 29.53.020(a)(3), .020(c) - (M) April 5, 1973
To remain tax exempt, property may generate income solely for the statutorily expressed purposes. The income derived from property must be from only its use as classroom space under this section.

46. AS 29.53.020(e) - (M) August 17, 1979
By interpretive regulation, a property tax exemption can be limited to comport with legislative intent. The Department of Community and Regional Affairs may define "permanent place of abode" as being limited to not more than one acre if urban nor more than five acres if rural because the legislature intended to relieve senior citizens from tax burdens on their dwellings, not to create a windfall for holders of vast tracts of land. However, such a regulation must be adopted under the APA to have legal effect.

47. AS 29.53.020(e) - (g), .025 (M) September 17, 1975
State must reimburse municipalities for senior citizen exemptions even though the local tax code also exempts the property from taxation, but the Department of Community and Regional Affairs could adopt interpretive regulations stipulating that payments will be made to a municipality for revenue lost to it for claims only to the extent that senior citizens' exemption exceeds an exemption the senior citizens are eligible for under municipal ordinance.

48. AS 29.53.045, .045(e), .050 -.(O) May 16, 1978
The military population should be included in the total when calculating the average per capita assessed valuation in the state.

49. AS 29.53.045, . 050 - (M) May 2, 1978
AS 29.53.045(a) gives a municipality a choice as to the methods of taxation, but both methods are subject to the 30 mill limit.

50. AS 29.53.135 - (M) February 10, 1978
The phrase "at least ... over and above the number required for a quorum" means at least one more than a quorum. Since the statute does not set a maximum number, it may be set by ordinance. The phrase "number of members of" refers to the number required for a quorum and does not require an appointed board's membership to include assembly members. (Suggests that this statute be rewritten.)

51. AS 29.53.180(b), .390(b) - (M) December 21, 1979
Municipalities must pay interest on excess tax penalties they have levied. A municipality may initiate refunds on its own motion.

52. AS 29.53.405 - (M) February 1, 1980
Differential tax zones within cities are authorized. Changes in differential tax zones may be made by ordinance without voter approval.

53. AS 29.53.415 - (M) October 6, 1976
A city may impose a tax upon retail sales and limit it to intoxicating liquor, or apply a higher rate to the sale of alcoholic beverages than the sales of other commodities.

53. AS 29.53.415, .440, .450 - (M) August 21, 1973
A municipality may impose a sales tax on the sale of intoxicating liquor.

54. AS 29.63.010, 29.53.010-.020 - (M) April 23, 1974
State property is subject to special assessments by units of local government for improvements which benefit the property.

55. AS 29.63.065 (M) October 24, 1975
The state must reimburse a municipality for special assessments which persons 65 years of age or older are exempt from paying in full at its initial levy, not in installments as allowed in AS 29.63.060.

56. AS 29.63.090 - (O) January 14, 1974
Depending upon circumstances, a service area can embrace one or more cities as well as unincorporated areas.

57. AS 29.68.010(b)(3), 29.78.010 - (M) August 24, 1979
The state and the United States need not be considered "property owners" for purposes of obtaining consent to annexation by ordinance. This way property-owner consent is not lost when state or federal holders of rights of way, easements, railroads, streambeds and the like do not consent to annexation.

58. AS 29.68.010(b)(3) - (M) April 17, 1979
The Bureau of Land Management's townsite trustee is a "property owner" for purposes of the requirement of obtaining consent to annexation.

59. AS 29.68.020 - (O) April 29, 1975
The repeal of the provision which excluded military reservations from mandatory boroughs did not thereby cause their inclusion. The borough must annex military reservations.

60. AS 29.68.240, .410 - (O) February 18, 1976
A unified municipality can issue general obligation bonds approved by the voters of its predecessor units of government.

61. AS 29.68.500 - (O) October 5, 1973
Including an existing city within a new city does not, in itself, dissolve it. (This is probably wrong, i.e., the lesser is probably swallowed by the greater.)

62. (M) August 21, 1973
There is no state law which prohibits boroughs and municipalities from levying user charges and industrial cost recovery assessments for waste treatment facilities which have been federally funded.

ARTICLE X

LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Purpose and Construction

SECTION 1. The purpose of this article is to provide for maximum local self-government with a minimum of local government units, and to prevent duplication of tax-levying jurisdictions. A liberal construction shall be given to the powers of local government units.

Local Government Powers

SECTION 2. All local government powers shall be vested in boroughs and cities. The State may delegate taxing powers to organized boroughs and cities only.

Boroughs

SECTION 3. The entire State shall be divided into boroughs, organized or unorganized. They shall be established in a manner and according to standards provided by law. The standards shall include population, geography, economy, transportation, and other factors. Each borough shall embrace an area and population with common interests to the maximum degree possible. The legislature shall classify boroughs and prescribe their powers and functions. Methods by which boroughs may be organized, incorporated, merged, consolidated, reclassified, or dissolved shall be prescribed by law.

Assembly

SECTION 4. The governing body of the organized borough shall be the assembly, and its composition shall be established by law or charter.

(The amendment to this section was approved by the voters of the State August 22, 1972 and became effective October 14, 1972. It deleted the second and third sentences which specified city and non-city representation on the borough assembly.)

Service Areas

SECTION 5. Service areas to provide special services within an organized borough may be established, altered, or abolished by the assembly, subject to the provisions of law or charter. A new service area shall not be established if, consistent with the purposes of this article, the new service can be provided by an existing service area, by incorporation as a city, or by annexation to a city. The assembly may authorize the levying of taxes, charges, or assessments within a service area to finance the special services.

Unorganized Boroughs

SECTION 6. The legislature shall provide for the performance of services it deems necessary or advisable in unorganized boroughs, allowing for maximum local participation and responsibility. It may exercise any power or function in an unorganized borough which the assembly may exercise in an organized borough.

Cities

SECTION 7. Cities shall be incorporated in a manner prescribed by law, and shall be a part of the borough in which they are located. Cities shall have the powers and functions conferred by law or charter. They may be merged, consolidated, classified, reclassified, or dissolved in the manner provided by law.

Council

SECTION 8. The governing body of a city shall be the council.

Charters

SECTION 9. The qualified voters of any borough of the first class or city of the first class may adopt, amend, or repeal a home rule charter in a manner provided by law. In the absence of such legislation, the governing body of a borough or city of the first class shall provide the procedure for the preparation and adoption or rejection of the charter. All charters, or parts or amendments of charters, shall be submitted to the qualified voters of the borough or city, and shall become effective if approved by a majority of those who vote on the specific question.

Extended Home Rule

SECTION 10. The legislature may extend home rule to other boroughs and cities.

Home Rule Powers

SECTION 11. A home rule borough or city may exercise all legislative powers not prohibited by law or by charter.

Boundaries

SECTION 12. A local boundary commission or board shall be established by law in the executive branch of the state government. The commission or board may consider any proposed local government boundary change. It may present proposed changes to the legislature during the first ten days of any regular session. The change shall become effective forty-five days after presentation or at the end of the session, whichever is earlier, unless disapproved by a resolution concurred in by a majority of the members of each house. The commission or board, subject to law, may establish procedures whereby boundaries may be adjusted by local action.

Agreements: Transfer of Powers

SECTION 13. Agreements, including those for cooperative or joint administration of any functions or powers, may be made by any local government with any other local government, with the State, or with the United States, unless otherwise provided by law or charter. A city may transfer to the borough in which it is located any of its powers or functions unless prohibited by law or charter, and may in like manner revoke the transfer.

Local Government Agency

SECTION 14. An agency shall be established by law in the executive branch of the state government to advise and assist local governments. It shall review their activities; collect and publish local government information, and perform other duties prescribed by law.

Special Service Districts

SECTION 15. Special service districts existing at the time a borough is organized shall be integrated with the government of the borough as provided by law.

Directing the Alaska Legislative Council to revise AS 29 (Municipal Government).

BE IT RESOLVED BY THE LEGISLATURE OF THE STATE OF ALASKA:

WHEREAS Alaska has a system of local government that differs uniquely in constitutional concept and in law from traditional local government; and

WHEREAS the law governing municipalities in Alaska was last reviewed completely in 1972 at which time significant elements of the local government structures were still in a formative stage; and

WHEREAS numerous amendments to the municipal code have been made since its adoption which have not been fully integrated into the code; and

WHEREAS much experience in the Alaska system of local government has been gained since adoption of the municipal code; and

WHEREAS there is a need for a comprehensive revision of the municipal code which will consider the 1972 code, amendments to it, and the experience gained since its adoption;

BE IT RESOLVED by the Alaska State Legislature that under the provisions of AS 24.20.090 and Uniform Rule 48(c) the Alaska Legislative Council is directed to prepare a revision of Title 29 of the Alaska Statutes (Municipal Government) by directing the legal services division of the Legislative Affairs Agency to prepare the revision with the assistance of a policy advisory group representative of the concerned public from all areas of the state and persons experienced in the application of AS 29, and soliciting the advice of the Alaska Code Revision Commission; and be it

FURTHER RESOLVED that the policy advisory group consist of two members of each house of the legislature appointed by the presiding officer of each house; public members of the policy advisory group shall be selected by the presiding officer of each house from persons recommended by legislative members, by the Department of Community and Regional Affairs, the Alaska Municipal League, the Rural Alaska Community Action Program, Inc., the Department of Law, and by the legal services division; and be it FURTHER RESOLVED that a proposed revision of AS 29 be presented to the legislature during the first 30 days of the First Session of the Twelfth Legislature.

Title 29 Rev.	Wkg Grp. Svendsen	16 Sep 80

SUGGESTIONS - TITLE 29 REVISION

AS 29.08.
(Allan Tesche)
Adopt uniform definitions of "municipality", "borough", and use the terms consistently throughout the title.
Need to be better defined

AS 29.08.010
(Gerald L. Sharp)
(& 29.13.010 & 100, & 29.78.010(1)(2)(8)
A careful reading of the code indicates that a unified unit of home rule local government is not a municipality. Under these sections, it is not a home rule municipality. If this was the intent, it should be clarified in the definitions. Along this same line, all sections which apply to home rule boroughs and home rule cities should be reviewed to determine whether they should also apply to unified units.

AS 29.08.020
(Gerald L. Sharp)
An interpretive guide should be provided for the the court so that it does not seize upon this section to revive Dillon's rule.

AS 29.13.100
(Richard W. Garnett, III)(Allan E. Tesche)
Clarify criteria for application of non-title 29 provisions to home rule, maybe require inclusion in laundry list.

AS 29.13.100
(Gerald L. Sharp)
The effect of the phrase "acting otherwise than as provided" should be examined to determine whether this phrase means that a home rule municipality may do neither more nor less than is prescribed for home rule municipalities. See the Whitson case.

AS 29.18.
(Richard W. Garnett, III)
Clarify rights to VUU land vis a vis state classification under AS 38.

AS 29.18.130
(Gerald L. Sharp)
We should probably address REAA's under this section.

AS 29.18.140(a)(b)
(Gerald L. Sharp)
This section implies that a newly incorporated city or borough may succeed a home rule or previously incorporated general law city or borough. Was this meant?

SUGGESTIONS - TITLE 29 REVISION

AS 29.18.180
(Gerald L. Sharp)
Organizational grants under this section appear to be inadequate.

AS 29.18.330
(Gerald L. Sharp)
The resident training and hire preference should be examined for constitutionality.

AS 29.23.025(e)(9)
(Marjorie Corsuch)
Clarify what happens to the reapportionment order if a reapportionment ordinance has not been approved by the voters.

AS 29.23.029
(Marjorie Corsuch)
There should be additional provisions for judicial review and relief.

AS 29.23.031
(Marjorie Corsuch)
There should be additional provisions for judicial review and relief.

AS 29.23.040
(Gerald L. Sharp)
(et.seq.) The residency requirements, terms of officers, powers, duties, and the procedures for the changing of terms and qualificiations of officers as these relate to the mayor, council, and assembly members should be uniform as between a city and a borough.

AS 29.23.050
(Allan E. Tesche)
The statutory residence requirement prescribed in this section is probably invalid. It is suggested that such residence requirements throughout AS 29 be reduced to a maximum of one year.

AS 29.23.060(a)
(Gerald L. Sharp)
This section implies that there may be no special meetings if any member is not notified.

AS 29.23.060(d)
(Gerald L. Sharp)
Some consideration should be give to reducing the quorum voting requirement by one vote for every two members of the body who are present who do not vote because they either have a conflict of interest or have been excused by the legislative body.

SUGGESTIONS - TITLE 29 REVISION

AS 29.23.060(d)
(Allan E. Tesche)
Circumstances, other than financial interests, which allow a member to abstain should be better defined.

AS 29.23.070
(Gerald L. Sharp)
This section seems to provide an unnecessary infringement of the chief administrator's prerogatives in appointing department heads.

AS 29.23.070 &
(City of St. Mary's)
(& 29.43.040) The mandatory language of this section should be permissive. The wisdom of comprehensive plans and complicated zoning requirements are still subject to professional debate and Cities should have the option to develop other methods of control.

AS 29.23.080
(Gerald L. Sharp)
This section should be checked to determine whether it tracks with the new procedures on reapportionment as it relates to council appointments and dual seats.

AS 29.23.080
(Allan E. Tesche)
The procedure for determining vacancies under this section conflicts with the procedure established under AS 29.23.570.

AS 29.23.130(B)
(Allan E. Tesche)
Once again, the three residency requirement in this section should probably be reduced to one year to assure its constitutional validity.

AS 29.23.150
(Allan E. Tesche)
(& 29.23.470) Both require assembly appointment of an acting borough manager in the absence of or disability of the manager. If these sections address different policy questions, they are unclear; if they do not, one should be eliminated as redundant.

AS 29.23.170
(Allan E. Tesche)
This provision does not specify when a veto becomes effective or specify any time limit for the overriding of the veto. Moreover, it does not indicate what is the status of an ordinance between the time its veto is announced and the time the Assembly first has an opportunity to override the veto.

AS 29.23.170(cont'd)
(Allan E. Tesche)
For instance, if the mayor vetos a line item in the budget, may expenditures be made under that item until the mayor announces the veto at the next regular assembly meeting, or does the veto immediately strike the item until the veto is overridden? —mayoral approval?

AS 29.23.200
(Allan E. Tesche)
The three year residency requirement here is also probably invalid.

AS 29.23.210
(Gerald L. Sharp)
Does this require four votes on a procedural motion? This language should parallel the similar provisions for boroughs and both should be clarified as to whether there is a distinction between procedural and substantive motions. why

AS 29.23.210
(Allan E. Tesche)
As with the provisions for boroughs, this section should provide more definite standards for abstention on other than conflict of interest grounds.

AS 29.23.250
(Allan E. Tesche)
Another probably invalid three year residency requirement.

AS 29.23.270
(Allan E. Tesche)
This provision has the same ambiguities with regard to the effectiveness of a veto and a veto override as the provision applying to boroughs.

AS 29.23.310
(Gerald L. Sharp)
Reference within this section to repeal Section 100 should be corrected.

AS 29.23.340(d)
(Gerald L. Sharp)
Perhaps this section should be clarified to permit the board to set rates.

AS 29.23.360
(Gerald L. Sharp)
My question why there appears to be authority for the assembly or council to appoint administrative officers such as the treasurer and chief of police who do not serve the council or the assembly but must respond to the chief administrative officer.

SUGGESTIONS - TITLE 29 REVISION

AS 29.23.370
(Gerald L. Sharp)
I question whether there may not be a conflict of interest for an attorney to provide legal advice to both the legislative and administrative branches. Perhaps there should be a specific extension of the authority of the legislative body to retain its own legal counsel. Next, I question whether there isn't a conflict of interest for the clerk to service two different masters, the legislative body, and the chief administrator.

AS 29.23.395
(Gerald L. Sharp)
(Through .401) This sort of specific legislation ought to be deleted. If some sort of authority of this sort is required, it should be addressed in the general grant of powers.

AS 29.23.470
(Gerald L. Sharp)
I question why the manager has no authority to appoint a temporary or interim manager during his own temporary absence.

AS 29.23.480
(Gerald L. Sharp)
I suggest that the adoption of an ordinance at the very next meeting after the repeal of manager plan is expecting too much of any council or assembly considering the careful deliberation which should be given to the reorganization.

AS 29.23.540
(Gerald L. Sharp)
The seriousness of the conflict of interest which exists when an employee of the school board serves on the body which determines the school board's budget but is not lessened in any way by the existence of subsection (c) of this section. This section should be repealed. Also, it appears that this section would permit a person working in the grants section of the Department of C&RA to serve on an assembly or a council.

AS 29.23.555
(Allan E. Tesche)
This section has been superceded by AS 39.50.

AS 29.23.570
(City of St. Mary's)
This year the City had one councilman leave town without resigning before departure. The City needed to fill the vacancy quickly. None of the provisions of 29.23.570 were helpful. However, 29.23.200 provides that a councilman who ceases to be a city voter immediately forfeits his office. The Council used this provision to justify filling the vacancy immediately. This provision of section 23.200 should be included under section 23.570.

SUGGESTIONS - TITLE 29 REVISION

AS 29.25.110
(Richard W. Garnett, III)(Allan E. Tesche)
Clarify application of public records law to municipality.

AS 29.28.
(Bruce Aronson)
Once a sufficient petition has been accepted, members of the council should not be able to resign and be re-appointed to the council.

AS 29.28.
(Bruce Aronson)
Statutes should be clear that the local recall effort is based on the last regular municipal election for purposes of determining the number of signatures required on a petition.

AS 29.28.
(Bruce Aronson)
A transition period should be provided by statute to allow a person recalled to service for a while after the recall election has been certified to allow a government to continue to operate.

AS 29.28.015
(Gerald L. Sharp)
I question why the mayor in a manager-type municipality should not be permitted to be a member of the legislative body so long as he does not have the veto power. This seems to be something that should be left to local option.

AS 29.28.030
(Gerald L. Sharp)
It is not clear, under this section, how one deals with a person who has been present within the municipality for more than 30 days but who does not register with the State of Alaska until four days before the election. It appears they might be qualified to vote in the municipal election as they will certainly be qualified to vote in the next state election.

AS 29.28.040
(Richard W. Garnett, III)
More specificity as to whether recall may be based on "political" factors.

AS 29.28.070(b)
(Richard W. Garnett, III)
Service area initiatives are potential problems; could lead to "Balkanization" of municipalities.

SUGGESTIONS - TITLE 29 REVISION

AS 29.28.070(b)
(Richard W. Garnett, III)(Allan Tesche)
Standardize use of "general" and "regular" as to elections to avoid uncertainty as to required number of signatures.

AS 29.28.080(a)
(Gerald L. Sharp)
This section implies that the initiative ordinance or resolution must be something within the power of the assembly or council and must not fall within the restrictions of Section 60; however, it appears that the assembly or council may reject the initiative only if it is within the restrictions of Section 60. I also believe that this section should be tightened up to make it clear that the

AS 29.28.080(a)(cont'd)
(Gerald L. Sharp)
initiative process may not be used to take what are essentially administrative actions even though the assembly or council itself may take such actions by ordinance or resolution.

AS 29.28.090(b)
(Richard W. Garnett, III)
Not specifically provided that assembly may not immediately repeal ordinance enacted under threat of initiative.

AS 29.28.110
(Gerald L. Sharp)
This section establishes an observed public policy and should be modified to parallel the more liberal provisions which we find in our state constitution.

AS 29.28.130
(Bruce Aronson)(Lee Sharp)
Change provision so that all officials would be subject to recall after six months in office. The six month grace period would not apply if a person is re-elected to the same office.

AS 29.28.130
(Allan E. Tesche)
(Et. seq.) Statutory provisions governing recall contents do not clearly define signature requirements by distinguishing between at large and district forms of representation. AS 29.28.070(b) should be redrafted to state required percentages of votes cast for Assemblymen who are elected in districts and who are elected at large.

AS 29.28.140
(Bruce Aronson)
Grounds for recall are too narrow.

SUGGESTIONS - TITLE 29 REVISION

AS 29.28.140
(Gerald L. Sharp)
This section should be changed to make it clear that elected officials may not be recalled for the manner in which they exercised a duty, e.g., the way they vote on a particular issue, but that they can be recalled for having voted on an issue on which they are prohibited from voting. They could be recalled for refusing to vote when they had neither a conflict nor been excused from voting.

AS 29.28.140(cont'd)
(Gerald L. Sharp)
They could be recalled for failing to file a report required of individual public officials. They could not be recalled for having voted in favor of doing something prescribed by law nor could they be recalled for voting against doing something which is required by law.

AS 29.28.150
(Bruce Aronson) (Lee Sharp)
A recall petition should be required to contain the mailing address of each person who signs it and a separate petition should be filed for each person sought to be recalled. Statement of grounds should be limited to 200 words.

AS 29.28.160
(Gerald L. Sharp)
Either the clerk of the assembly or council should be given specific authority to review the petition for more than merely the superficial contents requirements. This determination should also go to whether or not the ground stated, if true, constitute grounds for repeal.

AS 29.28.170
(Gerald L. Sharp)
I question why petitioners should have an additional ten days to gather signatures. Why not give them 70 days to begin with or just cut them off at 60? If the petitioners cannot do some of the leg work themselves of determining how many valid signatures they have collected, there seems to be little in public policy to require they be give an additional ten days for their sloppiness or inadequate performance.

AS 29.28.180
(Bruce Aronson)
A new petition should not be filed sooner than six months after the original is rejected for insufficient content. However, the waiting period should not apply when a petition is rejected for lack of signatures.

SUGGESTIONS - TITLE 29 REVISION

AS 29.28.190
(Elsie O'Brien)
Add a requirement that the city council and city officials perform, with reference to recall petitions, within a time certain.

AS 29.28.200(c)
(Gerald L. Sharp)
If a public official who is the subject of a sufficient recall petition resigns prior to the election, and his name is removed from the recall ballot, may he then be reappointed to his position by the remaining members prior to the recall election? May he be reappointed after the recall election?

AS 29.28.210
(Gerald L. Sharp)
If we permit one petition to contain more than one name, how should the names appear on the ballot, separately so that the voters may express their desires as to each public official individually or should there be a single ballot giving the voters the same choice which the petitioners gave the petition signers, i.e., all or none?

AS 29.28.250
(Jack Chenoweth)
Include a provision somewhere by which a state officer has authority to appoint municipal voters to fill elected city or borough offices when the number of members drops below the number required to produce a quorum.

AS 29.28.250
(Gerald L. Sharp)
What happens when an entire assembly, city council, or school board are recalled? There should be some mechanism for providing for an interim legislative body.

AS.29.33.
(Allan E. Tesche)
The current language of this chapter, as it incorporates a traditional definition of zoning and makes zoning along with platting the principal means of land use regulations, is unduly restructive and should be revised to allow more innovative forms of land use regulation by boroughs and municipalities.

AS 29.33.
(Allan E. Tesche)
Should there be a provision for a borough to exercise a power in some but not all cities (for example in second class cities but not in first class cities?)

SUGGESTIONS - TITLE 29 REVISION

AS 29.33.010
(Gerald L. Sharp)
Some place here, and perhaps other sections, we should deal with the almost impossible antitrust situation which the United States Supreme Court cast upon us in it's Lafayette decision.

AS 29.33.050
(Gerald L. Sharp)
While the section is drafted so that it uses parallel verbs, I believe the "establishes, maintains, and operates" phrase should be changed to read " and shall establish, maintain, and operate".

AS 29.33.070
(Allan E. Tesche)
It is unclear whether platting powers can be delegated to a second class borough or a city within the borough under this section

AS 29.33.070
(Allan E. Tesche)
(Through 29.33.245) Serious thought should be given to the purpose of the planning, platting, and zoning provisions in this code. Should they only prescribe minimum due process standards for rezonings and other land use decisions or should they detail all of the administrative procedures to be followed by local governments in this area. This article presently tries to do little of both and does neither very well.

AS 29.33.080(e)
(Gerald L. Sharp)
Consideration should also be give here to reducing the majority vote requirement where there are two or more members of the commission who are present but do not vote because of a conflict of interest or because they have been excused by the remaining members.

AS 29.33.085(b)
(Gerald L. Sharp)
The requirement that the commission present new recommendations on a comprehensive plane very two years should be redrafted so that it does not appear that the continued validity of the zoning ordinance is dependent upon such a review and so that it soes not appear that there is any question as to the validity of an ordinance which is adopted pursuant to a comprehensive plan which has not been reviewed for more than two years.

AS 29.33.085(b)(cont'd)
(Gerald L. Sharp)
Also, it may not hurt to throw in some sort of language within the planning and zoning article to make it clear that the adoption of any zoning map change is a legislative and discretionary act and is not administrative as some state supreme courts seem to believe.

AS 29.33.110(b)(1)
(Gerald L. Sharp)
I strongly suggest that we not make the Board of Adjustment the board which hears appeals from building code enforcement actions. Some municipalities may prefer to place building code enforcement under some other department such as public works.

AS 29.33.110(b)(1)(cont'd)
(Gerald L. Sharp)
The authority of the Board of Adjustment to hear building code appeals should be optional with the municipality. Also, whether the assembly or council sits as the Board of Adjustment should also be optional with the municipality.

AS 29.33.110(b)(3)
(Gerald L. Sharp)
It is not clear what the phrase "which are not contrary to the public interest" modifies, "the zoning ordinance", or "requests...".

AS 29.33.120
(Gerald L. Sharp)
It appears that a person may file for a variance or conditional use, be denied that application, and yet proceed with the denied use if they appeal to the Board of Adjustment because the appeal, under the terms of this section, stays any enforcement where imminent peril is not involved.

AS 29.33.130(b)
(Gerald L. Sharp)
I question whether the legislature, and more particularly an assembly, has any authority to establish what the court may well consider as a procedural rule relating to establishing the time within which one may file an appeal to the superior court.

AS 29.33.150
(Gerald L. Sharp)
It might be wise to indicate in this section that the platting board has authority to require subdivision exactions.

Does ds rules + reg relate + subdiv ordinance

SUGGESTIONS - TITLE 29 REVISION

AS 29.33.150(b)
(Gerald L. Sharp)
(& 29.33.169(c)) These sections need to be revised out of the code.

170(b) - can leg body limit boards right to grant waiver

AS 29.33.170(a)(1)
(Gerald L. Sharp)
I suggest it be made clear in here that adequate access does not include access over other privately owned land by way of an easement in favor of the applicant. Adequate access consists solely of access by dedicated or publicly owned ways.

AS 29.33.190
This section needs to be beefed up by incorporating administrative procedures to prevent the recording of instruments which create unlawful subdivisions.

AS 29.33.190
(Allan E. Tesche)
This section makes it unlawful for any person to sell or attempt to sell land located within a subdivision which hs not yet been approved by the borough platting authority and subjects violators to certain criminal sanctions. But AS 29.53.100 requires that the borough assessor assess real property to "the owner of record as shown on the records of the district recorder" even though that person may be the owner of record by virtue of an illegal subdivision in violation of AS 29.33.190. Moreover, AS 29.53.310 allows persons holding security interest in illegally subdivided lands to obtain release for portions of lots or tracts originally subdivided even though such lands were illegally subdivided in violation of AS 29.33.190.

AS 29.33.190(cont'd)
(Allan E. Tesche)

recubdiv of lot = replat

AS 29.33.200
(Gerald L. Sharp)
This section needs to be coordinated with the procedures under the condemnation sections of Title 9 which require the state to submit its property acquisitions in condemnation proceedings to the platting board.

AS 29.33.240
(Gerald L. Sharp)
I question why a second class city located outside an organized borough may obtain title to vacated ways if they intend to use the way for some other public purpose, while within an organized borough the property goes to the abutting owner. I also wonder why parks, greenbelts, and other areas which are vacated are split between abutting property owners while the title to a public square vests in a municipality upon vacation.

245 - administrative officer

SUGGESTIONS - TITLE 29 REVISION

service area of city inside + after borough has acquired non-areawide power

AS 29.33.250
(Allan E. Tesche)
Presumably the transfer required is one from all cities exercising the power rather than from a city.

2ko - if borough has non-areawide

AS 29.38.
Should there be a provision for a borough to exercise a power in some but not all cities (for example in second class cities but not in first class cities?)

AS 29.41.
(Bruce Aronson) (Lee Sharp)
Eliminate third class boroughs. Re-examine idea.

AS 29.48.
(Richard W. Garnett, III)
Consider need for APUC regulation of municipality owned utilities.

AS 29.48.010
(Gerald L. Sharp)
I question the need for such subsections as (1)(2)(3) and (5) as these all seem to relate to internal administrative matters which are clearly within the authority of the municipality. Some of these sound more like delegations of authority to a specific branch within the municipality. Also, I believe some consideration should be given to whether or not there should be a catch-all grant clause.

AS 29.48.010(cont'd)
Gerald L. Sharp
Also, something should or could be added to this section to clarify the authority of the municipality to establish and enforce liens for the collection of sales taxes. There might also be a section clearly authorizing the municipality to establish both minimum and non-suspendible penalties for violation of municipal ordinances.

AS 29.48.030
(Bruce Aronson)
There should be a clear statutory statement as to when a city rather than the state must provide local enforcement services and what type of enforcement services a city must provide.

AS 29.48.030
(Palmer McCarter)
Clarify whether "health and hospital power" is one or two separate local powers.

AS 29.48.030(b)
(Allan E. Tesche)
(& 29.48.035(b)&(c)) These provisions are redundant. The limitations on the powers of second class boroughs should be stated in a more concise fashion in one easily accessible part of the code. Moreover, AS 29.48.030 and .35, inasmuch as those sections distinguish between "regulation" and provision of "municipal facilities and services", are at the very least confusing and perhaps unnecessary.

AS 29.48.030(b)(cont'd)
(Allan E. Tesche)
(& 29.48.035(b)&(c)) Reference to powers granted to second class boroughs to construct and maintain Local Service Road and Trails under AS 19.30.251 should be made in this section. Reference to the power granted to local governments to regulate use of public streets, alleys, and other public places under AS 42.05.251 should be made in AS 29.48.035 or AS 29.48.020.

AS 29.48.030(a)(12)
(Allan E. Tesche)
The term transportation "system" used in this section should be defined.

AS 29.48.033
(Gerald L. Sharp)
Again, I do not have the 1980 legislation which effected state regulatory authority over cable television, transportation services, and garbage disposal but I believe what the legislature (industry) did should be carefully reviewed.

035 - first sentence of (a) should be general grant

AS 29.48.050
(Gerald L. Sharp)
I question whether there is any justified public policy behind requiring franchises to be granted by ordinance ratified by the voters. This has serious Lafayette antitrust implications. It seems that a public utility ought to be granted a permit so long as they can show public convenience and necessity.

AS 29.48.070
(Gerald L. Sharp)
(& 29.48.080 & 48.090) The idea of a council or assembly sitting through a protracted rate setting hearing is preposterous. Any hearing which the ordinary council or assembly would sit still through could not possibly adequate to justify a rate. Also, it is beyond me why the rates should be established by ordinance.

AS 29.48.100(b)
(Gerald L. Sharp)
Not only are the preceeding utility regulations outmoded, it seems ludicrous to have them apply to home rule municipalities.

AS 29.48.110
(Gerald L. Sharp)
AS 29.48.110 should be changed to make it clear that a municipality may establish more than a single historic district.

AS 29.48.130(5)
(Richard W. Garnett, III)
No need to require ordinance for routine fund transfers.

AS 29.48.150(a)
(Richard W. Garnett, III)
Majority required to set ordinance for hearing. Should be less.

AS 29.48.160(b)
(Gerald L. Sharp)
If the procedure for regulating utilities and granting franchises has changed, this section should probably also be changed to correspond.

AS 29.48.170
(Richard W. Garnett, III)
Need some procedure for enacting municipal regulations.

AS 29.48.190(b)
(Gerald L. Sharp)
This section seems to imply that a municipality may enter into an obligation to make payments in a future year if it does so by ordinance. If this happens, I think you have a debt which must have first been approved by the voters and before a capitol improvement.

AS 29.48.190
(City of St. Mary's)
Subsection (c) is unclear with respect to the procedures that must be followed to make transfer and supplemental appropriations. The language providing that no payment may be made except in accordance with appropriations may be troublesome in that it could be interpreted to give the City no leeway with respect to spending except through lengthy procedures to amend the budget.

AS 29.48.190 (cont'd)
(City of St. Mary's)
The suggested budget ordinance sent each year to municipalities by Community and Regional Affairs is more flexible and preferable but may not be legal under 29.48.190. This section should be changed to permit transfers without budget amendment if less than 10% or $10,000 whichever is less of the original appropriation.

AS 29.48.200
(Gerald L. Sharp)
The fine limitation and imprisonment limitation both need to be raised. In addition, this may be the appropriate place to specifically authorize municipalities to establish both minimum fines and imprisonments and to provide clear authority for municipalities to make certain penalties non-suspendible.

AS 29.48.210
(Gerald L. Sharp)
This section is a good example of the need to carefully distinguish between boroughs and cities on the one hand and unified units on the other. In any event, I believe this section should be changed to permit the expenditure of areawide revenues on a non-areawide bases.

AS 29.48.220
(City of St. Mary's)
The audit requrement is burdensome for the City. As a first class city we are required to provide a certified audit of city finances. Second class cities need only submit certified financial statements prepared by the city bookkeeper. The City obtains little advantage and no tangible benefit from this requirement. The only people who review the audit are from DCRA. The audit requirement should not be tied to city class.

AS 29.48.220(cont'd)
(City of St. Mary's)
The audit requirement should not be tied to city class. Rather, the requirement should depend upon the size of the budget. It is the amount of money the city spends that justifies audits. Financial statements should be sufficient for cities with budgets less than one million.

AS 29.48.250
(Gerald L. Sharp)
Since our supreme court seems to believe that a borough may not require central purchasing to include a school district, this section does not appear to have much, if any need. It should be deleted, as I believe this power is already possessed by a municipality.

AS 29.48.260
(Richard W. Garnett, III)
Vote on sale of property over $25,000 is unduly burdensome.

AS 29.48.260
(Gerald L. Sharp)
I believe the exemption which is set forth in (d) should be expanded to encompass any land which the municipality disposes of.

AS 29.48.260
(City of St. Mary's)
I consider this to be the most troublesome provision in Title 29 for rural communities. Through the Department of Community and Regional Affairs the City has requested an Attorney General's opinion on some of the requirements of this provision and has recently received a Community Legal Assistance Grant to determine the effect the statute has on land disposal in St. Mary's.

AS 29.48.260(cont'd)
(City of St. Mary's)
First the requirement of appraisals on land before disposal are difficult when most rural land is difficult if not impossible to appraise because comparable sales do not exist. Public auctions may cause the price of land to escalate beyond the means of local residents to afford, and may inhibit local residents who do not speak English from participating in auctions.

AS 29.48.260(cont'd)
(City of St. Mary's)
The words "if any" in subsection (c)(3) seem to indicate public auction or sealed bids are optional but this is not clear. Cities should have the option of developing disposal procedures appropriate to its locality. Such procedures should be ratified by the voters.

AS 29.48.260
(Allan E. Tesche)
Provisions of this section governing disposal of municipal properties should be clarified and revised to reflect increased land values throughout the state, to state who makes determinations of the value of land offered for sale and the date upon which such valuations must be based. Moreover, the statute should be clarified to either include or exclude rights-of-way or easements from its provisions.

AS 29.48.270(b)(c)
(Gerald L. Sharp)
These two sections do not seem to have anything to do with the catch line nor with the two remaining subsections. I am not sure why (b) is required in the first place unless it is to make the transfer of this one power optional rather than mandatory as required under AS 29.33.260. These two sections should be moved to a section dealing with a general grant of powers or with the transfer of powers.

AS 29.48.310
(Gerald L. Sharp)
(& 29.48.320, & 330) Although these sections seem to be very comprehensive, it appears that our courts prefer a contrary rule. Either we need to strengthen the language in these sections or we need to print up a Miranda Rights card which we can read to the judge every time we go into court over a municipal powers question.

AS 29.53.
(Allan E. Tesche)
Should be aneded to require payment of all taxes, even those due for more recent assessments on properties whose owners have requested issue of a quitclaim repurchase deed. Present law mandates issue of a quitclaim repurchase deed to the owner of record upon payment of those taxes assessed for the tax year stated in the clerk's deed even though the same property is the subject of other foreclosure proceedings brought in subsequent years.

AS 29.53.(cont'd)
(Allan E. Tesche)
An amendment to AS 29.53 which would require payment of all taxes owing on a parcel before a quitclaim repurchase deed can be issued would eliminate substantial confusion in the minds of taxpayers, and would reduce administrative complexity for borough finance departments presently confronted with multiple foreclosure actions on the same parcels.

AS 29.53.010
(Richard W. Garnett, III)
Permit exemption of all personalty or of various classes.

AS 29.53.010
(Gerald L. Sharp)
Again the problem of how this is to apply to unified units of government; also, this section should be changed to permit the use of areawide revenues on a non-areawide bases.

AS 29.53.020
(Clara M. Eccles)
Extend property tax exemption to include disabled veterans of any age.

AS 29.53.020(a)(1)
(Gerald L. Sharp)
Some place in the code we need to deal with the method of valuing privately held interests in tax exempt property.

AS 29.53.020(a)(3)
(Gerald L. Sharp)
A number of problems arise from the lack of definitions of terms such as religious, charitable, educational, and perhaps hospital, which are used in this section. Aslo, there is a question which arises relating to when a property which is owned by, for example, a religious organization, becomes exempt;

AS 29.53.020(a)(3) (cont'd)
(Gerald L. Sharp)
for example, does vacant land become exempt when it is first purchased by an exempt organization, when the organization has an intent to devote it to a particular exempt use, when the organization commences construction of a facility which will be used for the exempt purpose even though during construction it is not being used for the exempt purpose? (b)(2)(B)

AS 29.53.025(b)(1)
(Richard W. Garnett, III)
Clarify "delegation" of powers to service areas.

AS 29.53.030
(Gerald L. Sharp)
This section should be revised to reflect a realistic value for mining claims, particularly in light of the recent rise in the price of gold.

AS 29.53.060
(Gerald L. Sharp)
Perhaps this is a section in which the valuation of leasehold and other possessory interest in tax exempt property should be exempt.

AS 29.53.080
(Ribert H. Ziegler, Sr.)
Assessors should not be allowed to have access to sale price of property by requesting this information from buyers or sellers.

AS 29.53.135
(Gerald L. Sharp)
This section should be clarified to indicate whether a majority of the number of members of the assembly. Also, either here or someplace else in the code, we should specifically address whether or not the Board of Equalization has the authority to determine whether property is exempt, and, if exempt, how much of the property is exempt if it is not totally devoted to exempt use.

AS 29.53.135
(Allan E. Tesche)
The language regarding the composition of the Board of Equalization is unclear. The statute presently requires "at least that number of members of the assembly over and above the number required for a quorum to transact business"; the statute is unclear when applied to a lay board to whom the equalization function is delegated.

AS 29.53.150
(Gerald L. Sharp)
A question arises as to whether property which goes from exempt property on January 1 of the tax year to non-exempt because of a change of use during the tax year can be put on a supplemental roll and taxed. Also, if it can be, should the taxes be a portion? In addition, something should be placed in the code to provide guidance for dealing with personal property which is in the municipality for only a part of the year.

AS 29.53.180
(Gerald L. Sharp)
This section should be changed to reflect a reasonable interest rate and a penalty which is substantially above the interest.

AS 29.53.415
(Gerald L. Sharp)
(& 29.53.440) Something needs to be added to these sections to take care of problem created by the Alaska Supreme Court when it ruled that there was no statutory authority for a general law municipality to establish a lead for sales taxes.

AS 29.58.
(Ben T. Delahay
A new section should be added authorizing that an ordinance for refunding bonds be passed on one hearing, at either a regular or special meeting, and with only the normal majority vote.

AS 29.63.
(Ben T. Delahay)
The chapter on service areas should be clarified; there is too much authority in the assembly to handle decisions in the service area which should be made by the people paying the taxes in the area.

AS 29.63.
(Bruce Aronson)
Community councils should be advisory only by statute and money from the state for service areas ought to be appropriated for the city, not the local council.

AS 29.63.090(e)
(Richard W. Garnett, III)
Clarify "delegation" of powers to service areas.

AS 29.63.090
(Elsie O'Brien)
Loans by borough to service area should be subject to prior approval by voters within the service area.

AS 29.63.090
(Allan E. Tesche)
The present statute governing service areas does not adequately address the question of whether a service area may be used for exercise of a governmental regulatory power rather than for provision of municipal or services.

AS 29.68.
((Bruce Aronson)
Statutes should be changed so that cities are not able to annex territory without providing services to the annexed area and so that people living outside cities who are receiving services pay for them.

AS 29.68.010(cont d)
(City of St. Mary s)
The delay in time between the decision of the Local Boundary commission and the legislative disapproval time is unnecessary and can lead to legal complications. Since the legislature has never disapproved a Boundary Commission decision it seems this requirement of submission to the legislature has little utility. A workable alternative might be to preserve a right to appeal a boundary commission decision to the legislature.

AS 29.68.010
(City of St. Mary's)
The City recently annexed an adjacent community into its boundary. In order to facilitate the annexation the City wanted to and did make major concessions to the citizens of the adjacent community with respect to a voice in City affairs. Technically what the City has done is not legal because the annexation is not finalized until 45 days after the next legislative section has begun.

AS 29.73.020
(Gerald L. Sharp)
This section needs to be divided into two subsections to separate the procedures for home rule and general law municipalities from those for second class municipalities. Presently, there is some question as to whether the last two sentences of the section apply only to second class cities or whether it applies to all municipalities.

AS 29.78.101(16)
(Richard W. Garnett, III)
Definition of "subdivision"; consider application to division for leasing, as by holders of oil leases.

General Revision Suggestions - Title 29

AS 29
(Tanana Chiefs Conference, Inc.)
Do not create new forms of local government in the unorganized borough, but rather recognize the traditional governments currently operating.

(Tanana Chiefs Conference, Inc.)
Allow local government to contract for the providing of state services, so that programs can be administered locally.

(Tanana Chiefs Conference, Inc.)
Coordinated regional planning should be done by existing local governments on a voluntary basis through the formation of consortiums of existing governments. These would be allowed to jointly exercise authority outside of their local boundaries.

(Tanana Chiefs Conference, Inc.)
Reduce municipal liability by raising the standard of municipal tort liability for only those official acts involving, "wanton and willful" conduct rather than mere negligence. Municipal ordinances and regulations should be assimilated into state law to allow state prosecution of local violations.

(Tanana Chiefs Conference, Inc.)
Alternatives for fuller local participation in the unorganized borough in state action:

1. A community or consortium must agree to agency actions/plans affecting the community. In the absence of consent, the agency would have to show, in a locally neutral administrative hearing, that the best interest of the state requires the action/plan.

2. Communities or consortiums produce regional plans with which state agencies must comply or get a waiver from the community or proceed through a local neutral hearing.

3. Agencies could be required to have local plans/actions approved after a local hearing by a local hearing officer.

SUMMARY OF SUGGESTIONS - TITLE 29 REVISION COMMISSION, Cook, 10/7/80

AS 29.
(Ernst Mueller)
[Also applicable to AS 46.07.020(2)] Replace the term "village" with "eligible rural community".

AS 29.
(David Dye, Planner III, C&RA)
Improve the index.

AS 29.
(Richard Careaga)
Consider replacing present local planning provisions with the Model Land Development Code (1975). Particularly consider the Code's division of responsibilities between state and local planning.

AS 29.
(Richard Careaga)
Tie other provisions located on other titles to Title 29, AS 46.35 in particular, if they impose obligations on local governments in addition to those set out in Title 29.

AS 29.
(Ivan Widom)
Reconsider the 40% runoff election and perhaps remove that requirement.

AS 29.
(Frederick McGinnis)
Allow for local administration of DHSS programs. See "Outline of Discussion Topic".

AS 29.08.
(Allan Tesche)
Adopt uniform definitions of "municipality", "borough", and use the terms consistently throughout the title.

SUMMARY OF SUGGESTIONS - TITLE 29 REVISION COMMISSION, Cook, 10/7/80

AS 29.08.010
(Gerald L. Sharp)
(& 29.13.010 & 100, & 29.78.010(1)(2)(8)
A careful reading of the code indicates that a unified unit of home rule local government is not a municipality. Under these sections, it is not a home rule municipality. If this was the intent, it should be clarified in the definitions. Along this same line, all sections which apply to home rule boroughs and home rule cities should be reviewed to determine whether they should also apply to unified units.

AS 29.08.020
(Gerald L. Sharp)
An interpretive guide should be provided for the the court so that it does not seize upon this section to revive Dillon's rule.

AS 29.13.100
(Richard W. Garnett, III)(Allan E. Tesche)
Clarify criteria for application of non-title 29 provisions to home rule, maybe require inclusion in laundry list.

AS 29.13.100
(Gerald L. Sharp)
The effect of th phrase "acting otherwise than as provided" should be examined to determine wheth this phrase means that a home rule municipality may do neither more nor less than is prescribed for home rule municipalities. See the Whitson case.

AS 29.18.
(Richard W. Garnett, III)
Clarify rights to VUU land vis a vis state classification under AS 38.

AS 29.18.
(David Dye, Planner III, C&RA)
Eliminate or restructure provisions dealing with development cities.

AS 29.18.130
(Gerald L. Sharp)
We should probably address REAA's under this section.

AS 29.18.140(a)(b)
(Gerald L. Sharp)
This section implies that a newly incorporated city or borough may succeed a home rule or previously incorporated general law city or borough. Was this meant?

AS 29.18.180
(Gerald L. Sharp)
Organizational grants under this section appear to be inadequate.

AS 29.18.330
(Gerald L. Sharp)
The resident training and hire preference should be examined for constitutionality.

AS 29.23.025(e)(9)
(Marjorie Gorsuch)
Clarify what happens to the reapportionment order if a reapportionment ordinance has not been approved by the voters.

AS 29.23.029
(Marjorie Gorsuch)
There should be additional provisions for judicial review and relief.

AS 29.23.031
(Marjorie Gorsuch)
There should be additional provisions for judicial review and relief.

AS 29.23.040
(Gerald L. Sharp)
(et.seq.) The residency requirements, terms of officers, powers, duties, and the procedures for the changing of terms and qualificiations of officers as these relate to the mayor, council, and assembly members should be uniform as between a city and a borough.

AS 29.23.050
(Allan E. Tesche)
The statutory residence requirement prescribed in this section is probably invalid. It is suggested that such residence requirements throughout AS 29 be reduced to a maximum of one year.

AS 29.23.060(a)
(Gerald L. Sharp)
This section implies that there may be no special meetings if any member is not notified.

AS 29.23.060(d)
(Gerald L. Sharp)
Some consideration should be give to reducing the quorum voting requirement by one vote for every two members of the body who are present who do not vote because they either have a conflict of interest or have been excused by the legislative body.

AS 29.23.060(d)
(Allan E. Tesche)
Circumstances, other than financial interests, which allow a member to abstain should be better defined.

AS 29.23.070
(Gerald L. Sharp)
This section seems to provide an unnecessary infringement of the chief administrator's prerogatives in appointing department heads.

AS 29.23.070 &
(City of St. Mary's)
(& 29.43.040) The mandatory language of this section should be permissive. The wisdom of comprehensive plans and complicated zoning requirements are still subject to professional debate and Cities should have the option to develop other methods of control.

SUMMARY OF SUGGESTIONS - TITLE 29 REVISION COMMISSION, Cook, 10/7/80

AS 29.23.080
(Gerald L. Sharp)
This section should be checked to determine whether it tracks with the new procedures on reapportionment as it relates to council appointments and dual seats.

AS 29.23 080
(Allan E. Tesche)
The procedure for determining vacancies under this section conflicts with the procedure established under AS 29.23.570.

AS 29.23.130(B)
(Allan E. Tesche)
Once again, the three residency requirement in this section should probably be reduced to one year to assure its constitutional validity.

AS 29.23.150
(Allan E. Tesche)
(& 29.23.470) Both require assembly appointment of an acting borough manager in the absence of or disability of the manager. If these sections address different policy questions, they are unclear; if they do not, one should be eliminated as redundant.

AS 29.23.170
(Allan E. Tesche)
This provision does not specify when a veto becomes effective or specify any time limit for the overriding of the veto. Moreover, it does not indicate what is the status of an ordinance between the time its veto is announced and the time the Assembly first has an opportunity to override the veto.

AS 29.23.170(cont'd)
(Allan E. Tesche)
For instance, if the mayor vetos a line item in the budget, may expenditures be made under that item until the mayor announces the veto at the next regular assembly meeting, or does the veto immediately strike the item until the veto is overridden?

AS 29.23.200
(Allan E. Tesche)
The three year residency requirement here is also probably invalid.

AS 29.23.210
(Gerald L. Sharp)
Does this require four votes on a procedural motion? This language should parallel the similar provisions for boroughs and both should be clarified as to whether there is a distinction between procedural and substantive motions.

AS 29.23.210
(Allan E. Tesche)
As with the provisions for boroughs, this section should provide more definite standards for abstention on other than conflict of interest grounds.

AS 29.23.250
(Allan E. Tesche)
Another probably invalid three year residency requirement.

AS 29.23.270
(Allan E. Tesche)
This provision has the same ambiguities with regard to the effectiveness of a veto and a veto override as the provision applying to boroughs.

AS 29.23.310
(Gerald L. Sharp)
Reference within this section to repeal Section 100 should be corrected.

AS 29.23.340(d)
(Gerald L. Sharp)
Perhaps this section should be clarified to permit the board to set rates.

AS 29.23.360
(Gerald L. Sharp)
My question why there appears to be authority for the assembly or council to appoint administrative officers such as the treasurer and chief of police who do not serve the council or the assembly but must respond to the chief administrative officer.

AS 29.23.370
(Gerald L. Sharp)
I question whether there may not be a conflict of interest for an attorney to provide legal advice to both the legislative and administrative branches. Perhaps there should be a specific extension of the authority of the legislative body to retain its own legal counsel. Next, I question whether there isn't a conflict of interest for the clerk to serve two different masters, the legislative body, and the chief administrator.

AS 29.23.395
(Gerald L. Sharp)
(Through .401) This sort of specific legislation ought to be deleted. If some sort of authority of this sort is required, it should be addressed in the general grant of powers.

AS 29.23.470
(Gerald L. Sharp)
I question why the manager has no authority to appoint a temporary or interim manager during his own temporary absence.

AS 29.23.480
(Gerald L. Sharp)
I suggest that the adoption of an ordinance at the very next meeting after the repeal of manager plan is expecting too much of any council or assembly considering the careful deliberation which should be given to the reorganization.

AS 29.23.540
(Gerald L. Sharp)
The seriousness of the conflict of interest which exists when an employee of the school board serves on the body which determines the school board's budget but is not lessened in any way by the existence of subsection (c) of this section. This section should be repealed. Also, it appears that this section would permit a person working in the grants section of the Department of C&RA to serve on an assembly or a council.

AS 29.23.555
(Allan E. Tesche)
This section has been superceded by AS 39.50.

AS 29.23.570
(City of St. Mary's)
This year the City had one councilman leave town without resigning before departure. The City needed to fill the vacancy quickly. None of the provisions of 29.23.570 were helpful. However, 29.23.200 provides that a councilman who ceases to be a city voter immediately forfeits his office. The Council used this provision to justify filling the vacancy immediately. This provision of section 23.200 should be included under section 23.570.

AS 29.25.110
(Richard W. Garnett, III)(Allan E. Tesche)
Clarify application of public records law to municipality.

AS 29.28.
(Bruce Aronson)
Once a sufficient petition has been accepted, members of the council should not be able to resign and be re-appointed to the council.

AS 29.28.
(Bruce Aronson)
Statutes should be clear that the local recall effort is based on the last regular municipal election for purposes of determining the number of signatures required on a petition.

AS 29.28.
(Bruce Aronson)
A transition period should be provided by statute to allow a person recalled to service for a while after the recall election has been certified to allow a government to continue to operate.

AS 29.28.015
(Gerald L. Sharp)
I question why the mayor in a manager-type municipality should not be permitted to be a member of the legislative body so long as he does not have the veto power. This seems to be something that should be left to local option.

AS 29.28.030
(Gerald L. Sharp)
It is not clear, under this section, how one deals with a person who has been present within the municipality for more than 30 days but who does not register with the State of Alaska until four days before the election. It appears they might be qualified to vote in the municipal election as they will certainly be qualified to vote in the next state election.

AS 29.28.040
(Richard W. Garnett, III)
More specificity as to whether recall may be based on "political" factors.

SUMMARY OF SUGGESTIONS - TITLE 29 REVISION COMMISSION, Cook, 10/7/80

AS 29.28.070(b)
(Richard W. Garnett, III)
Service area initiatives are potential problems; could lead to "Balkanization" of municipalities.

AS 29.28.070(b)
(Richard W. Garnett, III)(Allan Tesche)
Standardize use of "general" and "regular" as to elections to avoid uncertainty as to required number of signatures.

AS 29.28.080(a)
(Gerald L. Sharp)
This section implies that the initiative ordinance or resolution must be something within the power of the assembly or council and must not fall within the restrictions of Section 60; however, it appears that the assembly or council may reject the initiative only if it is within the restrictions of Section 60. I also believe that this section should be tightened up to make it clear that the

AS 29.28.080(a)(cont'd)
(Gerald L. Sharp)
initiative process may not be used to take what are essentially administrative actions even though the assembly or council itself may take such actions by ordinance or resolution.

AS 29.28.090(b)
(Richard W. Garnett, III)
Not specifically provided that assembly may not immediately repeal ordinance enacted under threat of initiative.

AS 29.28.110
(Gerald L. Sharp)
This section establishes an observed public policy and should be modified to parallel the more liberal provisions which we find in our state constitution.

AS 29.28.130
(Bruce Aronson)(Lee Sharp)
Change provision so that all officials would be subject to recall after six months in office. The six month grace period would not apply if a person is re-elected to the same office.

AS 29.28.130
(Allan E. Tesche)
(Et. seq.) Statutory provisions governing recall contents do not clearly define signature requirements by distinguishing between at large and district forms of representation. AS 29.28.070(b) should be redrafted to state required percentages of votes cast for Assemblymen who are elected in districts and who are elected at large.

AS 29.28.140
(Bruce Aronson)
Grounds for recall are too narrow.

SUMMARY OF SUGGESTIONS - TITLE 29 REVISION COMMISSION, Cook, 10/7/80

AS 29.28.140
(Gerald L. Sharp)
This section should be changed to make it clear that elected officials may not be recalled for the manner in which they exercised a duty, e.g., the way they vote on a particular issue, but that they can be recalled for having voted on an issue on which they are prohibited from voting. They could be recalled for refusing to vote when they had neither a conflict nor been excused from voting.

AS 29.28.140 (cont'd)
(Gerald L. Sharp)
They could be recalled for failing to file a report required of individual public officials. They could not be recalled for having voted in favor of doing something prescribed by law nor could they be recalled for voting against doing something which is required by law.

AS 29.28.140
(JoAnne Shanley)
There could be an argument made for consistency between this section and AS 15.45.510 which provides the grounds for recall of state officials.

AS 29.28.150
(Bruce Aronson) (Lee Sharp)
A recall petition should be required to contain the mailing address of each person who signs it and a separate petition should be filed for each person sought to be recalled. Statement of grounds should be limited to 200 words.

AS 29.28.150
(JoAnne Shanley)
This section should be rewritten to include a requirement of the name and office of the person (singular) to be recalled and a clarification that if more than one official is considered for recall a petition for each individual must be circulated.

AS 29.28.160
(Gerald L. Sharp)
Either the clerk of the assembly or council should be given specific authority to review the petition for more than merely the superficial contents requirements. This determination should also go to whether or not the ground stated, if true, constitute grounds for repeal.

AS 29.28.170
(Gerald L. Sharp)
I question why petitioners should have an additional ten days to gather signatures. Why not give them 70 days to begin with or just cut them off at 60? If the petitioners cannot do some of the leg work themselves of determining how many valid signatures they have collected, there seems to be little in public policy to require they be give an additional ten days for their sloppiness or inadequate performance.

SUMMARY OF SUGGESTIONS - TITLE 29 REVISION COMMISSION, Cook, 10/7/80

AS 29.28.180
(Bruce Aronson)
A new petition should not be filed sooner than six months after the original is rejected for insufficient content. However, the waiting period should not apply when a petition is rejected for lack of signatures.

AS 29.28.190
(Elsie O'Brien)
Add a requirement that the city council and city officials perform, with reference to recall petitions, within a time certain.

AS 29.28.190
(JoAnne Shanley)
The present wording is too vague with the use of the word "immediately" and should specify a specific time frame, i.e. 10 days.

AS 29.28.200(c)
(Gerald L. Sharp)
If a public official who is the subject of a sufficient recall petition resigns prior to the election, and his name is removed from the recall ballot, may he then be reappointed to his position by the remaining members prior to the recall election? May he be reappointed after the recall election?

AS 29.28.210
(Gerald L. Sharp)
If we permit one petition to contain more than one name, how should the names appear on the ballot, separately so that the voters may express their desires as to each public official individually or should there be a single ballot giving the voters the same choice which the petitioners gave the petition signers, i.e., all or none?

AS 29.28.250
(Jack Chenoweth)
Include a provision somewhere by which a state officer has authority to appoint municipal voters to fill elected city or borough offices when the number of members drops below the number required to produce a quorum.

AS 29.28.250
(Gerald L. Sharp)
What happens when an entire assembly, city council, or school board are recalled? There should be some mechanism for providing for an interim legislative body.

AS.29.33.
(Allan E. Tesche)
The current language of this chapter, as it incorporates a traditional definition of zoning and makes zoning along with platting the principal means of land use regulations, is unduly restructive and should be revised to allow more innovative forms of land use regulation by boroughs and municipalities.

AS 29.33.
(Allan E. Tesche)
Should there be a provision for a borough to exercise a power in some but not all cities (for example in second class cities but not in first class cities?)

AS 29.33.
(Ivan Widom)
Boroughs have too much power. A borough should not plan for a city.

AS 29.33.010
(Gerald L. Sharp)
Some place here, and perhaps other sections, we should deal with the almost impossible antitrust situation which the United States Supreme Court cast upon us in it's Lafayette decision.

AS 29.33.050
(Gerald L. Sharp)
While the section is drafted so that it uses parallel verbs, I believe the "establishes, maintains, and operates" phrase should be changed to read " and shall establish, maintain, and operate".

AS 29.33.070
(Allan E. Tesche)
It is unclear whether platting powers can be delegated to a second class borough or a city within the borough under this section.

AS 29.33.070
(Allan E. Tesche)
(Through 29.33.245) Serious thought should be given to the purpose of the planning, platting, and zoning provisions in this code. Should they only prescribe minimum due process standards for rezonings and other land use decisions or should they detail all of the administrative procedures to be followed by local governments in this area. This article presently tries to do little of both and does neither very well.

AS 29.33.070(b)
(JoAnne Shanley)
Redraft to read: If a first class or home city is located more than 25 miles from the boundary of the borough seat, the planning, platting and zoning responsibilities within the city may be exercised by the city after a city ordinances providing for the exercise thereof is approved by a majority of the electors within the city voting on the question at a regular or special election or by council ordinance.

AS 29.33.070(b)(2)
(David Dye, Planner III, C&RA)
Do not allow a borough to delegate planning authority to a city, but allow only the delegation of administrative and enforcement responsibilities.

SUMMARY OF SUGGESTIONS - TITLE 29 REVISION COMMISSION, Cook, 10/7/80

AS 29.33.080(e)
(Gerald L. Sharp)
Consideration should also be give here to reducing the majority vote requirement where there are two or more members of the commission who are present but do not vote because of a conflict of interest or because they have been excused by the remaining members.

AS 29.33.080(f)
(David Dye, Planner III, C&RA)
Require the assembly to adopt rules and regulations by ordinance. In the alternative, add a section requiring regulations of all municipal boards, commissions, and departments to be codified and published.

AS 29.33.080(b)(4)
(David Dye, Planner III, C&RA)
Define the term "official map".

AS 29 33.085(b)
(Gerald L. Sharp)
The requirement that the commission present new recommendations on a comprehensive plane very two years should be redrafted so that it does not appear that the continued validity of the zoning ordinance is dependent upon such a review and so that it soes not appear that there is any question as to the validity of an ordinance which is adopted pursuant to a comprehensive plan which has not been reviewed for more than two years.

AS 29.33.085(b)(cont'd)
(Gerald L. Sharp)
Also, it may not hurt to throw in some sort of language within the planning and zoning article to make it clear that the adoption of any zoning map change is a legislative and discretionary act and is not administrative as some state supreme courts seem to believe.

AS 29.33.090
(David Dye, Planner III, C&RA)
Eliminate the use of the term "zoning" and use "land use regulation". Add enabling legislation for the transfer of development rights.

AS 29.33.110(b)(1)
(Gerald L. Sharp)
I strongly suggest that we not make the Board of Adjustment the board which hears appeals from building code enforcement actions. Some municipalities may prefer to place building code enforcement under some other department such as public works.

AS 29.33.110(b)(1)(cont'd)
(Gerald L. Sharp)
The authority of the Board of Adjustment to hear building code appeals should be optional with the municipality. Also, whether the assembly or council sits as the Board of Adjustment should also be optional with the municipality.

AS 29.33.110(b)(3)
(Gerald L. Sharp)
It is not clear what the phrase "which are not contrary to the public interest" modifies, "the zoning ordinance", or "requests...".

AS 29.33.120
(Gerald L. Sharp)
It appears that a person may file for a variance or conditional use, be denied that application, and yet proceed with the denied use if they appeal to the Board of Adjustment because the appeal, under the terms of this section, stays any enforcement where imminent peril is not involved.

AS 29.33.130(b)
(Gerald L. Sharp)
I question whether the legislature, and more particularly an assembly, has any authority to establish what the court may well consider as a procedural rule relating to establishing the time within which one may file an appeal to the superior court.

AS 29.33.150
(Gerald L. Sharp)
It might be wise to indicate in this section that the platting board has authority to require subdivision exactions.

AS 29.33.150(b)
(Gerald L. Sharp)
(& 29.33.169(c)) These sections need to be revised out of the code.

AS 29.33.150(a)
(David Dye, Planner III, C&RA)
Explicitly state that all subdivisions are required to be platted and that plats must be recorded. Integrate AS 40.15 into Title 29.

AS 29.33.170
(David Dye, Planner III, C&RA)
Modify waiver provisions and add authority for short subdivisions. See model provision.

AS 29.33.170(a)(1)
(Gerald L. Sharp)
I suggest it be made clear in here that adequate access does not include access over other privately owned land by way of an easement in favor of the applicant. Adequate access consists solely of access by dedicated or publicly owned ways.

SUMMARY OF SUGGESTIONS - TITLE 29 REVISION COMMISSION, Cook, 10/7/80

AS 29.33.190
This section needs to be beefed up by incorporating administrative procedures to prevent the recording of instruments which create unlawful subdivisions.

AS 29.33.190
(Allan E. Tesche)
This section makes it unlawful for any person to sell or attempt to sell land located within a subdivision which hs not yet been approved by the borough platting authority and subjects violators to certain criminal sanctions. But AS 29.53.100 requires that the borough assessor assess real property to "the owner of record as shown on the records of the district recorder" even though that person may be the owner of record by virtue of an illegal subdivision in violation of AS 29.33.190. Moreover, AS 29.53.310 allows persons holding security interest in illegally subdivided lands to obtain release for portions of lots or tracts originally subdivided even though such lands were illegally subdivided in violation of AS 29.33.190.

AS 29.33.190(cont'd)
(Allan E. Tesche)

AS 29.33.200
(Gerald L. Sharp)
This section needs to be coordinated with the procedures under the condemnation sections of Title 9 which require the state to submit its property acquisitions in condemnation proceedings to the platting board.

AS 29.33.240
(Gerald L. Sharp)
I question why a second class city located outside an organized borough may obtain title to vacated ways if they intend to use the way for some other public purpose, while within an organized borough the property goes to the abutting owner. I also wonder why parks, greenbelts, and other areas which are vacated are split between abutting property owners while the title to a public square vests in a municipality upon vacation.

AS 29.33.250
(Allan E. Tesche)
Presumably the transfer required is one from all cities exercising the power rather than from a city.

AS 29.38.
Should there be a provision for a borough to exercise a power in some but not all cities (for example in second class cities but not in first class cities?)

AS 29.41.
(Bruce Aronson) (Lee Sharp)
Eliminate third class boroughs. Re-examine idea.

SUMMARY OF SUGGESTIONS - TITLE 29 REVISION COMMISSION, Cook, 10/7/80

AS 29.41.
(David Dye)
Specifically include or exclude all or part of the provisions of AS 29.48., expecially 29.48.010 and 29.48.260.

AS 29.48.
(Richard W. Garnett, III)
Consider need for APUC regulation of municipality owned utilities.

AS 29.48.
(David Dye, Planner III, C&RA)
Add a new section allowing preferences in land being disposed of to individuals to certain classes of people (heads of household, non-owners of real property) to avoid the use of durational residency requirements. Allow a preference for people who have occupied land after December 18, 1971. See proposed draft.

AS 29.48.010
(Gerald L. Sharp)
I question the need for such subsections as (1)(2)(3) and (5) as these all seem to relate to internal administrative matters which are clearly within the authority of the municipality. Some of these sound more like delegations of authority to a specific branch within the municipality. Also, I believe some consideration should be given to whether or not there should be a catch-all grant clause.

AS 29.48.010(cont'd)
Gerald L. Sharp
Also, something should or could be added to this section to clarify the authority of the municipality to establish and enforce liens for the collection of sales taxes. There might also be a section clearly authorizing the municipality to establish both minimum and non-suspendible penalties for violation of municipal ordinances.

AS 29.48.010(9)
(David Dye, Planner III, C&RA)
Rewrite to provide procedureal safeguards (the action be done by ordinance). Allow for land exchanges between municipalities and private persons. Under ANSCA, municipalities will receive land for future municipal expansion, but some municipalities will not be able to select land which is near the municipality because land is not available. It would be advantageous to allow for exchange of inconveniently located parcels.

AS 29.48.020
(David Dye, Planner III, C&RA)
This section should be placed in another chapter. It does not deal with "Powers Applicable to All Municipalties".

AS 29.48.030
(Bruce Aronson)
There should be a clear statutory statement as to when a city rather than the state must provide local enforcement services and what type of enforcement services a city must provide.

AS 29.48.030
(Palmer McCarter)
Clarify whether "health and hospital power" is one or two separate local powers.

AS 29.48.030
(Gerald L. Sharp)
This may be the appropriate section to deal with the Lafayette antitrust problems. Under subsection (b), someone to check to determine whether the reference to the Alaska Transportation Commission makes sense in the light of SB 577. (Sorry, I do not have the bill with me as I dictate this.)

AS 29.48.030(b)
(Allan E. Tesche)
(& 29.48.035(b)&(c)) These provisions are redundant. The limitations on the powers of second class boroughs should be stated in a more concise fashion in one easily accessible part of the code. Moreover, AS 29.48.030 and .35, insomuch as those sections distinguish between "regulation" and provision of "municipal facilities and services", are at the very least confusing and perhaps unnecessary.

AS 29.48.030(b)(cont'd)
(Allan E. Tesche)
(& 29.48.035(b)&(c)) Reference to powers granted to second class boroughs to construct and maintain Local Service Road and Trails under AS 19.30.251 should be made in this section. Reference to the power granted to local governments to regulate use of public streets, alleys, and other public places under AS 42.05.251 should be made in AS 29.48.035 or AS 29.48.020.

AS 29.48.030(a)(12)
(Allan E. Tesche)
The term transportation "system" used in this section should be defined.

AS 29.48.033
(Gerald L. Sharp)
Again, I do not have the 1980 legislation which effected state regulatory authority over cable television, transportation services, and garbage disposal but I believe what the legislature (industry) did should be carefully reviewed.

AS 29.48.035(14)
(JoAnne Shanley)
"building, housing and related codes, which may be provided by cities within cities..." needs rewording (cities within its own boundaries?)

AS 29.48.037
(JoAnne Shanley)
(b) states that a city can protect its watersheds and enforce such protection outside its boundaries ONLY upon the approval, by ordinance, of the municipality where the watersheds are located. This poses a problem when a city tries to exercise the protection of its water supply which lies outside the city limits but within the organized borough and where the borough is not actively involved in any such protection but refuses to allow the city to exercise such.

AS 29.48.037(cont'd)
(JoAnne Shanley)
If a borough has, in effect, veto power over the city's action in this regard, the borough government should be required to be actively involved in the exercise of such protected activity itself.

AS 29.48.050
(Gerald L. Sharp)
I question whether there is any justified public policy behind requiring franchises to be granted by ordinance ratified by the voters. This has serious Lafayette antitrust implications. It seems that a public utility ought to be granted a permit so long as they can show public convenience and necessity.

AS 29.48.050(d)
(JoAnne Shanley)
Redraft to read: For purposes of AS 29.48.050 - .070 a public utility which is not regulated as to rates and services by the Alaska Public Utilities Commission shall not be considered as regulated by AS 42.05.

AS 29.48.070
(Gerald L. Sharp)
(& 29.48.080 & 48.090) The idea of a council or assembly sitting through a protracted rate setting hearing is preposterous. Any hearing which the ordinary council or assembly would sit still through could not possibly adequate to justify a rate. Also, it is beyond me why the rates should be established by ordinance.

AS 29.48.100(b)
(Gerald L. Sharp)
Not only are the preceeding utility regulations outmoded, it seems ludicrous to have them apply to home rule municipalities.

AS 29.48.110
(Gerald L. Sharp)
AS 29.48.110 should be changed to make it clear that a municipality may establish more than a single historic district.

AS 29.48.130(5)
(Richard W. Garnett, III)
No need to require ordinance for routine fund transfers.

AS 29.48.150(a)
(Richard W. Garnett, III)
Majority required to set ordinance for hearing. Should be less.

AS 29.48.150
(Ivan Widom)
Clarify the number of times an ordinance should be voted upon.

AS 29.48.160(b)
(Gerald L. Sharp)
If the procedure for regulating utilities and granting franchises has changed, this section should probably also be changed to correspond.

AS 29.48.170
(Richard W. Garnett, III)
Need some procedure for enacting municipal regulations.

AS 29.48.190(b)
(Gerald L. Sharp)
This section seems to imply that a municipality may enter into an obligation to make payments in a future year if it does so by ordinance. If this happens, I think you have a debt which must have first been approved by the voters and before a capitol improvement.

AS 29.48.190
(City of St. Mary's)
Subsection (c) is unclear with respect to the procedures that must be followed to make transfer and supplemental appropriations. The language providing that no payment may be made except in accordance with appropriations may be troublesome in that it could be interpreted to give the City no leeway with respect to spending except through lengthy procedures to amend the budget.

AS 29.48.190 (cont'd)
(City of St. Mary's)
The suggested budget ordinance sent each year to municipalities by Community and Regional Affairs is more flexible and preferable but may not be legal under 29.48.190. This section should be changed to permit transfers without budget amendment if less than 10% or $10,000 whichever is less of the original appropriation.

AS 29.48.200
(Gerald L. Sharp)
The fine limitation and imprisonment limitation both need to be raised. In addition, this may be the appropriate place to specifically authorize municipalities to establish both minimum fines and imprisonments and to provide clear authority for municipalities to make certain penalties non-suspendible.

SUMMARY OF SUGGESTIONS - TITLE 29 REVISION COMMISSION, Cook, 10/7/80

AS 29.48.210
(Gerald L. Sharp)
This section is a good example of the need to carefully distinguish between boroughs and cities on the one hand and unified units on the other. In any event, I believe this section should be changed to permit the expenditure of areawide revenues on a non-areawide bases.

AS 29.48.220
(City of St. Mary's)
The audit requirement is burdensome for the City. As a first class city we are required to provide a certified audit of city finances. Second class cities need only submit certified financial statements prepared by the city bookkeeper. The City obtains little advantage and no tangible benefit from this requirement. The only people who review the audit are from DCRA. The audit requirement should not be tied to city class.

AS 29.48.220(cont'd)
(City of St. Mary's)
The audit requirement should not be tied to city class. Rather, the requirement should depend upon the size of the budget. It is the amount of money the city spends that justifies audits. Financial statements should be sufficient for cities with budgets less than one million.

AS 29.48.250
(Gerald L. Sharp)
Since our supreme court seems to believe that a borough may not require central purchasing to include a school district, this section does not appear to have much, if any need. It should be deleted, as I believe this power is already possessed by a municipality.

AS 29.48.260
(Richard W. Garnett, III)
Vote on sale of property over $25,000 is unduly burdensome.

AS 29.48.260
(Gerald L. Sharp)
I believe the exemption which is set forth in (d) should be expanded to encompass any land which the municipality disposes of.

AS 29.48.260
(City of St. Mary's)
I consider this to be the most troublesome provision in Title 29 for rural communities. Through the Department of Community and Regional Affairs the City has requested an Attorney General's opinion on some of the requirements of this provision and has recently received a Community Legal Assistance Grant to determine the effect the statute has on land disposal in St. Mary's.

AS 29.48.260(cont'd)
(City of St. Mary's)
First the requirement of appraisals on land before disposal are difficult when most rural land is difficult if not impossible to appraise because comparable sales do not exist. Public auctions may cause the price of land to escalate beyond the means of local residents to afford, and may inhibit local residents who do not speak English from participating in auctions.

AS 29.48.260(cont'd)
(City of St. Mary's)
The words "if any" in subsection (c)(3) seem to indicate public auction or sealed bids are optional but this is not clear. Cities should have the option of developing disposal procedures appropriate to its locality. Such procedures should be ratified by the voters.

AS 29.48.260
(Allan E. Tesche)
Provisions of this section governing disposal of municipal properties should be clarified and revised to reflect increased land values throughout the state, to state who makes determinations of the value of land offered for sale and the date upon which such valuations must be based. Moreover, the statute should be clarified to either include or exclude rights-of-way or easements from its provisions.

AS 29.48.260(a)
(David Dye)
The term "municipal purpose" should be defined or standards for determining when land is no longer required for municipal purposes should be added.

AS 29.48.260(c)
(David Dye, Planner III, C&RA)
Add authority for disposal by lottery of land. Increase the $25,000.00 figure by two to four times.

AS 29.48.260(d)
(David Dye, Planner III, C&RA)
Rewrite to exempt transfers of land for specific purposes regardless of the source of the land.

AS 29.48.260(e)
(David Dye, Planner III, C&RA)
Exclude these transactions for the requirements of (c).

AS 29.48.270(b)(c)
(Gerald L. Sharp)
These two sections do not seem to have anything to do with the catch line nor with the two remaining subsections. I am not sure why (b) is required in the first place unless it is to make the transfer of this one power optional rather than mandatory as required under AS 29.33.260. These two sections should be moved to a section dealing with a general grant of powers or with the transfer of powers.

SUMMARY OF SUGGESTIONS - TITLE 29 REVISION COMMISSION, Cook, 10/7/80

AS 29.48.310
(Gerald L. Sharp)
(& 29.48.320, & 330) Although these sections seem to be very comprehensive, it appears that our courts prefer a contrary rule. Either we need to strengthen the language in these sections or we need to print up a Miranda Rights card which we can read to the judge every time we go into court over a municipal powers question.

AS 29.53.
(Allan E. Tesche)
Should be ameded to require payment of all taxes, even those due for more recent assessments on properties whose owners have requested issue of a quitclaim repurchase deed. Present law mandates issue of a quitclaim repurchase deed to the owner of record upon payment of those taxes assessed for the tax year stated in the clerk's deed even though the same property is the subject of other foreclosure proceedings brought in subsequent years.

AS 29.53.(cont'd)
(Allan E. Tesche)
An amendment to AS 29.53 which would require payment of all taxes owing on a parcel before a quitclaim repurchase deed can be issued would eliminate substantial confusion in the minds of taxpayers, and would reduce administrative complexity for borough finance departments presently confronted with multiple foreclosure actions on the same parcels.

AS 29.53.
(Terry Earley, State Assessor)
Add a section requiring the Department of Community and Regional Affairs, in consultation with an assessor, to determine the full value of taxable property in each district. See proposed bill draft.

AS 29.53.
(Dave Braden, Assessor)
Add a section requiring confidentiality of information gathered for assessment purposes should be added. See sample statutes.

AS 29.53.
(Dave Braden, Assessor)
Assess exempt property used by a non-exempt person. See sample Michigan law.

AS 29.53.
(Michael Worley, Assessor)
Add a section allowing the assessment roll to be corrected by the assessor and an adjustment made subsequent to its certification.

SUMMARY OF SUGGESTIONS - TITLE 29 REVISION COMMISSION, Cook, 10/7/80

AS 29.53.010
(Richard W. Garnett, III)
Permit exemption of all personalty or of various classes.

AS 29.53.010
(Gerald L. Sharp)
Again the problem of how this is to apply to unified units of government: also, this section should be changed to permit the use of areawide revenues on a non-areawide bases.

AS 29.53.020
(Clara M. Eccles)
Extend property tax exemption to include disabled veterans of any age.

AS 29.53.020
(Terry Earley, State Assessor)
Exempt one motor vehicle owned by a resident 65 years of age or older from taxation. See proposed bill draft.

AS 29.53.020
(Dave Braden, Assessor)
It is logical that reimbursement be limited to that amount which exceeds a local exemption granted to senior citizens, but to extend it to a local exemption that if applied for "would have been granted" is too much. Mobile homes should not be taxed as real property, but should be licensed like motor vehicles at which time an ownership tax is charged.

AS 29.53.020(c)
(Michael Worley, Assessor)
Delete "educational groups for classroom space".

AS 29.53.020(f)
(Michael Worley, Assessor)
After "granted" on the first line insert a reference "under (e) of this section".

AS 29.53.020
(Mark Lewis, City Manager, Valdez)
Change the age limit for qualifying for the senior tax exemption to 62 to encourage people to retire earlier.

AS 29.53.020(a)(1)
(Gerald L. Sharp)
Some place in the code we need to deal with the method of valuing privately held interests in tax exempt property.

SUMMARY OF SUGGESTIONS - TITLE 29 REVISION COMMISSION, Cook, 10/7/80

AS 29.53.020(a)(2)
(Michael Worley, Assessor)
Delete $500.00 limitation on the exemption of household furniture.

AS 29.53.020(a)(3)
(Gerald L. Sharp)
A number of problems arise from the lack of definitions of terms such as religious, charitable, educational, and perhaps hospital, which are used in this section. Aslo, there is a question which arises relating to when a property which is owned by, for example, a religious organization, becomes exempt;

AS 29.53.020(a)(3) (cont'd)
(Gerald L. Sharp)
for example, does vacant land become exempt when it is first purchased by an exempt organization, when the organization has an intent to devote it to a particular exempt use, when the organization commences construction of a facility which will be used for the exempt purpose even though during construction it is not being used for the exempt purpose? (b)(2)(B)

AS 29.53.025
(M. Westfall)
Classification of boats for purposes of taxation by tonnage should be changed to more realistic amounts.

AS 29.53.025(b)(1)
(Richard W. Garnett, III)
Clarify "delegation" of powers to service areas.

AS 29.53.025(b)(2)(A)
(Michael Worley, Assessor)
Delete optional exemption for household furniture.

AS 29.53.030
(Gerald L. Sharp)
This section should be revised to reflect a realistic value for mining claims, particularly in light of the recent rise in the price of gold.

AS 29.53.030
(Michael Worley, Assessor)
Replace section dealing with mining claims with a local severance tax on all resources (timber, fill, minerals, etc.)

SUMMARY OF SUGGESTIONS - TITLE 29 REVISION COMMISSION, Cook, 10/7/80

AS 29.53.030(b)
(Michael Worley, Assessor)
Delete "30 days before the equalization hearings".

AS 29.53.035(c)
(Dave Braden, Assessor)
The income requirement for the farm use exemption should be reduced to 5% or eliminated in order to encourage agriculture in the state. Consider additional preferential tax treatment.

AS 29.53.050(b)
(Michael Worley, Assessor)
Change the $1,000.00 to $1,500.00 to be consistent with 29.53.045.

AS 29.53.060
(Gerald L. Sharp)
Perhaps this is a section in which the valuation of leasehold and other possessory interest in tax exempt property should be exempt.

AS 29.53.060
(M. Westfall)
Include the words "having a situs within the taxing district" after the word "property". Boats and airplanes are commonly removed from the district during the first month of the year to avoid taxation.

AS 29.53.080
(Ribert H. Ziegler, Sr.)
Assessors should not be allowed to have access to sale price of property by requesting this information from buyers or sellers.

AS 29.53.110(a)
(Michael Worley, Assessor)
Delete "and the dates when the board of equalization will sit" for the assessment notice requirement.

AS 29.53.120(a)
(Michael Worley)
Insert a requirement that a person advise the assessor of errors within 30 days of the effective date of the notice.

SUMMARY OF SUGGESTIONS - TITLE 29 REVISION COMMISSION, Cook, 10/7/80

AS 29.53.120(b)
(Michael Worley, Assessor)
Delete. Add the following subsection: "If the property owner disagrees with the assessed value, the assessor shall review the assessment and inform the property owner of his findings allowing 10 days for appeal to the board. If the assessed value changes, the assessor shall send a revised notice to the property owner".

AS 29.53.130(b)
(Michael Worley, Assessor)
Amend to allow 10 days for appeal from the date the notice is effective. Delete "unless the board finds that the taxpayer was unable to comply".

AS 29.53.135
(Gerald L. Sharp)
This section should be clarified to indicate whether a majority of the number of members of the assembly. Also, either here or someplace else in the code, we should specifically address whether or not the Board of Equalization has the authority to determine whether property is exempt, and, if exempt, how much of the property is exempt if it is not totally devoted to exempt use.

AS 29.53.135
(Allan E. Tesche)
The language regarding the composition of the Board of Equalization is unclear. The statute presently requires "at least that number of members of the assembly over and above the number required for a quorum to transact business"; the statute is unclear when applied to a lay board to whom the equalization function is delegated.

AS 29.53.135
(Michael Worley)
Provide that the board of equalization consist of not fewer than three members. Delete "including but not limited to quorum and voting requirements".

AS 29.53.140(c)
(Michael Worley, Assessor)
Delete "or improper" and "or proved at the hearing".

AS 29.53.150
(Gerald L. Sharp)
A question arises as to whether property which goes from exempt property on January 1 of the tax year to non-exempt because of a change of use during the tax year can be put on a supplemental roll and taxed. Also, if it can be, should the taxes be a portion? In addition, something should be placed in the code to provide guidance for dealing with personal property which is in the municipality for only a part of the year.

SUMMARY OF SUGGESTIONS - TITLE 29 REVISION COMMISSION, Cook, 10/7/80

AS 29.53.180
(Gerald L. Sharp)
This section should be changed to reflect a reasonable interest rate and a penalty which is substantially above the interest.

AS 29.53.320
(M. Westfall)
Change person to receive redemption monies from clerk to tax collector, who has the records of assessment and taxation.

AS 29.53.390(a)
(Michael Worley)
Delete "against the borough, the borough shall refund the amount of taxes to the taxpayer" and insert "or if in the absence of suit, the borough assembly determines that judgment for the recovery of the taxes would be obtained if legal proceedings were brought, the amount of the taxes shall be paid to the taxpayer".

AS 29.53.415
(Gerald L. Sharp)
(& 29.53.440) Something needs to be added to these sections to take care of problem created by the Alaska Supreme Court when it ruled that there was no statutory authority for a general law municipality to establish a lead for sales taxes.

AS 29.58.
(Ben T. Delahay)
A new section should be added authorizing that an ordinance for refunding bonds be passed on one hearing, at either a regular or special meeting, and with only the normal majority vote.

AS 29.63.
(Ben T. Delahay)
The chapter on service areas should be clarified; there is too much authority in the assembly to handle decisions in the service area which should be made by the people paying the taxes in the area.

AS 29.63.
(Bruce Aronson)
Community councils should be advisory only by statute and money from the state for service areas ought to be appropriated for the city, not the local council.

AS 29.63.090(e)
(Richard W. Garnett, III)
Clarify "delegation" of powers to service areas.

AS 29.63.090
(Elsie O'Brien)
Loans by borough to service area should be subject to prior approval by voters within the service area.

SUMMARY OF SUGGESTIONS - TITLE 29 REVISION COMMISSION, Cook, 10/7/80

AS 29.63.090
(Allan E. Tesche)
The present statute governing service areas does not adequately address the question of whether a service area may be used for exercise of a governmental regulatory power rather than for provision of municipal or services.

AS 29.68.
((Bruce Aronson)
Statutes should be changed so that cities are not able to annex territory without providing services to the annexed area and so that people living outside cities who are receiving services pay for them.

AS 29.68.010(cont'd)
(City of St. Mary's)
The delay in time between the decision of the Local Boundary commission and the legislative disapproval time is unnecessary and can lead to legal complications. Since the legislature has never disapproved a Boundary Commission decision it seems this requirement of submission to the legislature has little utility. A workable alternative might be to preserve a right to appeal a boundary commission decision to the legislature.

AS 29.68.010
(City of St. Mary's)
The City recently annexed an adjacent community into its boundary. In order to facilitate the annexation the City wanted to and did make major concessions to the citizens of the adjacent community with respect to a voice in City affairs. Technically what the City has done is not legal because the annexation is not finalized until 45 days after the next legislative section has begun.

AS 29.73.020
(Gerald L. Sharp)
This section needs to be divided into two subsections to separate the procedures for home rule and general law municipalities from those for second class municipalities. Presently, there is some question as to whether the last two sentences of the section apply only to second class cities or whether it applies to all municipalities.

AS 29.78.
(David Dye, Planner III, C&RA)
Expand definitions to include other terms used in Title 29.

AS 29.78.101(16)
(Richard W. Garnett, III)
Definition of "subdivision"; consider application to division for leasing, as by holders of oil leases.

SUMMARY OF SUGGESTIONS - TITLE 29 REVISION COMMISSION, Cook, 10/7/80

AS 29.88.020(e)(3)
(Terry Earley, State Assessor)
Allow the determination of full and true assessed value for second class cities with a population of less than 750 to be based on a comparison with the most comparable cities for which a determination has previously been made. See proposed draft.

Dear Stephanie:

RE: TITLE 29 REVISION REGARDING ELECTION OF SCHOOL BOARD MEMBERS

It appears as if the Title 29 Technical Advisory Group has addressed the concern you raised in your January 6, 1981 letter regarding the language of AS 29.33.310. You were concerned that the language, as written, for the election of school board members would not allow for the election of Haines Borough Assembly members on a district basis.

The latest draft of AS 29.33.310 is now numbered 29.24.420 and it has been revised along the same lines as you suggested in your January 6, 1981 letter. The new sections reads as follows:

> Sec. 29.24.420. SCHOOL BOARDS. (a) Each municipal school district has a school board. Members are elected at the regular election held annually on the first Tuesday of October, unless a different election date or interval of years is provided by ordinance. Members are elected for three-year terms and until their successors take office. All board members are elected at large unless a different method of election has been approved by the voters in a regular election.
> (b) Notwithstanding (a) of this section, assembly members in a third class borough serve as the school board and the mayor is president of the school board.

I interpret this to mean that subsection (a) of this section does not apply to third class boroughs and that you can continue to elect assembly/school board members by election district. This, of course, is only a proposed change and it could be amended again before it is passed as part of the Title 29 revision package. I will keep you posted if this section is altered to significantly change its intent.

If you have any additional questions or comments please write me.

Sincerely,

RE: Title 29 Revisions with respect to a third class borough

Dear Tam:

Now that the Commission has agreed to "grandfather" the Haines Borough we need to look at the statutes and revisions to the statutes which are a problem for the third class borough and which, in some cases, just forget the third class borough.

First of all, we suggest that you simplify 29.41.020 Assembly to Serve as School Board by striking the sentence "Where applicable weighted voting shall apply to board decisions." This sentence is profoundly misleading because weighted voting is prohibited by AS 29.23.021(c).

In order to assert the applicability of 29.48.010 General Powers to the third class borough, we suggest that a sub-section (e) be added to 29.41.010 stating that the general powers conferred by 29.48.010 apply to the third class borough. This would clarify the question posed by Marie Matsuno in her letter of 9/4/80 to Jon Halliwill, Mayor, City of Haines, as to whether the general powers are applicable to the third class borough area-wide or only on a specifically granted service area basis. We believe that our intrepretation of 29.48.010 as applicable to the third class borough carte blance is in line with the interpretation provided in Femmer v. City of Juneau 9 Alaska 175(1937) as foot noted in the present Title 29.

During the revision process I noticed that the third class borough seems to be at odds with 29.33.310 (new section 29.23.420) School Boards.This section states that all board members are elected at large. As you know, the third class borough assembly is the school board. The assembly may elect to be composed other than at large as outlined in 29.23.023 Composition and Form of Representation. It seems that neither the existing 29.23.310 nor the revised version recognize the special relationship between the third class borough assembly and the school board. Does the statement in 29.41.020 that the third class borough assembly is the school board supercede 29.23.310 which mandates an at large election of school board members or is it necessary to write a clarifying subsection to 29.23.310 indicating that the members of the third class borough school board are the members of the assembly and are elected and composed in accordance with 29.23.023 for assemblies. I would appreciate it if you would take a look at this situation.

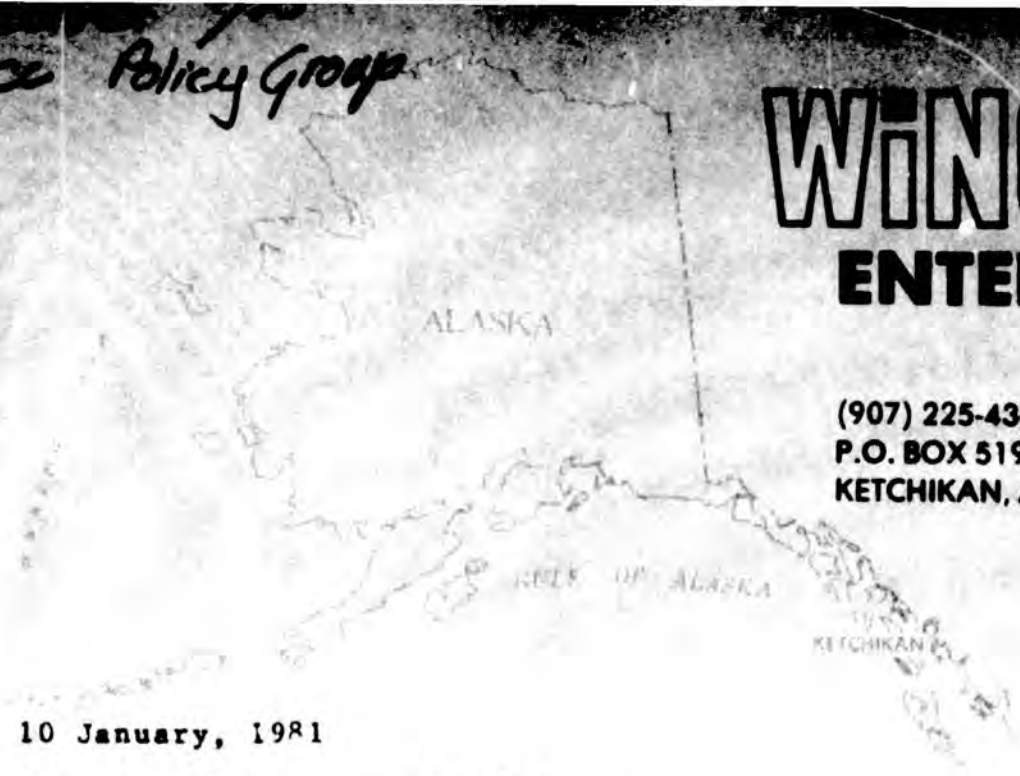
For ease of use, new section 29.24.240 Veto should contain a subsection (e) stating that the mayor of a third class borough has no veto power. The mayor is denied the veto power in 29.41.020 (old section number).

Similarly, in new section 29.24.150 Procedures of Legislative Bodies the first sentence should read

> ...except that in a borough which has adopted the manager form of government under AS 29.25.550, or in the third class borough, the mayor serves as presiding officer.



Thank you for looking at these four items. See you in Juneau on the 17th.

Sincerely yours,

Stephanie

Dear Senator Sturgulewski

I quote Alaska Statute 29.53.025. It reads, in part as follows:
(b) Municipalities may by ordinance
(1) classify boats and vessels for purposes of taxation and may establish the assessed valuation of boats and vessels on the basis of their registered or certified net tonnage; a tax based upon a tonnage valuation shall not exceed $5 a year for a boat or vessel of less than five net tons and shall not exceed $15 a year for a boat or vessel of more than five net tons;

The City of Ketchikan and the Ketchikan Gateway Borough has chosen to listen to the hue and cry from boat owners that if their taxes are increased, they will take their boats and their business elsewhere. I, along with numerous other taxpayers feel that boats should be taxed on assessed valuation, the same as other real property, including airplanes. It is very unlikely that our local government will change to assessed valuation, as long as they have another option. It is also very unlikely that our local state legislators will ever push to amend the state law to make taxation on assessed valuation mandatory. I therefore appeal to you, whom I understand has given this matter some study, to introduce such legislation.

Very truly yours

Dear Assembly Members:

Title 29, which contains the Alaska Statutes on municipal government, specifies that the mayor of a third class borough must be elected at-large for that position. An assemblyman cannot assume the position of mayor since the assemblyman was elected as a voting member of the borough's governing body and the mayor cannot vote. Each assembly member elected to that position has an obligation to vote.

As the mayor of a third class borough cannot vote or exercise the veto power, the assembly need not be concerned about affecting the present borough apportionment by the election of a mayor in addition to the assembly members. There would be no change to the present apportionment.

These comments are offered for your consideration as the Haines Borough prepares for its regular election this fall.

MEMORANDUM

FROM: FOLTA & ASPER, Borough Attorneys

TO: HAINES BOROUGH ASSEMBLY

RE: Voting By Borough Mayor

DATE: September 18, 1973

A question has come up under the new municipal code regarding the vote of the Borough Mayor in a Third-class Borough. Third-class Borough questions are difficult to resolve because Chapter 41 of Title 29, which refers to them, only briefly indicates what they can and cannot do. For questions not answered in Chapter 41 we assume that provisions governing First and Second class boroughs apply. The fact that Haines is the only Third class Borough in the state means that no guidance can be had on these questions from the experience of other municipalities in Alaska.

At the present time the assembly has chosen a mayor from among its members and the mayor is following section 29.23.160 which says that the mayor shall participate in assembly decisions but may not vote. Since Mr. Olerud, the present mayor, is a representative of the city of Haines he carries a weighted vote which is lost to city voters by his seeming inability to use it. Although to date the Mayors' non-voting has not affected the outcome of borough consideration on any matter, it is quite possible that this could happen in the future.

After reading the statutes it seems apparant that the problem lies in the fact that the mayor is also a member of the assembly. We have concluded, and our conclusion is agreed on by attorneys in the Local Affairs Agency, that the new municipal code requires that there be a borough mayor, even in Third-class Boroughs, but that the mayor be a separately elected official, who is not a member of the assembly (Section 29.23.130). This official would be elected at large in the Borough and would be the chief administrator for the Borough, but would not vote. In a first or second class Borough the Mayor has a veto power to overrule the assembly, but this power is specifically denied the mayor in a third class Borough. (Section 29.41.020) The Assembly would continue in its present form but would choose a presiding officer to manage assembly meetings. (Section 29.23. 060 (b))

Our recommendation at this time is that a Borough Mayor be elected in the Haines Borough whenever possible and in the meantime that Mr. Olerud resume voting with the understanding that his office is really that of Presiding Officer of the Assembly rather than the Borough Mayor as contemplated by the municipal code.

We would point out that the Borough Mayor scheme was primarily written into the municipal code for the use of the larger First and Second class Boroughs and may be too much government for this Third Class Borough, which is operating in good order now without a separately elected mayor. If the Borough must elect a mayor, as the statute seems to require then perhaps this presents a good opportunity to once again consider alternate forms of government for this area. The third class Borough has some very good points but this question and others indicate that it is a sort of Legislative afterthought which will continue to present problems which were never considered by the lawmakers when they enacted the municipal code.

Re: Chapter 45
Municipal Taxation

Dear Steve:

I have reviewed the above draft and had our Municipal Attorney review it also. The following comments are submitted for your review and pass through to the legislative committee.

P. 119 - Line 13 - "Exclusive for classroom space" - Amongst the various exempted uses, the above single use of any space appears unworkable.

P. 129 - Line 29-30 - Assessor seek production of records? What records?

P. 132 - Line 17 - "Which are consistant with general rules of administrative procedure." It appears to us that this ambiguous wording opens the door to suit by claim of "rules", This section should be specific.

P. 134 - Line 18 - 20%
Line 26 - 10% Should these not be the same?

P. 141 - Line 23 - "His assigns". We have had problems with this one where a person pays $1.00 or $2 for releases from old, old property foreclosed against then claims the property for only $80 - $60 back taxes. We feel this will specifically create problems unless a definite time period placed in this section. It has happened to us in Sitka. It could certainly happen elsewhere! Perhaps the way to handle it would be to add a paragraph "c" between lines 6 & 7 on page 142, to read;

(c) the right of the former owner and his assigns to repurchase the property ceases 10 years after the end of the redemption period.

Page 143 - Line 21 - 15% interest. Paragraph (b) states if a remittance is made by a taxpayer even through error, the Borough must refund at 15% interest. Doesn't this open the door to allow deliberate overpayment to get 15% - that's better than any bank, time C.D., etc. Maybe I'm getting paranoid, but that seems like opening Pandora's Box. We need some sort of limitation clause.

Page 145 - Lines 4-7. Should also include a late filing penalty the same as real/personal property taxes.

Page 145 - Line 10 - Should include a statement--on that or any other property or item owned by the same person. This would make it clear a lien would not be just on specific property taxes not paid on, but could hamper other property. We have had instances where persons specifically attempt to apply taxes to only partial holdings rather than the total obligations.

Thank you for the opportunity to comment.

Re: Senate C. R. 66

Dear Terry:

During my brief tenure, two provisions of title 29 pertaining to property taxes have caught my attention.

First, concerning the Farm Use Exemption; presuming its passage was directed toward encouraging agriculture in the State, and discounting the resistance some farmers in this area exhibit by their reluctance to sign up for it, I think the income requirement should either be reduced (say to 5%) or eliminated.

Take a farmer beginning a livestock operation. Nature dictates that it will be several years before productive breeder stock can be developed, let alone producing enough progeny to sell, sufficient to meet the income requirement.

Furthermore, any new farm venture demands high initial investment for equipment, clearing of land and the aforementioned stock developement. They need an incentive to begin - not merely hope they will get relief if successful. I am prejudiced toward preferential treatment as an alternative. This is more consistent with current State agricultural use land sales, tending to establish land values in the eye of the taxpayer and creating a hard argument for and presumption of farm land value to overcome by local assessor.

Second, the Senior Citizen Exemption; and 29.53.020 (G) in particular. It is logical, and only fair, that reimbursement to the City or Borough be limited to that amount which exceeds a local exemption that was granted; but to extend it to a local exemption that if properly applied for "would have been granted" is too much. It is worse than ex post facto, it relates to something that never happened, and I fail to see any logic at all.

Possibly a third subject I would like to see addressed concerns Mobile Homes. I have experienced assessing them (twice now) and enjoyed the euphoria of not assessing them. By their very nature - mobile and subject to title ownership - they are hard to find outside of an established park and by collection time hard to catch up with, in many instances; even becoming personal property when repossessed. I realize this Borough is unique in Alaska regarding personal property, but that is not the basis for my objection to assessing them.

A much more efficient method of taxing them is to require a license (like motor vehicles) at which time a specific ownership tax is charged. That way the tax is paid and collected at the beginning of the tax year and distributed according to the pro-ration formula of the property tax.

Although not changing existing law, I have several suggestions for additional statues which I understand have been tried before and fly in the face of popular public opinion. Nevertheless, if the legislature is sincere in wanting to improve the administration of the property tax then serious consideration should be given them.

One, a Documentary Fee on Conveyance of Real Property. Enclosed is a copy of the Colorado law for what it is worth. I do know, however, that it worked beautifully and was an inestimable aid in the appraisal process.

Two, Confidentiality of Information as well as a corresponding penalty statute for devulging same. Enclosed are copies of pertinent statutes which I am familiar with. It is difficult to obtain written confirmation of verbal information relating, in particular, to income data, and in some instances cost data, if every Tom, Dick, and Harry has access to it. The penalty statute for divulging information is an added safegaurd for the taxpayer as that puts the assessor under the gun in keeping confidential supportive data from which the final total assessment (clearly public information) may evolve.

Lastly, I am intrigued with assessing exempt property used by a non-exempt person. Terry, I refer to the Michigan statute, upheld by the Supreme Court, which allowed taxing such property. It was tried in Colorado (copy of law attached) but it was so emasculated by amendments ((3), (4), & (5) of enclosed law) that it was in the process of being declared unconstitutional as being discriminatory-i.e., the only property not excepted was Federal owned - when I last heard about it.

Such a law would cover our railroad, airport, and University of Alaska leases as well as State and Federal lands. Just a thought.

I guess that about covers it for now.

Very truly yours,

Dave

★ Documentary Fee on Conveyances of Real Property

39-13-101. LEGISLATIVE DECLARATION. (1) The general assembly declares that in enacting laws relating to the general property tax, it has provided that certain property in each county of the state shall be appraised and the actual value thereof determined by the assessor and that one of the several factors to be considered by him in determining the actual value of any property shall be "comparison with other properties of known or recognized value."

(2) It further declares that such comparison may be best effected if there is available to the assessor a continuing record of the consideration paid or to be paid by purchasers of real property evidenced, prior to recording, on the document conveying title to such property and recorded in the office of the county clerk and recorder in the several counties of the state in the manner provided by law and that this article is enacted to provide a means of developing such continuing record and making such record available for use primarily by assessors. (L 67)

39-13-102. DOCUMENTARY FEE IMPOSED - AMOUNT - TO WHOM PAYABLE. (1) There is imposed and shall be paid, by every person offering for recording in the office of the county clerk and recorder any deed or instrument in writing wherein or whereby title to real property situated in this state is granted or conveyed, a fee, referred to in this article as "documentary fee," measured by the consideration paid or to be paid for such grant or conveyance, which documentary fee shall be in addition to any other fee fixed by law for the recording of such deed or instrument in writing.

(2) The amount of documentary fee payble in each case shall be as follows:

(a) When there is no consideration or when the consideration, inclusive of the amount of any lien or encumbrance against the property granted or conveyed, is five hundred dollars or less, no documentary fee shall be payable.

(b) When the consideraton, inclusive of the amount of any lien or encumbrance against the property granted or conveyed, exceeds five hundred dollars, the documentary fee payable shall be computed at the rate of one cent for each one hundred dollars, or major fraction thereof, of such consideration.

(3) All documentary fees shall be payable to and collected by the county clerk and recorder.

(4) In those cases in which real property located in two or more counties is granted or conveyed in a single transaction, each county clerk and recorder shall collect a portion of the total documentary fee referred to in subsection (2) of this section in the same ratio that the consideration fairly attributable to the part of such property located in his county bears to the total consideration. The allocation of the total consideration between counties is to be made by the person offering such deed or instrument in writing for recording. (L 68)

39-13-103. EVIDENCE OF PAYMENT OF FEE. Each county clerk and recorder shall evidence payment of the documentary fee imposed in this article by imprinting, typing, stamping, or writing in ink on the margin or other blank portion of every document to which such fee applies the words "State Documentary Fee," the amount of documentary fee paid, and the date upon which paid, which impression or notation shall be made on such document before it is recorded. (L 68)

39-13-104. EXEMPTIONS. (1) The documentary fee imposed in this article shall not apply to:

(2) Exemption from payment of the documentary fee imposed in this article must be claimed at the time a deed or instrument is offered for recording. (L 68)

39-13-105. NO DEED RECORDED UNLESS DOCUMENTARY FEE PAID. No deed or instrument in writing to which a documentary fee applies shall be recorded until and unless the documentary fee payable thereon has been paid and evidence of its payment has been imprinted, typed, stamped, or written in ink thereon as provided in section 39-13-103. Any county clerk and recorder who willfully and knowingly records any document to which a documentary fee applies without having first collected such fee and evidence payment thereof as provided in this article is guilty of a misdemeanor and, upon conviction thereof, shall be punished by a fine of fifty dollars. (L 68)

(2) Any person who commits either of the acts set forth in subsection (1) of this section is guilty of a misdemeanor and, upon conviction thereof, shall be punished by a fine of not less than fifty dollars nor more than five hundred dollars, or by imprisonment in the county jail for not less than ten days nor more than three months, or by both such fine and imprisonment. (L 67)

39-13-107. ASSESSOR TO COMPILE CONTINUING RECORD. It is the duty of each assessor to examine at least once each year all documents recorded in his county upon which a documentary fee has been paid and to determine in each case the consideration upon which such fee was computed and paid. He shall compile and maintain in his office a continuing record of all such consideration to assist him in appraising property and determining the actual value thereof as required by the provisions of section 39-1-103 (5). (L 67)

39-13-108. DISPOSITION OF FEES. All documentary fees collected by the county clerk and recorder shall be deposited with the county treasurer at least once each month and credited by him in the manner prescribed by law. (L 67)

39-1-112. TAXES AVAILABLE - WHEN. All taxes levied pursuant to the provisions of articles 1 to 13 of this title shall be available for expenditure by the political subdivision for which levied during its fiscal year, as collected. (L 64)

39-1-113. ABATEMENT AND REFUND OF TAXES. No abatement or refund of taxes erroneously or illegally levied shall be made by the board of county commissioners unless a hearing is had thereon, at which hearing the assessor shall have the opportunity to be present. Whenever any abatement or refund is recommended by the board of county commissioners, an application therefor, reciting the amount of such abatement or refund and the grounds upon which it should be allowed, shall be submitted to the administrator for his review pursuant to section 39-2-116. If an application is approved, the board of county commissioners shall order the abatement of taxes pro rata for all levies applicable to such property, or, in the case of a refund, the board of county commissioners shall order the refund of taxes pro rata by all taxing jurisdictions receiving payment thereof. (L 77)

39-1-114. WHO MAY ADMINISTER OATH. Whenever any fact, matter, or thing is required by the provisions of articles 1 to 13 of this title to be verified by oath or affirmation, any assessor, treasurer, or county clerk and recorder, or a deputy of any of said officers, may administer such oath or affirmation. The deputy need not certify the oath in the name of the principal. (L 64)

39-1-115. RECORDS PRIMA FACIE EVIDENCE. The assessment rolls, the tax warrants, the entries made in the books of the treasurer, and the lists of lands sold for taxes recorded by the treasurer or the county clerk and recorder, or a certified copy thereof, shall be prima facie evidence of all things appearing therein in all courts and places. (L 64)

★ 39-1-116. PENALTY FOR DIVULGING CONFIDENTIAL INFORMATION. (L 64)

39-1-117. PRIOR ACTIONS NOT AFFECTED. Nothing in articles 1 to 13 of this title shall apply to or in any manner affect any valuation, assessment, or demolished subsequent to the assessment date in any year, it is the duty of the owner thereof or his agent to promptly notify the assessor of such destruction or demolition and the date upon which the same occurred. In all such cases, such personal property or improvements shall be valued by the assessor at the proportion of its valuation for the full calendar year that the period of time in such year prior to its destruction or demolition bears to the full calendar year. Failure of the owner thereof or of his agent to so notify the assessor prior to the date taxes are levied shall be considered a waiver, and no proportionate valuation by the assessor shall then be required. (L 64)

39-5-118. FAILURE TO RECEIVE SCHEDULE - VALIDITY OF VALUATION. No determination of the actual value of any taxable personal property made by the assessor shall be rendered invalid by reason of his failure to secure or receive the personal property schedule required to be completed and returned to him prior to his determination of such value. (L 64)

39-5-119. REFUSAL TO ANSWER - COURT ORDER. Whenever any person refuses to be interviewed by the assessor or his deputy or refuses to answer any pertinent questions relative to taxable property owned by him, or in his possession, or under his control, then, in the discretion of the district court having jurisdiction in the county and upon affidavit of the assessor or his deputy showing such refusal to be interviewed or to answer such questions, such person shall be cited before such court and shall be required by the court then and there to submit to such interview and to answer such questions. All costs of such proceedings shall be assessed by the court against such person, and judgment and execution shall be entered therefor as in other civil cases. (L 67)

★ 39-5-120. TAX SCHEDULES ENDORSED AND FILED - AVAILABILITY FOR INSPECTION. All personal property schedules and exhibits or statements attached thereto returned to or secured by the assessor shall be endorsed with the name of the person whose taxable personal property is listed therein and shall be filed in either alphabetical or numerical order and retained for a period of six years, after which time they may be destroyed. Such schedules and accompanying exhibits or statements shall be considered private documents and shall be available on a confidential basis only to the assessor and the employees of his office, the treasurer and the employees of his office, the executive director of the department of revenue and the employees of his office, and the administrator and the employees of his office. Such exhibits or statements shall be available on a confidential basis to the board and the county board of equalization when information contained in such documents is pertinent to an appeal or protest. (L 76)

39-5-121. NOTICE OF INCREASED VALUATION. No later than May 24 in each year, the assessor shall mail to each person whose taxable personal

39-3-110. PAYMENT OF TAXES ESTINGUISHES LIEN. Payment to the treasurer of prorated taxes for the current year, as provided in sections 39-3-108 and 39-3-109, together with payment of any other unpaid taxes and penalty interest or charges, shall extinguish the lien for taxes on such property, or a portion thereof; but if only a portion of any parcel, tract, or lot of property becomes legally exempt from general taxation and no taxes are collected at that time, the lien of taxes levied or to be levied shall attach to the remaining portion of said property. (L 64)

39-3-111. CONDEMNATION BY TAX EXEMPT AGENCY - TREASURER'S DUTIES. In all cases where an entire property, or a portion of any parcel, tract, or lot of property is likely to become legally exempt from general taxation through exercise of the power of eminent domain, the treasurer shall be joined as a party respondent in any such action, and upon joinder and notice of the proceedings, he shall assert a claim for the amount of any prorated taxes for the current year on such property, and all other unpaid taxes, penalty interest, or charges thereon with the clerk of the court in which the proceedings are filed. Upon institution of any such proceedings, the lien of general taxes levied and to be levied shall be transferred from the property acquired or sought to be acquired to any money awarded or to be awarded for the taking of such property. Nothing in this section shall require any treasurer to file a claim in any such proceedings involving acquisition of only a portion of any property, if he is satisfied that there is sufficient taxable property remaining after the taking of such portion to satisfy any lien for the amount of taxes payable on such portion taken. (L 64)

★ 39-3-112. TAXATION OF EXEMPT PROPERTY - TAXES NOT TO BECOME LIEN. (1) When any property which for any reason is exempt from taxation is leased, loaned, or otherwise made available to and used by a private individual, association, or corporation in connection with a business conducted for profit, the lessee or user thereof shall be subject to taxation in the same amount and to the same extent as though the lessee or user were the owner of such property, except as provided in this subsection (1) and as provided in subsections (3), (4), and (5) of this section. (L 75)

(2) Taxes shall be assessed to such lessee or user of property and collected in the same manner as taxes assessed to owners of such property; except that such taxes shall not become a lien against the property. When due, such taxes shall be a debt due from the lessee or user to the board of county commissioners for the county where said property is located, and in the city and county of Denver to such other body as is authorized by law to levy taxes, and shall be recoverable by such body by direct action in debt on behalf of each governmental entity for which a tax levy has been made. (L 75)

(3) This section shall not vary in any manner the taxation of mines or oil and gas or oil shale or geothermal leaseholds and lands under articles 1 to 13 of this title. The valuation for assessment of mines or oil and gas or oil shale or geothermal leaseholds and lands shall be determined pursuant to articles 6 and 7 of this title. (L 75)

(4) (a) This section shall not apply to any property owned by a home rule or statutory county, city and county, city, or town, or by a territorial charter city, if such property is subject to payments in lieu of taxes under section 29-3-120, C.R.S. 1973 (L 76)

(b) This section shall not apply to any property owned by a home rule or statutory county, city and county, city, or town or by a territorial charter city, if such property was, before July 1, 1976, leased, loaned, or otherwise made available to and used by a private individual, association, or corporation in connection with a business conducted for profit; but such exemption shall not extend beyond the term of such lease or loan or option included in the agreement in effect before said date. (L 76)

(c) This section shall not apply to rights-of-way or easements acquired by public utilities or for access roads. (L 76)

(d) This section shall not apply to any property owned by a political subdivision of the state which is used in the provision of normal facilities, services, or operations authorized by constitution or statute to be provided by such political subdivisions. (L 76)

(5) This section is not applicable to lands used solely for agricultural purposes and improvements thereon. (L 75)

(6) The valuation for assessment of lands owned by the United States and used for recreational purposes shall be thirty percent of the fees paid by the user of said lands to the United States for the use thereof in the previous calendar year. (L 75)

(7) Nothing in this section shall be construed to apply to properties exempted by territorial charter. (L 75)

MEMORANDUM

TO: Russell W. Walker, Municipal Attorney

THRU: Judi Slajer, Borough Manager

FROM: Michael W. Worley, Director of Assessments

RE: Revisions to Title 29

DATE: August 14, 1980

I support the revision of AS 29.53.135 (see attached copy) as stated in your memorandum dated July 31, 1980.

Attached are my suggestions for further revisions of Chapter 53. Revisions are stated in the right margin, and deletions are highlighted in the body of the text.

Sec. 29.53.020. Required exemptions. (a) The following property is exempt from general taxation:

(1) municipal, state or federally owned property, except that private leaseholds, contracts or other interest in the property shall be taxable to the extent of those interests;

(2) household furniture of the head of a family or a householder not exceeding $500 in value;

(3) property used exclusively for nonprofit religious, charitable, cemetery, hospital or educational purposes;

(4) property of a nonbusiness organization composed entirely of persons with 90 days or more of active service in the armed forces of the United States whose conditions of service and separation were other than dishonorable, or the property of the auxiliary of such organization;

(5) money on deposit;

(6) the real property of certain residents of the state to the extent and subject to the conditions provided in (e) of this section.

(b) "Property used exclusively for religious purposes" includes the following property owned by a religious organization:

(1) the residence of the pastor, priest, rabbi, minister or religious order of a recognized religious organization;

(2) a structure, its furniture and its fixtures used solely for public worship, charitable purposes, religious education or a nonprofit hospital;

(3) lots supporting and adjacent to a structure or residence mentioned in (1) or (2) of this subsection which are necessary to convenient use;

(4) lots required by local ordinance for parking near a structure defined in (2) of this subsection.

(c) Property described in (a) or (b) of this section from which income is derived is exempt only if that income is solely from use of the property by nonprofit religious, charitable, hospital, or educational groups for classroom space.

(d) Laws exempting certain property from execution under the Code of Civil Procedure (AS 09) do not exempt the property from taxes levied and collected by municipalities.

(e) After January 1, 1973 the real property owned and occupied as a permanent place of abode by a resident 65 years of age or over whose gross annual income totals less than $10,000 is exempt from taxation of the assessed value of the real property. Only one exemption may be granted with respect to the same property and, if two or more persons are eligible for an exemption with respect to the same property, the parties shall decide between or among themselves which shall receive the benefit of the exemption; however, in the case of more than one party eligible for an exemption with respect to the same property, the total combined gross annual income of the parties may not exceed $10,000. No real property may be exempted under this subsection which the assessor determines, after notice and hearing to the parties concerned, has been conveyed to the applicant primarily for the purpose of obtaining the exemption. The determination of the assessor is appealable under AS 44.62.560—44.62.570.

If used by educational groups, the property must be used exclusively for classroom space.

(Housekeeping)

(f) No exemption may be granted except upon written application for the exemption on a form prescribed by the state assessor for use by local assessors. The claimant must file the application no later than January 15 of the assessment year for which the exemption is sought and must file a separate application for each assessment year in which the exemption is sought. If an application is filed within the required time and is approved by the assessor, he shall allow an exemption in accordance with the provisions of this section. The assessor may at any time require proof in the form he considers necessary of the right and amount of an exemption claimed under this section, and in that respect may as one form of proof require authorization from the taxpayer to verify gross income level by reference to gross income shown in the latest state income tax return available for all or part of the assessment year for which an exemption is sought.

(g) The state shall reimburse a borough or city, as appropriate, for the real property tax revenues lost to it by the operation of (e) of this section.

(h) Nothing in (e)—(i) of this section affects similar exemptions from property taxes granted by municipalities on September 10, 1972 or prevents municipalities from granting similar exemptions by ordinance as provided in § 25 of this chapter. However, under (e)—(i) of this section only the amount of revenue lost to the municipality by reason of the exemption authorized in those provisions may be reimbursed to the municipality by the state.

(i) In (e)—(i) of this section the term "real property" includes but is not limited to mobile homes, whether classified as real or personal property for municipal tax purposes. (§ 2 ch 118 SLA 1972)

under (e) of this section

History of section. — See City of Anchorage v. Chugach Elec. Ass'n, 17 Alaska 481, 252 F.2d 412 (9th Cir. 1958).

This section was enacted pursuant to Alaska Const., art. IX, § 4. Harmon v. North Pac. Union Conference Ass'n of Seventh Day Adventists, Sup. Ct. Op. No. 591 (File No. 1060), 462 P.2d 432 (1969).

Intent of constitutional convention. —The constitutional convention intended that only so much of the property used for religious purposes as was being used to produce income should be taxable, that such other parts should be exempt, and that a proration between taxable and nontaxable parts should be made. 1962 Op. Att'y Gen., No. 15.

Purpose.—The purpose of this section is to encourage the establishment of privately supported nonprofit educational institutions; the motivation for their establishment is largely irrelevant. McKee v. Evans, Sup. Ct. Op. No. 740 (File No. 1382), 490 P.2d 1226 (1971).

tioned in this section, is not subject to valuation by first class cities for the purposes of AS 14.17.010 et seq., to the extent that it is exempt from taxation. 1962 Op. Att'y Gen., No. 18.

Exclusive employment of occupants of properties sought to be taxed was such as to bring these properties within the exemptions provided in subsections (b)(1) and (b)(2) for residences of ministers owned by religious organizations, or property used for "solely charitable purposes" or "religious education." North Pac. Union Conference Ass'n of Seventh Day Adventists v. Harmon, 5 Alaska L.J. No. 11, p. 228 (Nov., 1967).

The providing of recreational facilities, such as accommodations for campers, is a charitable use of the property. Matanuska-Susitna Borough v. King's Lake Camp, Sup. Ct. Op. No. 472 (File No. 857), 439 P.2d 441 (1968).

Ordinance exempting from local taxation any class of real or personal property.—A home rule city has the power to enact an ordinance exempting from local taxation any class of real or personal property, if such an exemption is not prohibited by the city's home rule charter. 1969 Op. Att'y Gen., No. 1.

Electric cooperative operating under arrangement with federal agency is not exempt.—A nonprofit cooperative is not an agency of the United States government simply by virtue of an "arrangement" with the Rural Electrification Administration pursuant to 7 USC §§ 901—915, and therefore immune from local taxation. City of Anchorage v. Chugach Elec. Ass'n, 17 Alaska 481, 252 F.2d 412 (9th Cir. 1958).

There is no statutory authority exempting the property of Chugach Electric Association from taxation by the city of Anchorage and the Anchorage independent school district. City of Anchorage v. Chugach Elec. Ass'n, 17 Alaska 481, 252 F.2d 412 (9th Cir. 1958).

Exemption of property on federal land inapplicable to Railroad Reserve. — The doctrine that property located upon federally owned land is immune from local taxation is inapposite where it is not shown that the Railroad Reserve is "federal property" or under the exclusive jurisdiction of the federal government. City of Anchorage v. Chugach Elec. Ass'n, 17 Alaska 481, 252 F.2d 412 (9th Cir. 1958).

Sec. 29.53.025. Optional exemptions and exclusions. (a) Municipalities may exclude or exempt or partially exempt residential property from taxation by ordinance ratified by the voters at a regular or special election.

(b) Municipalities may by ordinance

(1) classify boats and vessels for purposes of taxation and may establish the assessed valuation of boats and vessels on the basis of their registered or certificated net tonnage; a tax based upon a tonnage valuation shall not exceed $5 a year for a boat or vessel of less than five net tons and shall not exceed $15 a year for a boat or vessel of more than five net tons;

(2) classify and exempt from taxation

(A) the household furniture over $500 in value and the effects of the head of a family or a householder; and

(B) the property of an organization not organized for business or profit-making purposes and used exclusively for community purposes, provided that income derived from rental of such property does not exceed the actual cost to the owner of the use by the renter; and

See § 29.53.020.(a)(2)

(Housekeeping)

(C) historic sites, buildings and monuments.

(c) The provisions of (a) of this section notwithstanding,

(1) a home rule or first or second class borough may, by ordinance adopted without weighted voting, adjust its property tax structure in whole or in part to the property tax structure of a city within it, including but not limited to, excluding personal property from taxation, establishing exemptions, and extending the redemption period;

(2) a home rule or first class city shall have the same power to grant exemptions or exclude property from borough taxes that it has as to city taxes, provided that the exemptions or exclusions have been adopted as to city taxes and further provided that the city appropriate to the borough sufficient money to equal revenues lost by the borough because of the exemptions or exclusions, the amount to be determined annually by the assembly without weighted voting.

(d) Exemptions or exclusions from property tax which have been granted by home rule municipalities in addition to exemptions authorized or required by law, and which are in effect on September 10, 1972 and not later withdrawn, are not affected by this Act. (§ 2 ch 118 SLA 1972)

City may not exempt property without express authority.—The authority of a municipal corporation to allow exemptions of particular property from taxation, unless expressly conferred by law, has very generally been denied. Valentine v. City of Juneau, 36 F.2d 904 (9th Cir. 1929).

Ordinance exempting from local taxation any class of real or personal property.—A home rule city has the power to enact an ordinance exempting from local taxation any class of real or personal property, if such an exemption is not prohibited by the city's home rule charter. 1969 Op. Att'y Gen., No. 1.

Valuation of full and true value not precluded. — The fact that first class cities may choose the tonnage valuation of ships for the purposes of taxation does not preclude them from making a valuation of full and true value for the purposes of taxation. It necessarily follows that boats and vessels should be valued at full and true value for the purpose of AS 14.17.010 et seq. 1962 Op. Att'y Gen., No. 18.

Rules applicable to second class cities.—The rules applicable to boats and vessels in first class cities apply equally to those under the jurisdiction of second class cities. 1962 Op. Att'y Gen., No. 18.

Sec. 29.53.030. Mining claims. The assessed value of an unimproved unpatented mining claim which is not producing, and a nonproducing patented mining claim upon which the improvements originally required for patent have become useless and valueless through depreciation, removal or otherwise, is fixed at $200 for each 20 acres or fraction of 20 acres. If the surface ground of a claim has a separate and independent value for nonmining uses, the real and personal property is assessed at its full and true value. (§ 2 ch 118 SLA 1972)

Replace with local Severance tax on all resources (timber, fill, minerals, etc.)

Sec. 29.53.110. Assessment notice. (a) The assessor shall give every person named in the assessment roll a notice of assessment, showing the assessed value of his property. On each notice is printed a brief summary of the dates when taxes are payable, delinquent and subject to penalty and interest, and the dates when the board of equalization will sit.

(b) Sufficient assessment notice is given if mailed by first class mail 30 days before the equalization hearings. If the address is not known to the assessor, the notice may be addressed to the person at the post office nearest the property. Notice is effective on the date of mailing. (§ 2 ch 118 SLA 1972)

Sec. 29.53.120. Corrections. (a) A person receiving an assessment notice shall advise the assessor of errors or omissions in the assessment of his property. The assessor may correct errors or omissions in the roll before the board of equalization hearing.

(b) If errors found in the preparation of the assessment roll are adjusted, the assessor shall mail a corrected notice allowing 30 days for appeal to the board. (§ 2 ch 118 SLA 1972)

Sec. 29.53.130. Appeal. (a) A person whose name appears on the assessment roll or his agent or assigns may appeal to the board of equalization for relief from an alleged error in valuation not adjusted by the assessor to the taxpayer's satisfaction.

(b) The appellant shall, within 30 days from the date of mailing of notice of assessment, submit to the assessor a written appeal specifying grounds in the form which the board may require. Otherwise, the right of appeal ceases unless the board finds that the taxpayer was unable to comply.

(c) The assessor shall notify appellants by mail of the time and place of their hearing.

(d) The assessor shall prepare for use by the board a summary of assessment data relating to each assessment which is appealed.

(e) A city may appeal an assessment to the board of equalization in the same manner as a taxpayer. Within five days after receipt of the appeal, the assessor shall notify the person whose property assessment is being appealed by the city. (§ 2 ch 118 SLA 1972)

Taxpayer may contest valuation.—Under this section a taxpayer may contest valuation before a board of trustees meeting as a board of equalization. Yakutat & S. Ry. v. City of Yakutat, 16 Alaska 18, 227 F.2d 9 (9th Cir. 1955).

Determining portion of property devoted to purposes of organization.—Determination of what portion of property owned by a charitable, religious, or educational organization is devoted to purposes of the organization, is a factual function devolving upon the assessor and the board of equalization by law. within 30 days of the effective date of the notice.

Sec. 29.53.135. Board of equalization. The assembly sits as a board of equalization for the purpose of hearing any appeal from determinations of the borough assessor, or it may delegate this authority to a board appointed by it for that purpose. The board of equalization shall consist of at least that number of members of the assembly over and above the number required for a quorum to transact business. The board is governed in its proceedings by such procedures consistent with general rules of administrative law and the laws governing equalization proceedings as may be adopted by ordinance, including but not limited to quorum and voting requirements. The assembly shall by ordinance adopt rules for the membership and conduct of the board (§ 2 ch 118 SLA 1972) not fewer than three members.

When the borough assembly sits as an administrative body, whether as a board of equalization or adjustment, the weighted vote may not be used. 1965 Op. Att'y Gen., No. 7.

Sec. 29.53.140. Hearing. (a) If an appellant fails to appear, the board of equalization may proceed with the hearing in his absence.

(b) The appellant bears the burden of proof.

(c) The only grounds for adjustment is proof of unequal, excessive or improper valuation based on facts which are stated in a valid written appeal timely filed or proved at the hearing.

(d) The board shall certify its actions to the assessor within seven days.

(e) The assessor shall enter the changes and certify the final assessment roll by June 1.

(f) An appellant may appeal to the superior court for, and is entitled to, trial de novo of the board's action. Either party to the appeal may demand a jury trial. (§ 2 ch 118 SLA 1972)

Scope of review. — The superior court will not substitute its judgment for the judgment of those upon whom the law confers the authority and duty to assess and levy taxes. The superior court is concerned with nothing less than fraud or the clear adoption of a fundamentally wrong principle of evaluation. Sisters of Charity v. Greater Anchorage Area Borough, 8 Alas. L.J. No. 11, p. 272 (Sept., 1970); Twentieth Century Inv. Co. v. City of Juneau, Sup. Ct. Op. No. 28 (File No. 42), 359 P.2d 783 (1961).

When valuation or assessment violates due process.—The valuation and assessment of property for taxes does not contravene the due process clause of the 14th amendment unless it is plainly demonstrated that there is involved, not the exercise of the taxing power, but the exertion of a different and forbidden power, such as the confiscation of property. Such a demonstration is not made simply by showing overvaluation; there must be something which, in legal effect, is equivalent to an intention or fraudulent purpose to place an excessive valuation on property, and thus violate fundamental principles that safeguard the taxpayer's property rights. Twentieth Century Inv. Co. v. City of Juneau, Sup. Ct. Op. No. 28 (File No. 42), 359 P.2d 783 (1961).

Sec. 29.53.150. Supplementary assessment rolls. The assessor shall include property omitted from the assessment roll on a supplementary roll, using the procedures set out in this chapter for the original roll. (§ 2 ch 118 SLA 1972)

Erroneous omissions from assessment roll do not invalidate all taxes. —The omission of property from an assessment roll, through error of judgment or of law, will not invalidate all taxes, thus practically putting an end to the operations of government. Valencine v. City of Juneau, 36 F.2d 904 (9th Cir. 1929).

Sec. 29.53.155. Manifest errors discovered on the assessment roll may be corrected by the assessor and an adjustment made to the roll subsequent to its certification.

Sec. 29.53.160. Tax adjustments on property affected by a natural disaster. (a) The assembly may provide for reassessment and reduction of taxes for property destroyed, damaged, or otherwise reduced in value as a result of a natural disaster.

(b) A reassessment may be made by the assessor only upon the receipt of a sworn statement of the taxpayer that his losses exceed $1,000. A reduction of taxes may be made only on losses in excess of $1,000 for the remainder of the year following the disaster. Upon reassessment, the borough shall recompute this tax and refund taxes which have already been paid.

(c) The borough shall make notice of assessment or reassessment and shall hold an equalization hearing as provided in this chapter, except that a notice of appeal is filed with the board of equalization within 10 days after notice of assessment is given to the person appealing. Otherwise, the right of appeal ceases unless the board finds that the taxpayer is unable to comply.

(d) In enacting an ordinance or resolution authorized by this section, the assembly may, consistent with this section, prescribe procedures, restrictions and conditions of assessing or reassessing property and of remitting, refunding or forgiving taxes.

(e) In this section "disaster" means a major disaster declared by the President of the United States under the provisions of the Federal Disaster Act of 1950, Title 42, United States Code, sec. 1855-1855g, or other federal law. (§ 2 ch 118 SLA 1972)

Sec. 29.53.170. Tax levy and rate. (a) The power granted to the assembly to assess, levy and collect a general property tax shall be exercised by means of general ordinances, but the rate of levy, the date of equalization and the date when taxes become delinquent shall be fixed by resolution.

(b) The assembly shall annually determine the rate of levy before June 15. By July 1 the tax collector shall mail tax statements setting out the levy, dates when taxes are payable and delinquent, and penalties and interest. (§ 2 ch 118 SLA 1972)

Sec. 29.53.180. Rates of penalty and interest. (a) If the taxpayer is required to pay the entire tax on the due date set by the assembly, a penalty not to exceed 10 per cent may be added to all date of repurchase, together with delinquent taxes assessed and levied as though it had continued in private ownership.

(b) After termination of the right of redemption there is no right to repurchase property held for, or devoted to, a public purpose. (§ 2 ch 118 SLA 1972)

Payment of taxes constitutes an application to repurchase property from foreclosure. Jameson v. Wurtz, Sup. Ct. Op. No. 2[illegible] (File No. 431), 396 P.2d 68 (1964).

Sec. 29.53.380. Proceeds of tax sale. Upon sale of foreclosed real or personal property the borough or city shall divide the proceeds less cost of collection, between the borough and the city having unpaid taxes against the property. The division is in proportion to the respective municipal taxes against the property at the time of foreclosure. (§ 2 ch 118 SLA 1972)

Sec. 29.53.385. Payment of taxes upon public utilization. If a city or borough holds or takes title to tax-foreclosed property for a public purpose, the city or borough shall satisfy unpaid taxes and assessments against the property held by other municipalities, with accrued interest but without penalty. If the amount required to satisfy the unpaid taxes and assessments exceeds the assessed valuation of the property, the city or borough shall pay the other municipalities the assessed valuation, which shall be divided between the other municipalities in proportion to their respective taxes and assessments against the property at the time of foreclosure. (§ 2 ch 118 SLA 1972)

Sec. 29.53.390. Refund of taxes. (a) If a taxpayer pays taxes under protest, he may bring suit in the superior court against the borough for recovery of the taxes. If judgment for recovery is given against the borough, the borough shall refund the amount of the taxes to the taxpayer with interest at eight per cent from the date of payment plus costs.

(b) If, in payment of taxes legally imposed, a remittance by a taxpayer through error or otherwise exceeds the amount due, and the borough, on audit of the account in question, is satisfied that this is the case, the borough shall refund the excess to the taxpayer with interest at eight percent from the date of payment. A claim for refund filed after one year of the due date of the tax is forever barred. (§ 2 ch 118 SLA 1972)

(b) No municipality, or combination of municipalities occupying the same geographical area, in whole or in part, may levy taxes (1) which will result in tax revenues from all sources exceeding [illegible] a year for each person residing within their boundaries or (2) upon values which, when combined with the value of property otherwise taxable by the municipality, exceed the product of 225 per cent of the average per capita assessed full and true value of property in the state multiplied by the number of residents of the taxing municipality. If two or more municipalities occupying the same geographical area, in whole or in part, attempt to levy a tax (1) the combined levy of which would result in tax revenues from all sources exceeding $1,000 a year for each person residing within their boundaries or (2) upon value which, when combined with the value of property otherwise taxable by the municipality, exceed the product of 225 per cent of the average per capita assessed full and true value of property in the state multiplied by the number of residents of the taxing municipality, the commissioner of community and regional affairs shall apportion the lawful levy and equitably divide these revenues on the basis of need, services performed and other considerations in the public interest. For the purpose of this subsection, population shall be determined by the commissioner of community and regional affairs based on the latest statistics of the United States Bureau of the Census or on other reliable population data. For purposes of this subsection the average per capita assessed full and true value of property in the state shall be calculated without regard to the assessed value of taxable property under AS 43.58. Effect of amendments. — The 1973 amendment, effective January 1, 1974, added subsection (b).

The 1975 amendment, effective June 26, 1975, in subsection (b), inserted "(1)," "upon values which," and "exceed" in both the first and second sentences, deleted "either (1)" preceding "$1,000" in those sentences, and added the fourth sentence.

Editor's note. — Section 8, ch. 159, SLA 1975, contains a severability clause.

Alaska Statutes 29.53.055 and 29.58.180(a) authorize taxes to pay for municipal bonds, independent of the limitations of this section or AS 29.53.045, and regardless of whether the bonds are in default or default is pending. North Slope Borough v. Sohio Petroleum Corp., Sup. Ct. Op. No. 1750 (File Nos. 3460, 3513, 3659), 585 P.2d 534 (1978).

Alaska Statute 29.53.055, literally read, does not render this section and AS 29.53.045 meaningless. AS 29.53.055 applies only to debt financing. The limitations of this section and AS 29.53.045 apply to operating revenues. Merely because they do not also curb taxes to pay for bonds does not render them nullities. North Slope Borough v. Sohi Petroleum Corp., Sup. Ct. Op. No. 1750 (File Nos. 3460, 3513, 3659), 585 P.2d 534 (1978).

Regulation denying credit against tax levied under AS 43.56 was invalid. An emergency regulation which denied a credit against the tax levied by the state under AS 43.56.010(a) for property taxes collected by municipalities in excess of the limitations set forth in AS 29.53.045 and subsection (b) of this section was invalid since AS 43.56.010(d) mandates that all taxes paid under AS 29.53.045 are to be credited against the levy of AS 43.56.010(a). North Slope Borough v. Sohio Petroleum Corp., Sup. Ct. Op. No. 1750 (File Nos. 3460, 3513, 3659), 585 P.2d 534 (1978).

Dear Mr. Earley:

The City of Valdez would like to submit a comment with regard to the current plans to revise Alaska Municipal Code - Title 29 as it pertains to property tax - specifically the Senior Citizen Property Exemption program.

During a recent council meeting it was suggested that the age limit to qualify for the Senior Citizen Property Tax Exemption program be reduced to something less than 65 - perhaps 62. Council felt this would be one means by which people who chose to retire earlier than 65 could be benefitted

Thank you for your consideration.

Sincerely,

CITY OF VALDEZ, ALASKA

SUBJECT: Designation of "Village"

Thank you for your letter of August 13 concerning the use of the term "City" rather than "Village" for small rural incorporated communities. A term I find even more offensive is the word "bush" as a substitute for "rural."

I fear, however, that "village" may be with us a long time. AS 46.07.080(2) reads:

> "'village' means an unincorporated community which has between 25 and 600 people residing within a two-mile radius, or a second class city." (Emphasis added)

We have tried to encourage the Legislature to revise this language; perhaps we can ask them to replace "village" with a term such as "eligible rural community."

SUBJECT: Title 29 Revisions

As requested, this memo is a list of suggestions and comments for revision of Title 29 of the Alaska Statutes. Some of these comments are products of the consensus viewpoint of the staff. Some are the products of a particular staff member's concern and experience with a given provision. Several otherwise meritorious suggestions do not appear in this memo because the provisions to which they are addressed are located in other titles and could not easily be integrated into Title 29 or they are primarily a matter of DCRA's jurisdiction vis a vis other State agencies. It is my feeling that these issues must be dealt with separately in order to avoid the appearance that our Department is attempting to restructure its statutory authority under the guise of revising Title 29 or construing the mandate of SCR 66 in an excessively broad fashion.

Many of the suggestions concern policy questions which are sure to be debated extensively as the revision process continues. I do not feel it is appropriate, at this point, to offer statutory drafts implementing these policy considerations. In some cases, a mere substitution, addition, or clarification is all that is suggested and these are presented with more specificity than questions with broader policy implications. In one or two instances, a model draft of a new provision is offered as a guide where it is appropriate to do so.

Other suggestions were modified or eliminated because, after some reflection, I felt that Title 29 already adequately addressed the question or that the suggested change would have unanticipated and unwanted consequences. Given that I was not guided by the divine revelation in excerising my editorial license, I invite other staff members to continue to advocate revisions I have not favored or overlooked.

General Consideration

Title 29 provides a framework for municipal authority and function in Alaska. The relationships among the entities it creates are complex and intertwined. Therefore, the language of the statute is necessarily complex and requires a certain sophistication and studied familiarity to master. This is perhaps unavoidable given the striking diversity of conditions in Alaska. However, the burden of using this complex blueprint falls unevenly on smaller communities. Larger urban communities usually possess the technical and professional resources to deal with Title 29's requirements and options. Many smaller communities do not.

Because of this lack of expertise and resources some basic concepts are not well understood and some functions are performed badly or not at all by these small municipalities. It is ironic that many larger municipalities have home rule status which relieves them of the burden of conforming to most of the finer details of Title 29 while most smaller communities must do so.

If Title 29 is to serve as both a mandate and as a guide, it will be most effective where it is clearest and most straightforward. A primary goal of revision should be to clarify, define and simplify to the greatest extent possible. To do so comprehensively would require a great deal of work but would undoubtedly be worth the effort if the result were better local government.

On the other hand, there are areas which would benefit from a bit more complexity. Wherever a public body, commission, or board performs a discretionary or quasi-judicial duty there should be standards, guidelines, criteria, and legislative intent spelled out with some specificity. Too often these entities do not understand the necessity of procedural regularity and therefore do not function at an acceptable level of competence and evenhandness.

Chapter 18, Article 4-Development Cities

The development cities statute should be eliminated or, in the alternative, thoroughly restructured in light of the experience gained in the few abortive attempts at implementing its provisions. The case for elimination of the development cities law has been convincing laid out in prior DCRA analyses. The following is a lengthly quote from an April 20, 1976 intra-Division memo:

> The Development City law has been a failure. As of this date, this statute has been applied to only one area, notorious Lost River, and that project fizzled and then went "dud". A stunning indication of the value of the Development City law is found in the fact that it was substantially instigated, according to an Anchorage Times editorial (January 31, 1975), by the very group sponsoring its most egregious failure, Lost River.
> Once a petition is offered for development city, a great deal of State authority is set in motion, but no development city petitions other than Lost River have or will be forthcoming because development cities are usually undesirable or impractical public and private investments. Let me elaborate on this point.
> Building a community from scratch--and that is what a development city is essentially--is a very costly proposition to the public purse. The more costly it becomes, the more controversial and the less willing the State and public are to commit public funds to

to finance the proposed city's service and facilities requirements. Remember how nearby Nome jealously questioned the potentially great expenditure of State and Federal energy and financial resources for Lost River.

Lost River was bound to a State policy--which should also apply to future development city proposals--that State fiscal support of a development city will be forthcoming only if the development city first demonstrates economic feasibility without State subsidies. Considering the nature of the kind of development most likely to foster a development city proposal this is impossible. Most will be based on single industry natural resource development, be it mining like Lost River, or possibly lumbering and associated wood processing or activities supporting onshore or offshore oil and gas development. Absent the creation of a diversified regional economy, a development city isolated in the bush has virtually no potential for attracting further permanent industrial growth and only limited possibilities for commerical growth. Thus, the city collapses when the natural resource upon which it is founded becomes depleted.

Spending public funds on a community bound for extinction is not a sound investment unless the economic returns to the public substantially exceed public investment costs. Substantial public investment can cause a development city to generate a regional economy attracting more lasting industrial and commerce development, especially through State and federal investment for a regional transportation network--i.e., for airport, port and/or highway transportation facilities. However, even with such public investment, there is no guarantee that the regional economy created will be self-sustaining without continued substantial public investment. Bethel, a regional center created by substantial federal and State investment in public services and facilities, cannot sustain its regional economy without ever constant and substantial federal and State subsidy.

The development city will not only be fiscally infeasible from the State's point of view, but also as a functioning municipality. Lost River, which should fairly well exemplify any new city built from the ground up in the hinterlands, was hardly an attractive prospect in the municipal bond market. Its assessed valuation was extremely low while required bonded indebtedness was astronomically high. Not a good bond investment. Projected municipal expenditure for community development in Lost River was reported as extremely high due to the high construction and maintenance cost characteristic of bush Alaska. On the other hand, expected revenue was extremely low, attributable to the usual absence of other revenue-producing industrial and commercial operations in a single-industry city, and a low public ability-to-pay taxes, since an unusually large share of individual and family consumer expenses in remote high cost-of-living Alaskan settlements are required for the purchase of necessities. Under these foregoing circumstances, municipal fiscal health would be the exception and not the rule for a development city.

A development city will have just as hard a time becoming a socially viable community. The Bethel magneticism syndrome is a premier problem. A new community situated in the middle of the bush and chockfull of services and facilities of a high-quality never before experienced in a region could, and probably would, create an in-migration of bush citizens. The phenomenon of in-migration from rural to urban areas has been discussed and analyzed about the world for years and as of yet no one has formulated a workable, humane solution to the tremendous physical, social and governmental problems and pressures it creates in the receiving urban settlement. Bethel says it all.

Natural resource cities cannot seem to hold their workforce, having a high labor turnover and, resultantly, a high turnover of families whose continued presence is the prime ingredient for community stability. Faro, a development city (mining) in the Yukon is geographically the closest example of this instability. It was well designed and provided every essential amenity. Today, visitors and many of its former residents remark that Faro is a tedious place lacking the community spirit and cohesiveness that inexplicably only organic community development can provide. Only close to genius planning can create a brand new development city with the vitality and stability natural to communities created and evolving organically. Tapiolas, however, are exceptional and almost more a result of fortuity of circumstances than of deliberate planning.

The private sector has not exactly been flooding the Local Boundary Commission with petitions for development city incorporation. Private reluctance to jump on the bandwagon of the Development City concept is based on a good capitalist economic sense and the company-town mentality.

First, most conventional industrial development will not locate in the bush away from the established markets and amenities and thus reassuring to developers in existing cities. Second, past experience reveals that those kinds of natural resource ventures, large or small, most likely to be candidates for development city treatment > want to avoid association with any kind of municipal organization whether a development city or a regular municipality. Go it alone is the ethic, with the principal developer providing the facilities and services to the employees of the operation. Look to Prudhoe Bay, Thorne Bay and Red Bay as examples of this company-town mentality. The principal developer knows he can provide needed services for his development if he so wishes to assume the obligation. He does not have the same degree of assurance where these services are promised by a newly created municipal entity with no experience or demonstrated financial or functional capability in providing essential services supportive of industrial activity and concommitant residential and commercial build-up. The company town reaction will probably extend to any new industrial settlements arising as a consequence of offshore oil and gas development occurring well away from existing municipalities of any consequence. (Memo from Sid Wolf, Senior Planner to Kevin Waring, Directory Division of Community Planning, April 20, 1976).

The case against development cities is reinforced by the experience gained from the proposed development city of Afognak. The developer of Afognak was an ANCSA village corporation with large holdings of timber lands located within the boundaries of the proposed city. Also located within the boundaries were timber lands owned by other village corporations, permanent logging camps, and up to eighty private landowners. These various groups protested the formation of the development city and the local boundary commission finally disapproved the incorporation petition. It was argued that the development of timber land other than those held by the city's developer might be subject to land use controls designed to inhibit competition. Private land holders complained that the composition of the City Council during the development stage denied them representation and that the council meetings would not be public. They also argued the City might use its power to issue revenue bonds excessively and that there was no voter approval as a check on this power. Due to the particular status of ANSCA lands, it was feared that the ultimate liability for bonding for other municipal indebtedness would fall on the private non-Native landholders. Objections were also raised to what was perceived as a massive and unjustified State subsidy to private industry.

In retrospect, it has been argued that the Afognak case was a misapplication of the development cities statute. Perhaps the better viewpoint is that the statute was not designed to anticipate the variety of conditions to which its general application would make it susceptible. It is clear that the statute was intended primarily for the Lost River type of situation i.e., a reasonably compact development located in an isolated and virtually unpopulated area with no diversity in land ownership and no competing development. Given the complex land ownership pattern created by ANCSA, the large amount of land required for some types of resource development and the somewhat random pattern of rural population it can be anticipated that future development cities, if any, have a good chance of facing the same problems as Afognak. Some of these problems could be ameliorated by restructuring the statute but others are likely to remain as latent political questions.

Perhaps the best framework for judging the development cities law is the utilitarian propective. To date no development city exists and no serious proposal is on the horizon. The statute books are thick enough without special interest legislation which even the special interests have not found useful.

Chapter 33, Article 4-Planning, Platting and Zoning

Section 29.33.070 (b)(2). The present language of this provision was adopted by amendment in 1979. DCRA is on record as favoring the language of this provision as it existed prior to its 1979 amendment. The department was concerned that allowing a borough to delegate planning authority to a city within the borough may lead to gaps and inconsistency in planning. This is still a valid objection. The previous language allowed a borough to delegate only administrative and enforcement responsibilities to a city within the borough. This was a reasonable and efficient arrangement which struck a balance between the need for areawide continuity and the need for local responsibility. The Department should therefore recommend a return to the pre-1979 statutory language.

Section 29.33.080 (b)(4). The term "official" map needs to be defined as it has a technical meaning which is not apparent by reference to common usage. An official map is a document adopted by the legislative body of the community. It pinpoints the location of future streets and other public facilities. The official map serves as notice on developers that the municipality intends to acquire certain specified property(it is not however, a comprehensive or general plan). (A good discussion of official maps is contained in Principals and Practice of Urban Planning, International City Managers Association, Wash., D.C., 1968).

Section 29.33.080 (f). Among other things, paragraph (f) requires that "the commission shall establish, subject to approval by the assembly, rules and regulations for the conduct of its meeting." The assembly is not required to adopt these rules and regulations by ordinance. The wording of paragraph (f) should be changed to require the adoption of these rules and regulations by ordinance. In the alternative, a new section could be added to Title 29 which requires that the rules and regulations of all municipal boards, commissions, and departments be codified and published. Either of these changes would increase public access to these rules and regulations and thereby help to insure procedural regularity in the performance of administrative and quasijudical functions.

Section 29.33.090. This section should be rewritten to eliminate the use of the term "zoning" and a broader term such as "land use regulation" or "land use management" should be substituted. Euclidian zoning, whereby land is divided into use restricted districts, has not always proved to be the best or most appropriate method for regulating community development in Alaska, particularly in rural communities. "Permit" and "performance standards" systems are examples of devices used in other parts of the country to accommodate the needs for flexibility in planning. The use of the broader concept of land use regulation would include traditional zoning but would not limit communities to this device. It would also help to avoid the rather narrow and inflexible interpretion given to zoning powers by some courts.

Enabling legislation should be added to section 29.33.090 for the transfer of development rights. This land use device has evolved in recent years as a way to accomodate extensive use of community police powers to zone for open space or to preserve historic buidlings with the right of property owners to the reasonable use of their property. Other devices such as comprehensible regulation, eminent domain and acquisition of conservation easements accomplish the same public goal but require large expenditures of public funds.

The transfer of development rights system creates zones where development is greatly restricted for some public purpose. The owners of the restricted property are given the power to sever the right to develop from the rest of the fee in the land to transfer (sell) that right to an adjacent or remote parcel of land. The receiving property is no longer limited by the bulk and density requirements of its zone and may be over-developed in an amount equal to the transferred right.

The use of this device could be an important tool in shaping attractive and functional communities while at the same time allowing appropriate development to the greatest extent possible. A good discussion of this concept along with model enabling legislation can be found in: Rose, "A Proposal for the Separation and Marketability of Development Rights as a Technique to Preserve Open Space," 2 Real Estate Law Review 635 (Winter, 1974.).

Section 29.33.150.245. Paragraph (a) of section 29.33.150 should be rewritten to explicity state that all subdivisions are required to be platted and that these plats must be recorded except where the requirement is waived in specified circumstances. Chapter 15 of Title 40 of the Alaska Statutes concerning subdivisions and dedications should be integrated into Title 29.

Section 29.33.170. The waiver provisions of section 29.33.170 should be modified and a new section added authorizing short subdivisions and short plats. Under present waiver provisions, a large tract of land could be successively subdivided into four or less parcels without ever triggering the platting requirements. Short plat authority would avoid this result by requiring simplified plats and summary approval for small subdivisions. A model short plat and short subdivision statute is set out below:

> Section 29.33. . The assembly or council may adopt regulations and procedures for the summary approval of short plats and short subdivisions or revisions thereof. Such regulations shall be adopted by ordinance and may contain wholly different requirements than those governing the approval of preliminary and final plats of subdivisions and may require surveys and monumentations and shall require filling of the short plat for record in the office of the recorder: provided, that regulations shall contain a requirement that land in short subdivisions may not be further divided in any manner [within a period of five years] without filing of a final plat.
> Section 29.33. . Definitions 1) "Short subdivision" is the division of land into four or less lots, tracts, parcels, sites, or subdivisions for the purpose of sale or lease. 2) "Short plat" is the map or representation of a short subdivision.

If the provisions of AS 40.15 relating to subdivisions and dedication, were integrated into Title 29 a new section should be added as follows:

> Section 29.33. . Purpose: The purpose of this chapter is to regulate the subdivision of land to promote the public health, safety, and general welfare in accordance with standards established by the State to prevent the overcrowding of land; to lessen congestion in the streets and highways; to provide for adequate light and air; to facilitate adequate provision for water, sewage, parks and recreation area, sites for schools and school grounds and other public requirements; to provide for proper ingress and egress; and to require uniform momumenting of land subdivision and conveyancing by accurate legal description.

Chapter 41-Powers of Third Class Boroughs

Section 29.41.010. This section should be rewritten to specifically include or exclude all or part of the provisions of Chapter 48 (powers applicable to all municipalities) with particular attention paid to Section 29.48.010 and Section 29.48.260.

The last sentance of paragraph (a) of Section 29.41.010 states that: "Area wide excerise of powers other than education and tax assessments and collection is not authorized." Paragraph (b) states that a third class borough may, under certain circumstances, excerise any power excerised by a third class borough but only on a service area basis. Are third class boroughs prohibited, except on a service area basis, from:

aquiring, using, and disposing of real property; the power to sue and be sued; or the power to expend funds for the good of the municipality? The literal application of section 29.41.010 would seem to limit the excerise of these and other general municipal powers to service areas created especially for the purpose.

Chapter 48 Article I-General Powers

Section 29.48.010. Sub-section (9) of this section allows the disposal of real and personal property for purposes authorized under this or other law. Unlike section 29.48.260, this provision requires no procedural safeguards nor does it require that such action be done by ordinance.

Sub-section (9) should also be rewritten to allow for land exchanges between municipalities and private persons in certain circumstance which will occur as a result of the implementation of section 14 (c)(3) of ANSCA. Under section 14 (c)(3) municipalities will receive 1280 acres of land to be used for future municipal expansion. Several municipalities will not be able to select appropriate land in or near the municipality because most or all of the available land has been conveyed to private persons pursuant to section 14 (c)(1). It would be advantageous for a municipality to be able to exchange some of this inconveniently located land for parcels more suited to municipal purposes. Procedural safeguards should be built in to guard against improper exchanges.

Section 29.48.020. This section should be placed in another chapter. Chapter 48, in which this section is located, is entitled "Powers Applicable to all Municipalities". This section deals with powers of second class boroughs in areas outside cities and not with municipalities in general. It should be placed in another chapter.

Chapter 48 Article 4-Miscellaneous Provisions

The provisions of Section 29.48.260 relating to disposal of municipal properties could be improved by several additions and changes as outlined below:

The term "municipal purpose" in subsection (a) should be defined, or in the alternative, standards or criteria for determing when municipal land is no longer required for municipal purposes should be added to this section.

Certain procedural requirements are specified in subsection (c). The authorized methods for sale of municipal land are auction or by opening of sealed bids. Adding authority for disposal by lottery at fair market value, or some lesser figure set by the municipal legislative body, would give municipalities a fair and reasonable way to distribute land to persons of low or moderate income. The State has used this method for some time and there is no apparent reason why it would not be appropriate for municipalities. Another provision of sub-section (c) requires voter ratification of any ordinance for the sale, lease or disposition of real property or interest of real property valued at $25,000 or more. The ravages of inflation has made this provision unnecessarily burdensome to municipalities. In today's market, this provision could require voter ratification for the sale of one lot in some urban municipalities. An appropriate figure would be two to four times the present figure.

Sub-section (d) exempts municipal lands acquired from the State from the procedural requirements of subsection (c). The policy behind this provision is not apparent from reading the statute. It has been suggested that the purpose of this provision is to facilitate the transfer of excess municipal to private ownership, particularly for residential use. If this indeed is the policy behind this subsection, it should be rewritten to exempt transfers for specific purposes regardless of the source of the land. Many municipalities have or will soon receive land from non-State sources (Townsite Trust land, section 14(c)(3) ANCSA land, etc.) which may be equally appropriate for transfer to residential or other private use. It doesn't make much sense to require all the procedural steps of subsection (c) if this land is to be disposed for the same purpose as State land.

The Alaska Supreme Court has recently interpreted sub-section (e) in the case of Libby v. Dillingham. After considering competiting in terpretations of this paragraph, the court said that municipal land leased to "benefical new industries" must comply with the procedural requirements of paragraph (c) of the same section. As a result of the Libby decision, communities cannot now negotiate the lease or sale of municipal property to industries which they wish to attract into the community without first engaging into an elaborate competitive bid procedure. This provision should be rewritten to specifically exclude these kinds of transactions from the requirements of paragraph (c).

Many rural communities have expressed the desire to make residential land available to local residents but fear that under present land disposal procedures much of the land would pass to wealthy non-residents who are able to pay a higher price for the land. A new provision should be written which allows for preferances to certain classes of people (e.g. heads of household, non-owners of residential property, etc.) to insure that municipalities have some control over this problem. By listing which classes of preferences are appropriate, guidance would be given to communities so that they would not attempt to exclude classes of people protected by State or Federal law. This is especially important since many communities have expressed an interest in using durational residency requirements for land disposal preference purposes without realizing that such preferences are clearly unconstitutional. At the time of this memo, the Zobel case has not been decided by the Alaska Supreme Court. The outcome of that case may have broad implications for all classes of preference rights. Therefore, any proposed system of preference rights should be carefully reviewed in light of the final holding in the Zobel case.

One type of preference right deserves particular attention because of the inequities created by the application of section 14 of ANCSA. Section 14 (c)(1) of the Act requires that village corporations reconvey those lands occupied prior to Dec. 18, 1971 as a primary place of residence, primary place of business, subsistence campsite or headquarters for reindeer husbandry. After these claims are satisfied, section 14(c)(3) requires the village corporation to reconvey 1280 acres of land for future expansion to any municipality located in the village or, if no municipality exists, to the State in trust for a future municipality. Unfortunately conveyance of land to the various village corporations has not proceeded in the expeditious manner envisioned by ANCSA. It has been over eight years since the passage of the Act and the process of conveyance if far from complete. As a result community expansion and new development has continued in the traditional fashion from Dec. 18, 1971 to the present. Most of this expansion has occurred with the tacit or express permission of the community. However, the village corporations will not be able to convey title to land occupied after Dec. 18, 1971.

Much of this occupied land will eventually be conveyed to municipalities under section 14(c)(3) and many of these communities have expressed a desire to convey those lands occupied after Dec. 18, 1971 to present occupants. However, there is no provision in Title 29 allowing them to do so. These occupants, many of whom have made expensive improvements such as houses or businesses on the land, will have to compete for the land under the present land disposal provisions of section 29.48.260.

A new sub-section should be added to section 29.48.260 which would permit a municipality, if it so chooses, to grant these occupiers a preference right to acquire land they have substantially improved. Such a provision would avoid the injustice of denying the legitimacy of traditional land practices in rural Alaska and the hardships of forefiture which will inevitably fall on many families and small businesses.

The following is a tenative draft of a new sub-section designed to implement this policy:

> Section 29.48.260( ). Notwithstanding the provisions of (c) of this section, the assembly or council may by ordinance establish a formal procedure for the disposal of land received pursuant to section 14(c)(3) of the Alaska Native Claims Settlement Act (P.L. 92-203,85 Stat.688) to any person who substantially improves the land prior to the date on which title is conveyed to the municipality. The amount of land disposed to any person shall not exceed an amount necessary for the reasonable use and enjoyment of the improvements. The ordinance shall require notice of intent to dispose of the land in the manner provided in (c)(2) of this section. Upon written request submitted prior to disposal, the assembly or council shall hold a hearing and issue written findings of fact to resolve disputed claims. The ordinance shall provide a right of appeal to the Superior Court if filed within 60 days of a hearing. Disposal may be without or with consideration not to exceed fair market value of the land prior to improvement. Expenses, if any, for notice appraisal and survey shall be paid by the grantee.

Chapter 78 General Provisions

This chapter contains the "definitions" section of Title 29. This section should be expanded to include the terms specifically mentioned in this memo and any other terms which, upon review and reflection, are suspectable to an ambiguous or technical meaning.

The present index is inadequate. Many topics are not adequately cross referenced or are not mentioned at all. A careful revision and update would be extremely useful.

Dear Ms. Cook:

There are two aspects of Title 29 revision which I wish to comment upon.

First, I urge consideration be given to the American Law Institute's (1975) Model Land Development Code which represents a major improvement over the Hoover-era model upon which the present provisions of Title 29 governing the conduct of local planning are based. I particularly urge that the Code's recommendations concerning the division of responsibility between State and local planning responsibilities be considered.

Second, there are other statutes which can be interpreted to impose duties upon general purpose units of local government which are not specifically tied to Title 29. I have in mind, in particular, Chapter 35 of Title 46, the Alaska Coastal Management Program. This program and any similar program enacted in the attempt to attain consistency should be accompanied by a definitive tie to Title 29 which establishes an affirmative obligation on the part of local governments to exercise their substantive powers if this is the intent of the Legislature. Otherwise, Title 29 should indicate that it is the complete statement of the substantive duties and powers of municipalities.

Sincerely,

Dear Ms. Cook:

RE: TITLE 29 Review

I have had one general problem with Title 29. As City Manager in Dillingham, Kodiak and now Nome, it seems obvious that Title 29 has been organized and written for governments who have an attorney that interprets each provision.

Many times one refers to Title 29 and needs an attorneys interpretation to understand what it means. This is not practical in a smaller city because of the cost and the amount of time it takes to get an opinion.

More specifically, I am referring to references to boroughs that apply to first class cities. This is very confusing because it's hard to understand when borough statutes apply. First class cities should be set out specifically to end the confusion.

There are a number of specific problems I'd like to bring to the Policy Advisory Groups attention.

29.23.040. Majority elections. The 40 per cent runoff election should be thoroughly considered if allowed to remain in the Statutes.

Article 3. Recall. These provisions should also be researched and grounds 29.28.140 should be made more clear.

Chapter 33. Areawide Borough Powers & Duties. 29.33.010 Scope. From this point on, Boroughs are given too much power. To be more specific, the fact that a borough plans for a city is a disaster in my experience. How can a city possibly exist as a city and not have control over its destiny? In Kodiak, while I was the manager, the Borough continually attempted to manage the City through its planning powers. This caused creation of service areas (another issue) and confusion where the City was to extend its services. City planning must be a responsibility of the government that is going to implement the projects planned for. In the case of Kodiak, I personally had to attend each planning commission and assembly meeting to make certain the City's interests were considered. Since the City Council had no real influence over the assembly or the planning commission, it became an unbelievable political struggle that wound up in Court. In this case, the City's taxpayers footed the bill for both attorneys since the majority of the tax base was inside the City.

The conflict with the Borough and the City regarding Borough powers adjacent to a City is a similar issue. In the case of Kodiak, the Borough wanted to establish a water, sewer and road service area that would utilize the City's water and sewer system and possibly contract for road service. This was their attempt to stop the City from annexing an area immediately adjacent to the City that needed to do something about those services. The competing aspects of this caused undue hardship and strains on the political as well as the social systems on the island. As far as I was concerned, the whole problem was the result of Chapter 38. Borough Powers and Duties in the Area Outside Cities. This chapter actually allowed the establishment of another taxing entity that was going to increase the cost of services to the users in the service area. It also made it more difficult for the city to plan for use and expansion of its facilities and equipment.

The conflicts described above are in direct conflict with Article X, Local Government of the Constitution of the State of Alaska.

> Section 1. Purpose & Construction. The purpose of this article is to provide maximum local self-government with a minimum of local government units, and to prevent duplication of tax levying jurisdictions.

If the system of using Boroughs is to continue and expand into the Unorganized Borough, then the items I have mentioned, plus others will have to be straightened out.

I believe that 29.48.150. Ordinance. Procedure should be redone to clarify the number of times an ordinance should be voted upon. The question has come up a number of times.

Thank you for the opportunity to make suggestions regarding the Title 29 revisions. I am quite interested in these items as well as what others are suggesting and would like to be kept fully informed as to the Groups deliberations.

Sincerely,

Ivan L. Widom

RE: Title 29 Review

DATE: September 2, 1980

I have reviewed the material relating to the review of Title 29 and approve and support those portions pertaining to chapter 53 of this title.

A few other changes which might be considered are listed below:

1. Sec. 29.53.025 the classification of boats for purposes of taxation by tonnage should be changed to more realistic amounts.

2. Sec. 29.53.060 include the words having a situs within the taxing district after the word property. Many property owners believe that property not within the taxing district on January 1 of the taxing year is free of tax. Boats and airplanes are commonly removed from the taxing district during the first month of the year to avoid taxation.

3. Sec. 29.53.320 change person to receive redemption monies from clerk to tax collector who has in his/her possession the records of assessment and taxation, applied penalties, interest & costs.

Issue Paper for Title 29 Meeting

Frederick McGinnis, Deputy Commissioner Dept. Health and Social Services

For some time, the DHSS has been decentralizing and regionalizing the administration of health and social services programs. The general thrust of this has been that each program action should be taken at the lowest level of the departmental organizational structure that has staff with the requisite knowledge to effectively accomplish it. It would be a logical evolutionary extension of that concept if authority were statutorily delegated to recognized political subdivisions of the State to allow them to administer those health and social services programs which they possess, or could develop, the capability to handle.

In general, if those DHSS programs which receive Federal financial participation were statutorily delegated to political subdivisons, they would be Federally mandated to comply with the same program administration standards and regulations as DHSS does. The DHSS would still be held fully accountable by the Federal government for each of its Federally supported programs. The DHSS would have to continue as the "single State agency" authorized to receive Federal funds and would disburse them, along with State matching funds, to political subdivisions to cover the costs of the programs they administer. The DHSS would be required to supervise and conduct formal audits of the Federally supported programs administered by political subdivisions. In turn, the DHSS would continue to be subject to monitoring and formal audit by the Federal government with respect to its Federally supported programs.

At the present time, eighteen States have delegated to political subdivisions the Administration of their AFDC and Medicaid programs. In the parlance of Federal regulations, these States have State supervised, locally administered, AFDC/Medicaid programs. The States in this category are: Alabama, California, Colorado, Georgia, Indiana, Maryland, Minnesota, Montana, Nebraska, New Jersey, New York, North Carolina, North Dakota, Ohio, South Carolina, Virginia, Wisconsin and Wyoming.

Of the remining thirty-two States, twenty-one, including Alaska, directly administer their AFDC/Medicaid programs through regionally located offices staffed by State employees. Eleven of the thirty-two States directly administer their AFDC/Medicaid programs through direct State/Federal funding and line supervision of the programs and staffs of separately identifable public assistance staffs in political subdivisions. States in the latter category are Illinois, Kentucky, Louisiana, Michigan, Mississippi, Missouri, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, Tennessee and West Virgina. Under the Federal regulations, all thirty-two of these States, including Alaska, have what are termed "State administered" AFDC/Medicaid programs.

DHSS monitorhip and audit of fully State funded health and social services programs and projects administered by political subdivisions is currently practiced as a sound public administration measure. It would seem to be a logical presumption that DHSS supervision and audit would be continued statutorily in any delegation by the Legislature of health and social services programs to political subdivisions. From the standpoint of efficiency and to avoid any confusion, it would be practical if the Legislature were to require similar supervisory and audit requirements by DHSS over both Federally supported and fully State funded programs that are delegated to political subdivisions.

Perhaps needless to say to this knowledgeable group, there are substantial legal ramifications that must be fully taken into account with respect to delegation of powers to administer Federally financed DHSS programs to political subdivisions. Failure to legislate the delegation within the parameters of Federal law and regulations could jeopardize Federal funding and result in the loss of substantial amounts of Federal funds. The DHSS leadership is hopeful that if the proposed amendments to the municipal code are to include any delegation of health and social services programs to political subdivisions that there will be full coordination between the Alaska Legislative Concil, attorneys of the Department of Law who work with DHSS legal matters, and DHSS program directors.

Palmer McCarter
Director, Division of Local Government Assistance

Dear Palmer:

During the course of the revision of Title 29 I have noticed that the third class borough seems to be at odds with 29.33.310 Elections (for School Boards). This section states that all board members are elected at large. The provision that school zones may be established in accordance with section 100 of chapter 33 was repealed in 1972. As you know, in a third class borough, the borough assembly is the school board and the borough assembly may legitimately be composed of members elected by and from established districts. This is the case in the Haines Borough. Hence, school board members are not elected at large.

It occurs to me that perhaps the statement in 29.41.020 that the assembly in a third class borough is the school board actually supercedes 29.33.310. However, if this is a possible intrepretation I still believe the status of the third class borough school board members ought to be recognized in 23.33.310.

The Title 29 Revision Commission is recommending that 29.33.310 be re-worded as:

> School Boards. Each borough and city school district has a school board. Members are elected at the regular election held annually on the first Tuesday of October, unless a different election date or interval of years is provided by ordinance. Members are elected for three-year terms and until their successors take office. All board members are elected at large.

I believe that the statute would be more complete if the phrase "except those members who are also members of the third class borough assembly" were added to the last sentence.

I would appreciate your thoughts on this subject.

Sincerely yours,

Stephanie K. Scott
Administrative Secretary

SUMMARY OF

SUGGESTIONS - TITLE 29 REVISION

AS 29.18.180
(Gerald L. Sharp)
Organizational grants under this section appear to be inadequate.

AS 29.18.330
(Gerald L. Sharp)
The resident training and hire preference should be examined for constitutionality.

AS 29.23.025(e)(9)
(Marjorie Gorsuch)
Clarify what happens to the reapportionment order if a reapportionment ordinance has not been approved by the voters.

AS 29.23.029
(Marjorie Gorsuch)
There should be additional provisions for judicial review and relief.

AS 29.23.031
(Marjorie Gorsuch)
There should be additional provisions for judicial review and relief.

AS 29.23.040
(Gerald L. Sharp)
(et.seq.) The residency requirements, terms of officers, powers, duties, and the procedures for the changing of terms and qualificiations of officers as these relate to the mayor, council, and assembly members should be uniform as between a city and a borough.

AS 29.23.050
(Allan E. Tesche)
The statutory residence requirement prescribed in this section is probably invalid. It is suggested that such residence requirements throughout AS 29 be reduced to a maximum of one year.

AS 29.23.060(a)
(Gerald L. Sharp)
This section implies that there may be no special meetings if any member is not notified.

AS 29.23.060(d)
(Gerald L. Sharp)
Some consideration should be give to reducing the quorum voting requirement by one vote for every two members of the body who are present who do not vote because they either have a conflict of interest or have been excused by the legislative body.

SUGGESTIONS - TITLE 29 REVISION

AS 29.23.060(d)
(Allan E. Tesche)
Circumstances, other than financial interests, which allow a member to abstain should be better defined.

AS 29.23.070
(Gerald L. Sharp)
This section seems to provide an unnecessary infringement of the chief administrator's prerogatives in appointing department heads.

AS 29.23.070 &
(City of St. Mary's)
(& 29.43.040) The mandatory language of this section should be permissive. The wisdom of comprehensive plans and complicated zoning requirements are still subject to professional debate and Cities should have the option to develop other methods of control.

AS 29.23.080
(Gerald L. Sharp)
This section should be checked to determine whether it tracks with the new procedures on reapportionment as it relates to council appointments and dual seats.

AS 29.23.080
(Allan E. Tesche)
The procedure for determining vacancies under this section conflicts with the procedure established under AS 29.23.570.

AS 29.23.130(B)
(Allan E. Tesche)
Once again, the three residency requirement in this section should probably be reduced to one year to assure its constitutional validity.

AS 29.23.150
(Allan E. Tesche)
(& 29.23.470) Both require assembly appointment of an acting borough manager in the absence of or disability of the manager. If these sections address different policy questions, they are unclear; if they do not, one should be eliminated as redundant.

AS 29.23.170
(Allan E. Tesche)
This provision does not specify when a veto becomes effective or specify any time limit for the overriding of the veto. Moreover, it does not indicate what is the status of an ordinance between the time its veto is announced and the time the Assembly first has an opportunity to override the veto.

AS 29.23.170(cont'd)
(Allan E. Tesche)
For instance, if the mayor vetos a line item in the budget, may expenditures be made under that item until the mayor announces the veto at the next regular assembly meeting, or does the veto immediately strike the item until the veto is overridden?

AS 29.23.200
(Allan E. Tesche)
The three year residency requirement here is also probably invalid.

AS 29.23.210
(Gerald L. Sharp)
Does this require four votes on a procedural motion? This language should parallel the similar provisions for boroughs and both should be clarified as to whether there is a distinction between procedural and substantive motions.

AS 29.23.210
(Allan E. Tesche)
As with the provisions for boroughs, this section should provide more definite standards for abstention on other than conflict of interest grounds.

AS 29.23.250
(Allan E. Tesche)
Another probably invalid three year residency requirement.

AS 29.23.270
(Allan E. Tesche)
This provision has the same ambiguities with regard to the effectiveness of a veto and a veto override as the provision applying to boroughs.

AS 29.23.310
(Gerald L. Sharp)
Reference within this section to repeal Section 100 should be corrected.

AS 29.23.340(d)
(Gerald L. Sharp)
Perhaps this section should be clarified to permit the board to set rates.

AS 29.23.360
(Gerald L. Sharp)
My question why there appears to be authority for the assembly or council to appoint administrative officers such as the treasurer and chief of police who do not serve the council or the assembly but must respond to the chief administrative officer.

SUGGESTIONS - TITLE 29 REVISION

AS 29.23.370
(Gerald L. Sharp)
I question whether there may not be a conflict of interest for an attorney to provide legal advice to both the legislative and administrative branches. Perhaps there should be a specific extension of the authority of the legislative body to retain its own legal counsel. Next, I question whether there isn't a conflict of interest for the clerk to service two different masters, the legislative body, and the chief administrator.

AS 29.23.395
(Gerald L. Sharp)
(Through .401) This sort of specific legislation ought to be deleted. If some sort of authority of this sort is required, it should be addressed in the general grant of powers.

AS 29.23.470
(Gerald L. Sharp)
I question why the manager has no authority to appoint a temporary or interim manager during his own temporary absence.

AS 29.23.480
(Gerald L. Sharp)
I suggest that the adoption of an ordinance at the very next meeting after the repeal of manager plan is expecting too much of any council or assembly considering the careful deliberation which should be given to the reorganization.

AS 29.23.540
(Gerald L. Sharp)
The seriousness of the conflict of interest which exists when an employee of the school board serves on the body which determines the school board's budget but is not lessened in any way by the existence of subsection (c) of this section. This section should be repealed. Also, it appears that this section would permit a person working in the grants section of the Department of C&RA to serve on an assembly or a council.

AS 29.23.555
(Allan E. Tesche)
This section has been superceded by AS 39.50.

AS 29.23.570
(City of St. Mary's)
This year the City had one councilman leave town without resigning before departure. The City needed to fill the vacancy quickly. None of the provisions of 29.23.570 were helpful. However, 29.23.200 provides that a councilman who ceases to be a city voter immediately forfeits his office. The Council used this provision to justify filling the vacancy immediately. This provision of section 23.200 should be included under section 23.570.

SUGGESTIONS - TITLE 29 REVISION

AS 29.25.110
(Richard W. Garnett, III)(Allan E. Tesche)
Clarify application of public records law to municipality.

AS 29.28.
(Bruce Aronson)
Once a sufficient petition has been accepted, members of the council should not be able to resign and be re-appointed to the council.

AS 29.28.
(Bruce Aronson)
Statutes should be clear that the local recall effort is based on the last regular municipal election for purposes of determining the number of signatures required on a petition.

AS 29.28.
(Bruce Aronson)
A transition period should be provided by statute to allow a person recalled to service for a while after the recall election has been certified to allow a government to continue to operate.

AS 29.28.015
(Gerald L. Sharp)
I question why the mayor in a manager-type municipality should not be permitted to be a member of the legislative body so long as he does not have the veto power. This seems to be something that should be left to local option.

AS 29.28.030
(Gerald L. Sharp)
It is not clear, under this section, how one deals with a person who has been present within the municipality for more than 30 days but who does not register with the State of Alaska until four days before the election. It appears they might be qualified to vote in the municipal election as they will certainly be qualified to vote in the next state election.

AS 29.28.040
(Richard W. Garnett, III)
More specificity as to whether recall may be based on "political" factors.

AS 29.28.070(b)
(Richard W. Garnett, III)
Service area initiatives are potential problems; could lead to "Balkanization" of municipalities.

SUGGESTIONS - TITLE 29 REVISION

AS 29.28.070(b)
(Richard W. Garnett, III)(Allan Tesche)
Standardize use of "general" and "regular" as to elections to avoid uncertainty as to required number of signatures.

AS 29.28.080(a)
(Gerald L. Sharp)
This section implies that the initiative ordinance or resolution must be something within the power of the assembly or council and must not fall within the restrictions of Section 60; however, it appears that the assembly or council may reject the initiative only if it is within the restrictions of Section 60. I also believe that this section should be tightened up to make it clear that the

AS 29.28.080(a)(cont'd)
(Gerald L. Sharp)
initiative process may not be used to take what are essentially administrative actions even though the assembly or council itself may take such actions by ordinance or resolution.

AS 29.28.090(b)
(Richard W. Garnett, III)
Not specifically provided that assembly may not immediately repeal ordinance enacted under threat of initiative.

AS 29.28.110
(Gerald L. Sharp)
This section establishes an observed public policy and should be modified to parallel the more liberal provisions which we find in our state constitution.

AS 29.28.130
(Bruce Aronson)(Lee Sharp)
Change provision so that all officials would be subject to recall after six months in office. The six month grace period would not apply if a person is re-elected to the same office.

AS 29.28.130
(Allan E. Tesche)
(Et. seq.) Statutory provisions governing recall contents do not clearly define signature requirements by distinguishing between at large and district forms of representation. AS 29.28.070(b) should be redrafted to state required percentages of votes cast for Assemblymen who are elected in districts and who are elected at large.

AS 29.28.140
(Bruce Aronson)
Grounds for recall are too narrow.

SUGGESTIONS - TITLE 29 REVISION

AS 29.28.140
(Gerald L. Sharp)
This section should be changed to make it clear that elected officials may not be recalled for the manner in which they exercised a duty, e.g., the way they vote on a particular issue, but that they can be recalled for having voted on an issue on which they are prohibited from voting. They could be recalled for refusing to vote when they had neither a conflict nor been excused from voting.

AS 29.28.140(cont'd)
(Gerald L. Sharp)
They could be recalled for failing to file a report required of individual public officials. They could not be recalled for having voted in favor of doing something prescribed by law nor could they be recalled for voting against doing something which is required by law.

AS 29.28.150
(Bruce Aronson) (Lee Sharp)
A recall petition should be required to contain the mailing address of each person who signs it and a separate petition should be filed for each person sought to be recalled. Statement of grounds should be limited to 200 words.

AS 29.28.160
(Gerald L. Sharp)
Either the clerk of the assembly or council should be given specific authority to review the petition for more than merely the superficial contents requirements. This determination should also go to whether or not the ground stated, if true, constitute grounds for repeal.

AS 29.28.170
(Gerald L. Sharp)
I question why petitioners should have an additional ten days to gather signatures. Why not give them 70 days to begin with or just cut them off at 60? If the petitioners cannot do some of the leg work themselves of determining how many valid signatures they have collected, there seems to be little in public policy to require they be give an additional ten days for their sloppiness or inadequate performance.

AS 29.28.180
(Bruce Aronson)
A new petition should not be filed sooner than six months after the original is rejected for insufficient content. However, the waiting period should not apply when a petition is rejected for lack of signatures.

SUGGESTIONS - TITLE 29 REVISION

AS 29.28.190
(Elsie O'Brien)
Add a requirement that the city council and city officials perform, with reference to recall petitions, within a time certain.

AS 29.28.200(c)
(Gerald L. Sharp)
If a public official who is the subject of a sufficient recall petition resigns prior to the election, and his name is removed from the recall ballot, may he then be reappointed to his position by the remaining members prior to the recall election? May he be reappointed after the recall election?

AS 29.28.210
(Gerald L. Sharp)
If we permit one petition to contain more than one name, how should the names appear on the ballot, separately so that the voters may express their desires as to each public official individually or should there be a single ballot giving the voters the same choice which the petitioners gave the petition signers, i.e., all or none?

AS 29.28.250
(Jack Chenoweth)
Include a provision somewhere by which a state officer has authority to appoint municipal voters to fill elected city or borough offices when the number of members drops below the number required to produce a quorum.

AS 29.28.250
(Gerald L. Sharp)
What happens when an entire assembly, city council, or school board are recalled? There should be some mechanism for providing for an interim legislative body.

AS.29.33.
(Allan E. Tesche)
The current language of this chapter, as it incorporates a traditional definition of zoning and makes zoning along with platting the principal means of land use regulations, is unduly restructive and should be revised to allow more innovative forms of land use regulation by boroughs and municipalities.

AS 29.33.
(Allan E. Tesche)
Should there be a provision for a borough to exercise a power in some but not all cities (for example in second class cities but not in first class cities?)

SUGGESTIONS - TITLE 29 REVISION

AS 29.33.010
(Gerald L. Sharp)
Some place here, and perhaps other sections, we should deal with the almost impossible antitrust situation which the United States Supreme Court cast upon us in it's Lafayette decision.

AS 29.33.050
(Gerald L. Sharp)
While the section is drafted so that it uses parallel verbs, I believe the "establishes, maintains, and operates" phrase should be changed to read " and shall establish, maintain, and operate".

AS 29.33.070
(Allan E. Tesche)
It is unclear whether platting powers can be delegated to a second class borough or a city within the borough under this section.

AS 29.33.070
(Allan E. Tesche)
(Through 29.33.245) Serious thought should be given to the purpose of the planning, platting, and zoning provisions in this code. Should they only prescribe minimum due process standards for rezonings and other land use decisions or should they detail all of the administrative procedures to be followed by local governments in this area. This article presently tries to do little of both and does neither very well.

AS 29.33.080(e)
(Gerald L. Sharp)
Consideration should also be give here to reducing the majority vote requirement where there are two or more members of the commission who are present but do not vote because of a conflict of interest or because they have been excused by the remaining members.

AS 29.33.085(b)
(Gerald L. Sharp)
The requirement that the commission present new recommendations on a comprehensive plane very two years should be redrafted so that it does not appear that the continued validity of the zoning ordinance is dependent upon such a review and so that it soes not appear that there is any question as to the validity of an ordinance which is adopted pursuant to a comprehensive plan which has not been reviewed for more than two years.

AS 29.33.085(b)(cont'd)
(Gerald L. Sharp)
Also, it may not hurt to throw in some sort of language within the planning and zoning article to make it clear that the adoption of any zoning map change is a legislative and discretionary act and is not administrative as some state supreme courts seem to believe.

AS 29.33.110(b)(1)
(Gerald L. Sharp)
I strongly suggest that we not make the Board of Adjustment the board which hears appeals from building code enforcement actions. Some municipalities may prefer to place building code enforcement under some other department such as public works.

AS 29.33.110(b)(1)(cont'd)
(Gerald L. Sharp)
The authority of the Board of Adjustment to hear building code appeals should be optional with the municipality. Also, whether the assembly or council sits as the Board of Adjustment should also be optional with the municipality.

AS 29.33.110(b)(3)
(Gerald L. Sharp)
It is not clear what the phrase "which are not contrary to the public interest" modifies, "the zoning ordinance", or "requests...".

AS 29.33.120
(Gerald L. Sharp)
It appears that a person may file for a variance or conditional use, be denied that application, and yet proceed with the denied use if they appeal to the Board of Adjustment because the appeal, under the terms of this section, stays any enforcement where imminent peril is not involved.

AS 29.33.130(b)
(Gerald L. Sharp)
I question whether the legislature, and more particularly an assembly, has any authority to establish what the court may well consider as a procedural rule relating to establishing the time within which one may file an appeal to the superior court.

AS 29.33.150
(Gerald L. Sharp)
It might be wise to indicate in this section that the platting board has authority to require subdivision exactions.

SUGGESTIONS - TITLE 29 REVISION

AS 29.33.150(b)
(Gerald L. Sharp)
(& 29.33.169(c)) These sections need to be revised out of the code.

AS 29.33.170(a)(1)
(Gerald L. Sharp)
I suggest it be made clear in here that adequate access does not include access over other privately owned land by way of an easement in favor of the applicant. Adequate access consists solely of access by dedicated or publicly owned ways.

AS 29.33.190
This section needs to be beefed up by incorporating administrative procedures to prevent the recording of instruments which create unlawful subdivisions.

AS 29.33.190
(Allan E. Tesche)
This section makes it unlawful for any person to sell or attempt to sell land located within a subdivision which hs not yet been approved by the borough platting authority and subjects violators to certain criminal sanctions. But AS 29.53.100 requires that the borough assessor assess real property to "the owner of record as shown on the records of the district recorder" even though that person may be the owner of record by virtue of an illegal subdivision in violation of AS 29.33.190. Moreover, AS 29.53.310 allows persons holding security interest in illegally subdivided lands to obtain release for portions of lots or tracts originally subdivided even though such lands were illegally subdivided in violation of AS 29.33.190.

AS 29.33.190(cont'd)
(Allan E. Tesche)

AS 29.33.200
(Gerald L. Sharp)
This section needs to be coordinated with the procedures under the condemnation sections of Title 9 which require the state to submit its property acquisitions in condemnation proceedings to the platting board.

AS 29.33.240
(Gerald L. Sharp)
I question why a second class city located outside an organized borough may obtain title to vacated ways if they intend to use the way for some other public purpose, while within an organized borough the property goes to the abutting owner. I also wonder why parks, greenbelts, and other areas which are vacated are split between abutting property owners while the title to a public square vests in a municipality upon vacation.

SUGGESTIONS - TITLE 29 REVISION

AS 29.33.250
(Allan E. Tesche)
Presumably the transfer required is one from all cities exercising the power rather than from a city.

AS 29.38.
Should there be a provision for a borough to exercise a power in some but not all cities (for example in second class cities but not in first class cities?)

AS 29.41.
(Bruce Aronson) (Lee Sharp)
Eliminate third class boroughs. Re-examine idea.

AS 29.48.
(Richard W. Garnett, III)
Consider need for APUC regulation of municipality owned utilities.

AS 29.48.010
(Gerald L. Sharp)
I question the need for such subsections as (1)(2)(3) and (5) as these all seem to relate to internal administrative matters which are clearly within the authority of the municipality. Some of these sound more like delegations of authority to a specific branch within the municipality. Also, I believe some consideration should be given to whether or not there should be a catch-all grant clause.

AS 29.48.010(cont'd)
Gerald L. Sharp
Also, something should or could be added to this section to clarify the authority of the municipality to establish and enforce liens for the collection of sales taxes. There might also be a section clearly authorizing the municipality to establish both minimum and non-suspendible penalties for violation of municipal ordinances.

AS 29.48.030
(Bruce Aronson)
There should be a clear statutory statement as to when a city rather than the state must provide local enforcement services and what type of enforcement services a city must provide.

AS 29.48.030
(Palmer McCarter)
Clarify whether "health and hospital power" is one or two separate local powers.

AS 29.48.030(b)
(Allan E. Tesche)
(& 29.48.035(b)&(c)) These provisions are redundant. The limitations on the powers of second class boroughs should be stated in a more concise fashion in one easily accessible part of the code. Moreover, AS 29.48.030 and .35, insomuch as those sections distinguish between "regulation" and provision of "municipal facilities and services", are at the very least confusing and perhaps unnecessary.

AS 29.48.030(b)(cont'd)
(Allan E. Tesche)
(& 29.48.035(b)&(c)) Reference to powers granted to second class boroughs to construct and maintain Local Service Road and Trails under AS 19.30.251 should be made in this section. Reference to the power granted to local governments to regulate use of public streets, alleys, and other public places under AS 42.05.251 should be made in AS 29.48.035 or AS 29.48.020.

AS 29.48.030(a)(12)
(Allan E. Tesche)
The term transportation "system" used in this section should be defined.

AS 29.48.033
(Gerald L. Sharp)
Again, I do not have the 1980 legislation which effected state regulatory authority over cable television, transportation services, and garbage disposal but I believe what the legislature (industry) did should be carefully reviewed.

AS 29.48.050
(Gerald L. Sharp)
I question whether there is any justified public policy behind requiring franchises to be granted by ordinance ratified by the voters. This has serious Lafayette antitrust implications. It seems that a public utility ought to be granted a permit so long as they can show public convenience and necessity.

AS 29.48.070
(Gerald L. Sharp)
(& 29.48.080 & 48.090) The idea of a council or assembly sitting through a protracted rate setting hearing is preposterous. Any hearing which the ordinary council or assembly would sit still through could not possibly adequate to justify a rate. Also, it is beyond me why the rates should be established by ordinance.

AS 29.48.100(b)
(Gerald L. Sharp)
Not only are the preceeding utility regulations outmoded, it seems ludicrous to have them apply to home rule municipalities.

AS 29.48.110
(Gerald L. Sharp)
AS 29.48.110 should be changed to make it clear that a municipality may establish more than a single historic district.

AS 29.48.130(5)
(Richard W. Garnett, III)
No need to require ordinance for routine fund transfers.

AS 29.48.150(a)
(Richard W. Garnett, III)
Majority required to set ordinance for hearing. Should be less.

AS 29.48.160(b)
(Gerald L. Sharp)
If the procedure for regulating utilities and granting franchises has changed, this section should probably also be changed to correspond.

AS 29.48.170
(Richard W. Garnett, III)
Need some procedure for enacting municipal regulations.

AS 29.48.190(b)
(Gerald L. Sharp)
This section seems to imply that a municipality may enter into an obligation to make payments in a future year if it does so by ordinance. If this happens, I think you have a debt which must have first been approved by the voters and before a capitol improvement.

AS 29.48.190
(City of St. Mary's)
Subsection (c) is unclear with respect to the procedures that must be followed to make transfer and supplemental appropriations. The language providing that no payment may be made except in accordance with appropriations may be troublesome in that it could be interpreted to give the City no leeway with respect to spending except through lengthy procedures to amend the budget.

AS 29.48.190 (cont'd)
(City of St. Mary's)
The suggested budget ordinance sent each year to municipalities by Community and Regional Affairs is more flexible and preferable but may not be legal under 29.48.190. This section should be changed to permit transfers without budget amendment if less than 10% or $10,000 whichever is less of the original appropriation.

AS 29.48.200
(Gerald L. Sharp)
The fine limitation and imprisonment limitation both need to be raised. In addition, this may be the appropriate place to specifically authorize municipalities to establish both minimum fines and imprisonments and to provide clear authority for municipalities to make certain penalties non-suspendible.

AS 29.48.210
(Gerald L. Sharp)
This section is a good example of the need to carefully distinguish between boroughs and cities on the one hand and unified units on the other. In any event, I believe this section should be changed to permit the expenditure of areawide revenues on a non-areawide bases.

AS 29.48.220
(City of St. Mary's)
The audit requrement is burdensome for the City. As a first class city we are required to provide a certified audit of city finances. Second class cities need only submit certified financial statements prepared by the city bookkeeper. The City obtains little advantage and no tangible benefit from this requirement. The only people who review the audit are from DCRA. The audit requirement should not be tied to city class.

AS 29.48.220(cont'd)
(City of St. Mary's)
The audit requirement should not be tied to city class. Rather, the requirement should depend upon the size of the budget. It is the amount of money the city spends that justifies audits. Financial statements should be sufficient for cities with budgets less than one million.

AS 29.48.250
(Gerald L. Sharp)
Since our supreme court seems to believe that a borough may not require central purchasing to include a school district, this section does not appear to have much, if any need. It should be deleted, as I believe this power is already possessed by a municipality.

AS 29.48.260
(Richard W. Garnett, III)
Vote on sale of property over $25,000 is unduly burdensome.

AS 29.48.260
(Gerald L. Sharp)
I believe the exemption which is set forth in (d) should be expanded to encompass any land which the municipality disposes of.

AS 29.48.260
(City of St. Mary's)
I consider this to be the most troublesome provision in Title 29 for rural communities. Through the Department of Community and Regional Affairs the City has requested an Attorney General's opinion on some of the requirements of this provision and has recently received a Community Legal Assistance Grant to determine the effect the statute has on land disposal in St. Mary's.

AS 29.48.260(cont'd)
(City of St. Mary's)
First the requirement of appraisals on land before disposal are difficult when most rural land is difficult if not impossible to appraise because comparable sales do not exist. Public auctions may cause the price of land to escalate beyond the means of local residents to afford, and may inhibit local residents who do not speak English from participating in auctions.

AS 29.48.260(cont'd)
(City of St. Mary's)
The words "if any" in subsection (c)(3) seem to indicate public auction or sealed bids are optional but this is not clear. Cities shou'i have the option of developing disposal procedures appropriate to its locality. Such procedures should be ratified by the voters.

AS 29.48.260
(Allan E. Tesche)
Provisions of this section governing disposal of municipal properties should be clarified and revised to reflect increased land values throughout the state, to state who makes determinations of the value of land offered for sale and the date upon which such valuations must be based. Moreover, the statute should be clarified to either include or exclude rights-of-way or easements from its provisions.

AS 29.48.270(b)(c)
(Gerald L. Sharp)
These two sections do not seem to have anything to do with the catch line nor with the two remaining subsections. I am not sure why (b) is required in the first place unless it is to make the transfer of this one power optional rather than mandatory as required under AS 29.33.260. These two sections should be moved to a section dealing with a general grant of powers or with the transfer of powers.

AS 29.48.310
(Gerald L. Sharp)
(& 29.48.320, & 330) Although these sections seem to be very comprehensive, it appears that our courts prefer a contrary rule. Either we need to strengthen the language in these sections or we need to print up a Miranda Rights card which we can read to the judge every time we go into court over a municipal powers question.

AS 29.53.
(Allan E. Tesche)
Should be ameded to require payment of all taxes, even those due for more recent assessments on properties whose owners have requested issue of a quitclaim repurchase deed. Present law mandates issue of a quitclaim repurchase deed to the owner of record upon payment of those taxes assessed for the tax year stated in the clerk's deed even though the same property is the subject of other foreclosure proceedings brought in subsequent years.

AS 29.53.(cont'd)
(Allan E. Tesche)
An amendment to AS 29.53 which would require payment of all taxes owing on a parcel before a quitclaim repurchase deed can be issued would eliminate substantial confusion in the minds of taxpayers, and would reduce administrative complexity for borough finance departments presently confronted with multiple foreclosure actions on the same parcels.

AS 29.53.010
(Richard W. Garnett, III)
Permit exemption of all personalty or of various classes.

AS 29.53.010
(Gerald L. Sharp)
Again the problem of how this is to apply to unified units of government; also, this section should be changed to permit the use of areawide revenues on a non-areawide bases.

AS 29.53.020
(Clara M. Eccles)
Extend property tax exemption to include disabled veterans of any age.

AS 29.53.020(a)(1)
(Gerald L. Sharp)
Some place in the code we need to deal with the method of valuing privately held interests in tax exempt property.

AS 29.53.020(a)(3)
(Gerald L. Sharp)
A number of problems arise from the lack of definitions of terms such as religious, charitable, educational, and perhaps hospital, which are used in this section. Aslo, there is a question which arises relating to when a property which is owned by, for example, a religious organization, becomes exempt;

AS 29.53.020(a)(3) (cont'd)
(Gerald L. Sharp)
for example, does vacant land become exempt when it is first purchased by an exempt organization, when the organization has an intent to devote it to a particular exempt use, when the organization commences construction of a facility which will be used for the exempt purpose even though during construction it is not being used for the exempt purpose? (b)(2)(B)

AS 29.53.025(b)(1)
(Richard W. Garnett, III)
Clarify "delegation" of powers to service areas.

AS 29.53.030
(Gerald L. Sharp)
This section should be revised to reflect a realistic value for mining claims, particularly in light of the recent rise in the price of gold.

AS 29.53.060
(Gerald L. Sharp)
Perhaps this is a section in which the valuation of leasehold and other possessory interest in tax exempt property should be exempt.

AS 29.53.080
(Ribert H. Ziegler, Sr.)
Assessors should not be allowed to have access to sale price of property by requesting this information from buyers or sellers.

AS 29.53.135
(Gerald L. Sharp)
This section should be clarified to indicate whether a majority of the number of members of the assembly. Also, either here or someplace else in the code, we should specifically address whether or not the Board of Equalization has the authority to determine whether property is exempt, and, if exempt, how much of the property is exempt if it is not totally devoted to exempt use.

AS 29.53.135
(Allan E. Tesche)
The language regarding the composition of the Board of Equalization is unclear. The statute presently requires "at least that number of members of the assembly over and above the number required for a quorum to transact business"; the statute is unclear when applied to a lay board to whom the equalization function is delegated.

AS 29.53.150
(Gerald L. Sharp)
A question arises as to whether property which goes from exempt property on January 1 of the tax year to non-exempt because of a change of use during the tax year can be put on a supplemental roll and taxed. Also, if it can be, should the taxes be a portion? In addition, something should be placed in the code to provide guidance for dealing with personal property which is in the municipality for only a part of the year.

AS 29.53.180
(Gerald L. Sharp)
This section should be changed to reflect a reasonable interest rate and a penalty which is substantially above the interest.

AS 29.53.415
(Gerald L. Sharp)
(& 29.53.440) Something needs to be added to these sections to take care of problem created by the Alaska Supreme Court when it ruled that there was no statutory authority for a general law municipality to establish a lead for sales taxes.

AS 29.58.
(Ben T. Delahay
A new section should be added authorizing that an ordinance for refunding bonds be passed on one hearing, at either a regular or special meeting, and with only the normal majority vote.

AS 29.63.
(Ben T. Delahay)
The chapter on service areas should be clarified; there is too much authority in the assembly to handle decisions in the service area which should be made by the people paying the taxes in the area.

AS 29.63.
(Bruce Aronson)
Community councils should be advisory only by statute and money from the state for service areas ought to be appropriated for the city, not the local council.

AS 29.63.090(e)
(Richard W. Garnett, III)
Clarify "delegation" of powers to service areas.

AS 29.63.090
(Elsie O'Brien)
Loans by borough to service area should be subject to prior approval by voters within the service area.

AS 29.63.090
(Allan E. Tesche)
The present statute governing service areas does not adequately address the question of whether a service area may be used for exercise of a governmental regulatory power rather than for provision of municipal or services.

AS 29.68.
((Bruce Aronson)
Statutes should be changed so that cities are not able to annex territory without providing services to the annexed area and so that people living outside cities who are receiving services pay for them.

AS 29.68.010(cont'd)
(City of St. Mary's)
The delay in time between the decision of the Local Boundary commission and the legislative disapproval time is unnecessary and can lead to legal complications. Since the legislature has never disapproved a Boundary Commission decision it seems this requirement of submission to the legislature has little utility. A workable alternative might be to preserve a right to appeal a boundary commission decision to the legislature.

AS 29.68.010
(City of St. Mary's)
The City recently annexed an adjacent community into its boundary. In order to facilitate the annexation the City wanted to and did make major concessions to the citizens of the adjacent community with respect to a voice in City affairs. Technically what the City has done is not legal because the annexation is not finalized until 45 days after the next legislative section has begun.

AS 29.73.020
(Gerald L. Sharp)
This section needs to be divided into two subsections to separate the procedures for home rule and general law municipalities from those for second class municipalities. Presently, there is some question as to whether the last two sentences of the section apply only to second class cities or whether it applies to all municipalities.

AS 29.78.101(16)
(Richard W. Garnett, III)
Definition of "subdivision"; consider application to division for leasing, as by holders of oil leases.

General Revision Suggestions - Title 29

AS 29
(Tanana Chiefs Conference, Inc.)
Do not create new forms of local government in the unorganized borough, but rather recognize the traditional governments currently operating.

(Tanana Chiefs Conference, Inc.)
Allow local government to contract for the providing of state services, so that programs can be administered locally.

(Tanana Chiefs Conference, Inc.)
Coordinated regional planning should be done by existing local governments on a voluntary basis through the formation of consortiums of existing governments. These would be allowed to jointly exercise authority outside of their local boundaries.

(Tanana Chiefs Conference, Inc.)
Reduce municipal liability by raising the standard of municipal tort liability for only those official acts involving, "wanton and willful" conduct rather than mere negligence. Municipal ordinances and regulations should be assimilated into state law to allow state prosecution of local violations.

(Tanana Chiefs Conference, Inc.)
Alternatives for fuller local participation in the unorganized borough in state action:

1. A community or consortium must agree to agency actions/plans affecting the community. In the absence of consent, the agency would have to show, in a locally neutral administrative hearing, that the best interest of the state requires the action/plan.

2. Communities or consortiums produce regional plans with which state agencies must comply or get a waiver from the community or proceed through a local neutral hearing.

3. Agencies could be required to have local plans/actions approved after a local hearing by a local hearing officer.

SUGGESTED CHANGES TO TITLE 29

From Ben T. Delahay (City Attorney, Kenai)

1. I would note that when I was with the Borough several million dollars were saved the Borough by issuance of refunding bonds, but this was complicated because in order to take advantage of differentiation of interest rates, the banks had to have a prompt response. This is hardly the type of thing that I consider appropriate under an emergency ordinance (AS 29.48.160), and it really should not be as difficult to pass as an emergency ordinance. The indebtedness has already been approved by the voters and incurred, and the only question is refunding at a proper time to take advantage of market conditions to lower cost to the taxpayer. I would suggest a new section in AS 29.58 authorizing that an ordinance for refunding bonds be passed on one hearing, at either a regular or special meeting, and with only the normal majority vote.

2. I believe the chapter on service areas, (AS 29.63) could also stand a lot of clarification. My experience in this Borough would indicate that section has many unwise provisions that should be modified - there is too much authority in the Assembly to handle the decisions in the service area which should be made by those in the service area paying the taxes.

From Richard W. Garnett III (Attorney, Anchorage)

1. 29.28.070(b) - Service area initiatives are potential problems; could lead to"Balkanization" of municipalities.

2. Same - Standardize use of "general" and "regular" as to elections to avoid uncertainty as to required number of signatures.

3. 29.28.090(b) - Not specifically provided that assembly may not immediately repeal ordinance enacted under threat of initiative.

4. 29.28.040 - More specificity as to whether recall may be based on "political" factors.

5. 29.48.130(5) - No need to require ordinance for routine fund transfers.

6. 29.48.150(a) - Majority required to set ordinance for hearing. Should be less to give minority a chance to make it's case.

7. 29.48.170 - Maybe need some procedure for enacting municipal regulations.

8. 29.48.260 - Vote on sale of all property over $25,000 may be unduly burdensome.

9. 29.53.010 - Why not permit exemption of all personalty or various classes.

10. 29.53.025(b)(1) - Special treatment for boats.

11. 29.63.090(e) - Reference to "delegation" of powers to service areas needs clarification.

12. 29.78.101(16) - Definition of "subdivision"; consider application to division for leasing, as by holders of oil leases.

13. Public Records - Clarify application of public records law, section 09.25.110 to municipality.

14. Home Rule - More clear criteria for application of non-title 29 provisions to home rule. (Maybe require inclusion in AS 29.13.10 laundry list).

15. APUC - Consider need for APUC regulation of municipality owned utilities.

16. 29.18 - Clarify rights to VUU land vis a vis state classification under AS 38.

17. 29.41 - Consider need for third class borough.

PLEASE NOTE: THE FOLLOWING PAGES WERE TREATED AS A UNIT IN THE ORIGINAL DOCUMENT.

For an Act entitled: "An Act relating to senior citizen exemption from motor vehicle property tax; and providing for an effective date."

BE IT ENACTED BY THE LEGISLATURE OF THE STATE OF ALASKA:

* Section 1. AS 29.53.020(h) is amended to read:

(h) Except as provided in (g) of this section, nothing in (e) - (1) [(i)] of this section affects similar exemptions from property taxes granted by municipalities on September 10, 1972 or prevents municipalities from granting similar exemptions by ordinance as provided in AS 29.53.025.

* Sec. 2. AS 29.53.020 is amended by adding new subsections to read:

(j) One motor vehicle owned by a resident 65 years of age or older on January 1 of the assessment year is exempt either from taxation on its assessed value or from the registration tax established under AS 28.10.431(b).

(k) The state shall pay a borough or city for tax revenues lost to it under (j) of this section. The payment shall be an amount equal to the tax levied under AS 28.10.431(b) for each vehicle for which a senior citizen exempt affidavit form, as prescribed by the Department of Public Safety, Division of Motor Vehicles, is submitted.

(l) The Department of Community and Regional Affairs shall adopt regulations to implement the provisions of (g), (j), and (k) of this section.

* Sec. 3. AS 29.10.411(d) is repealed.

* Sec. 4. This Act is retroactive to January 1, 1980.

Dear Ms. Cook:

RE: TITLE 29 Review

I have had one general problem with Title 29. As City Manager in Dillingham, Kodiak and now Nome, it seems obvious that Title 29 has been organized and written for governments who have an attorney that interprets each provision.

Many times one refers to Title 29 and needs an attorneys interpretation to understand what it means. This is not practical in a smaller city because of the cost and the amount of time it takes to get an opinion.

More specifically, I am referring to references to boroughs that apply to first class cities. This is very confusing because it's hard to understand when borough statutes apply. First class cities should be set out specifically to end the confusion.

There are a number of specific problems I'd like to bring to the Policy Advisory Groups attention.

29.28.040. Majority elections. The 40 per cent runoff election should be thoroughly considered if allowed to remain in the Statutes.

Article 3. Recall. These provisions should also be researched and grounds 29.28.140 should be made more clear.

Chapter 33. Areawide Borough Powers & Duties. 29.33.010 Scope. From this point on, Boroughs are given too much power. To be more specific, the fact that a borough plans for a city is a disaster in my experience. How can a city possibly exist as a city and not have control over its destiny? In Kodiak, while I was the manager, the Borough continually attempted to manage the City through its planning powers. This caused creation of service areas (another issue) and confusion where the City was to extend its services. City planning must be a responsibility of the government that is going to implement the projects planned for. In the case of Kodiak, I personally had to attend each planning commission and assembly meeting to make certain the City's interests were considered. Since the City Council had no real influence over the assembly or the planning commission, it became an unbelievable political struggle that wound up in Court. In this case, the City's taxpayers footed the bill for both attorneys since the majority of the tax base was inside the City.

The conflict with the Borough and the City regarding Borough powers adjacent to a City is a similar issue. In the case of Kodiak, the Borough wanted to establish a water, sewer and road service area that would utilize the City's water and sewer system and possibly contract for road service. This was their attempt to stop the City from annexing an area immediately adjacent to the City that needed to do something about those services. The competing aspects of this caused undue hardship and strains on the political as well as the social systems on the island. As far as I was concerned, the whole problem was the result of Chapter 38. Borough Powers and Duties in the Area Outside Cities. This chapter actually allowed the establishment of another taxing entity that was going to increase the cost of services to the users in the service area. It also made it more difficult for the city to plan for use and expansion of its facilities and equipment.

The conflicts described above are in direct conflict with Article X, Local Government of the Constitution of the State of Alaska.

> Section 1. Purpose & Construction. The purpose of this article is to provide maximum local self-government with a minimum of local government units, and to prevent duplication of tax levying jurisdictions.

If the system of using Boroughs is to continue and expand into the Unorganized Borough, then the items I have mentioned, plus others will have to be straightened out.

I believe that 29.48.150. Ordinance. Procedure should be redone to clarify the number of times an ordinance should be voted upon. The question has come up a number of times.

Thank you for the opportunity to make suggestions regarding the Title 29 revisions. I am quite interested in these items as well as what others are suggesting and would like to be kept fully informed as to the Groups deliberations.

Sincerely,

Dear Ms. Cook:

There are two aspects of Title 29 revision which I wish to comment upon.

First, I urge consideration be given to the American Law Institute's (1975) Model Land Development Code which represents a major improvement over the Hoover-era model upon which the present provisions of Title 29 governing the conduct of local planning are based. I particularly urge that the Code's recommendations concerning the division of responsibility between State and local planning responsibilities be considered.

Second, there are other statutes which can be interpreted to impose duties upon general purpose units of local government which are not specifically tied to Title 29. I have in mind, in particular, Chapter 35 of Title 46, the Alaska Coastal Management Program. This program and any similar program enacted in the attempt to attain consistency should be accompanied by a definitive tie to Title 29 which establishes an affirmative obligation on the part of local governments to exercise their substantive powers if this is the intent of the Legislature. Otherwise, Title 29 should indicate that it is the complete statement of the substantive duties and powers of municipalities.

Sincerely,

CITY OF UNALASKA PLANNING DEPARTMENT

Agenda Suggestions from the Title 29 Working Group
to the Title 29 Policy Group

1. Are unified municipalities home rule or general law? This needs to be clarified.

2. We recommend that AS 29.08.050 Transition be repealed as out of date.

3. We recommend that the statute concerning REAAs be expanded to include procedures for integrating REAAs into newly organized boroughs.

4. AS 29.18.180. Organization Grants. The dollar amounts of the organizational grants are inadequate. We recommend the amount be tripled.

5. AS 29.68.290 Nomination of charter commission candidates. Should a legislative body be authorized to make appointements to the charter commission in case of vacancies on the commission because of a failure to elect enough people?

6. AS 29.68.440. Powers of a unified municipality. What is a unified municipality?

7. Should the percentage requirements for signatures on petitions be lowered?

8. AS 29.68.500 Methods of dissolution. The section regarding the methods of dissolution are confusing, in that the two methods outlined involve substantially the same processes.

9. AS 29.13.050 Initiative and Referendum. This section should be clarified so that Home Rule municipalities are not bound by the procedures set out in the statute.

10. We need a more precise way of dealing with inconsistencies between Home Rule and state enactments.

11. AS 29.13.100 Limitation of home rule powers. This "laundry list" of limitations on Home Rule needs to be reviewed. Should there be cross-referencing to the home rule provisions in other statutes?

12. Chapter 18. Development cities. The chapter on development cities should either be reviewed and improved or deleted.

13. Chapter 23. Municipal Officers and Employees. This chapter should have provisions for dealing with the public records of municipalities. Municipalities should have a public records policy such as "except as provided by ordinance, all records shall be public."

14. Should municipalities be allowed to set residency requirements for voters? Should the three year residency requirement for elected officials which municipalities are permitted to set be lowered to one year in view of Castner v. City of Homer, specifically upholding one year requirements?

15. We feel there should be alternate methods for majority requirements of the votes of municipal assemblies.

16. AS 29.23.021 Assembly composition and apportionment. We feel there should be a greater delineation between composition and reapportionment.

17. There should be provisions for emergency situations arising when there is a lack of a quorum.

18. AS 29.48.130 (a) This should be amended to make possible budget transfers and supplemental appropriations by resolution instead ordinance.

19. What should mayoral veto powers encompass?

20. How are planning responsibilities to be divided between cities and boroughs?

21. We recommend that the sections of chapter 23 dealing with the involvement of young people in local government be repealed.

SUGGESTED REVISIONS - TITLE 29

Sec. 29.28.140. Grounds (for recall)

This section differs from AS 15.45.510 which provides grounds for recall of State officials; there could be an argument made for consistency between the two:

Municipal grounds for recall AS 29.28.140	State grounds for recall AS 15.45.510
1) misconduct in office	1) lack of fitness
2) incompetence	2) incompetence
3) failure to perform prescribed duties	3) neglect of duties
	4) corruption

Sec. 29.28.150. Petition (for recall)

Should be rewritten to include a requirement of the name and office of the person (singular) to be recalled and a clarification that if more than one official is considered for recall a petition for each individual must be circulated.

Sec. 29.28.190. Submission (of recall petition)

The present wording is too vague with the use of the word "immediately" and should specify a specific time frame, i.e. 10 days

Sec. 29.48.035 (14). Regulatory powers (of municipalities)

"building, housing and related codes, which may be provided by cities within cities. . ." needs rewording (cities within its own boundaries?)

Sec. 29.48.037. Extraterritorial jurisdiction (of municipalities)

(b) states that a city can protect its watersheds and enforce such protection outside its boundaries ONLY upon the approval, by ordinance, of the municipality where the watersheds are located. This poses a problem when a city tries to exercise the protection of its water supply which lies outside the city limits but within the organized borough and where the borough is not actively involved in any such protection but refuses to allow the city to exercise such. If a borough has, in effect, veto power over the city's action in this regard, the borough government should be required to be actively involved in the exercise of such protected activity itself.

Drafted by Johnna Shanley

AS 29.33.070(b)

If a first class or home city is located more than 25 miles from the boundary of the b_ough seat, the planning, platting and zoning responsibilities within the city may be exercised by the city after a city ordinance providing for the exercise thereof is approved by a majority of the electors within the city voting on the question at a regular or special election.

or by Council ordinance

AS 29.48.050(d)

For purposes of AS 29.48.050 - .070 a public utility which is not regulated as to rates and services by the Alaska Public Utilities Commission shall not be considered as regulated by AS 42.05.

SUGGESTED CHANGES TO TITLE 29

From Elsie O'Brien (Houston City Clerk)

1. AS 29.28.190, recall provisions:
   Should consider adding a requirement that the city council and city officials perform, with reference to recall petitions, within a time certain.

2. AS 29.63.090, service areas within boroughs:
   The Mat-Su borough loaned money to a road service area, apparently on promise of repayment within fiscal year, but without approval of the apparent indebtedness by voters of the affected service area. Should consider legislation to require that such debts are subject to prior approval by voters within service area.

3. General observation: would like greater information within the text of the volume. (This may not be possible because of the strict format relating to what may be annotated. However, perhaps CRA should receive an amount so that each year for small cities a loose-leaf form of Title 29 may be prepared to update which carries changes in law, applicable commentary, case decisions, AG opinions, etc., supplied by the Dept. on a quarterly basis.)

From Senator Robert H. Ziegler, Sr.

1. I don't much like AS 29.53.080. What privately contracting parties sell or pay for property need not necessarily reflect f.m.v. Alaskan assessors are supposed to assess at 100% of true value. Ergo, if they can examine and inspect properties, why can't they appraise without involving the records of the buyer/seller? (I've lost this argument before!)

From Jack Chenoweth (Staff Counsel, Legislative Affairs)

1. Give some thought to inclusion of a provision somewhere by which a state officer -- governor, CRA commissioner or what have you -- enjoys authority to appoint municipal voters to fill elected city or borough offices when the number of incumbent members of city council council or borough assembly drops below the number required by law or charter to produce a quorum. For example, if the 5 members of the Juneau assembly are recalled, it may be that the four remaining cannot function as an assembly even to the point of filling a vacancy or calling for an election to fill the vacancy. Other quirks in charter provisions could operate to preclude councils or assemblies from operating if there are "mass" resignations or wholesale removals.

From Marjorie Gorsuch (House Committee on Community & Regional Affairs)

1. Section 9 AS 29.23.025 (e) outlines the procedures to be followed if a reapportionment ordinance has not been approved by the voters after the assembly has determined that reapportionment is necessary. The law does not address what happens to the order--is it voted on by the people? Can the order be appealed? Is administrative or judicial review provided for?

2. In Section 29.23.029 and Section 29.23.031 there should be additional statutory references providing for judicial review and relief in all applicable instances and referencing all applicable voter approved ordinances and reapportionment orders under Sec. 031.

From Clara M. Eccles (Anchorage)

1. I'm interested in SB 154 "Extending property tax exemption to include disabled veterans of any age." (Note: SB 154 did not pass last regular session.)

From Bruce Aronson (Ombudsman's Office)

1. AS 29.28.130 is unclear as to whether an official may be subject to recall within 6 months of being re-elected. It would seem that the original intent of this section was to protect rookies rather than encumbants. Recommendation: all officials may be recalled after 6 months have been served in office. The 6 month grace period would not apply if a person is re-elected to the same office.

2. The grounds for recall listed in AS 29.28.140 are too narrow in scope. Since the grounds stated in recall petitions need not be proven, people are forced to name one of the three listed grounds even when the real reason behind the petition bears little relation to it.

3. AS 29.28.150 should be changed so that it is clear that a recall petition can seek to recall only one named official. A separate petition should be filed for each offical sought to be recalled. A petition should be required to contain the mailing address of each person who signs it.

4. AS 29.28.180 should be changed so that a new petition may not be filed sooner than 6 months after the original is rejected for insufficient content. However, the waiting period should not apply when a petition is rejected for lack of signatures.

5. There has been a fear that once a sufficient petition has been submitted and accepted, members of the council could resign and be re-appointed to the council. The statutes should preclude this possibility.

6. The statutes should be clear that the local recall effort is based on the last regular municipal election for purposes of determining the number of signatures required on a petition, not on the state election.

7. It is unclear whether a person recalled is removed from his office at once after the election has been certified, without any transition period. Some sort of transition period should be provided by statute to allow a government to continue to operate when a majority has been recalled from office.

8. Eliminate third class boroughs. There is no need for them now that REAAs have been established. If a borough is organized, it should assume minimal responsibilities, such as land use planning.

9. There should be a clear statutory statement as to when a city rather than the state must provide local enforcement services and what types of enforcement services a city must provide. This will never be done voluntarily on a local level because the state currently provides free police services. A statute should identify the types of local problems which the state troopers will not pursue, such as dog control.

10. There is a problem with local control of service areas. Community councils are getting direct support form the state and this creates mini-municipalities within the municipality which sets up the service area. The resulting overlapping jurisdiction causes confusion as to policy and citizens cannot determine who to deal with regarding particular problems. The councils should be advisory only by statute and money from the state ought to be appropriated for the city, not the council.

11. Statutes should be clarified and strengthened regarding the annexation process. Cities ought not to be able to annex territory without providing services to the annexed area and people living outside cities who are receiving services ought to help pay for them.

From Palmer McCarter (C & RA)

1. Clarify whether "health and hospital power" is one or two separate local powers.

2. Adopt uniform definitions of "municipality," "borough," and use the terms consistently throughout the title.

3. Clarify the use of the terms "general" and "regular" election. Use the term "general" election to refer to state, not local elections.

AS 29: Revisions Needed

29.08

Although an attempt has been made in this Chapter to classify the various kinds of Alaskan municipalities, more recent amendments to Title 29 and unification of several cities and boroughs have resulted in confusion over definitions of "cities", "boroughs", and "municipalities". It is not clear, for instance, whether the unified Municipality of Anchorage is a city, a borough, or unified municipality or all three forms of government within existing provisions of AS 29.

29.13.100

The Code should contain a uniform system for designating statutes that expressly apply to home rule municipalities and all such statutes should be consistently cross referenced.

29.23.050

The statutory residence requirement prescribed in this section is probably invalid. It is suggested that such residence requirements throughout AS 29 be reduced to a maximum of one year.

29.23.060(d)

Circumstances, other than financial interests, which allow a member to abstain should be better defined.

29.23.080

The procedure for determining vacancies under this section conflicts with the procedure established under AS 29.23.570.

29.23.130(B)

Once again, the three residency requirement in this section should probably be reduced to one year to assure its constitutional validity.

29.23.150 and AS 29.23.470

Both require assembly appointmet of an acting borough manager in the absence of or disability of the manager. If these sections address different policy questions, they are unclear; if they do not, one should be eliminated as redundant.

29.23.170

This provision does not specify when a veto becomes effective or specify any time limit for the overriding of the veto. Moreover, it does not indicate what is the status of an ordinance between the time its veto is announced and the time the Assembly first has an opportunity to override the veto. For instance, if the mayor vetos a line item in the budget, may expenditures be made under that item until the mayor announces the veto at the next regular assembly meeting, or does the veto immediately strike the item until the veto is overridden?

29.23.200

The three year residency requirement here is also probably invalid.

29.23.210

As with the provisions for boroughs, this section should provide more definite standards for abstention on other than conflict of interest grounds.

29.23.250

Another probably invalid three year residency requirement.

29.23.270

This provision has the same ambiguities with regard to the effectiveness of a veto and a veto override as the provision applying to boroughs.

29.23.555

This section has been superceded by AS 39.50.

29.33.070-245

Serious thought should be given to the purpose of the planning, platting and zoning provisions in this code. Should they only prescribe minimum due process standards for rezonings and other land use decisions or should they detail all of the administrative procedures to be followed by local governments in this area. This article presently tries to do little of both and does neither very well.

29.33.190

This section makes it unlawful for any person to sell or attempt to sell land located within a subdivision which has not yet been approved by the borough platting authority and subjects violators to certain criminal sanctions. But AS 29.53.100 requires that the borough assessor assess real property to "the owner of record as shown on the records of the district recorder" even though that person may be the owner of record only by virtue of an illegal subdivision in violation of AS 29.33.190. Moreover, AS 29.53.310 allows persons holding security interest in illegally subdivided lands to obtain release for portions of lots or tracts originally subdivided even though such lands were illegally subdivided in violation of AS 29.33.190.

29.33.070

It is unlear whether platting powers can be delegated to a second class borough or a city within the borough under this section.

29.33

The current language of this chapter, as it incoprorates a traditional definition of zoning and makes zoning along with platting the principal means of land use regulations, is unduly restrictive and should be revised to allow more innovative forms of land use regulation by boroughs and municipalities.

29.33.250

Presumably the transfer required is one from all cities exercising the power rather than from a city.

29.33 and 29.38

Should there be a provision for a borough to exercise a power in some but not all cities (for example in second class cities but not in first class cities)?

29.48.030(b) AS 29.48.035(b) and (c)

These provisions are redundant. The limitations on the powers of second class boroughs should be stated in a more concise fashion in one easily accessible part of the code.

Moreover, AS 29.48.030 and .035, insomuch as those sections distinguish between "regulation" and provision of "municipal facilities and services", are at the very least confusing and perhaps unnecessary.

29.48.030(a)(12)

The term transportation "system" used in this section should be defined.

29.48.260

Provisions of this section governing disposal of municipal properties should be clarified and revised to reflect increased land values throughout the state, to state who makes determinations of the value of land offered for sale and the date upon which such valuations must be based. Moreover, the statute should be clarified to either include or exclude rights-of-way or easements from its provisions.

29.53.135

The language regarding the composition of the Board of Equalization is unclear. The statute presently requires "at least that number of members of the assembly over and above the number required for a quorum to transact business"; the statute is unclear when applied to a lay board to whom the equalization function is delegated.

29.53

Should be amended to require payment of all taxes, even those due for more recent assessments on properties whose owners have requested issue of a quitclaim repurchase deed. Present law mandates issue of a quitclaim repurchase deed to the owner of record upon payment of those taxes assessed for the tax year stated in the clerk's deed even though the same property is the subject of other foreclosure proceedings brought in subsequent years. An amendment to AS 29.53 which would require payment of all taxes owing on a parcel before a quitclaim repurchase deed can be issued would eliminate substantial confusion in the minds of taxpayers, and would reduce administrative complexity for borough finance departments presently confronted with multiple foreclosure actions on the same parcels.

29.63.090

The present statute governing service areas does not adequately address the question of whether a service area may be used for exercise of a governmental regulatory power rather than for provision of municipal or services.

8.60.050-100

Regulation of junk yards in this section should be cross-referenced to those sections of Title 29. relating to areawide planning, platting and zoning powers.

9.25.110-120

It is unclear whether public records statutes apply at all to municipal government. If it is the intention of the Legislature to apply the public records laws of AS 9.25.110-120 to cities and boroughs, then those sections should be amended accordingly with an appropriate cross references to Title 29.

SUBJECT: Comments on Amendments to State Statutes re: Local Government

FROM: V. L. Iverson, Director
Division of Administrative Services

The subject of local control by political subdivisions over selected DHSS programs does appear to be proper for consideration by the special legislative committee on revision of the State Municipal Code.

I'm sure you are aware that it is essential to distinctly separate statutorily delegated local government control of DHSS programs from contractual arrangements with private, non-profit entities to implement DHSS programs. The latter system presents numerous legal problems with respect to at least those programs that are partially Federally funded. As we all know, on the other hand, many States for many years have successfully operated their health and social services programs through statutory delegation of powers to local political subdivisions.

per call Debbie Behr would like issue raised of giving local control of health programs to local govt by allowing DESS to have statutory authority to delegate implementation of programs to the local govt

Dear Commissioner McAnerney:

As you, Phil Smith of Rural CAP and Ginny Chitwood of the Alaska Municipal League recently requested, I am happy to enclose a list of revisions the Legislature and its Policy Committee may wish to consider in connection with revision of AS 29. Let me emphasize this is only a partial list of areas where AS 29 may be improved.

29.08

Although an attempt has been made in this Chapter to classify the various kinds of Alaskan municipalities, more recent amendments to Title 29 and unification of several cities and boroughs have resulted in confusion over definitions of "cities", "boroughs", and "municipalities". It is not clear, for instance, whether the unified Municipality of Anchorage is a city, a borough, or unified municipality or all three forms of government within existing provisions of AS 29.

29.13.100

The Code should contain a uniform system for designating statutes that expressly apply to home rule municipalities and all such statutes should be consistently cross referenced.

29.23.050

The statutory residence requirement prescribed in this section is probably invalid. It is suggested that such residence requirements throughout AS 29 be reduced to a maximum of one year.

29.23.060(d)

Circumstances, other than financial interests, which allow a member to abstain should be better defined.

29.23.080

The procedure for determining vacancies under this section conflicts with the procedure established under AS 29.23.570.

29.23.130(B)

Once again, the three residency requirement in this section should probably be reduced to one year to assure its constitutional validity.

29.23.150 and AS 29.23.470

Both require assembly appointment of an acting borough manager in the absence of or disability of the manager. If these sections address different policy questions, they are unclear; if they do not, one should be eliminated as redundant.

29.23.170

This provision does not specify when a veto becomes effective or specify any time limit for the overriding of the veto. Moreover, it does not indicate what is the status of an ordinance between the time its veto is announced and the time the Assembly first has an opportunity to override the veto. For instance, if the mayor vetos a line item in the budget, may expenditures be made under that item until the mayor announces the veto at the next regular assembly meeting, or does the veto immediately strike the item until the veto is overridden?

29.23.200

The three year residency requirement here is also probably invalid.

29.23.210

As with the provisions for boroughs, this section should provide more definite standards for abstention on other than conflict of interest grounds.

29.23.250

Another probably invalid three year residency requirement.

29.23.270

This provision has the same ambiguities with regard to the effectiveness of a veto and a veto override as the provision applying to boroughs.

29.23.555

This section has been superceded by AS 39.50.

29.28.070(b)

Reference to "last general election" in this subsection is unclear; considerable confusion has existed in the past over whether the term refers to the last state or municipal election.

29.28.130 et seq

Statutory provisions governing recall contents do not clearly define signature requirements by distinguishing between at large and district forms of representation. AS 29.28070(b) should be redrafted to state required percentages of votes cast for Assemblymen who are elected in districts and who are elected at large.

29.33.070--245

Serious thought should be given to the purpose of the planning, platting and zoning provisions in this code. Should they only prescribe minimum due process standards for rezonings and other land use decisions or should they detail all of the administrative procedures to be followed by local governments in this area. This article presently tries to do little of both and does neither very well.

29.33.190

This section makes it unlawful for any person to sell or attempt to sell land located within a subdivision which has not yet been approved by the borough platting authority and subjects violators to certain criminal sanctions. But AS 29.53.100 requires that the borough assessor assess real property to "the owner of record as shown on the records of the district recorder" even though that person may be the owner of record by virtue of an illegal subdivision in violation of AS 29.33.190. Moreover, AS 29.53 .310 allows persons holding security interest in illegally subdivided lands to obtain release for portions of lots or tracts originally subdivided even though such lands were illegally subdivided in violation of AS 29.33.190.

29.33.070

It is unclear whether platting powers can be delegated to a second class borough or a city within the borough under this section.

29.33

The current language of this chapter, as it incorporates a traditional definition of zoning and makes zoning along with platting the principal means of land use regulations, is unduly restrictive and should be revised to allow more innovative forms of land use regulation by boroughs and municipalities.

29.33.250

Presumably the transfer required is one from all cities exercising the power rather than from a city.

29.33 and 29.38

Should there be a provision for a borough to exercise a power in some but not all cities (for example in second class cities but not in first class cities)?

29.48.030(b) AS 29.48.035(b) and (c)

These provisions are redundant. The limitations on the powers of second class boroughs should be stated in a more concise fashion in one easily accessible part of the code.

Moreover, AS 29.48.030 and .35, insomuch as those sections distinguish between "regulation" and provision of "municipal facilities and services", are at the very lease confusing and perhaps unnecessary.

Reference to powers granted to second class boroughs to construct and maintain Local Service Roads and Trails under AS 19.30.251 should be made in this section.

Reference to the power granted to local governments to regulate use of public streets, alleys and other public places under AS 42.05.251 should be made in AS 29.48.035 or AS 29.48.020.

29.48.030(a)(12)

The term transportation "system" used in this section should be defined.

29.48.260

Provisions of this section governing disposal of municipal properties should be clarified and revised to reflect increased land values throughout the state, to state who makes determinations of the value of lanc offered for sale and the date upon which such valuations must be based. Moreover, the statute should be clarified to either include or exclude rights-of-way or easements from its provisions.

29.58.135

The language regarding the composition of the Board of Equalization is unclear. The statute presently requires "at least that number of members of the assembly over and above the number required for a quorum to transact business"; the statute is unclear when applied to a lay board to whom the equalization function is delegated.

29.53

Should be amended to require payment of all taxes, even those due for more recent assessments on properties whose owners have requested issue of a quitclaim repurchase deed. Present law mandates issue of a quitclaim repurchase deed to the owner of record upon payment of those taxes assessed for the tax year stated in the clerk's deed even though the same property is the subject of other foreclosure proceedings brought in subsequent years. An amendment to AS 29.53 which would require payment of all taxes owing on a parcel before a quitclaim repurchase deed can be issued would eliminate substantial confusion in the minds of taxpayers, and would reduce administrative complexity for borough finance departments presently confronted with multiple foreclosure actions on the same parcels.

29.63.090

The present statute governing service areas does not adequately address the question of whether a service area may be used for exercise of a governmental regulatory power rather than for provision of municipal or services.

8.60.050-100

Regulation of junk yards in this section should be cross-referenced to those sections of Title 29. relating to areawide planning, platting and zoning powers.

9.25.110-120

It is unclear whether public records statutes apply at all to municipal government. If it is the intention of the Legislature to apply the public records laws of AS 9.25.110-120 to cities and boroughs, then those sections should be amended accordingly with an appropriate cross references to Title 29.

Re: Recommendations for changes in Title 29
To Title 29 Policy Committee

Gentlemen:

At the request of Mayor Paukan I am submitting the following comments on some of the provisions of Title 29 that the City would like to see changed. The provisions I have commented upon are those that have proved somewhat troublesome during my duration as City Manager. There are no doubt many other provisions that require change.

29.23.570 VACANCIES: This year the City had one councilman leave town without resigning before departure. The City needed to fill the vacancy quickly. None of the provisions of 29.23.570 were helpful. However, 29.23.200 provides that a councilman who ceases to be a city voter immediately forfeits his office. The Council used this provision to justify filling the vacancy immediately. This provision of section 23.200 should be included under section 23.570

29.23.070 and 29.43.040 PLANNING, PLATTING AND ZONING The mandatory language of this section should be permissive. The wisdom of comprehensive plans and complicated zoning requirements are still subject to professional debate and Cities should have the option to develop other methods of control.

29.48.190 BUDGET AND CAPITAL PROGRAM Subsection (c) is unclear with respect to the procedures that must be followed to make transfer and supplemental appropriations. The language providing that no payment may be made except in accordance with appropriations may be troublesome in that it could be interpreted to give the City no leeway with respect to spending except though lengthy procedures to ammend the budget. The suggested budget ordinance sent each year to municipalities by Community and Regional Affairs is more flexible and preferable but may not be legal under 29.48.190. This section should be changed to permit transfers without budget amendment if less than 10% or $10,000 whichever is less of the orignial appropriation.

29.48.220 POST AUDIT The audit requirement is burdensome for the City. As a first class city we are required to provide a certified audit of city finances. Second class cities need only submit certified financial statements prepared by the city bookkeeper. The City obtains little advantage and no tangible benefit from this requirement. The only people who review the audit are from DCRA. The audit requirement should not be tied to city class. Rather, the requirement should depend upon the size of the budget. It is the amount of money the city spends that justifies audits. Financial statements should be sufficient for cities with budgets less than one million

29.48.260 MUNICIPAL PROPERTIES I consider this to be the most troublesome provision in Title 29 for rural communities. Through the Department of Community and Regional Affairs the City has requested an Attorney General's opinion on some of the requirements of this provision and has recently received a Community Legal Assistance Grant to determine the effect the statute has on land disposal in St. Mary's. First the requirement of appraisals on land before disposal are difficult when most rural land is difficult if not impossible to appraise because comparable sales do not exist. Public auctions may cause the price of land to escalate beyond the means of local residents to afford, and may inhibit local residents who do not speak english from participating in auctions. The words "if any" in subsection (c)(3) seem to indicate public auction or sealed bids are optional but this is not clear. Cities should have the option of developing disposal procedures appropriate to its locality. Such procedures should be ratified by the voters.

I can see no reason for subjecting leases of City land to the same requirements that attach to sales of city land. This unduly restricts the City's ability to make land available for new businesses.

It is not clear whether the exception developed in subsection (e) is free from the requirements of prior appraisal and public auction or sealed bid.

29.68.010 LOCAL BOUNDARY COMMISSION The City recently annexed an adjacent community into its boundary. In order to facilitate the annexation the City wanted to and did make major concessions to the citizens of the adjacent community with respect to a voice in City affairs. Technically what the City has done is not legal because the annexation is not finalized until 45 days after the next legislative session has begun. The delay in time between the decision of the Local Boundary Comm'n. and the legislative disapproval time is unnecessary and can lead to legal complications. Since the legislature has never disapproved a Boundary Commission decision it seems this requirement of submission to the legislature has little utility. A workable alternative might be to preserve a right to appeal a boundary commission decision to the legislature.

I am delighted to see the efforts to review Title 29. I hope it produces some beneficial results. I trust these comments will prove helpful.

Sincerely,

Dear Sir:

It has come to my attention that the second class cities and unincorporated village governments in the Bristol Bay Region will experience severe problems in meeting the September 20, 1980 deadline for mailing completed State Revenue Sharing applications to qualify for the $25,000 minimum entitlement provided for in the new law revising the State Revenue Sharing Program. It has further come to my attention that applications were only recently mailed to general law municipalities and that applications for traditional governing councils have yet to be mailed.

The September 20th time deadline is further compounded by the problem that many of the villages in our region are currently unaware of the provision in the new law which provides state aid to eligible governments recognized under the Alaska Native Claims Settlement Act. Another very real problem is the frequency of mail delivery service, which is sporatic at best, to many of the villages in the more remote areas.

A lot of work on the part of rural legislators went into FCCHB 192 reforming the State Revenue Sharing Program to include state aid to unincorporated governments and the $25,000 minimum entitlement provision for small rural municipalities with no tax base.

With the September 20th deadline for mailing applications just around the corner, it appears that many local governments that could take advantage of the new State Revenue Sharing program will be unable to do so. I would encourage your department to strongly consider extending the deadline to allow more local governments desperately in need of such monies to have the time to properly complete the application process.

Thank you.

Very sincerely,

Dear Senator Sturgulewski,

Back at the beginning of the summer, I attended a meeting called by the Division of Community Planning. It was a "loose meeting" in that the agenda was flexible and covered many areas and concerns. Somewhere in the meeting, we touched upon the changes proposed by the Community & Regional Affairs Committees. If I am not mistaken, everyone agreed that the committees were on the right track especially in regards to the establishment of service areas following REAA boundaries.

Well, it seems that those of us living in the "bush" know more about what happens in Juneau than some of the state employees living and working there. For example, the Dept. of Health & Social Services just unveiled a plan whereby the communities of Holy Cross, Anvik, Shageluk and Grayling which are all in the Iditarod Area School District, REAA 11, will now receive there public health nurse services from Bethel. Ms Lois Bergerson decided that those people would be better served from Bethel than McGrath. Was there any local input from those communities? Was any consideration given to the fact that those people are Athabascans and not Yupiks? Did anyone think to explore the logic behind the boundaries of REAA 11? The answer to all three questions is no. However, Ms Bergerson is adamant that the changes will take effect on Sept. 1 irregardless of any protests.

It is my firm hope that when the Legislature convenes in January, that the Community & Regional Affairs Committees will reintroduce the same package of bills.

RE: Title 29 Review

DATE: September 2, 1980

I have reviewed the material relating to the review of Title 29 and approve and support those portions pertaining to chapter 53 of this title.

A few other changes which might be considered are listed below:

1. Sec. 29.53.025 the classification of boats for purposes of taxation by tonnage should be changed to more realistic amounts.

2. Sec. 29.53.060 include the words having a situs within the taxing district after the word property. Many property owners believe that property not within the taxing district on January 1 of the taxing year is free of tax. Boats and airplanes are commonly removed from the taxing district during the first month of the year to avoid taxation.

3. Sec. 29.53.320 change person to receive redemption monies from clerk to tax collector who has in his/her possession the records of assessment and taxation, applied penalties, interest & costs.

On the Title 29 revision --

Give some thought to suggesting inclusion of a provision somewhere by which some state officer -- governor, CRA commissioner or what have you -- enjoys authority to appoint municipal voters to fill elected city or borough offices when the number of incumbent members of city council or borough assembly drops below the number required by law or charter to produce a quorum. For example, if the 5 members of the Juneau assembly are recalled, it may be that the four remaining cannot function as an assembly even to the point of filling a vacancy or calling for an election to fill the vacancy. Other quirks in charter provisions could operate to preclude councils or assemblies from operating if there are "mass" resignations or wholesale removals. It may be a provision that will never be used, but it may be one that should be on the books just in case.....

JC

AREAS OF AS 29 (MUNICIPAL CODE) REQUIRING ATTENTION

DICTATED 7/29/80 BUT NOT READ

BY GERALD L. SHARP

The use of the word election throughout the code should be examined with the eye to eliminating all those references to "general" election where it was meant to refer to a municipal election. Where a state general election was meant, the word "state" should be added.

AS 29.08.010, 29.13.010 and 100, and 29.78.010(1)(2)(8)

A careful reading of the code indicates that a unified unit of home rule local government is not a municipality. Under these sections, it is not a home rule municipality. If this was the intent, it should be clarified in the definitions. Along this same line, all sections which apply to home rule boroughs and home rule cities should be reviewed to determine whether they should also apply to unified units.

AS 29.08.020

An interpretive guide should be provided for the court so that it does not seize upon this section to revive Dillon's Rule.

AS 29.13.100

The effect of the phrase "acting otherwise than as provided" should be examined to determine whether this phrase means that a home rule municipality may do neither more nor less than is prescribed for home rule municipalities. See the Whitson case.

AS 29.18.130

We should probably address REAA's under this section.

AS 29.18.140(a)(b)

This section implies that a newly incorporated city or borough may succeed a home rule or previously incorporated general law city or borough. Was this meant?

AS 29.18.180

Organizational grants under this section appear to be inadequate.

AS 29.18.330

The resident training and hire preference should be examined for constitutionality.

AS 29.23.060(a)

This section implies that there may be no special meetings if any member is not notified.

AS 29.23.060(d)

Some consideration should be given to reducing the quorum voting requirement by one vote for every two members of the body who are present who do not vote because they either have a conflict of interest or have been excused by the legislative body.

AS 29.23.070

This section seems to provide an unnecessary infringement of the chief administrator's prerogatives in appointing department heads.

AS 29.23.080

This section should be checked to determine whether it tracts with the new procedures on reapportionment as it relates to council appointments and dual seats.

AS 29.23.040 et. seq.

The residency requirements, terms of officers, powers, duties, and the procedures for the changing of terms and qualifications of officers as these relate to the mayor, council, and assembly memebers should be uniform as between a city and a borough.

AS 29.23.210

Does this require four votes on a procedural motion? This language should parallel the similar provisions for boroughs and both should be clarified as to whether there is a distinction between procedural and substantive motions.

AS 29.23.310

Reference within this section to repeal Section 100 should be corrected.

AS 29.23.340(d)

Perhaps this section should be clarified to permit the board to set rates.

AS 29.23.360

My question why there appears to be authority for the assembly or council to appoint administrative officers such as the treasurer and chief of police who do not serve the council or the assembly but must respond to the chief administrative officer.

AS 29.23.370

I question whether there may not be a conflict of interest for an attorney to provide legal advice to both the legislative and administrative branches. Perhaps, there should be a specific extension of the authority of the legislative body to retain its own legal counsel. Next, I question whether there isn't a conflict of interest for the clerk to serve two different masters, the legislative body, and the chief administrator.

AS 29.23.395 through .401

This sort of specific legislation ought to be deleted. If some sort of authority of this sort is required, it should be addressed in the general grant of powers.

AS 29.23.470

I question why the manager has no authority to appoint a temporary or interim manager during his own temporary absence.

AS 29.23.480

I suggest that the adoption of an ordinance at the very next meeting after the repeal of a manager plan is expecting too much of any council or assembly considering the careful deliberation which should be given to the reorganization.

AS 29.23.540

The seriousness of the conflict of interest which exists when an employee of the school board serves on the body which determines the school boards budget but is not lessened in any way by the existence of subsection (c) of this section. This section should be repealed. (Sour grapes on my part, perhaps.) Also, it appears that this section would permit a person working in the grants section of the Department of Community and Regional Affairs to serve on an assembly or a council.

AS 29.28.015

I question why the mayor in a manager type municipality should not be permitted to be a member of the legislative body so long as he does not have the veto power. This seems to be something that should be left to local option.

AS 29.28.030

It is not clear, under this section, how one deals with a person who has been present within the municipality for more than 30 days but who does not register with the state of Alaska until four days before the election. It appears they might be qualified to vote in the municipal election as they will certainly be qualified to vote in the next state election.

AS 29.28.080(a)

This section implies that the initiative ordinance or resolution must be something within the power of the assembly or council and must not fall within the restrictions of Section 60; however, it appears that the assembly or council may reject the initiative only if it is within the restrictions of Section 60. I also believe that this section should be tightened up to make it clear that the initiative process may not be used to take what are essentially administrative actions even though the assembly or council itself may take such actions by ordinance or resolution.

AS 29.28.110

This section establishes an observed public policy and should be modified to parallel the more liberal provisions which we find in our state constitution.

AS 29.28.130

This section should be clarified to indicate whether a re-elected official may be recalled within six months within of his second election.

AS 29.28.140

This section should be changed to make it clear that elected officials may not be recalled for the manner in which they exercised a duty, e.g., the way they vote on a particular issue, but that they can be recalled for having voted on an issue on which they are prohibited from voting. They could be recalled for refusing to vote when they had neither a conflict nor been excused from voting. They could be recalled for failing to file a report required of individual public officials. They could not be recalled for having voted in favor of doing something prescribed by law nor could they be recalled for voting against doing something which is required by law.

AS 29.28.150

Some thought should be given to clarifying this section to require that the name of each elected official appear on a separate petition and not be on the same petition with any other elected official. The statement of the grounds should also be limited to 200 words.

AS 29.28.160

Either the clerk or the assembly or council should be given specific authority to review the petition for more than merely the superficial contents requirements. This determination should also go to whether or not the ground stated, if true, constitute grounds for repeal.

AS 29.28.170

I question why petitioners should have an additional ten days to gather signatures. Why not give them 70 days to begin with or just cut them off at 60. If the petitioners cannot do some of the leg work themselves of determining how many valid signatures they have collected, there seems to be little in public policy to require they be given an additional ten days for their sloppiness or inadequate performance.

AS 29.28.200(c)

If a public official who is the subject of a sufficient recall petition resigns prior to the election, and his name is removed from the recall ballot, may he then be reappointed to his position by the remaining members prior to the recall election? May he be reappointed after the recall election?

AS 29.28.210

If we permit one petition to contain more than one name, how should the names appear on the ballot, separately so that the voters may express their desires as to each public official individually or should there be a single ballot giving the voters the same choice which the petitioners gave the petition signers, i.e., all or none?

AS 29.28.250

What happens when an entire assembly, city council, or school board are recalled? There should be some mechanism for providing for an interim legislative body.

AS 29.33.010

Some place here, and perhaps other sections, we should deal with the almost impossible antitrust situation which the United States Supreme Court cast upon us in its Lafayette decision.

AS 29.33.050

While the section is drafted so that it uses parallel verbs, I believe the "establishes, maintains, and operates" phrase should be changed to read "and shall establish, maintain, and operate."

AS 29.33.080(e)

Consideration should also be given here to reducing the majority vote requirement where there are two or more members of the commission who are present but do not vote because of a conflict of interest or because they have been excused by the remaining members.

AS 29.33.085(b)

The requirement that the commission present new recommendations on a comprehensive plan every two years should be redrafted so that it does not appear that the continued validity of the zoning ordinance is dependent upon such a review and so that it does not appear that there is any question as to the validity of an ordinance which is adopted pursuant to a comprehensive plan which has not been reviewed for more than two years. Also, it may not hurt to throw in some sort of language within the planning and zoning article to make it clear that the adoption of any zoning map change is a legislative and discretionary act and is not administrative as some state supreme courts seem to believe.

AS 29.33.110(b)(1)

I strongly suggest that we not make the Board of Adjustment the board which hears appeals from building code enforcement actions. Some municipalities may prefer to place building code enforcement under some other department such as public works. The authority of the Board of Adjustment to hear building code appeals should be optional with the municipality. Also, whether the assembly or council sits as the Board of Adjustment should also be optional with the municipality.

AS 29.33.110(b)(3)

It is not clear what the phrase "which are not contrary to the public interest" modifies, "the zoning ordinance," or "variances from the terms of the zoning ordinance," or "requests....".

AS 29.33.120

It appears that a person may file for a variance or conditional use, be denied that application, and yet proceed with the denied use if they appeal to the Board of Adjustment because the appeal, under the terms of this section, stays any enforcement where imminent peril is not involved.

AS 29.33.130(b)

I question whether the legislature, and more particularly an assembly, has any authority to establish what the court may well consider as a procedural rule relating to establishing the time within which one may file an appeal to the superior court.

AS 29.33.150

It might be wise to indicate in this section that the platting board has authority to require subdivision exactions.

AS 29.33.170(a)(1)

I suggest it be made clear in here that adequate access does not include access over other privately owned land by way of an easement in favor of the applicant. Adequate access consists solely of access by dedicated or publicly owned ways.

AS 29.33.150(b) and AS 29.33.160(c)

These sections need to be revised out of the code.

AS 29.33.190

This section needs to be beefed up by incorporating administrative procedures to prevent the recording of instruments which create unlawful subdivisions.

AS 29.33.200

This section needs to be coordinated with the procedures under the condemnation sections of Title 9 which require the state to submit its property acquisitions in condemnation proceedings to the platting board.

AS 29.33.240

I question why a second class city located outside an organized borough may obtain title to vacated ways if they intend to use the way for some other public purpose, while within an organized borough the property goes to the abutting owner. I also wonder why parks, greenbelts, and other areas which are vacated are split between abutting property owners while the title to a public square vest in a municipality upon vacation.

AS 29.41.010

Perhaps the idea of third class boroughs should be re-examined.

AS 29.48.010

I question the need for such subsections as (1)(2)(3) and (5) as these all seem to relate to internal administrative matters which are clearly within the authority of the municipality. Some of these sound more like delegations of authority to a specific branch within the municipality. Also, I believe some consideration should be given to whether or not there should be a catch-all grant clause. Also, something should or could be added to this section to clarify the authority of the municipality to establish and enforce liens for the collection of sales taxes. There might also be a section clearly authorizing the municipality to establish both minimum and non-suspendible penalties for violation of municipal ordinances.

AS 29.48.030

This may be the appropriate section to deal with the Lafayette antitrust problems. Under subsection (b), someone to check to determine whether the reference to the Alaska Transportation Commission makes sense in the light of SB 577 (sorry, I do not have the bill with me as I dictate this).

AS 29.48.033

Again, I do not have the 1980 legislation which effected state regulatory authority over cable television, transportation services, and garbage disposal but I believe what the legislature (industry) did should be carefully reviewed.

AS 29.48.050

I question whether there is any justified public policy behind requiring franchises to be granted by ordinance ratified by the voters. This has serious Lafayette antitrust implications. It seems that a public utility ought to be granted a permit so long as they can show public convenience and necessity.

AS 29.48.070, .080, and .090

The idea of a council or assembly sitting through a protracted rate setting hearing is preposterous. Any hearing which the ordinary council or assembly would sit still through could not possibly be adequate to justify a rate. Also, it is beyond me why the rates should be established by ordinance.

AS 29.48.100(b)

Not only are the preceeding utility regulations outmoded, it seems ludicrous to have them apply to home rule municipalities.

AS 29.48.110

AS 29.48.110 should be changed to make it clear that a municipality may establish more than a single historic district.

AS 29.48.160(b)

If the procedure for regulating utilities and granting franchises has changed, this section should probably also be changed to correspond.

AS 29.48.190(b)

This section seems to imply that a municipality may enter into an obligation to make payments in a future year if it does so by ordinance. If this happens, I think you have a debt which must have first been approved by the voters and be for a capital improvement.

AS 29.48.200

The fine limitation and the imprisonment limitation both need to be raised. In addition, this may be the appropriate place to specifically authorize municipalities to establish both minimum fines and imprisonments and to provide clear authority for municipalities to make certain penalties non-suspendible.

AS 29.48.210

This section is a good example of the need to carefully distinguish between boroughs and cities on the one hand and unified units on the other. In any event, I believe this section should be changed to permit the expenditure of areawide revenues on a non-areawide basis.

AS 29.48.250

Since our supreme court seems to believe that a borough may not require central purchasing to include a school district, this section does not appear to have much, if any need. It should be deleted, as I believe this power is already possessed by a municipality.

AS 29.48.260

I believe the exemption which is set forth in (d) should be expanded to incompass any land which the municipality disposes of.

AS 29.48.270(b)(c)

These two sections do not seem to have anything to do with the catch line nor with the two remaining subsections. I am not sure why (b) is required in the first place unless it is to make the transfer of this one power optional rather than mandatory as required under AS 29.33.260. These two sections should be moved to a section dealing with a general grant of powers or with the transfer of powers.

AS 29.48.310, 320, and 330

Although these three sections seem to be very comprehensive, it appears that our courts prefer a contrary rule. Either we need to strengthen the language in these sections or we need to print up a Miranda Rights Card which we can read to the judge every time we go into court over a municipal powers question.

AS 29.53.010

Again the problem of how this is to apply to unified units of government; also, this section should be changed to permit the use of areawide revenues on a non-areawide basis.

AS 29.53.020(a)(1)

Some place in the code we need to deal with the method of valuing privately held interests in tax exempt property.

AS 29.53.020(a)(3)

A number of problems arise from the lack of definitions of terms such as religious, charitable, educational, and perhaps, hospital, which are used in this section. Also, there is a question which arises relating to when a property which is owned by, for example, a religious organization, becomes exempt; for example, does vacant land become exempt when it is first purchased by an exempt organization, when the organization has an intent to devote it to a particular exempt use, when the organization commences construction of a facility which will be used for the exempt purpose even though during construction it is not being used for the exempt purpose? (b)(2)(B)

AS 29.53.030

This section should be revised to reflect a realistic value for mining claims, particularly in light of the recent rise in the price of gold.

AS 29.53.060

Perhaps this is a section in which the valuation of leasehold and other possessory interest in tax exempt property should be exempt.

AS 29.53.135

This section should be clarified to indicate whether a majority of the number of members of the assembly. Also, either here or someplace else in the code, we should specifically address whether or not the Board of Equalization has the authority to determine whether property is exempt, and, if exempt, how much of the property is exempt if it is not totally devoted to the exempt use.

AS 29.53.150

A question arises as to whether property which goes from exempt property on January 1 of the tax year to non-exempt because of a change of use during the tax year can be put on a supplemental roll and taxed. Also, if it can be, should the taxes be a portion? In addition, something should be placed in the code to provide guidance for dealing with personal property which is in the municipality for only a part of the year.

AS 29.53.180

This section should be changed to reflect a reasonable interest rate and a penalty which is substantially above the interest.

AS 29.53.415 and .440

Something needs to be added to these sections to take care of the problem created by the Alaska Supreme Court when it ruled that there was no statutory authority for a general law municipality to establish a lead for sales taxes.

AS 29.73.020

This section needs to be divided into two subsections to separate the procedures for home rule and general law municipalities from those for second class municipalities. Presently, there is some question as to whether the last two sentences of the section apply only to second class cities or whether it applies to all municipalities.

More grist for the Title 29 mill:

Elsie O'Brien (Houston city clerk) to Arliss Sturgulewski

(1) AS 29.28.190, recall provisions --

Should consider adding a requirement that the city council and city officials perform, with reference to recall petitions, within a time certain

(2) AS 29.63.090 -- service areas within boroughs

The Mat-Su borough loaned money to a road service area, apparently on promise of repayment within fiscal year, but without approval of the apparent indebtedness by voters of the affected service area. Should consider legislation to require that such debts are subject to prior approval by voters within service area.

General observation with respect to Title 29 -- would like greater information within the text of the volume. (This is probably not possible because of the strict format relating to what may be annotated. However, perhaps CRA Department should receive an amount so that each year, for small cities, a loose-leaf form of Title 29 may be prepared or updated which carries changes in law, applicable commentary, case decisions, AG opinion texts, etc. supplied by the Dept on a quarterly basis. -- The cities could reimburse for the service, or for a portion of it.)

Dear Mrs. Eccles:

Thank you for your letter in which you inquire about the status of SB 154 which would amend Title 29 to include disabled veterans of any age. Many property tax exemption bills were entered into this session of the legislature. In considering these bills, a number of inequities were apparent. For example, if disabled veterans are a group given special exemption, what about the equity question of other disabled people in the state? A major policy question arises when you begin to consider exemptions for special groups of people rather than on a need basis. For these reasons and others, a number of the tax exemption bills will not be moved from the Senate Community and Regional Affairs Committee, which I chair this session.

Because of your interest, I am sending you a copy of a letter I have sent to Dave Walsh, President of the Alaska Municipal League, pointing out some of the above issues, and others that are involved in any consideration of property tax changes. I'm also enclosing a copy of a report done by the Department of Community and Regional Affairs. Mr. Walsh has agreed that the Alaska Municipal League will take a look at the issues raised in consideration of the property tax exemptions and report back to the next session of the legislature. As I have interest in this issue, I would be very happy to have you contact me after the session is over. My Anchorage number is 279-4939.

At the present time a free conference committee is considering an increase in the longevity bonus. Several of the senators are concerned over making any changes to the longevity bonus with the exception of increases in the amount. They feel that amendments to the law might well cause court challenges as to the validity of the longevity bonus. I do feel confident that there will be an adjustment in the amount of the bonus prior to the end of the session.

Kindest personal regards,

Dear Mrs. Sturgulewski:

I'm interested in SB 154 "Extending property tax exemption to include disabled veterans of any age." How about those of us who are disability. I understand the residents of Kenai already have this but anytime I've mentioned it to Anchorage senators it's always too early or too late in the session. Too me there's no such thing. SB 427 seems to have something similar in mind but wasn't introduced until this year.

I am also interested in what progress has been made in SB 39 Re: length of stay in Ak for eligibility for longevity bonus, and 2d HCSSB-71. In the House HB-15 is of interest to me.

In this area Handicapped and Disabled is quite a different matter and what applies to one doesn't very often include the other.

Thanks for your interest.

Sincerely,

Clara M. Eccles

RE: FCCSHB947

Being aware that you will be involved in the revision of Title 29, as per the requirements of CSSCR66 which directs the Alaska Legislative Council to review the Municipal Government statutes, I want to call your attention to an area of law, enacted by the Eleventh Legislature as FCCSHB947, which you will want to address during the course of your revision. In the haste of the last days of legislative activity, the following omissions went unnoticed when the Free Conference version of the bill was adopted.

Section 9 AS 29.23.025 (e) outlines the procedures to be followed if a reapportionment ordinance has not been approved by the voters after the assembly has determined that reapportionment is necessary. The law does not address what happens to the order--is it voted on by the people? Can the order be appealed? Is administrative or judicial review provided for?

In Section 29.23.029 and Section 29.23.031 there should be additional statutory references providing for judicial review and relief in all applicable instances and referencing all applicable voter approved ordinances and reapportionment orders under Sec. 031.

Both the draftsman, Jack Chenoweth, and Ginny Chitwood of the Municipal League which will be involved in the revision of Title 29 are familiar with the problems in the Free Conference law and would be able to answer any questions.

SUBJECT: School Bond Guarantee Fund

Attached is our annual memo that must go to the Governor's Office no later than December 1. As in the past this memo states that no sum is required to implement the school bond guarantee fund.

It is my understanding that this fund has never been used and, in fact, for the last four years our memo has been identical.

That lack of use coupled with the requirement in the statute that would allow a home rule city to exceed its authorized bonded indebtedness as defined in its home rule charter, seems to make this a less than desireable statute. I personally feel that deletion of this section is something the Title 29 review committee should consider.

An Act Relating to Home

Incurred for School Constructic

Chapter 137, SLA 1974, permanently codified as AS 29.58.345-350, establishes within the Department of Community & Regional Affairs a school bond guarantee fund, the purpose of which is "to further guarantee and provide an additional pledge of payment of . . . bonds issued" to pay costs of school construction. The bond guarantee is applicable only as to home rule cities levying and collecting property taxes for schools and is operative only as to those home rule cities incurring bonded indebtedness for school contruction where the anticipated bond issue requires the city to exceed limits on authorized bonded indebtedness which have been defined in the municipality's home rule charter.

By Section 350(f) of the Act, annually, not later than December 1, the Commissioner of the Department of Community & Regional Affairs must certify to the Governor that sum which is necessary to bring the fund created current to the requisite "debt service reserve".

Since, to our knowledge, no home rule cities have issued bonds necessitating additional requirement on the school bond guarantee fund, I wish to certify that no sum is required to implement the school bond guarantee fund.

IN THE SENATE BY THE JUDICIARY COMMITTEE

CS FOR SENATE BILL NO. 582

IN THE LEGISLATURE OF THE STATE OF ALASKA

ELEVENTH LEGISLATURE - SECOND SESSION

A BILL

For an Act entitled: "An Act relating to the assessment, levy and collection of property taxes on transient aircraft; and providing for an effective date."

BE IT ENACTED BY THE LEGISLATURE OF THE STATE OF ALASKA:

* Section 1. AS 44.25.020 is amended by adding a new paragraph to read:

(5) assess the value of transient aircraft in accordance with AS 29.53.038.

* Sec. 2. AS 29.53 is amended by adding a new section to read:

Sec. 29.53.038. TRANSIENT AIRCRAFT. (a) The Department of Revenue shall assess the value of transient aircraft that is not exempt from property taxes under AS 29.53.162(c). The Department of Revenue shall determine the value of aircraft assessed under this section at its full and true value and shall determine the value of the aircraft as of January 1 annually.

(b) The Department of Revenue may require by notice each person having ownership or control of an interest in aircraft assessed under this section to submit a return in the form prescribed by the Department of Revenue, based on values existing on January 1 of each year. The Department of Revenue by written notice may require a person to provide additional information within 30 days of the notice.

(c) The Department of Revenue may investigate aircraft on which a return has been filed or on which no return has been filed. In either case, the department may make its own valuation of the aircraft, which is prima facie evidence of full and true value. An employee or agent of the Department of Revenue may enter an aircraft as necessary for the investigation during reasonable hours and may examine appropriate records. When requested by an employee or agent of the Department of Revenue, the owner of the aircraft shall furnish to the employee or agent reasonable assistance required for the investigation. If refused entry, the Department of Revenue may seek a court order to compel entry. For the purpose of the investigation, the owner of the aircraft or his representative may be required to present himself for examination under oath by the Department of Revenue.

(d) The Department of Revenue shall prepare annually the assessment roll for taxation of transient aircraft by municipalities. The assessment roll shall contain

(1) a description of all aircraft assessed under this section;

(2) the assessed value of the aircraft;

(3) the names and addresses of persons owning aircraft assessed under this section.

(e) On or before March 1 of each year, the Department of Revenue shall send to each owner of aircraft named in the assessment roll a notice of assessment, showing the assessed value of the aircraft. Notice of assessment is effective on the date of mailing.

(f) The Department of Revenue shall send to each municipality levying a property tax a copy of the notice of assessment on aircraft which is assessed under this section.

(g) A municipality or an owner of aircraft receiving an assessment notice may object to the assessment by advising the Department of Revenue in writing of the objections to the assessment within 20 days of the effective date of the notice.

(h) The Department of Revenue shall provide by regulation for notices of appeals to interested persons and municipalities.

(i) Following an objection, the Department of Revenue may adjust the assessment and the assessment roll. An adjustment based on an objection from a municipality or an owner of aircraft shall be made within 30 days of the effective date of the notice of assessment.

(j) After a ruling by the Department of Revenue on an appeal made under (g) of this section, the municipality or the owner of aircraft may appeal to the State Assessment Review Board. The appeal must be filed in writing within 50 days of the effective date of the notice of assessment. The State Assessment Review Board shall provide by regulation for notices of appeals to interested persons and municipalities.

(k) The State Assessment Review Board shall hear appeals filed under (i) of this section. A majority of the State Assessment Review Board constitutes a quorum required to transact business under this section. The State Assessment Review Board shall provide by regulation for notices of hearings to interested persons and municipalities. If an appellant fails to appear at the hearing, the State Assessment Review Board may proceed with the hearing in his absence. The appellant bears the burden of proof at a hearing under this subsection.

(l) The only grounds for adjustment of assessed value is proof of unequal, excessive or improper valuation or valuation not determined in accordance with the standards set out in this section, based on facts stated in a written appeal timely filed or proved at the hearing.

(m) The State Assessment Review Board shall certify its determination of an appeal to the Department of Revenue within seven days of the hearing.

(n) A municipality or an owner of aircraft may appeal to the superior court for, and is entitled to, trial de novo of the action of the State Assessment Review Board.

(o) No later than June 1 of each year, the Department of Revenue shall certify the final assessment roll.

(p) The Department of Revenue shall include aircraft omitted from the assessment roll on a supplementary assessment roll, using the procedures set out in this section for the original assessment roll.

(q) In this section, "transient aircraft" means

(1) aircraft with a gross operating weight of more than 12,500 pounds used in commerce by an air carrier to furnish transportation to the public for compensation, hire or lease;

(2) equipment included in aircraft described in (1) of this subsection; and

(3) ground cargo handling and containerization equipment which can be transported in aircraft described in (1) of this subsection and which is so transported.

* Sec. 3. AS 29.53 is amended by adding a new section to read:

Sec. 29.53.162. LEVY AND COLLECTION OF PROPERTY TAX ON TRANSIENT AIRCRAFT. (a) A municipality may levy and collect property tax on transient aircraft only under this section.

(b) A municipality may levy a property tax on transient aircraft by applying the rate of levy, determined under AS 29.53.170(b), to a value for all transient aircraft under the same ownership determined by

(1) adding the value of all transient aircraft owned by the same taxpayer; and

(2) multiplying the value determined under (1) of this subsection by the ratio of the number of landings of transient aircraft owned by the taxpayer in the municipality levying the tax during the year preceding the assessment year to the total number of landings of all transient aircraft owned by the taxpayer.

(c) A municipality may, by ordinance, classify transient aircraft and exempt certain classes of transient aircraft from levy and collection of a property tax under this section.

(d) In this section, "transient aircraft" means

(1) aircraft with a gross operating weight of more than 12,500 pounds used in commerce by an air carrier to furnish transportation to the public for compensation, hire or lease;

(2) equipment included in aircraft described in (1) of this subsection; and

(3) ground cargo handling and containerization equipment which can be transported in aircraft described in (1) of this subsection and which is so transported.

* Sec. 4. Notwithstanding any other provisions of AS 29.53, an assessment return on transient aircraft filed with a municipality under AS 29.53.070 for the 1980 assessment year is valid for determining the tax due for that assessment year. If two or more municipalities levy a property tax on transient aircraft under AS 29.53 for the 1980 assessment year, the owner of the aircraft may ask the commissioner of revenue to determine the tax due to each municipality. Upon receipt of the request of the taxpayer, the commissioner of revenue shall apportion the tax due by applying to the assessment of transient aircraft reported to a municipality under AS 29.53.070 the amount determined under AS 29.53.162, added by sec. 3 of this Act.

* Sec. 5. Notwithstanding any other provision of AS 29.53, an assessment return on transient aircraft filed with a municipality under AS 29.53.070 for an assessment year before 1980, is valid for determining the property tax due to that municipality for that prior assessment year.

* Sec. 6. Sections 1 - 3 of this Act take effect January 1, 1981.

* Sec. 7. Sections 4 - 7 of this Act take effect immediately in accordance with AS 01.10.070(c).

As the rest of the section was not affected by the amendments, it is not set out.

Editor's note. — Section 1, ch. 13, SLA 1973, provides: "Notwithstanding the provisions of AS 29.53.020(f), for the 1973 assessment year the filing date for application for the exemption granted under AS 29.53.020(e) is extended to March 15, 1973."

Strict construction.

The courts must narrowly construe statutes granting tax exemptions. Greater Anchorage Area Borough v. Sisters of Charity of House of Providence, Sup. Ct. Op. No. 1299 (File No. 2445), 553 P.2d 467 (1976).

Burden of showing eligibility for exemption. — A taxpayer claiming a tax exemption has the burden of showing that the property is eligible for the exemption. Greater Anchorage Area Borough v. Sisters of Charity of House of Providence, Sup. Ct. Op. No. 1299 (File No. 2445), 553 P.2d 467 (1976).

Exclusive use for nonprofit religious, etc., purposes must be shown. In order to qualify for an exemption, the taxpayer must show not benefits, but exclusive use for nonprofit religious, charitable, cemetery, hospital or educational purposes. When the property in question is used even in part by nonexempt parties for their private business purposes, there can be no exemption. Greater Anchorage Area Borough v. Sisters of Charity of House of Providence, Sup. Ct. Op. No. 1299 (File No. 2445), 553 P.2d 467 (1976).

Office space rented to doctors engaged in private practice. — Office space in a building partially used exclusively for nonprofit hospital purposes, rented to doctors engaged in the private practice of medicine by a nonprofit charitable and religious corporation, was not exempt from taxation. While the use of office space by doctor-tenants in conducting their private practices does provide incidental benefits to the adjacent hospital, the office space is not used exclusively for hospital purposes. Sec. 29.53.025. Optional exemptions and exclusions. (a) Municipalities may exclude or exempt or partially exempt residential property from taxation by ordinance ratified by the voters at a regular or special election. An exclusion or exemption authorized by this section may not exceed $10,000 for any one residence.

(b) Municipalities may by ordinance

(1) classify boats and vessels for purposes of taxation and may establish the assessed valuation of boats and vessels on the basis of their registered or certificated net tonnage; a tax based upon a tonnage valuation shall not exceed $5 a year for a boat or vessel of less than five net tons and shall not exceed $15 a year for a boat or vessel of more than five net tons;

(2) classify and exempt from taxation

(A) the household furniture over $500 in value and the effects of the head of a family or a householder; and

(B) the property of an organization not organized for business or profit making purposes and used exclusively for community purposes, provided that income derived from rental of such property does not exceed the actual cost to the owner of the use by the renter; and

(C) historic sites, buildings and monuments;

(D) land of a nonprofit organization used for agricultural purposes if rights to subdivide the land are conveyed to the state and the conveyance includes a covenant restricting use of the land to agricultural purposes only; rights conveyed to the state under this subparagraph may be conveyed by the state only in accordance with AS 38.05.069(c).

(c) The provisions of (a) of this section notwithstanding,

(1) a home rule or first or second class borough may, by ordinance adopted without weighted voting, adjust its property tax structure in whole or in part to the property tax structure of a city within it, including but not limited to, excluding personal property from taxation, establishing exemptions, and extending the redemption period;

(2) a home rule or first class city shall have the same power to grant exemptions or exclude property from borough taxes that it has as to city taxes, provided that the exemptions or exclusions have been adopted as to city taxes and further provided that the city appropriate to the borough sufficient money to equal revenues lost by the borough because of the exemptions or exclusions, the amount to be determined annually by the assembly without weighted voting;

(3) a home rule or general law city within an organized borough may, by ordinance, adjust its property tax structure in whole or in part to the property tax structure of the borough, including but not limited to exempting or partially exempting property from taxation.

(d) Exemptions or exclusions from property tax which have been granted by home rule municipalities in addition to exemptions authorized or required by law, and which are in effect on September 10, 1972 and not later withdrawn, are not affected by this Act.

(e) Municipalities may by ordinance classify and exempt or partially exempt from taxation privately owned land, wet land and water areas for which a scenic, conservation, or public recreation use easement is granted to a governmental body. To be eligible for a tax exemption, or partial exemption, the easement must be in perpetuity. However, the easement is automatically terminated before an eminent domain taking of fee simple title or less than fee simple title to the property so that the property owner is compensated at a rate which does not reflect the easement grant.

(f) A municipality may by ordinance exempt from taxation all or any part of the increase in assessed value of improvements to real property if an increase in assessed value is directly attributable to alteration of the natural features of the land or new maintenance, repair or renovation of an existing structure and if the alteration, maintenance, repair or renovation, when completed, enhances the exterior appearance or aesthetic quality of the land or structure. No exemption may be allowed under this subsection for the construction of an improvement to a structure if the principal purpose of the improvement is to increase the amount of space for occupancy or nonresidential use within the structure or for the alteration of land as a consequence of construction activity. An exemption provided in this subsection may continue for up to four years from the date the improvement is completed or from the date of approval for the exemption by the local assessor, whichever is later.

(g) A municipality may by ordinance exempt from taxation all or any part of the increase in assessed value of improvements to a single family dwelling if the principal purpose of the improvement is to increase the amount of space for occupancy. An exemption provided in this subsection may continue for up to two years from the date the improvement is completed or from the date of approval of an application for the exemption by the local assessor, whichever is later. (§ 2 ch 118 SLA 1972; am § 2 ch 1 FSSLA 1973; am § 1 ch 33 SLA 1975; am § 1 ch 111 SLA 1976; am § 1 ch 262 SLA 1976; am § 1 ch 95 SLA 1977)

Effect of amendments. — The 1973 amendment, effective January 1, 1974, added the second sentence of subsection (a).

The 1975 amendment, effective July 1, 1976, added subsection (e).

The first 1976 amendment added paragraph (3) of subsection (c).

The second 1976 amendment, effective June 25, 1976, added paragraph (28D) of subsection (b).

The 1977 amendment added subsections (f) and (g).

Sec. 29.53.035. Farm or agricultural lands. (a) Farm use lands included in a farm unit and not dedicated or being used for nonfarm purposes shall be assessed on the basis of full and true value for farm use, and shall not be assessed as if subdivided or used for some other nonfarm purpose. The assessor shall maintain records valuing the farm use land for both full and true value and farm use value. Should the farm use land be sold, leased, or otherwise disposed of for uses incompatible with farm use or be converted to a use incompatible with farm use by the owner, the owner is liable to pay an amount equal to the additional tax at the current mill levy together with eight per cent interest for the preceding seven years, as though the land had not been assessed for farm use purposes. Payment by the owner shall be made to the state to the extent of its reimbursement for revenue loss under (e) of this section for the preceding seven years. The balance of the payment shall be made to the city or borough.

(b) An owner of farm use land must, to secure the assessment, make application to the assessor before May 15 of each year in which the assessment is desired. The application shall be made upon forms prescribed by the state assessor for the use of the local assessor and shall include information which may reasonably be required to determine the entitlement of the applicant. If the farm use land is leased for farm use purposes, the applicant shall furnish to the assessor a copy of the lease bearing the signatures of both lessee and lessor along with the completed application. The applicant shall furnish the assessor a copy of the lease covering the period for which the exemption is requested.

TO: TITLE 29 TECHNICAL AND POLICY COMMITTEES

FROM: ALASKA ASSOCIATION OF MUNICIPAL CLERKS JoAnne Shanley V. P.

SUBJECT: TITLE 29 REVISIONS

We respectfully submit the following comments:

1) Sec. 29.30.040. We support the drafted changes as recommended by the Technical Committee, dated October 10, 1980, with the following amendment to (b):

> "(b) Voter registration by the municipality may not be required, and a municipality may not alter voter qualification requirements except that a municipality may by ordinance require a person to be a resident of and registered in the precinct, district, or service area in which he votes."
> Explanation: Those voting on the issue are residents of the specific area and thus will have to live with the outcome of the election; requiring registration in the precinct, district or service area will hopefully eliminate some of the problems and the time demanded in trying to prove residency; such a procedure will give the Canvass Board clearer direction.

2) Regarding new AS 29.30.110 and .230, the AAMC feels it is within the scope of responsibilities of the clerks to provide an acceptable petition format; however, we object to being burdened with any of the responsibility of composing any type of initiative, referendum or recall statement. We feel that the newly-proposed sections are unclear in this regard and request that clarification of our position be considered.

3) AAMC strong supports the language as proposed in AS 29.30.050 regarding elections which gives the municipalities the option to provide for runoff elections by ordinance.

Anchorage, Alaska 99504

Dear Senator Sturgulewski,

I am sorry that I did not have the chance to speak to you or make a presentation at the Title 29 Revision Committee meeting on Monday. An illness in the family made me late and an airplane necessitated my leaving before noon. However, I was very pleased by what I witnessed. The discussions on the transfer of land and planning and zoning were very relavent to what we are presently facing. I heard only a portion of Dr. McGinnis' presentation and it upset me. If the Dept. of Health & Social Services is advocating that the second class cities should assume the responsibility for AFDC and Medicaid payments, they should be taken out and shot! Mike Wallerie was making several good points about what it is to be an Alaskan Native and the relationship between the individual and the rest of the community. The Department's plan would be doomed to failure in several communities around the state. This in turn would have other disasterous consequences for other small, second class cities.

Since I was unable to make my planned presentation, I would like to address my remarks to you. I will only be addressing small, second class cities. First, there are two major influences upon the small second class cities. They are their size and remoteness and the fact that the unorganized borough is over organized. I had hoped that Mike Wallerie would touch on this point but he didn't. The committee must realize that eventhough our communities are small that life is very complex in the "bush". A small second class cities must supply a seven member city council, a board of directors for the local ANSCA corporation, at least one advisory school committee (in many instances there are several standing educational committees such as JOM, Indian Ed. etc for the REAA and, if there is a BIA elementary school another set of committees), several members for the Native Village Council or IRA Council and members for other important local committees as well as representatives to regional organizations such as the regional corporation, regional housing authorities, fishand game advisory commissions, and State boards and committees.

Because of the small population and the over organization of the second class cities, it becomes extremely difficult to find qualified people to fulfill all the positions whether voluntary or for pay. This in turn results in lack of service being performed or offered by the second, class cities. The fact that there are so many second class cities whi ch are not functioning is an indication that the system needs to be simplified. I would offer the committee two recommendations. First, acknowledge that entity which is functioning most efficiently in the community whether it is an IRA Council, a Native Village Council, a community organization or association whatever. The State would be recognizing these organizations as providers of services. They would not have the power to enact ordinances or police functions. As a reciepient of State funds, these organizations would have to assure the State that services are being delivered in a non-discriminatory mannar. The new revenue sharing program does this to some extent. The desired result of this course of action would be the demise of second class cities which do not function, and a simplification of life in the "bush". Second, I would recommend the creation of home rule, second class cities. These cities would not be responsible for the local educational program nor would they be required to have a minimum population of 400. This would allow local communities to evolve a form of local government which is more compatible with local conditions. I acknowledge the fact that developing a charter is difficult and time consuming. However, I feel that it would go a long way to bridge the cultural gap in small, second class cities.

Finally, I would ask the committee to look at the relationship of the small second class cities to the executive branch of the State. Article X, Section 6 makes the legislature responsible for providing services to the unorganized borough through a maximum of local participation and responsibility. In fact, it is the executive branch which provides the services but withouth any local input. The recommendations developed by the C&RA Committees especially the development of service areas along REAA boundaries would simplify things greatly. However, there needs to exist both a means of making local concerns know to the executive branch and a means of recourse for local concerns which are impacted upon by executive branch executive decisions.

I want to thank you for the opportunity to sound off. Furthermore, I apologize for all the typing errors as I ran out of correcting ribbons for my typewriter.

Sincerely,

Robert S. Juettner
City Administrator

Anchorage, AK 99504

Dear Senator Sturgulewski:

I am writing to you in your capacity as a member of the policy adviscry group for the rewrite of Title 29. In that regard, several weeks previous the Kodiak City Council directed me to determine the level of interest among the home rule communities located within second class boroughs toward addressing the dual responsibilities of those governments. I have enclosed for your review a copy of the letter received back from the City of Palmer voicing their support for a coalition at the Alaska Municipal League to address these problem areas.

I understand that in your capacity on this advisory group board your input would be balanced by those representatives of boroughs who are also on the panel. However, your background in local government management provides a knowledge of the parameters of the problem we are trying to address.

As Mr. Curtis, Manager of Palmer, indicates in his correspondence, communities such as Anchorage, Juneau and Sitka have within these past several years resolved their dual government relationship problems by unifying. This is of course not the only answer. For many of the smaller communities the problem still remains. We would hope that you will be able to assist us by providing some input to your advisory group relative to our concerns. The communities will be requested to meet during the Alaska Municipal League to formulate specific ideas toward the end of clearly defining the relationship between home rule cities and second class boroughs. I will keep you advised of the progress of our coalition and wish to offer at this time our appreciation for your concern and interest in our problem.

Respectfully yours,

Dear Gordon,

Your letter of September 17, 1980 was received and presented to the Council at their regular meeting of October 14, 1980. I would like to report that our Council wholeheartedly supports your initiatives in this matter of first class and home rule cities within second class boroughs. We are all aware of the gradual erosion of authority away from cities toward boroughs and will enthusiastically join with you and hopefully the other cities in this endeavor.

I will not in this letter attempt to get into specifics of problem areas in Title 29 but would like to suggest a formation of the coalition and the outright commitment of the individual cities involved to put some time and effort into this. Apparently the timeframe is extremely short as the Commission must have a document prepared and presented to the Legislature within the first thirty days of the new Legislative session. If the formation takes place at the AML meeting in November at Fairbanks, there will not be many days left. It would seem that if each city would appoint a person of knowledge and experience, i.e. manager, attorney, clerk, to attend one or two general meetings we could pick out specifics for rewrite and the writing of the new legislation and perhaps prepare resolutions for the adoption by the Council of the various communities as back-up and forward these a.s.a.p. to the Policy Advisory group. We would then have to be prepared to have a representative to care for them to defend our positions. This will not be an easy thing.

I think our Councils must understand that we have lost most of the support from the population areas, particularly Anchorage, which has half of the votes in the State of Alaska, along with Juneau and Sitka who have solved their problems by unification. This was not done without bitter struggles between their original cities and boroughs. In other words, the problems still exist for the remainder of us and I personally do not feel that unification is the solution to all of the problems. A further point to emphasize is that the Alaska Municipal League is severely watered down with boroughs and unified governments to where we cannot expect much support.

I will attempt to help expedite our feelings by sending a copy of this letter to each of the cities you have indicated correspondence with in your letter.

Looking forward to seeing you soon, I remain,

Sincerely,

Mr. Palmer McCarter, Director

Dear Palmer:

Recently I had a discussion with Bert Griest concerning the requirement of AS 29.48.260 that a municipal corporation must dispose of real estate by public auction or sealed bids.

As you know, a number of villages, including several in the NANA region, are in the process of developing new housing. In several of these communities, the only lots suitable for construction of new homes are located outside the patented townsites on land that is selected and will eventually be conveyed to ANCSA corporations. Since new housing units are needed now, the Regional Housing Authorities understandably want to proceed with construction of homes in advance of transfer of ownership of the lots. By itself, this does not present any difficulty provided the permission of the ANCSA corporation and the interim land manager, (in most cases the BLM), is obtained. The problem arises later when BLM grants title and a reconveyance of the lots is requested by the owners of the new homes.

The Settlement Act amendments in the D-2 bill contain a provision whereby a Native corporation may transfer land to a shareholder for the purposes of constructing a family dwelling and not have that distribution of land be treated as a taxable distribution of assets. However, that method of granting title is not prefered by all ANCSA corporations. The ideal method, in our judgement, is to include these lands within the 1280 acres reconveyed to the municipal corporation. But a difficulty arises when the municipality seeks to reconvey title to the home owner. State law requires a public auction or sealed bid procedure since these lots were not occupied in 1971 and there is no requirement that they be reconveyed directly by the village corporation pursuant to Section 14 (c) of ANCSA.

It may be appropriate to bring this to the attention of the committee working on amendments to Title 29, provided my understanding of what the statute requires is correct. I expect you will know whether the committee is already aware of the problem. If an amendment is needed, it seems to me, a waiver provision similiar to AS 29.48.260 (d) would work. In this instance, waiver from the auction and bid requirements need only be available to a municipality reconveying land received from a ANCSA corporation if the reconveyance is to grant a village resident title to his homesite, and perhaps for other public purposes.

Best regards.

Sincerely,

Re: Title 29 Provision

Dear Marilyn:

You mentioned the other day that I had sent you a list of some changes which I believe should be made in the revision of Title 29, but I do not remember getting the letter off nor the changes suggested.

Therefore, I am suggesting that an amendment be made to AS 29.33.050 (copy attached) as follows:

> "The area within the boundaries of an organized [EACH] borough constitutes a borough school district which shall [AND] establish[ES], maintain[S], and operate[S] a system of public schools on an area-wide basis with such authority and responsibility in the organized borough as provided in AS 14.14.060."

I believe the original intent of this statute was merely to set up boundaries of a school district which should be autonomous under the direction of an elected school board except for the fiscal and other responsibilities given to the borough under the provisions of AS 14.14.060 (copy attached) and subject to such directions as provided by the state in Title 14.

Unfortunately the wording that now exists implies that the borough itself has responsibility for the school district even though AS 14.14.060 gives only limited powers to the borough and places full operational authority in the elected school board. The result has been that every time a suit has been brought against the school district the borough has been joined in this suit at considerable expense of time even though the suit may be on teachers' salaries or something else for which the borough has no responsibility. For instance AS 14.09.010 (copy attached) provides for the department to provide for transportation of pupils and grants authority to school districts to enter into contracts for operation of transportation systems, to report to the department, and to receive reimbursement from the state for operation of the transportation system. Yet in Kenai Peninsula Borough v. State, 532 P.2d 1019, 1024, 1026 (1975) (copy attached), the Supreme Court denied any liability of the state for an accident occuring due to the transportation system and stated that "the actual control of the transportation services was undertaken by the borough which, on its own behalf, entered into the contract with Carver." In fact, the borough had no control whatsoever over this contract which was a contract of the school district as recognized by the Court when it stated, "The bus was not owned by the state, and Carver entered into the contract with the borough school district, not the state." [emphasis supplied] The suit, however, was brought against the borough and there was no effort to show non-responsibility - evidently because the insurance company who represented the borough also represented the school district and would have been responsible in any case.

The borough has also been put to the loss of time and expense in suits over teachers' salaries and other negotiations for which the borough has no authority and no responsibility. IN KPEA v. Kenai Peninsula Borough School District and Kenai Peninsula Borough, 572 P.2d 416 (1977), the trial court first ruled that the defendants should negotiate on certain items and later reversed itself to restrict the order to the school district, but refused to grant summary judgment to the borough and was upheld by the Supreme Court, which then refused appeal by the borough (since no judgment had been taken against it), denied borough's petition for certiorari, and then violated its own rules (Civil Rule 54(b)) by entertaining appeal by the school district on judgment against less than all the parties without an express determination that there was no just reason for delay and express direction for entry of judgment. In view of the two cases cited, it is obvious that any relief from responsibility without authority will have to come from the legislature.

Although the borough may be responsible for failures to act properly in areas in which it has authority over the school system which may or may not be shared by the school district, certainly in the area of operations the school district is autonomous from the borough and there should be no responsibility in those areas on behalf of the borough.

Sincerely,

Ben

chapter on an areawide basis, both inside and outside cities within their boundaries.

(b) No city, whether home rule or not, may exercise an areawide power conferred in, or assumed by means of §§ 250—290 of, this chapter once that power is being exercised by a borough. (§ 2 ch 118 SLA 1972)

Borough may not regulate sale and use of fireworks.—A borough's acquisition of the areawide health function does not give it authority to regulate the sale and use of fireworks. 1965 Op. Att'y Gen., No. 12.

Article 2. Assessment and Collection of Taxes.

Section
30. Assessment and collection

Sec. 29.33.030. Assessment and collection. Boroughs shall assess and collect property, sales, and use taxes levied within their boundaries, subject to ch. 53 of this title. Taxes levied by a city and collected by a borough are returned in full to the levying city. (§ (§ 2 ch 118 SLA 1972)

Article 3. Education.

Section
50. Education

Sec. 29.33.050. Education. Each borough constitutes a borough school district and establishes, maintains, and operates a system of public schools on an areawide basis as provided in AS 14.14.060. (§ 2 ch 118 SLA 1972)

Constitution requires pervasive state authority in field of education. — The constitutional mandate of Alaska Const., art. VII, § 1, for pervasive state authority in the field of education could not be more clear. First, the language is mandatory, not permissive. Second, Alaska Const., art. VII, § 1, not only requires that the legislature "establish" a school system, but also gives to that body the continuing obligation to "maintain" the system. Finally, the provision is unqualified; no other unit of government shares responsibility or authority. Macauley v. Hildebrand, Sup. Ct. Op. No. 741 (File No. 1550), 491 P.2d 120 (1971).

And such authority is not diminished by delegating certain educational functions to local boards.—That the legislature has seen fit to delegate certain educational functions to local boards in order that Alaska schools might be adapted to meet the varying conditions of different localities does not diminish constitutionally mandated state control over education under Alaska Const., art. VII, § 1. Macauley v. Hildebrand, Sup. Ct. Op. No. 741 (File No. 1550), 491 P.2d 120 (1971).

A newly incorporated borough assumes administrative responsibility for a state-operated school within its boundaries immediately after incorporation. 1963 Op. Att'y Gen., No. 23.

The law provides that the organized borough shall provide, establish, maintain, and operate the schools within its boundaries. Ownership of state-operated schools must be conveyed by the state to the local school district as soon as possible after incorporation. The transfer of direct administration of these schools should be made shortly after incorporation, prior to the beginning of the next fiscal year, and as quickly as is consistent with continuity of not to exceed $50,000. The bond shall be conditioned on the officer's honest and faithful disbursement and accounting of all money that may come into his official custody. The bond shall be filed with the clerk of the school board. This section does not apply to an officer who has been bonded under AS 29.23.520. (§ 1 ch 98 SLA 1966; am § 21 ch 53 SLA 1973)

Effect of amendment. — The 1973 amendment substituted "29.23.520" for "07.25.060" at the end of the fourth sentence.

Sec. 14.14.050. Annual audit. (a) The school board in each school district shall, before October 1, of each year, provide for an audit of all school accounts for the school year ending the preceding June 30. To make the audit the school board shall contract with a public accountant who has no personal interest, direct or indirect, in the fiscal affairs of the district. One certified copy of the audit shall be filed with the commissioner and one certified copy shall be posted in a public place at the principal administrative office of the district.

(b) The audit shall conform in form to requirements established by the commissioner. The commissioner shall withhold all payments of state funds after November 15 to a school district which fails to file a certified copy of the audit with the department.

(c) The commissioner may provide for a reaudit or an audit check in a school district if in his judgment it is necessary to substantiate the reported expenditures.

(d) The school board shall not make the audit if an audit which satisfies the requirements of this section and which is filed and posted as required by this section, is made according to AS 29.48.220. (§ 1 ch 98 SLA 1966; am § 22 ch 53 SLA 1973)

Effect of amendment. — The 1973 amendment substituted "29.48.220" for "07.29.150" at the end of subsection (d).

Legislative committee report. — For report on ch. 53, SLA 1973 (CSHB 382), see 1973 House Journal, pp. 793, 885.

Sec. 14.14.060. Relationship between borough school district and borough. (a) The borough assembly may by ordinance require that all school money be deposited in a centralized treasury with all other borough money. The borough administrator shall have the custody of, invest and manage all money in the centralized treasury. However, the borough assembly, with the consent of the borough school board, may by ordinance delegate to the borough school board the responsibility of a centralized treasury.

(b) When the borough school board by resolution consents, the borough assembly may by ordinance provide a centralized accounting system for school and all other borough operations. The system shall be operated in accordance with accepted principles of governmental accounting. However, the assembly, with the consent of the borough school board, may by ordinance delegate to the borough school board the responsibilities of the accounting system.

(c) The borough school board shall submit the school budget for the following school year to the borough assembly by April 1 for approval of the total amount. Within 30 days after receipt of the budget the assembly shall determine the total amount of money to be made available from local sources for school purposes and shall furnish the school board with a statement of the sum to be made available. If the assembly does not, within 30 days, furnish the school board with a statement of the sum to be made available, the amount requested in the budget is automatically approved. By May 31, the assembly shall appropriate the amount to be made available from local sources from money available for the purpose.

(d) The borough assembly shall determine the location of school buildings with due consideration to the recommendations of the borough school board.

(e) The borough school board is responsible for the design criteria of school buildings. To the maximum extent consistent with education needs, a design of a school building shall provide for multiple use of the building for community purposes. Subject to the approval of the assembly, the school board shall select the appropriate professional personnel to develop the designs. The school board shall submit preliminary and subsequent designs for a school building to the assembly for approval or disapproval; if the design is disapproved, a revised design shall be prepared and presented to the assembly.

(f) The borough school board shall provide custodial services and routine maintenance for school buildings and shall appoint, compensate, and otherwise control personnel for these purposes. The borough assembly through the borough administrator, shall provide for all major rehabilitation, all construction and major repair of school buildings. The recommendations of the school board shall be considered in carrying out the provisions of this section.

(g) State law relating to teacher salaries and tenure, to financial support, to supervision by the Department of Education and other general laws relating to schools, governs the exercise of the functions by the borough. The school board shall appoint, compensate, and otherwise control all school employees and administration officers in accordance with this title.

(h) School boards within the borough may determine their own policy separate from the borough for the purchase of supplies and equipment. (§ 8 ch 118 SLA 1972)

Sec. 14.08.141. Regional resource centers. A regional educational attendance area or any other school district in the state may participate in regional or statewide resource centers which may be established by the department. Services provided by a resource center include, but are not limited to accounting, payroll and other fiscal services, media services, instructional support services, bilingual-bicultural educational services, in-service and staff development services, student services, diagnostic services, school management and training services and school board member training. Funds for the operation and administration of a regional resource center shall be provided by the department. (§ 2 ch 124 SLA 1975)

Sec. 14.08.151. Land and buildings. — The ownership of land and buildings used in relation to regional eductional attendance area schools shall remain vested in the state, and use permits shall be given to the regional school boards. (§ 2 ch 124 SLA 1975)

Chapter 09. Transportation of Pupils.

Section
10. Transportation of pupils
20. Transportation for nonpublic school students

Sec. 14.09.010. Transportation of pupils. (a) The department may provide for the transportation of pupils who reside a distance from established schools, and in order to accomplish that purpose may

(1) require school districts to enter into contracts with the department for the administration, supervision, operation or subcontracting of the operation of transportation systems for students to and from the schools within their service area;

(2) require all school districts, transportation contractors and other recipients of state transportation funds to submit to the department an annual report, which includes a financial statement and other operational data required by the department;

(3) permit school districts to (A) establish supplementary systems of student transportation for students ineligible to utilize transportation facilities paid for by the state, (B) charge fares or fees for the supplementary transportation systems, and (C) use local tax funds to pay, in whole or in part, the cost of the supplementary system.

(b) Each school district mentioned in (a)(1) of this section is entitled to receive reimbursement from the state for the operation of the transportation system on a unit cost basis determined by the department.

(c) The school board of a district, or the department for areas not within school districts, shall designate as hazardous those routes which cannot be safely traveled by children not served by school bus. The designation may recognize hazards that exist only part of the time and in these instances the designation shall be applicable only during the time the hazards are found to exist. The board or the department shall provide for the transportation of pupils on routes designated as hazardous. The additional cost of the transportation in a district shall be shared equally by the district and the department. Eligibility to receive school bus service on routes designated as hazardous shall not be subject to restrictions based on the minimum distance between established schools and the residences of pupils. (§ 1 ch 39 SLA 1966; § 1 ch 98 SLA 1966)

Revisor's note (1966). — Chapter 39, SLA 1966, amended AS 14.10.070 by adding a (c). Chapter 98, SLA 1966, revised Title 14 and the wording of AS 14.10.070 became AS 14.09.010. Therefore (c) as added by ch. 39, SLA 1966, is included above as AS 14.09.010(c).

Editor's note. — Provisions similar to those contained in this section were formerly codified as AS 14.10.070 and derived from § 37-2-8(7), ACLA 1949; ch. 51, § 1, SLA 1957.

Borough was not acting as an agent of the state in furnishing transportation of pupils. Kenai Peninsula Borough v. State, Sup. Ct. Op. No. 1124 (File No. 2092), 532 P.2d 1019 (1975).

While the state did supervise the school transportation service insofar as it related to the funding provided by it and also had certain regulations in effect pertaining to the over-all safety of the transportation system, the actual control of the transportation services was undertaken by the borough which, on its own behalf, entered into the contract with a school bus owner to furnish transportation service for specified routes. struction in question ought not to be given in United States district courts within their respective jurisdictions is not, without more, authority for declaring that the giving of the instruction makes a resulting conviction invalid under the Fourteenth Amendment. Before a federal court may overturn a conviction resulting from a state trial in which this instruction was used, it must be established not merely that the instruction is undesirable, erroneous, or even "universally condemned," but that it violated some right which was guaranteed to the defendant by the Fourteenth Amendment.[2]

Thus, the United States Supreme Court implied that if it were exercising the same supervisory power which, as a state supreme court we are required to exercise over a trial court, it might have held the jury instruction to be reversible error.

The majority opinion on rehearing in Galauska's case condemns the questioned instruction, stating:

> Such an instruction is subject to numerous infirmities. It interferes with the province of the jury to determine credibility of witnesses. It seems to conflict with the presumption of innocence. The instruction serves to raise doubt in the juror's mind as to his role and adds a confusing factor to jury deliberations. (footnotes omitted)

Despite these shortcomings, the majority holds the instruction to be harmless error under the circumstances of Galauska's trial. In Anthony v. State,[3] we reiterated the test for harmless error as previously enunciated in Love v. State[4] stating:

> Only if we can fairly say that the error "did not appreciably affect the jury's verdict" can we conclude that infringement of the right to the instruction was harmless.

Galauska's conviction depended on whether or not the jury believed Roger Peter's version of the incident. As I have indicated in my dissent to the original opinion in this case, I believe that Peter was an accomplice and that Galauska was entitled to his requested instruction that "the testimony of an accomplice ought to be viewed with distrust".[5] In the absence of giving that instruction, I fail to see how it can be said to be harmless error to instruct the jury over defendant's objection that Peter was presumed to speak the truth. Moreover, if we deem the instruction to be erroneous as indicated by the majority, there is no prohibition to its continued use when it is held to be harmless error in a case such as this, for it is hard to envision circumstances where the instruction would be more damaging. I accordingly would hold that the giving of the instruction under the circumstances here involved constituted reversible error.

v.

STATE of Alaska, Appellee.

No. 2092.

Supreme Court of Alaska.

March 12, 1975.

Borough and its insurer which had made payment in settlement of suit for injuries sustained by motorist in collision with school bus brought suit for judgment declaring that state was required to indemnify borough. The Superior Court, Third Judicial District, Eben H. Lewis, J., rendered judgment for state and borough appealed. The Supreme Court, Boochever, J., held that although state supervised the transportation of pupils insofar as it related to the funding provided by state and also had regulations in effect pertaining to safety of the transportation system, borough in transporting people did not act as agent for the state in either a compelled or voluntary capacity.

Affirmed.

2. Municipal Corporations ⇐54

Although state supervised transportation of students insofar as it related to the funding provided by state and state also had certain regulations in effect pertaining to the overall safety of the transportation system, borough in transporting students was not acting as agent for the state in either a compelled or voluntary capacity and state was not required to indemnify borough for settlement made with persons injured in collision with school bus. Principal and Agent ⇐23(3)

Fact that department of education regulations in effect at time of collision involving school bus provided that the commissioner "shall" direct school board to enter into contracts for transportation of pupils, whereas subsequent regulations specified that commissioner "may in his discretion" establish contracts did not establish that at time of accident the borough was a compelled agent of the state and that state was liable to indemnify borough. Kenneth P. Jacobus, Anchorage, for appellants.

Sanford Gibbs, Anchorage, for appellee.

Before RABINOWITZ, C. J., and CONNOR, ERWIN, BOOCHEVER and FITZGERALD, JJ.

OPINION

BOOCHEVER, Justice.

The seldom litigated question of when a political subdivision acts as an agent of the state so as to render the state liable for the acts of the subdivision is presented by this appeal.

On January 15, 1969, James Harman was injured and his wife was killed as the result of a collision with a school bus owned by Burton Carver and driven by Darrell Houston. Mr. Harman, individually and as administrator of the estate of his deceased wife, brought suit against the Kenai Peninsula Borough alleging that the bus driver was acting as agent of the borough at the time of the accident. The borough, in turn, tendered defense of the suit to the State of Alaska contending that in furnishing transportation for school pupils, the borough was acting as an agent of the state. The tender was refused. The borough then filed a complaint against the state seeking a declaratory judgment that the state must indemnify the borough for reasonable settlements, judgments, costs and attorney's fees resulting from the Harman suit.

The Harman case was settled for the sum of $125,000, and the Home Insurance Company, as insurer of the borough, contributed $50,000 to that settlement. The Home Insurance Company was then added as a party plaintiff in the declaratory judgment complaint.

In its answer, the state denied that the borough was its agent and set up other defenses. The agency issue, above, was tried by the court, with the other issues being severed for subsequent disposition. The superior court rendered a judgment in favor of the state, and the borough has appealed.

Therefore, we are confronted with the single issue as to whether the trial court was correct in ruling that the borough was not an agent of the state in furnishing school transportation.[1]

The Alaska Constitution provides that "[t]he legislature shall by general law establish and maintain a system of public schools open to all children of the State."[2] The legislature has specified that "[e]ach borough constitutes a borough school district and establishes, maintains, and operates a system of public schools on an area-wide basis . . . ."[3] The borough admits that in the gene.,[1] operation of the school system, it is exercising a delegated authority from the legislature, so that in the absence of facts not here involved, the state would not incur liability for personal injuries. With reference to the transportation function, however, it is the borough's contention that it was acting as a compelled agent of the state so as to entitle the borough to indemnity for any liability incurred.[4]

The borough bases this argument on AS 14.09.010, which provides in relevant part:

(a) The [D]epartment [of Education] may provide for the transportation of pupils who reside a distance from established schools, and in order to accomplish that purpose may

(1) require school districts to enter into contracts with the department for the administration, supervision, operation or subcontracting of the operation of transportation systems for students to and from the schools within their service area;

. . . . . .

(3) permit school districts to (A) establish supplementary systems of student transportation for students ineligible to utilize transportation facilities paid for by the state, (B) charge fares or fees for the supplementary transportation systems, and (C) use local tax funds to pay, in whole or in part, the cost of the supplementary system.

Relying on this statute, the borough rests its appeal on an attempt to draw a distinction between the delegation of the legislative function of furnishing school transportation and the creation of a relationship whereby the borough acts on behalf of the state as its agent in furnishing the service. The use of the words "may provide" is said to indicate that the transportation power is in the state, and the words "may require" are claimed to show that the state can compel the local school districts to act as state agents in exercising the pupil transportation function. However, admitting that the transportation power is in the state and that the state has compelled the school district to handle that function is not tantamount to agreeing that the district is acting as the state's agent in providing school transportation so as to impose liability on the state.

It is thus on the slippery distinction between a power delegated to a political subdivision and an agency relationship that the case turns. The borough points to the case of Pantess v. Saratoga Springs Authority[5] which discusses aspects of the distinction as follows:

Where the State assumes to act directly in the carrying out of its governmen-

1. In light of our ruling here, the other issues pertaining to the right to indemnity no longer require trial.

2. Alaska Const. art. VII, § 1.

3. AS 29.33.050.

4. In so arguing, the borough relies on Restatement (Second) of Agency § 224 (1957) which provides:

One compelled by law or duress to render services to another has power to subject the other to liability as if there were a master and servant relation.

5. 225 App.Div. 426, 8 N.Y.S.2d 103, 105 (1938).

tal function, even though it create and use a corporation for that purpose, it assumes responsibility for the conduct of its agent. Thus the State may choose to create and maintain a state system of parks, and thereby subject itself to liability for the negligence of its officers and employees (Court of Claims Act, § 12-a; Maltby v. County of Westchester, 267 N.Y. 375, 379, 196 N.E. 295); or, with like liability, it may provide for the imprisonment of young delinquents, and commit their custody to an authorized institution for the purpose. Paige v. State of New York, 269 N.Y. 352, 199 N.E. 617. But when the State delegates the governmental power for the performance of a state function, the agency exercises its independent authority as delegated, as does a city, and its responsibility for its acts must be determined by the general law which has to do with that class of agent and corporate activity, apart from liability on the part of the State. That is the case when the State delegates its state function of education to a school board, its public health function to a local board of health, when it delegates broader governmental functions to a county, city or village. In such instances, there is no authority for making claim against the State, but the agency exercising the delegated authority must respond for its own actionable conduct.

In Pantess, the Saratoga Springs Authority was established as a public corporation to develop the "Saratoga Cure" from the spring's water. Such development was expressly declared to be a part of the over-all public health policy of the state. However, the court held that, even though the Authority was an agency exercising governmental powers, "the performance of its functions [was] not so closely allied or held in such intimate relation to the health activities carried on by the State itself . . ." as to make it an agent of the state and thereby impose liability on the state to one scalded in taking the cure.[6]

The Pantess case, however, deals only with the results flowing from a determination of an agency relationship or a delegated function, not the distinction between them. We find great difficulty with elucidation of the distinction between a function delegated to a political subdivision so as to insulate the state from liability and the exercising of a function by a political subdivision as a part of the state. The basis of action by any agent is the authority delegated by his principal,[7] so that a delegation is involved in both relationships. The distinction would appear to be one of degree of control. If a political subdivision acts with a substantial degree of independence under authority delegated by the state, liability may not be imposed on the state as a result of such activity. If, on the other hand, an executive department specifically makes a political subdivision its agent to act on its behalf and subject to its control, it may be subjected to liability based on acts of the political subdivision.

Our examination of the sparse authority on this subject indicates that authorized

6. 8 N.Y.S.2d at 106. Significantly, the court relied on an analogy to the state school system, stating:

> These arguments are true in one degree or another, or in one manner or another, in the public school system of the State. The State determines the qualifications of teachers, and provides for their retirement in part with its own money, and even contributes to their salaries and the maintenance of the schools, and school property is commonly held by or reverts to the municipality within which the school is located. None of these considerations have been regarded by the courts as a basis of liability on the part of the State for the conduct of boards of education.

7. Restatement (Second) of Agency § 1 (1957) defines "agency" as:

> (1) Agency is the fiduciary relation which results from the manifestation of consent by one person to another that the other shall act on his behalf and subject to his control, and consent by the other so to act.

The manifestation of consent by one person to another to act on his behalf is a delegation of authority. "Delegation" is defined in Webster's Seventh New Collegiate Dictionary (1971) as "the act of empowering to act for another".

activities of such subdivisions as municipalities and school districts are almost universally considered to be independent actions not subjecting the state to liability,[8] whereas when a state functions through use of some other type of agency or a private corporation, liability is more likely to ensue.[9] Thus, in imposing liability on the state for injuries to a juvenile placed in a private correctional institution, the New York Court of Appeals pointed out:

> The quasi penal institution in which the claimant was confined was a governmental agency to which the state had committed in part its function to care for wayward minors. But the institution did not thereby acquire a status equivalent to that of the civil divisions of the state.[10]

[1] We have had no case cited to us where liability was imposed upon the state for actions of a political subdivision such as a municipality or a school district.[11] Political subdivisions of a state are creatures of the legislature which prescribes and curtails their authority. They may be subjected to detailed requirements in the exercise of their statutory functions. Yet such legislative regulation has not been held to make the subdivision an agent of the state so as to impose liability. Nevertheless, we can envision situations which might arise where it is clear that the subdivision is acting on behalf of the state as its agent and under its control to such an extent as to impose liability. Where political subdivisions are involved, however, we shall apply a much stricter test than when other forms of entities are utilized as to the type of control required to create liability on the part of the state.[12] To apply such a test, we shall now review the factual context which confronts us in this appeal.

Under the authority of AS 14.09.010,[13] the Alaska Department of Education entered into a contract with the Kenai Peninsula Borough School District (referred to hereinafter as the borough) whereby the borough was to furnish or contract for the transportation of pupils living 1½ miles or more from the school, and the state was to pay a specified amount for each day transportation was furnished. In addition, the state agreed to pay two (2) percent of that amount to the borough as an administrative charge. The borough was authorized to furnish transportation to students living closer to the school provided that it paid the costs for such transportation without the right to state reimbursement. Any contracts entered into by the borough for school transportation were required to be approved by the Commissioner of Education as a condition for payment by the state, and subcontracts had to provide that the contractors furnish a complete accounting to the state on forms provided by it of all funds received by the contractor for any service. The borough agreed to furnish the state with such information as route maps, bus time and mileage schedules, driver, vehicle and pupil data, etc. as requested. The borough was to administer and supervise the transportation in accordance with the rules and regulations of the Alaska Department of Education.

11. The borough cites Maltby v. Westchester County, 267 N.Y. 375, 196 N.E. 295 (1935), but in that case, the question was whether the Westchester County Park Commission was acting as an agent of the state or the county in entering into road contracts. It was not a case of the county itself acting on behalf of the state.

12. We do not consider applicable here the "enterprise" theory espoused in Fruit v. Schreiner, 502 P.2d 133, 141 (Alaska 1972) whereby losses to third persons incidental to carrying on an enterprise were held to be a cost of operation and to be borne by the enterprise, with the burden distributed among those benefited by the enterprise. Such a theory could apply with equal force to the borough and the state. Nor do we find pertinent the "relative nature of the work" test utilized in determining whether an injured workman was an independent contractor or an employee in the private industry context of Ostrem v. Alaska Workmen's Compensation Board, 511 P.2d 1061 (Alaska 1973).

In accordance with that contract, the borough entered into an agreement with Burton Carver to furnish transportation services for specified routes. The contract was executed on a form provided by the state, entitled Transportation Sub-Contract Form. The agreement was signed by Carver and by the President of the School Board indicating the approval of the board. At no place in the contract is there an indication that the borough was acting on behalf of the state as its agent, although there is provision for amendment by either the borough or the state Commissioner of Education "if in their judgment a reduction in required transportation services or lack of adequate transportation funds so requires". Liability insurance policies secured by the company were required to be filed with the state as a condition for payment of state monies. The transportation regulations of the Department of Education were made a part of the contract.

The principal, superintendent or teacher in charge of the school unit for which transportation service was provided was designated as the agent of the borough (not the state) for determining arrival or departure time of vehicles, general bus schedules and routing and giving general supervision to the conduct of the transportation operation. The borough had an employee designated as director of transportation who was to take care of the school district transportation and refer to the state Department of Education only matters requiring interpretation as to what was fundable. The state had nothing to do with the establishment of the bus routes and the times for student pickup. It merely reviewed the designated routes to assure that there was no duplicated mileage. The borough could provide for extended routes at its own expense. The school board would determine which of the proposals submitted for transportation services would be selected and would submit its recommendation to the state's Department for concurrence or rejection. Moreover, the borough had the option of furnishing the transportation by means of its own drivers and vehicles or entering into contracts for that purpose.

[2] We conclude that, while the state did supervise the transportation service insofar as it related to the funding provided by it and also had certain regulations in effect pertaining to the over-all safety of the transportation system,[14] the actual control of the transportation services was undertaken by the borough which, on its own behalf, entered into the contract with Carver.

The situation is closely akin to that existing on the federal-state level discussed in D. R. Smalley & Sons, Inc. v. United States.[15] The court in Smalley dealt with a suit by a contractor employed by the State of Ohio to work on highway construction projects as part of the Federal-Aid Highway System of interstate highways. For these projects, the United States would reimburse the State of Ohio to the extent of ninety (90) percent of the total cost of the project. The plaintiff's claim was based on the state's wrongful acts and omissions as a result of which the completion of the projects became considerably more expensive than originally anticipated. In seeking recovery from the United States, the plaintiff asserted that with regard to these projects, the State of Ohio was the agent of the United States.

> To support this claim, plaintiff points out that: the contracts were drafted pursuant to the regulations and requirements of defendant; the contracts were approved by defendant; the work was inspected and approved by defendant as it progressed; changes in plans were approved by defendant; the final completion of the work was inspected and approved by the defendant; and defendant agreed by the provisions of the law to pay the state (for the benefit of plaintiff) ninety per cent of the cost of the contracts.[16]

In language which applies with equal effect to the relationship between a state and its various political subdivisions, the court stated:

> The National Government makes many hundreds of grants each year to the various states, to municipalities, to schools and colleges and to other public organizations and agencies for many kinds of public works, including roads and highways. It requires the projects to be completed in accordance with certain standards before the proceeds of the grant will be paid. Otherwise the will of Congress would be thwarted and taxpayers' money would be wasted. These grants are in reality gifts or gratuities. It would be farfetched indeed to impose liability on the Government for the acts and omissions of the parties who contract to build the projects, simply because it requires the work to meet certain standards and upon approval thereof reimburses the public agency for a part of the costs.[17]

The court rejected the agency argument citing Eden Memorial Park Assoc. v. United States,[18] wherein the court stated:

> Moreover, analysis of the Federal-Aid Highways Act indicates that while close cooperation between the United States and the individual states was contemplated, the states or their agencies or officials were in no sense to become agents of the United States in projects authorized by that act.

The borough attempts to distinguish Smalley on the basis that the states may elect whether to construct highways under the Federal-Aid Highway Act whereas the borough was compelled to provide school transportation once the state Board of Education decided to require it. It contends that the involuntary nature of its undertaking of the function makes it a compelled agent of the state.

[3] We agree that one may become a compelled agent or servant of another. As noted previously, Section 224 of the Restatement (Second) of Agency (1957) states that "[o]ne compelled by law or duress to render services to another has power to subject the other to liability as if there were a master and servant relation". Similarly, one who volunteers services may be a servant of the one accepting services.[19] Whether one is a compelled or voluntary agent begs the question here involved, i. e., was the borough acting as an agent of the state in furnishing school transportation. It is not contended that the borough is an agent of the state in exercising the function of public education, yet it is compelled by law to maintain and operate a system of public schools on an areawide basis.[20]

We conclude that the borough was not acting as an agent of the state in furnishing transportation of pupils. Our conclusion is bolstered by the only case to rule squarely on the relationship between a school district furnishing such transportation and a state. In Gonzales v. State,[21] the plaintiff brought suit against a school bus driver, the school district, the county and the State of California and other defendants for injuries suffered when the plaintiff was struck by a school bus. In seeking recovery against the state, the plaintiff contended that the school district was the agent of the state in employing the driver so as to make the driver an employee of the state. A California statute imposed liability only on the public entity whose employee caused the injury.

Thus, as in the Kenai case, for the state to be liable, the school district had to be found to be the state's agent. The court held:

> . . . Grace Erickson, at the times mentioned in the complaint and for the previous 19 years, was employed by the District as a bus driver; she was not employed by the State and did not drive or operate a bus owned or controlled by the State, at any time; . . . .
> . . . . . .
>
> State agencies, even though exercising a portion of the state's powers of government, are not the state or a part of the state; and may not act on behalf of the state unless authorized to do so by statute. . . . There is no statute conferring authority upon school boards, expressly or by implication, to employ an individual on behalf of the state.
> The fact the authority of a school district to operate buses, and the incidental authority to employ bus drivers, is derived from the State through its Legislature, does not support the conclusion a bus driver employed by the District is an employee of the State.[22]

Similarly, there is no Alaska statute or contract authorizing the borough to employ or contract with a driver on behalf of the state. The bus was not owned by the state, and Carver entered into the contract with the borough school district, not the state.[23]

[4] The borough makes an additional argument to the effect that a change in the Department of Education regulations made subsequent to the Harman accident indicates that under the former regulations, the borough acted as agent. The regulations in effect in 1969 provided in part that the "Commissioner of Education shall direct the school boards to enter into contracts for transportation of pupils who reside a distance of 1½ miles or more from the school,"[24] whereas the current regulation specifies that the Commissioner "may in his discretion" establish contracts with districts to provide for transportation of students.[25] The borough contends that this indicates that the state has elected to no longer "require" the borough to provide for the transportation. But the fact that it is discretionary with the Commissioner whether to enter into the contract, does not make it less a requirement on the part of the borough when such discretion is exercised. Moreover, as we have discussed previously, the real issue is not whether the borough was "required" to furnish the transportation, but whether it acted as agent for the state in either a compelled or voluntary capacity.

23. Feb. 3, 1975.

Consolidated actions were brought arising out of a collision between an automobile and an unmarked city police vehicle which was at the time responding to a radio report of a burglary in progress but which was not using its siren or flashing red light. The Superior Court, Fourth Judicial District, Fairbanks, Warren William Taylor, J., entered judgment in favor of police officer and city, and motorist and his wife appealed. The Supreme Court, Erwin, J., 530 P.2d 11, reversed and remanded. On petition for rehearing, the Supreme Court, Connor, J., held that although the jury did in fact give a negative response to an interrogatory concerning whether the police officer's actions were a proximate cause of the collision, the way in which the interrogatory was phrased may have led the jury to believe that, having found the officer not negligent, it had to find no causation, and the improperly excluded opinion testimony of investigating officer that the speed of the police vehicle was excessive and was a contributing cause of the accident may have affected the jury's answers on both the negligence and causation issues.

Re: Proposed Legislative Changes
Our File 844-10

Dear Mr. Ryan:

Pursuant to your request, I have reviewed Title 29 of the Alaska Statutes and the supplements for the purpose of making recommendations regarding proposed changes to statutory sections that might be presented to the Alaska Municipal League during its meeting in Fairbanks during the week of November 17, 1980. In particularly, I have attempted to locate the statutory sections that have been the source of litigation or disputes in the past. I have also discussed this matter with Mel Stephens and sought his recommendations.

A. I would recommend that the first full paragraph of AS 29.28.070(b) be amended to read as follows:

> (b) Every petition for either the initiative or referendum in the government of a municipality shall be signed by a number of qualified voters residing within the territorial limits of the municipality, or, if the act sought to be initiated or referred pertains exclusively to the area outside cities or to a service area, by a number of qualified voters residing within the area outside cities or within the service area, as the case may be, equal to the following per cent of the total number of votes cast at the last regular [GENERAL] election in the city or borough or borough area concerned, or a special election called for the purpose of electing city or borough officers:

The word that has been underlined in the above section is the word to be added by the change in legislation. The capitalized word in brackets will be deleted.

The basis for this recommendation is the ruling by Judge Carlson in the recall case holding that the signature requirement was based on the number of votes cast in the municipality during the last general election. In effect, the signature requirements for initiative, referendum and recall may be substantially increased by this ruling.

B. I would recommend that the provisions relating to the review of a recall petition be amended to provide for a review of the petition by the clerk prior to the time the petition is circulated for signature. Moreover, I would recommend that some procedure be provided for an expeditious review of the clerk's decision by the Department of Community and Regional Affairs if the the clerk determines that the contents of the petition are insufficient.

Possible legislative changes to implement the suggestion would be as follows:

Add a new section 29.28.145 to read:

> (a) A petition seeking recall of one or more municipal officials shall contain the grounds for recall stated with particularity as to specific instances reflecting the alleged misconduct in office, incompetence, or failure to perform prescribed duties. The statement of grounds for recall shall be submitted to the municipal clerk for review as to content, prior to circulation for signature and the municipal clerk shall, within ten (10) days, certify whether the statement is acceptable or unacceptable. The clerk shall not determine whether the statement of grounds for recall is true or false, nor shall the clerk determine whether the specific instances set forth constitute misconduct in office, incompetence or failure to perform prescribed duties. If the petition is determined by the clerk to be unacceptable, the clerk shall specify in writing the reasons for determining the statement to be unacceptable.

(b) A statement of grounds for recall that is determined to be unacceptable by the clerk may be amended and resubmitted, or the clerk's decision may be submitted by the recall proponent to the Department of Community and Regional Affairs for review. Within ten (10) days after receipt, the Department of Community and Regional Affairs shall review the statement of grounds for recall and the clerk's written specification of the reasons why the statement is unacceptable and shall determine whether the grounds for recall are stated with particularity as to specific instances in a form acceptable for the petition.

Section 29.28.150 should be modified to provide as follows:

Petition. (a) The petition containing an accepted statement of grounds for recall shall be filed with the municipal clerk when it has been completed to contain

(1) the signatures and resident addresses of a number of voters as prescribed in Section 70(b) of this chapter for initiative and referendum; and

(2) the date each voter signed the petition.

(b) A petition for recall must be filed with the clerk within 60 days after the date of the earliest signature on the petition.

Modify Section 29.28.160 to provide:

Examination of Signatures. The municipal clerk shall review the signatures, addresses and dates contained in the petition and shall certify on the petition within ten (10) days of the filing date whether it is accepted or rejected. Until the petition is accepted, a petition signer may withdraw his signature upon written application to the clerk.

The proposed changes recommended above, would provide a procedure for reviewing the statement of grounds in a recall petition prior to the expenditure of the effort that normally goes into obtaining adequate signatures. Moreover, by establishing in the guidelines for the clerk's decision and providing for review by the Department of Community and Regional Affairs, the modifications would tend to minimize litigation that otherwise occurs.

C. I would recommend that AS 29.33.070(a) be amended to negate any implied power that boroughs now have to review and disapprove capital improvement programs of cities located within the boroughs. This modification might be accomplished by adding a second sentence to subparagraph (a) to read:

> The powers delegated to boroughs under this section shall not be construed to grant to a borough any authority or control over a capital improvement program or project of a city within the borough or a city's right to seek funding of such capital improvements without prior approval by the borough.

This recommendation is based upon the unacceptability of the A95 Review Procedures for Grant Applications. As I understand that review procedure, if a borough does not approve a capital improvement project proposed by a city within the borough, the grant application is rejected. Obviously, there may be other and perhaps better ways of eliminating borough control over city capital improvement projects.

D. I would recommend that Section 29.33.130 relating to judicial review of decisions by the Board of Adjustment be amended. At the present time, if a city has been delegated the authority to act as a Board of Adjustment, the city is invariably named as a party in the appeal from the Board of Adjustment decision. In some instances, the city is designated as the sole party and it is forced to incur the costs and attorney's fees necessary to respond to the appeal. So long as the city is a party to the appeal they are also subject to a judgment for costs and attorney's fees incurred by the party appealing from the Board of Adjustment action.

This problem might be resolved by an additional paragraph within Section 29.33.130 to read as follows:

> If a city acted as a Board of Adjustment pursuant to a power delegated by the borough, the city shall not be named as a party in the action seeking review unless the action of the Board of Adjustment reversed or overturned action by the borough planning commission. The city may, however, intervene as an interested party in an appeal from a Board of Adjustment decision which related to property within the limits of the city.

E. I would recommend that Section 29.33.120 be amended to specifically provide that appeals to the Board of Adjustment may be heard on the record. It would appear to be wise policy to require an applicant seeking relief from the Planning & Zoning Commission to present a full and complete record of the grounds upon which the relief is based. A record should therefore be adequate for review and decision when supplemented by briefs of the parties. A requirement that de novo hearings be held, which might possibly be implied from the provisions of AS 29.33.110(a), which authorizes the presiding officer to administer oath and compel attendance of witnesses, may encourage the presentation of a minimal case before the planning commission with the thought that the record can always be improved before the board of adjustment.

F. I would recommend that AS 29.33.150 be amended to require city participation in the platting process if the subdivision is located within the city. In particular, that section might be amended to provide that rules and regulations relating to installation of street paving, curbs, gutters, sidewalks, sewers, water lines, drainage and other public utility facilities and improvements, which are to be located within, operated by or connected to facilities in a first class city, shall be constructed in compliance with requirements that are not less stringent than those established by the city. Moreover, the statute should require approval of the plat by a city within which the platted property is located and to prohibit the filing of the plat until all improvements have been constructed or security, in a form acceptable to the city, has been provided to insure that the improvements will be completed as designed and approved.

The city has in the past, particularly with regard to the Russells Estates Subdivision, been placed in the position where the borough specifications for roads and utilities were far below those required by the city. The city had no authority to prohibit or disapprove the construction but may be required to maintain dedicated roads after they are completed and may assume the responsibility for the proper operation of the utilities. In Russells Estates, the streets were of insufficient width, were improperly constructed and the sewer facilities, which was designed to operate with individual grinders and pumps in the homes failed to operate properly. As a result, the city incurred substantial expenditures to completely reconstruct the project. The borough naturally assumed no responsibility for the deficiencies that existed. After the developer sold the lots he moved out of state and the city is finding it extremely difficult to obtain any reimbursement for its expenditures.

F. I would recommend that AS 29.53.025(c)(2) be repealed or, if not repealed, modified to eliminate the problem that currently exists with regard to the personal property tax exemption in Kodiak. The framework created by the statute is totally unworkable because the borough is given authority to determine the revenues lost as a result of the exemption. In the case of the personal property tax exemption the borough includes substantial properties on its assessment list for which taxes would not or could not be collected if the borough was levying and collecting the taxes.

It is extremely difficult to recommend modifications for this section because it appears that the appropriate solution would be a repeal of the exemption by the City of Kodiak. That has been attempted once, but a petition for a referendum of the repealing ordinance was filed and ultimately found to be valid by the Superior Court in Kodiak. At the election, a majority of the voters cast their ballots in favor of the referendum.

One possible modification would be to require borough consent for exemption and subject the exemption to an agreement between the municipalities regarding the determination of the revenues lost and the method of repayment. That type of approach would have to provide some method for revoking the consent on the reasonable notice.

Another possible modification would be to amend that section to read as follows:

> (2) A home rule or first class city shall have the same power to grant exemptions or exclude property from borough taxes that it has as to city taxes, provided that the exemptions or exclusions have been adopted as to city taxes and further provided that the city appropriate to the borough an amount calculated to equal the reasonably anticipated revenues, less costs of collection, lost by the borough because of the exemptions or exclusions. The amount of lost revenues shall be determined annually by the assembly, subject to approval by the city council. If the council disapproves the amount determined by the assembly, the city shall appropriate the amount determined by the assembly to have been lost during that year, and the exemption shall thereafter be void with regard to borough taxes levied in future tax years.

The recommendations proponed above are based in substantial part upon the experience I have had in the City of Kodiak over the past six years. Recommendations as to specific language for changes in the statutes are merely rough proposals and would have to be carefully reviewed and refined if it was determined that those proposals could be supported by the Alaska Municipal League. Nevertheless, I believe the problem areas are adequately highlighted and possible solutions proposed.

If you have any questions after you have had an opportunity to review these recommendations, please advise me at your convenience.

Kindest regards.

Very truly yours,

Dear Ginny:

I am taking this opportunity to write to you concerning several matters which I would thank you to transmit to the committee studying the revision of Title 29.

First, at a recent city council meeting, there was a matter on the agenda concerning the vacation of a certain street in the city which had come to the council with a recommendation from the Borough Planning and Zoning Commission that the vacation of the street be permitted. Because of the time constraints in Section 29.33.220 requiring action by the council within 30 days from the decision of the Commission in which to veto that decision, the council was required to act upon the matter with what they considered to be insufficient information to properly consider the proposal. As a result of this incident, the council reviewed the provisions of Section 29.33.220 and directed me to bring this to your attention for action by the Title 29 revision committee. The last two sentences of this Section (29.33.220) state:

> The assembly or council shall have 30 days from the decision in which to veto the board's decision. If no veto is received by the board within the 30-day period, the consent of the city or borough shall be considered to have been given to the vacation.

It was the feeling of the council that in matters as important as a vacation of a city street, it should require affirmative action, rather than silence, to constitute consent. With that in mind, I respectfully submit the following language, or some variation of it, in place of the last two sentences of the section as it is now written as follows:

> The assembly or council shall have 30 days from the date that the board decision is received by the assembly or council within which to consider the proposed vacation. If the decision of the assembly or council is not received by the board within the 30-day period, then the council or assembly shall be deemed to have vetoed the proposed vacation.

In this way, it would be much easier for the petitioners seeking the vacation to submit a new petition than it would be to have the council or assembly reverse the effect of its failure to act as is now the situation.

Mayor Wood has requested me to seek the committee's consideration of revising the applicable provisions of Title 29 so as to allow a home rule city to enact and implement certain tax incentive measures for the promotion of residential and industrial development within the municipality. As we read the present provisions of Chapter 53 of Title 29, Sections 10 through 350, and 400, there are certain required exemptions as set forth in 29.53.020(a) through (i), none of which would cover the type of tax incentives which the mayor has in mind. Also, the optional exemptions and exclusions in Section 29.53.025, as amended through 1979, are not broad enough to allow the type of residential and industrial tax incentives which he feels are necessary to stimulate economic activity within the community. Subsections (f) and (g) afford some relief in the residential area of concern, but again are not sufficiently broad in scope to permit the provisions that we wish to consider for such legislation. In addition, it is our opinion that the required and optional exemptions and exclusions set forth in Chapter 53 of Title 29 are exclusive, and as such, would not permit a home rule municipality to enact tax incentives for industry which we feel would be desirable. Rather than set forth a statutory scheme to cover a myriad of available or innovative incentives, it occurs to me that it might be more desirable to specifically exempt home rule cities from the provisions of Section 29.53.025, and rather than have the exemption by silence, to insert language in any revision thereof indicating home rule cities to be exempt from these provisions and subject only to constitutional provisions in the taxation of real property situated within the corporate limits.

I would appreciate it very much if you would transmit these suggestions to the committee.

With kindest personal regards, I am

Sincerely yours,

Mac Gibson

Dear Bob:

I have just learned that you needed some input, from small communities, concerning the problems they are experencing, from Villages to Municapalities, We the people of Tyonek, are governed by the I.R.A. Council, we offer Municipal type services.

1. Road Maintance, with a Grant from Bureau of Indian Affairs.

2. Water System, from Public Health Services.

3. Waste Disposal, from Kenai Borough Etc.

Before, we got these Grants, we payed for our own services, What the problem.? We have governed our own people, since we were Incorporated in 1936. under the Indian Reorganization Act. then ANSCA came along, and everyone forgot about the I.R.A., something has to be done, because we are still active, but no land base to govern. We aren't considered as a municipilty, but yet in fact we are, I would recommend very highly that we could be reconized as a municipal government. yet we have the problems of Non-Natives, Historically we have excluded Non-Natives, based on what is called Rule No. 4. We do not discriminate, but we like to live by this rule, simply because it prevents outsiders from coming on our land to sell illegal things, and also because of this rule, we do not have any Bar's, or any controlling interests, we must remain under the I.R.A. Council, in order for us to survive. To become a Public Municipality would mean death to our Culture, and eventually to our land. We would like to share the States money, but we would'nt sell our people out for money.

Sincerely,

Donald Standifer, President

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

We, are not yet ready to form a Municipal Government for reason's that there isn't enought Industry to create enought job's, to pay Taxe's. Light Bill's, Water Sewer, and Waste.

We, have a lot of elderly people and, some disable that would'nt be able to live on what little Welfare they get.

The problem's we have today, are mostly that, we are tied to a Borough of which we don't have any ties. All our Business are in Anchorage, Alaska. our mail, Grocie's, Hospital, all comes thru Anchorage, the only ties we have with Kenai, is the School.

We, cannot get any Grant's out of Community and Regional Affair's without going thru, the Kenai Borough, which mekes it hard for us as there is, so much Red Tape, and being a Small Village, we are always left out of Grants. Before Grants are approved to the Borough, its Citys already have their Grants written, they already know that certain Grants are being approved, as we dont know until, the monies are all spent. We are not kept up to date on any Grants, that comes to the Borough.

In 1978, a Grant of $100,000.00 was approved by the State Legislature to upgrade our Airstrip, we had to turn this grant down, because it had so much strings attached, Such as opening the Airstrip to the Public. To the Public is ok, if they would pay Fee's Etc. but everyone feels that since, they are Tax Payers they should have excess to the Airstrip, since they pay their taxes. It cost us thousands of dollars to maintain the Airstrip, Up grading, Light, and Power, Snow Removal, of which we use our own Equipment and Fuel, Pay our own men to do the necessary work. We recently used some funds from R.D.A. Rural Development Administration, and charged landing fees, although we spent all our monies as stated above, we had to argue with Aircraft Owners over landing fees, and we were accused of trying to shoot people Etc. Its not fair to us to spend all this money to keep up the Airport and not be able to charge landing, and Parking fees, we pay taxes to.

We get grants from the Bureau of Indian Affairs, such as Jonson O'Malley, Self-Determination Act, Title 4 Bilingual, and Cultural. All these Grants, are below living costs, and at times are supplemented by our own funds, just to get someone to work. These Grants are a lot of Red Tape, and takes time to get, making it difficult to get people interested. C.E.D.A. Programs are so Red Taped that one almost have to be living in Poverty, before they qualify. If this is a Training Program it should be just that not a Welfare Program.

I, feel that we should be left alone, and let us decide our own destiny, and if we want to go into Municiple Type Government, we should be able to do it, at our own pace. There is this big problem of Non-Indians coming in, and taking over something that, we have worked for all of our lives, an those before us. We have kept our Traditional and Culture, which is so important to us, all these years and are not about to throw that out for someone else to benefit by. Kenai, Alaska was a nice and beautiful Village once, but they made a mistake by letting the Whites in, today all are staying outside of the Municipal City.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

This Village is the only one on the Cook Inlet with all Natives, and must be kept that way, if this Village loses then the State of Alaska loses one of its last Historic Area not only that, but the True Indian way of life. Millions of Dollars was spent to keep it, that Millions of our own money, and times we must not let it go.

On the other hand, in time with control, we can form a Municipal type of Government, but only with local control, all the Grants and Monies would be worth nothing, if we lost control, and outsiders took over our Village.

Sincerely,

Emil McCord

Dear Mr. Troll:

I have submitted copies of your letter to members of the Title 29 Policy Advisory Group so that they will be aware of your concern over AS 29.48.260. Your other comments which were originally sent to the Department of Community and Regional Affairs have been made available to the Title 29 Policy Advisory Group as well. Please send any additional comments which you have to me and I will see that members of the Policy Group receive copies.

I talked by phone with Mr. James N. Reeves on November 5, 1980. He indicated that he would like to address the Policy Group at the next meeting they hold in Anchorage. I will inform him of the meeting time and place as soon as it is set. Time is made available during meetings of the Policy Group to any person who wishes to address the group, so perhaps you would like to attend a meeting as well. I expect that the Policy Group will decide to meet again early in December and I will inform the group of your desire that the meeting be held in Anchorage.

Dear Ms. Cook:

I would like to request that discussion of A.S. 29.48.260 be placed on the agenda for the first meeting of the Title 29 Policy Advisory Group in December and that myself and James N. Reeves be permitted to make a presentation on this provision. Presently Mr. Reeves and I are working on legal problems related to property in St. Mary's under a Community Legal Assistance Grant from The Department of Community and Regional Affairs. The first project we have undertaken under the grant is an analysis of 29.48.260 and changes that should be made for the benefit of rural communities. 29.48.260 is a very unmanageable statute for this and I suspect most other rural communities. I would consider the work of the Policy Advisory Group successful if it can effect a workable change in this provision.

Hopefully, the meeting will be held in either Anchorage or Bethel as the City cannot afford to send me much further.

Re: Recommendations for changes in Title 29
To Title 29 Policy Committee

Gentlemen:

At the request of Mayor Paukan I am submitting the following comments on some of the provisions of Title 29 that the City would like to see changed. The provisions I have commented upon are those that have proved somewhat troublesome during my duration as City Manager. There are no doubt many other provisions that require change.

29.23.570 VACANCIES: This year the City had one councilman leave town without resigning before departure. The City needed to fill the vacancy quickly. None of the provisions of 29.23.570 were helpful. However, 29.23.200 provides that a councilman who ceases to be a city voter immediately forfeits his office. The Council used this provision to justify filling the vacancy immediately. This provision of section 23.200 should be included under section 23.570

29.23.070 and 29.43.040 PLANNING, PLATTING AND ZONING The mandatory language of this section should be permissive. The wisdom of comprehensive plans and complicated zoning requirements are still subject to professional debate and Cities should have the option to develop other methods of control.

29.48.190 BUDGET AND CAPITAL PROGRAM Subsection (c) is unclear with respect to the procedures that must be followed to make transfer and supplemental appropriations. The language providing that no payment may be made except in accordance with appropriations may be troublesome in that it could be interpreted to give the City no leeway with respect to spending except though lengthy procedures to amend the budget. The suggested budget ordinance sent each year to municipalities by Community and Regional Affairs is more flexible and preferable but may not be legal under 29.48.190. This section should be changed to permit transfers without budget amendment if less than 10% or $10,000 whichever is less of the original appropriation.

29.48.220 POST AUDIT The audit requirement is burdensome for the City. As a first class city we are required to provide a certified audit of city finances. Second class cities need only submit certified financial statements prepared by the city bookkeeper. The City obtains little advantage and no tangible benefit from this requirement. The only people who review the audit are from DCRA. The audit requirement should not be tied to city class. Rather, the requirement should depend upon the size of the budget. It is the amount of money the city spends that justifies audits. Financial statements should be sufficient for cities with budgets less than one million

29.48.260 MUNICIPAL PROPERTIES I consider this to be the most troublesome provision in Title 29 for rural communities. Through the Department of Community and Regional Affairs the City has requested an Attorney General's opinion on some of the requirements of this provision and has recently received a Community Legal Assistance Grant to determine the effect the statute has on land disposal in St. Mary's. First the requirement of appraisals on land before disposal are difficult when most rural land is difficult if not impossible to appraise because comparable sales do not exist. Public auctions may cause the price of land to escalate beyond the means of local residents to afford, and may inhibit local residents who do not speak english from participating in auctions. The words "if any" in subsection (c)(8) seem to indicate public auction or sealed bids are optional but this is not clear. Cities should have the option of developing disposal procedures appropriate to its locality. Such procedures should be ratified by the voters.

I can see no reason for subjecting leases of City land to the same requirements that attach to sales of city land. This unduly restricts the City's ability to make land available for new businesses.

It is not clear whether the exception developed in subsection (e) is free from the requirements of prior appraisal and public auction or sealed bid.

29.68.010 LOCAL BOUNDARY COMMISSION The City recently annexed an adjacent community into its boundary. In order to facilitate the annexation the City wanted to and did make major concessions to the citizens of the adjacent community with respect to a voice in City affairs. Technically what the City has done is not legal because the annexation is not finalized until 45 days after the next legislative session has begun. The delay in time between the decision of the Local Boundary Commission and the legislative disapproval time is unnecessary and can lead to legal complications.. Since the legislature has never disapproved a Boundary Commission decision it seems this requirement of submission to the legislature has little utility. A workable alternative might be to preserve a right to appeal a boundary commission decision to the legislature.

I am encouraged to see the efforts to review Title 29. I hope it produces some beneficial results. I trust these comments will prove helpful.

Sincerely,

CITY OF ST. MARY'S

Re: Title 29 Review - Inclusion of Harbors and Marinas under Extraterritorial Jurisdiction

Dear Tamara:

Please find enclosed a proposed amendment to existing Section 29.48.037 [Extraterritorial Jurisdiction] (new 29.33.020) to clarify the authority of municipalities to provide harbors and marinas outside their boundaries.

As we have mentioned, the City of Ketchikan has for many years leased from the State of Alaska, and operates and regulates, several small but important boat harbors and marinas outside the boundaries of the City.

Yours very truly,

Sec. 29.33.020. Extraterritorial jurisdiction.

(a) A municipality may provide parks, roads, trails, playgrounds, cemeteries, harbors, marinas, and airports outside its boundaries, subject to AS 29.33.010, and may regulate their use and operation. A regulation adopted under this section must state that it applies outside the municipality.

(b) A municipality may adopt ordinances to protect its water supply and watershed and may enforce them outside its boundaries. Before this power may be exercised within the boundaries of another municipality, the approval of that municipality must be given by ordinance. This section applies to general law and home rule municipalities.

Dear Commissioner McAnerney:

This letter is in response to your June letter requesting comments on the Title 29 Municipal Government Code Revision authorized under Senate Concurrent Resolution No. 66. As indicated by our prior correspondence, we are greatly interested in this area and wish to submit the following comments to be used in the Title 29 revision project.

RECOGNITION OF TRADITIONAL GOVERNMENTS

Local government in rural Alaska is extremely complex. This complexity is primarily due to the vast number of board, commissions, municipal corporations, ANCSA Native Village corporations, town site trusts, recognized entities for municipal trust lands, IRA councils, traditional councils, etc. For sometime TCC has been in favor of local government simplification. The problems of local government should not be addressed through the creation of new boards, commissions, corporate bodies, or new forms of municipal government. Rather, rural local government should be reorganized to utilize existing bodies and enhance those bodies. The introduction of new and novel forms of government may only lead to confusion as rural residents attempt to deal with their local governmental matters.

In connection with this policy of local government simplification, we believe it is important to fulfill the constitutional guarantee that the legislature shall provide for performance of services that it deems necessary or advisible in the unorganized borough and allow for maximum local participation and responsibility. This policy is substantially analogous to the federal policy of self-determination.

To meet these two basic policies, we feel it is necessary that the state of Alaska recognize the traditional governments which currently operate in Alaska. Such recognition will do several things. First, it will allow for the coordination of the funds currently available to local communities from sources other than the state, i.e., BIA, HUD, various CETA programs, etc.

To some degree this issue has already been addressed in the recognition of traditional governments for revenue sharing purposes. We feel, however, that more cooperation is needed between the state and these traditional governmental forms to fully realize maximum local participation and responsibility. To implement this, we favor such legislation as S.B. 565 introduced last session.

By extending such recognition to existing village and community organizations, we believe that rural government will be substantially enhanced. The recognition of such existing bodies will obviate the necessity for the specialized advisory committees, specialized service areas and boards and substantially contribute to local government simplification in the currently unorganized areas of rural Alaska. In addition, such recognition will fulfill the constitutional guarantee of maximum local participation and responsibility.

DECENTRALIZATION OF STATE SERVICES

It is sometimes difficult even for Alaskans to fully comprehend the geographical immenseness of Alaska. An appreciation of the sheer size of Alaska cannot be achieved through casual reference to a map. A full appreciation of Alaska's geographical size can only be appreciated by traversing this great land through conventional transportation systems. To the rural resident, this means being dependent on urban based state service personnel located at various sites throughout the state. Seldom is it possible for the rural resident to contact a state agency locally or even make a single phone call to a single urban government office to solve any problem. The urban Alaskan faces a similar problem in having to rely on state personnel based in other urban centers.

In both the rural and urban contexts, the root problem is the economy of scale. It is simply not economically feasible to establish free standing state agencies at the local level. The administrative cost to establish such programs would be enormous, but the need for decentralized state services is evident. State services should be available in the areas of need. State services should be available at a local level in all localities of the state to the extent that this is feasible. This problem can only be solved through the cooperation of local and state governments to provide maximum local services. This cooperation can be achieved by allowing the local governments to contract for the providing of state services. Basically, this will allow the merger of local and state program administration and allow a maximum amount of direct state financing directed toward program operations. Additionally, it is perceived that such cooperation would make the operation of state programs more responsive to local needs and desires.

It should be remembered, however, that the legislature under this theory will retain ultimate policy decision-making authority. It is only the administration of state and local programs which will be affected. Additionally, it should be recognized that not all state programs can be effectively decentralized, nor is it desirable that all state programs be decentralized. Rather, it is important that those state programs which are technically capable of being decentralized and for which there is a stated need and desire for local program operation should be decentralized through contracting.

LOCAL GOVERNMENT CONSORTIUMS

During the last legislature, several bills were produced out of the interim work of the Senate and House Community and Regional Affairs Joint Local Government Study of 1979. These bills recognized the need for coordinated regional planning.

Last February, TCC submitted comments on this legislation. At that time, we stated that existing local governments should be used as much as possible and that regional concerns can best be addressed through consortiums of existing governments.

Consortiums are advisable for a number of reasons. First, they would be entirely voluntary. The committee hearings fairly indicated strong opposition to "mandatory" regional organization. Second, consortiums could easily coordinate existing programs allowing for current program and plan continuity. Third, a consortium would not create a new independent regional entity and, thus, it would be possible to avoid the type of intergovernmental conflicts which characteristically exist between boroughs and included cities. Finally, the consortium would be governed by a flexible agreement between communities. Such agreements could be flexible enough to address unique regional variations found within each area. In addition, a community's participation would be voluntary, and, therefore, presumably supported by the local community.

The arrangements which we propose are currently authorized under Article X, §13 of the Alaska Constitution which allows local governments to enter into compacts for the joint administration of functions and powers. What is needed is clarification of the permissible scope and impact of these agreements, and new legislation which would allow such consortiums to jointly exercise authority outside of their existing local boundaries.

Conceivably, these consortiums would do three things. First, they would provide for coordinated administration of local governments. By splitting costs and sharing staff the consortiums could provide a higher quality of service at a reduced cost, where the fragmented governments that now exist cannot operate. Second, the consortiums could address regional concerns, provide a forum for expressing those concerns, and advise state agencies on regional needs and desires.

Third, they would jointly exercise those powers which they agree to jointly exercise outside their current respective boundaries, or within existing boundaries, upon consent of the respective municipal governments.

STATE SUPPORT OF LOCAL AUTHORITY

There are a number of disincentives to a rural municipal government which wishes to exercise its municipal authority. For example, a rural community which passes an ordinance, may not be able to enforce it. If a city attempts to enforce its ordinances, it is subject to substantial liability under current tort law. Where a civil plaintiff or criminal defendant often have free legal assistance available, a city has severely limited funding available to enforce its ordinances or defend against civil complaints. If a city looses a civil suit, the resulting judgment could bankrupt the city or substantially incumber future revenues. In this atmosphere, it is impossible to expect a responsible city official to fully exercise the local government functions.

It is important that the state assist rural municipal government if it is to succeed. Many of the problems can be addressed in Title 29 itself. For example, municipal liability can be reduced to acceptable levels by enactment of a rule raising the standard of municipal tort liability for only those official acts involving "wanton and willful" conduct rather than mere negligence alone. Municipal ordinances and regulations can be assimilated into state law to allow state prosecution of local violations. Such assimilation could be dependent upon compliance with a model municipal code enacted by regulation or dependent on approval of the attorney general's office or Department of Community and Regional Affairs. Communities enacting nonapproved regulations and ordinances, however, should still be able to enforce them in the conventional manner.

Initially, such a system seems expensive to implement. It should be noted, however, that the state is expanding its criminal justice presence in rural Alaska. The proposed Bush Justice Corrections Plan would provide the basic infrastructure required by the above model. In light of these developments, the above model is a minor addition to the planned infrastructure.

IMPLEMENTATION OF LOCAL INPUT

Often local governments and state agencies are not coordinated. Most notably, state land disposals have often conflicted with local land use/development plans. State law generally favors local control or at least local input in the organized areas of the state. In the unorganized areas of the state, however, the state agencies seem to dominate. This exists in spite of the constitutional promise of maximized local participation. We, therefore, propose that some mechanism be inserted into law to provide for fuller local participation.

Three alternatives exist. First, an administrative restraint may be placed on agencies' actions. Specifically, a community or consortium must agree to agency actions/plans affecting the community or consortium. In the absence of such consent, the agency would have to show, in a locally neutral administrative hearing, that the best interest of the state requires such agency action/plan.

A second alternative would be a planning restraint on the agencies. The communities or consortiums would produce regional plans with which the agencies must comply. Without compliance, the agencies would have to get a waiver from the community or consortium or proceed through a local neutral hearing.

Third, a political mechanism could be established. State law could require agencies to have local plans/actions approved by a local hearing officer at a local hearing. This would allow affected communities and consortiums an opportunity to provide input and hopefully influence agency actions in their areas.

We hope that you find the above comments useful, and that these concerns find their way into the planned Title 29 revisions. We will be glad to respond to any questions regarding the above proposals and plan to augment these comments as needed.

Sincerely,

RE: Correction to December Title 29 Commission Minutes

Dear Senator Sturgulewski:

On page 3 of the minutes of the December 15, 16 and 17th Title 29 Revision Commission meeting it is stated that the technical committee was directed to bring back wording to allow the transition from any class of city to home rule. I am under the impression that the technical committee was directed to bring back language that would allow the transition from any class of borough or city or unincorporated area to home rule. Discussing the motion to eliminate third class boroughs and to grandfather the Haines Borough, Terry Cook emphasized his desire to see legislation developed which would allow transition from any class of borough or city to home rule. The direction to the technical committee followed this discussion and I do think it included transition of any class of boroughs as well as cities to home rule. Perhaps a double check of the tape would clarify this issue.

Re: Title 29 Revisions

Dear Arliss:

I would like to submit the following comments for your consideration, regarding Title 29 of Alaska Statutes and its revisions.

It appears to me, that we here on the North Slope have our own unique situation, in that we are within a home rule Borough and are a first class City operating within that Borough. The Borough seat is headquartered in our City. The City has minimal powers left and does not have a property tax.

Many times, in attempting to provide new, or upgrade existing services and/or facilities, we have been hindered or stopped by lack of co-operation by the Borough. When we turn to Title 29 and cite the appropriate authorizations to undertake a particular venture we are stopped time and time again by the Borough explanation that Title 29 doesn't relate to them except as noted in Section 29.13.100. To help aleviate this problem, I would like to seem Home Rule Boroughs bound by the Sections in Title 29, unless otherwise so noted in a particular section. Home Rule Boroughs would be allowed to carry on their municipal functions beyond that in Title 29, but they would be bound by all sections of Title 29. This approach is directly opposite than the one currently ruling the conduct of Home Rule Boroughs. Cities would still be limited as to what they could do ---specifically, that which was authorized in Title 29.

In reviewing Title 29, I would like to bring to your attention some of the sections that we have dealt with that have caused us some difficulties or confusion.

Section 29.23.270 Veto (a) The mayor of a first class city may veto any ordinance, resolution, motion, or other action of the council and by veto, strike or reduce items in appropriation ordinances except, in a city outside an organized borough, for school budget items. He shall submit to the council at its next regular meeting a written statement advising of his veto and giving his reasons. A veto is overridden by the vote of two-thirds of the authorized membership of the council.

The part about "he shall submit to the council at its next regular meeting a written statement advising of his veto and giving his reasons." leaves it unclear when a veto is made, is it a verbal veto at a meeting where the action takes place or is it the written veto at the next meeting that puts a veto in effect. If so, does the council action stand until the written veto is presented at the next meeting. Again, if that is the case, what happens when the mayor wants to veto an action but the course of action sought by the council will have all ready taken place before the veto can be placed before the council at their next meeting.

29.23.570 Vacancies. An elected municipal office is vacated under the following conditions and upon the declaration of vacancy by the assembly or council. The assembly or council shall declare an elective office vacant when the person elected

(6) misses three consecutive regular meetings unless excused;

I think that some guidelines should be mentioned as to what is excused or unexcused, i.e. failure to notify the city office that they will be unable to attend, off on a campaign tour for another elected office.

Initiatives and referendums: There should be a submittal deadline for invitations and referendums that wish to be considered on an upcoming general election 15 days, 30 days, 45 days, 60 days prior to the eldction. If all the procedures, protests and appeal time lines were allowed for it might look something like this:

Absolute deadline if an initiative or referendum is to be placed on the Ballot (to allow for printing)			15 days
Section 29.28.073	(a)	City Clerk has 10 days to certify petition	10 days
	(b)	Petitioners have 10 days to correct insufficient petition	10 days
	(c)	Clerk has 10 days to certify corrected petition	10 days
Section 29.28.075		Petitions have 7 days to file protest with Council	7 days
		Council to decide appeal at next meeting (14 days for Council 30 days for Assembly; for sake of uniformity use 30 day Assembly timeframe)	30 days
		Total days required for process	82 days

In the current Title 29, the initiative/referendum section doesn't apply to Home Rule Municipalities and the North Slope Borough has no provisions for initiatives or referendums in their Code of Ordinances. The North Slope Borough charter outlines the basic initiative/referendum requirements. However, the charter goes on to say the initiative/referendum procedures must be established by Ordinance, of which there is none.

It would make life much simpler if the requirements, format, and timelines for all petitions were standardized.

Section 29.33.030 Assessment and Collection. Boroughs shall assess and collect property, sales, and use taxes levied within their boundaries, subject to Chapter 53 of this Title. Taxes levied by a city and collected by a borough are returned in full to the levying city.

This Section doesn't apply to Home Rule Boroughs so technically speaking, a Home Rule Borough could tell any of the cities in its jurisdiction that it will no longer collect the cities taxes. In our area this would place an undue and perhaps backbreaking burden on some of our communities.

Section 29.33.110 Board of Adjustment. (a) The assembly is the board of adjustment for areas outside cities. The City Council is the board of adjustment for the area within the City boundaries but may delegate by resolution or ordinance part or all of its functions to the borough, subject to & 70 (b) (1) of this chapter, in addition to making delegations as provided for an assembly under & 245 of this chapter. Meetings of the borough board are held at the call of the presiding officer and of the city board by the Mayor. The presiding officer or Mayor may administer oaths and compel attendance of witnesses. Meetings and hearings of the board shall be open to the public and the board shall keep minutes of its proceedings as a public record.

The rational behind this escapes me, but again it doesn't apply to Home Rule Boroughs. It would be very interesting if our City Council could act as the Board of Adjustment within our City, instead of the Borough Assembly.

Section 29.48.030 Municipal Facilities & Services. (a) A municipality may exercise the powers necessary to provide the following public facilities and services:

We have had several problems with this and Section 29.48.035 Regulatory Powers.

> The question has arisen about whether or not when you transfer a power under 29.48.030 you also transfer any regulatory powers that might be associated with the power transfered, especially if the regulatory power is mentioned in 29.48.035.

Where we have run into our biggest problem is when we transfer a power under 29.48.030, such as police powers, where we transfer a power complete with enforcement ordinances, and the Borough refuses to exercise the enforcement ordinances. Furthermore, the Borough sees no need in enacting ordinances of their own. To us, this seems like we receive a lower level of service than we had before. We have presented this problem to the State and their opinion is that City ordinances transfer with the power until amended, repealed, or a new Borough

Ordinance supercedes the transfered City ordinance. The Borough says they don't quite see it that way. However, they will enforce the City's ordinances, as their priorities allow, and we will have to prosecute in Court. This is the same procedure they use with the State. They will enforce State Statutes and the State is responsible for prosecuting in Court. Since the Borough doesn't have any ordinances to enforce, they don't have to worry about prosecuting costs for the Borough. A cost that is prohibitive to the City. From our standpoint, we would like to see it made manditory, that when a power is transfered, so is the responsibility for accepting and enforcing any associated ordinances until such time as the Borough amends or implements new ordinances.

I'm sure that it would have to be explored in greater detail, but, perhaps a mechanism should be developed through which a City could have a power returned to it by a Borough.

Section 29.48.150 Ordinance Procedure. (a) The following procedure governs the enactment of all ordinances except emergency ordinances. An ordinance may be introduced by a member or committee of the assembly or council or by the municipal executive or chief administrator. An ordinance shall be set for hearing by the affirmative vote of a majority of the votes authorized on the question. A summary of the ordinance and its amendments is published together with a notice of time and place for public hearing. The hearing follows publication by at least five days. Copies of the ordinance must be available to all persons present or the ordinance must be read in full. The assembly or council shall hear all interested persons wishing to be heard. After the hearing, the assembly or council shall consider the ordinance and may adopt it with or without amendment. The assembly or council shall print and make available copies of adopted ordinances.

We would like to see a better definition of published, as called for in this section. Perhaps in rural areas, publishing could be accomplished by posting around town, often times it is unrealistic for a remote rural area to publish a notice in a Fairbanks or Anchorage paper. Especially since the newspaper might not reach the village until after the meeting has been held.

The publishing requirement should remain the same for Boroughs, as their level of sophistication and operations are on a much higher plane.

Section 29.48.260 Municipal Properties. (c) The assembly or council shall by ordinance establish a formal procedure for the sale, lease or disposition of real property or interest in real property. The ordinance shall require (1) an estimated value of the property by a qualified appraiser or the assessor; (2) a notice of sale published in a newspaper of general circulation distributed within the municipality at least 30 days before the date of the sale, lease, or disposition, or posted within that time in at least three public places in the municipality; (3) public auction or opening of sealed bids, if any; and (4) other terms and conditions fixed by the assembly or council. However, no ordinance for the sale, lease, or disposition of real property or interest in real property valued at $25,000. or more is valid unless ratified by a majority of the qualified voters voting at a regular or special election at which the question of the ratification of the ordinance is submitted. Thirty days notice shall be given of the election and during that period the assembly or council shall have published at least once a week in a newspaper of general circulation distributed within the municipality a notice stating the time of the election and the place of voting, describing the property to be sold, leased or disposed of, giving a brief statement of the terms and conditions of the sale and the consideration, if any, and stating the title and date of passage of the ordinance. Notice shall be given by posting a copy of it in at least three public places in the municipality at least 30 days before the election. If no newspaper of general circulation is distributed within the municipality, the ntoice given by posting is sufficient for the purposes of this section.

The rational behind this is somewhat understandable, but the reason for the $25,000. figure is hard to visualize. Again, in our area $25,000. is a lot of money, but at the same time it isn't. If we had to go to a special election every time we wanted to lease some property in excess of $25,000. we would begin to incur additional expenses and waste a lot of time. Especially when you consider we probably wouldn't get a voter turn out of over 150 people.

Section 29.53.360 Deed to Borough or City. (a) Unredeemed properties in the area of the borough outside cities are deeded to the borough by the clerk of the court. Unredeemed properties within a city are deeded to the city subject to the payment by the city of unpaid borough taxes and costs of foreclosure levied against the property before foreclosure. The deeds shall be recorded in the recording district in which the property is located.

We have approached the Borough on this and their response is, that since the City has no property tax, we have no interests in any such property and therefore, this Section doesn't apply to us. Furthermore, the North Slope Borough isn't bound by this section anyway.

Section 29.68.240 Unification of Local Governments. An organized Borough and all cities within the Borough may untie to form a single unit of Home Rule local government by complying with this chapter. This section doesn't apply to Home Rule Boroughs. Therefore, a Home Rule Borough couldn't legally unify with it's cities. Or could it, as there is nothing in Title 29 saying that it can't. However, the cities would have to follow the provision in 29.68.240. So any provisions a Home Rule Borough would want to incorporate into their unification procedures would have to include the provisions in 29.68.240 so it would be just as easy to make Home Rule Boroughs subject to 29.68.240 and avoid a lot of confusion.

At the AFN Convention I picked up a copy of some of the proposed changes for Title 29. Unfortunately, I have misplaced these and it wouldn't surprise me too much if some of my comments have already been addressed. The revision of Title 29 is long overdue and I appreciate the opportunity to be able to provide some input into the program. If I can be of further service, please don't hesitate to contact my office.

SUBJECT: Initiative and Recall

Dear Senator Sturgulewski:

In reviewing the changes which the Policy Committee made to the proposed initiative and referendum proceedings, I note that a municipality will now be required to hold special elections for initiatives. Present law requires that initiatives be filed within 90 days of the next regular muncipal election. This requirement eliminates the need lor the muncipality to ever have to hold a special election on an initiative. However, there seems to be little reason not to allow petitioners to file an initiative at any time they please so long as the municipality is not required to undergo the expense of special elections. It was this approach which the Technical Committee suggested.

The Legislature has seen fit to provide an initiative procedure at the state level which does not permit the filing of an initiative petition to generate the requirement for a special election. Further, an initiative petition could be filed with the State and not be placed on the ballot for almost two years. Municipalities have elections each year. If they are required to place initiatives on the next occuring regular or special election, initiatives at the local level will be voted on, in all cases, much more quickly than at the State level. If the State cannot be put to the expense of a special election for an initiative, it seems inappropriate to force municipalities to undergo the expense of special elections for initiatives.

I also believe that if a referendum is filed, no special election should be held unless the referendum has been filed in such a manner that the effect of the measure to be referred is suspended.

For the foregoing reasons, I strongly suggest that the Committee consider changing the election requirements for initiative and referendum to provide that initiatives are placed on the first regular or special municipal election held not sooner than 75 or 90 (or some other reasonable time) days after the initiative is submitted to the Legislative body. I would suggest that a referendum be treated in the same manner unless the filing of the referendum operates to effect a suspension of the matter to be referred. In such cases, a special election should be held if required.

Subject: Recall

Dear Senator Sturgulewski:

At the meeting held by your committee in Fairbanks just before the Alaska Municipal League meeting, a great deal of debate focused on the question of whether the grounds for the recall of a local official should be narrowly or broadly drawn. Mayor Larson requested from me a defense of narrowly drawn grounds and other procedures designed to provide the elected official with some measure of protection. Please consider this letter as that defense.

Many features of our democratic system of government are accepted as basic and necessary to the system. These ascertions are seldom examined critically as it is unpopular and distasteful for any one to seriously undertake criticism of what is popularly perceived to be the underpinnings of our democratic form of government. Recall is one such uncritically examined element of our democratic system of government.

First, we should note that our system of government is not a pure democracy but it is rather a democratic republic. Article IV, Section 4 of the U.S. Constitution guarantees to each state a republican form of government, not a democracy. That Constitution provides for neither an initiative or recall. Throughout the history of the United States, the states themselves have not universally provided for recall.

The upsurge of recall provisions came about during the government reform movement. While recall may be viewed as a procedure which strengthens democratic principles, it clearly accentuates one of the greatest weaknesses of the democratic system - its vulnerability to popular but ill-conceived whims of the public and its manipulation by a minority.

The Greek philosopher who first categorized the various forms which government could take, and who gave democracy its name, rated democracy rather low as a form of government which would best serve the needs of its subjects. Being subject to the whims of a relatively uninformed populace made a democracy ill suited to consistently serve the needs of the public. The Federalist Papers and the U. S. Constitution clearly show that the thoughtful leaders of our country who drafted our Constitution had severe reservations about the democratic form of government and sought to overcome those perceived deficiencies. They provided us with an electoral college which, they hoped, would have the collective wisdom necessary to select a statesman worthy and capable of discharging the duties of President of the United States. They did not provide for his direct election by the populace as would have been the more "democratic" method. They provided us with two houses of Congress, one of which would be based upon population and which might reflect popular sentiment and a second house which would provide equal representation to all the states. This second house, it was hoped, would provide the mechanism for preventing the enactment of popular but ill-conceived measures. A further check upon both of these houses was given to the President who could veto measures he believed were inappropriate. The drafters of our Constitution believed that these and other checks, along with the probability that various interest groups would form different coalitions on different measures, would combine to overcome one of the more serious defects of the democratic form of government. They apparently did not feel that recall was either necessary or desirable. In fact, I suggest that the "open season" type of recall which has been proposed for Title 29 is contrary to the very principles which are reflected in our Constitution and the philosophy of those who drafted it.

Under our republican form of government, an elected official does not serve as a mere extension or agent of those who elected him. The elected official is expected to exercise his informed and considered judgment in providing for the public good. If it were reasonable to believe that the public could become adequately informed on all the public issues which face a legislative body, then it might also be reasonable to assume that the general public could also function in the manner of a town meeting and decide all public issues. Because few of us are able to devote the time necessary to become so informed, we delegate to our elected officials the responsibility to become adequately informed and to make decisions as to the public needs. If the public is dissatisfied with a policy decision made by public officials, the initiative and referendum may be used to correct what are perceived to be errors of decision making. When recall is used in such cases, it is not corrective in nature, it is vindictive and punitive.

As already noted, recall was a concept which became popular during the reform era. It was aimed not at governmental bodies which had made decisions which were unpopular with various segments of populace but was aimed at corrupt individuals. The public good demands that persons be removed from office who are corrupt or dishonest in office, who fail to perform prescribed duties of the office or who are physically unable to perform the duties of the office. If there is no administrative or judicial procedure for removing such persons from office, it would be appropriate to provide a method for the electorate to effect such a removal. However, any such system should be strictly limited to removals for corruption, dishonesty affecting the public good, and inability or refusal to perform the duties of the office. It would be an abuse of the recall mechanism to permit recall of an elected official merely because the official had participated in making a decision which was unpopular with a large segment of the public. Any controversial matter is likely to be unpopular with a large segment of the public and public officials should not have the threat of recall hanging over their heads whenever their honestly held convictions compel them to vote in a certain manner. Unfortunately, a review of recall efforts will reveal that most, if not all recall efforts, are actually based upon an action taken by the entire body and have little or nothing to do with any of the legitimate grounds for recall. To make matters worse, the proponents of the recall often resort to slander or grossly exaggerated accusations in their recall petition.

It cannot be denied that there is currently a movement in the direction of single issue politics. When there are groups about which openly flaunt their "hit list," it behooves us to examine the elements of our political system in light of this new phenomenon. A recall provision which requires merely that someone be dissatisfied with an elected official's performance amounts to a declaration of open season on all elected officials. If the recall mechanism can be called into play for essentially no reason at all, the quality of persons who will run for public office will suffer as will the basic decision making process itself. At the municipal level, once a recall petition has been placed in circulation, and even more so after it has been filed, the proponents of the recall often become very forceful and vocal in airing their belief that the governing body should cease making important decisions until after the recall matter has been settled. As local elected officials are not insensitive to public demands, such demands do have an impact on the elected body. Unnecessary delay in decision making coupled with an overemphasis on the recall petitioners' position on matters before the body may combine to produce results which are not in the best interest of the public. The tension and turmoil which a recall petition creates within the elected body and the community is an undesirable but, nevertheless unavoidable, effect of a recall attempt. Therefore, every effort should be made to minimize the unnecessary exposure of a municipality to these effects. The "open season" type of recall will serve to maximize the number of occasions upon which the local government will experience these effects. These negative effects can be minimized without destroying the right of recall if the grounds for recall are narrowly drawn to limit them to matters such as corruption in office and inability or refusal to perform the functions of the office. Not only does this narrow the grounds to those which are truely relavent to the purpose of recall but it also would reduce the ease with which a recall effort could be mounted against several members of a governing body based upon the way the body had voted.

Not only must the grounds be drawn narrowly to insure that the recall mechanism is not abused but the recall system should clearly provide for judicial review of the grounds stated. Failure to provide a clear right of judicial review renders the requirement for clear and narrow grounds a nullity.

Before any group should be permitted to force the public to undergo the expense of an election, there should be a very substantial showing that the public is indeed interested in voting on the proposed issue. Therefore, there should be a substantial signature requirement. Under state law, those seeking a recall petition for a state official must first submit an application containing the signatures of at least 10% of those who voted in the last election in the relevant district. If the Lieutenant Governor determines that the application is sufficient, a petition is issued and the petitioners must then obtain signatures equal to at least 25% of those who voted in the last general election in the relevant district. Thus, at the state level the legislature has provided for a recall system which places a significant burden upon the petitioners and thus may well filter out most of those recall efforts which would be unsuccessful. In addition, the grounds for recall (lack of fitness, incompetence, neglect of duties, and corruption) are all narrow enough that the political philosophy or the way a person voted would not be a sufficient basis for a recall. Further, the legislature has clearly provided for a mechanism for judicial review of a determination by the Lieutenant Governor.

Recall is not a matter to be taken lightly and is not one which should be easily initiated or carried out. A political system which provides for the relatively easy recall of an elected official for reason of the way that official voted on a particular matter is a system which has lost one of the essential characteristics of our republican form of government. We should not cater to the fickleness of the electorate if to do so would tend to reduce the effectiveness of local government without some significant, compensating good. Our system of government will function most smoothly, most effectively and for the benefit of the general good if we provide for a recall system with narrowly drawn grounds and with other mechanisms which are designed to prevent the abuse of the recall system. The "open season" system brings with it disruptions which serve no legitimate or public purpose. The "open season" approach should be abandoned.

Very truly yours,

/s/ Lee Sharp

Dear Gentlemen;

We wish to give our full suport to the issue on Capitol Foundation fund. We find it very helpful to our situation because we don't have very much in matching costs to our capitol projects.

Right now we are trying to get funds to build a Cultural Facility but we don't have matching costs. If it is possible, we will introduce the amounts we are trying to get and the matching costs.

We have other capitol projects we would like to get on, but don't have funding.

If we have to fill out forms or questionaires to get those funds, Please don't hesitate to send them to us.

With our support,

Dear Ms. [redacted]:

Thank you for your letter. I have provided copies of the material you sent to all members of the Title 29 Advisory Policy Group.

For your information the Superior Court opinion City of [redacted] v. Kodiak Island Borough was never appealed. Unfortunately, I am not aware of any additional case law construing the statutory provision which limits the authority to form service areas. I will forward any additional information I receive on the subject to you. You have suggested that AS 29.63.090(d) be rewritten to provide more flexibility to municipal governments in creating service areas. Since that section is essentially a restatement of language contained in the state constitution, I doubt that rewriting the statute would accomplish your purpose.

Please send me any other suggestions which you may have regarding proposed changes to the Municipal Code and I will gladly forward them on to the Policy Group. Our next meeting is scheduled to be held in Fairbanks on November 10th and 11th. I hope to see you there.

Sincerely,

Tamara Brandt Cook

MEMORANDUM October 7, 1980

SUBJECT: Progress report - Title 29 Revision Committee

TO: Senator Bill Ray, Chairman
Interim Projects Oversight Committee

FROM: Tamara Brandt Cook
Legislative Counsel

CSSCR 66, Legislative Resolve 39 of the last regular legislative session directed the Alaska Legislative Council to revise AS 29 (the municipal government code). A Policy Advisory Group was authorized to assist in the revision and I was assigned to the project from the Legal Services Division. Members of the Policy Group were appointed in August, and the first meeting was held in Anchorage on August 27 and 28, 1980. Minutes of that meeting are attached.

During the first meeting the Policy Group appointed a Technical Revision Committee, composed primarily of attorneys with expertise in municipal law to perform actual drafting. The committee was directed to reorganize Title 29 as a first step in the revision. The Policy Group went on to consider various issues including: greater self-determination and latitude for local governments; whether the provisions relating to development cities should be restructured or eliminated; whether changes should be made in the present categories of municipal government; and the possibility of the state recognizing traditional village governments as municipal governments.

The Technical Committee met in Anchorage on September 8, 1980 and worked out a proposed reorganization format for Title 29. Staff was directed to prepare an index of Title 29 according to the proposed reorganization scheme. The Technical Committee met again in Anchorage on September 19, 1980 to consider the proposed reorganization. The proposed reorganization scheme was rejected as too complicated and unworkable. An alternative reorganization of Title 29 was worked out and adopted by the committee for presentation to the Policy Advisory Group.

The Policy Advisory Group met in Anchorage on September 29 and 30, 1980. Minutes of that meeting are attached. The morning of the first day was devoted to presentations by members of the public. In the afternoon the Technical Committee presented its reorganization of Title 29. Staff was directed to prepare a complete text of Title 29 according to the proposed reorganization scheme and to mail it to members of the Policy Advisory Group as soon as possible. The rest of the meeting was devoted to discussion of policy issues and proposed changes to Title 29, with the Technical Committee directed to make several drafts incorporating specific changes to be presented for review by the Policy Group at its next meeting.

The next meeting of the Technical Committee is scheduled to take place in Anchorage on October 20, 1980. The committee will attempt to produce a complete technical revision of Title 29, as well as incorporating the specific changes requested by the Policy Group into drafts. The Technical Committee may require three or four additional meetings in order to complete their revision of the municipal code. The Policy Group is scheduled to meet again in Fairbanks on November 10 and 11, 1980. The meeting is planned to coincide with a meeting of the Municipal League to provide maximum opportunity for interested persons to address the Policy Group. After receiving public comments, the group will make a final decision on the reorganization of Title 29, and consider all drafts submitted by the Technical Committee. It is possible that the Policy Group may request one or two additional meetings for the purpose of considering the final revision of the municipal code before presenting it to the legislature. A statement of actual and projected expenditures is attached.

If you have further questions concerning the Title 29 Revision project, please contact me.

The Honorable Clem V. Tillion
President of the Senate
Halibut Cove, AK 99603

Dear Senator Tillion:

CSSCR 66, Legislative Resolve 39 of the recent legislative session, directs the Alaska Legislative Council to revise AS 29, the municipal government code. A policy advisory group is authorized to assist in that task. Together with two members of each house of the legislature appointed by the respective presiding officers, the resolution also authorizes selection by the presiding officers of an unstated number of public members, drawn from recommendations submitted by legislative members, the Departments of Community and Regional Affairs and Law, the Alaska Municipal League, the Rural Alaska Community Action Program, and the legal services division of this Agency.

At my direction, Jack Chenoweth of this office met today with Ginny Chitwood of the Municipal League, Palmer McCarter (speaking for the administration) and, by phone, Bob Lohr, the deputy director of RuralCAP. It is their suggestion, and my recommendation, that nine public members be appointed to serve with the four legislators previously designated for the policy advisory group for the Title 29 revision. Their suggestion included the following recommended nominations:

Ted Berns, municipal attorney
Municipality of Anchorage

Terry Cook, member of the city council
City of Alakanuk

Marilyn Dimmick, member of the assembly
Kenai Peninsula Borough

James O. Eckstedt, member of the assembly
Matanuska-Susitna Borough, and of the city council
City of Palmer

James Kohler, city manager
City of Yakutat

Gene Moore, city manager
City of Kotzebue

Donna Sherby, city clerk
City of Cordova

Jonathan Solomon, presently working in support of establishment of a rural borough for the Upper Yukon River area, Fort Yukon

Russell W. Walker, attorney
City of Ketchikan and Ketchikan Gateway Borough

The policy advisory group provided for by the resolution will have direct and continuing support and assistance from Palmer McCarter of the Department of Community and Regional Affairs, Ginny Chitwood of the Alaska Municipal League, Phil Smith of RuralCAP, Rod Pegues from the Department of Law, and Tamara Brandt Cook, whom I have assigned from the staff of this division.

Your consideration of the nominations suggested in this letter for appointment as public members of the policy advisory board for the revision of AS 29 is appreciated.

Very truly yours,

TITLE 29 REVISION COMMITTEE
Policy Advisory Group Meeting

Minutes of August 27 & 28 1980

The first meeting of the Policy Advisory Group of the Title 29 Revsion Committee was held August 27, 1980 in the Conference Room of the Legislative Information Office, 1024 6th Avenue, Anchorage, Alaska. The meeting was called to order by Billy G. Berrier, Director of the Division of Legal Services at 9:00 am.

Present were: Ted Berns, Terry Cook, Marilyn Dimmick, James Kohler, Gene Moore, Donna Sherby, Jonathan Solomon, Russell W. Walker, Ronald Larson, Senator Arliss Sturgulewski, Senator Bob Mulcahy, Representative Margaret Branson, Representative Charles H. Parr as members of the Policy Group. Also present were Phil Smith and Mr. Palmer McCarter, Ex Officio Members of the Policy Advisory Group. Allan E. Tesche attended representing the Technical Committee. Ted Berns and Russell Walker are also members of the Technical Committee. Mike Walleri of the Tanana Chiefs Conference, Inc., and Glen Svendsen, Administrative Assistant to the Senate Community and Regional Affairs Committee were present. Billy Berrier and Tamara Cook were present representing the Division of Legal Services, Legislative Affairs. Tam Cook explained that Ginny Chitwood from the Alaska Municipal League could not be present but would attend future meetings as an Ex Officio member.

The first order of business was the selection of a chairman for the committee. Nominations were opened and Senator Sturgulewski was nominated by Representative Parr. The nomination was seconded and Senator Sturgulewski was elected Chairman by acclamation.

Mr. Berrier spoke on the role of the Technical Revision Committee and asked for an appointment of a group. A motion to set up a Technical Revision Group was made by Representative Branson. The motion was seconded and carried. The Technical Revision Committee members will be Ted Berns, Richard Garnett, III; John Messenger, Jim Nordale, JoAnne Shanley, Gerald Lee Sharp, Allan Tesche, and Russell Walker.

The Ex Officio members were introduced and there was discussion as to their role. It was agreed that they should sit at the table and take part in the discussion. Palmer McCarter spoke about the role of Community and Regional Affairs. He said that there would be a representative of C&RA at every meeting, either he or Patrick Poland would attend. Mr. McCarter also presented a letter from the Local Boundary commission requesting the statutes regarding Development cities be left in Title 29 but improved. Phil Smith spoke on the concerns of RuralCAP regarding the impact of government on villages and rural areas.

Representative Parr suggested directions for the Policy Committee: 1). greater self determination and latitude for local governments; and 2.) that elected officials should be able to understand Title 29 without the help of attorneys. Senator Sturgulewski agreed that Title 29 needed clarification.

The members present of the Technical Committee met briefly and Ted Berns, as spokesman, gave a report regarding the ideas they discussed. The group recommended that Title 29 be broken down into three sections.

1. The first section to be general provisions applying to all local government.
2. The second section to be delineation of procedures and additional limits on specific forms of government.
3. The third section to be directory provisions to be used unless the local government adopts ordinances of their own.

It was decided that the Technical Committee should attempt to reorganize Title 29 along these lines and present a draft at the next meeting.

Mike Walleri, Village Government Specialist, Tanana Chiefs Conference, Inc., spoke, saying he would like a simplification of government.

A list of items pertaining to Title 29 included in the preliminary draft of the Alaska Municipal League 1981 policy statement was handed out.

Future meeting dates and places were discussed. None were decided upon.

The kinds of things applicable to all municipalities were discussed, such as incorporation, dissolution, boundary changes, classification of government, extraterritorial powers, merger/consoldiation, revenue, taxation, bonding, and intergovernmental relations.

Protection of people in service areas who are not represented by local government, such as persons living outside city limits, was discussed.

The meeting recessed at 4:00 pm.

The meeting was called to order the second day at 9:00 am., Chairman Sturgulewski presiding. In addition to the persons present at the first day's meeting, Chris Johnson of House Research and Nels Franklin from near Dillingham were present, and introduced by Chairman Sturgulewski.

Ted Berns gave a recap of the first days meeting.

Terry Cook was appointed repository of ridiculous laws.

Senator Mulcahy spoke on the problem of getting information, drafts, and policy issues to all municipalities within the time constraints. Phil Smith suggested a teleconference and said that he would be presenting material at the Alaska Federation of Natives Convention (23-25 October 1980, in Anchorage). It was decided that the problem of getting materials and information to the public would be an agenda item at the next meeting. Palmer McCarter, Phil Smith, and Ginny Chitwood of the Alaska Municipal League were appointed to a committee to research this problem and make recommendations.

Melissa Fouse was introduced as the new secretary to the Title 29 Revision Committee.

As part of the reorganization of Title 29, there was discussion as to which statutues belonged in which category.

Representative Parr wants a uniform provision on executive session. There was discussion on executive sessions.

The question of retaining present categories of government was raised and discussed. Ted Berns suggested only two classes of boroughs and home rule, pointing out that there are no first class boroughs.

The question of development cities was raised and discussed. Should we retain, restructure, or eliminate development cities?

There was discussion on the third category. If a municipality choses to follow procedures, should they be required to follow all of them?

Senator Mulcahy's legislation regarding the recognition of village governments was discussed. Copies of HB 192 are to be mailed to committee members.

There was discussion of persons representing committee members being allowed to vote. Mr. Berrier had reservations based on the appointment of the members of the commission according to resolution. It was decided that persons filling in for committee members be allowed to take part in the discussion, but would not be allowed to vote.

The meeting was adjourned at 12:00 pm.

Respectfully submitted,

Melissa Aber Fouse

Dear Sir:

It has come to my attention that the second class cities and unincorporated village governments in the Bristol Bay Region will experience severe problems in meeting the September 20, 1980 deadline for mailing completed State Revenue Sharing applications to qualify for the $25,000 minimum entitlement provided for in the new law revising the State Revenue Sharing Program. It has further come to my attention that applications were only recently mailed to general law municipalities and that applications for traditional governing councils have yet to be mailed.

The September 20th time deadline is further compounded by the problem that many of the villages in our region are currently unaware of the provision in the new law which provides state aid to eligible governments recognized under the Alaska Native Claims Settlement Act. Another very real problem is the frequency of mail delivery service, which is sporatic at best, to many of the villages in the more remote areas.

A lot of work on the part of rural legislators went into FCCHB 192 reforming the State Revenue Sharing Program to include state aid to unincorporated governments and the $25,000 minimum entitlement provision for small rural municipalities with no tax base.

With the September 20th deadline for mailing applications just around the corner, it appears that many local governments that could take advantage of the new State Revenue Sharing program will be unable to do so. I would encourage your department to strongly consider extending the deadline to allow more local governments desperately in need of such monies to have the time to properly complete the application process.

Thank you.

Very sincerely,

Dear Senator Sturgulewski,

Back at the beginning of the summer, I attended a meeting called by the Division of Community Planniug. It was a "loose meeting" in that the agenda was flexible and covered many areas and concerns. Somewhere in the meeting, we touched upon the changes proposed by the Community & Regional Affairs Committees. If I am not mistaken, everyone agreed that the committees were on the right track especially in regards to the establishment of service areas following REAA boundaries.

Well, it seems that those of us living in the "bush" know more about what happens in Juneau than some of the state employees living and working there. For example, the Dept. of Health & Social Services just unveiled a plan whereby the communities of Holy Cross, Anvik, Shageluk and Grayling which are all in the Iditarod Area School District, REAA 11, will now receive there public health nurse services from Bethel. Ms Lois Bergerson decided that those people would be better served from Bethel than McGrath. Was there any local input from those communities? Was any consideration given to the fact that those people are Athabascans and not Yupiks? Did anyone think to explore the logic behind the boundaries of REAA 11? The answer to all three questions is no. However, Ms Bergerson is adamant that the changes will take effect on Sept. 1 irregardless of any protests.

It is my firm hope that when the Legislature convenes in January, that the Community & Regional Affairs Committees will reintroduce the same package of bills.

Title 29 - Technical Review Committee

Re: Organizational Meeting

It is my understanding that you have agreed to serve on a technical review committee to assist in a comprehensive review of AS Title 29. (Municipal Government). A Policy Review Group has been appointed by the Legislature to review Title 29 and report on any recommended revisions. The Technical Committee has been asked to assist the Policy Group in recommending changes and reorganizing the present body of statutes. As a member of the Policy Group, I have been asked to act as liason with the Technical Committee. I would therefore like to propose an organizational meeting and to pass along some preliminary requests made by the Policy Group at its initial meeting on August 27th and 28th in Anchorage.

One of the first points of consensus reached by the Policy Group was a feeling that the present Title 29 is confusing and badly organized. The Policy Group therefore requested the Technical Committee to explore the feasibility of a new organization for Title 29. Under the proposed organization, the present statute would be organized into roughly three or four categories according to their applicability. Category I would be those provisions applicable to and binding upon all municipal governments, including home rule municipalities. Category II would then contain statutory material constituting additional limitations or prescriptions for various classes of cities or boroughs. Category III would seek to address the needs of many smaller communities by containing directory administrative and legislative provisions. Such provisions would apply to local governments unless a municipality, by ordinance, rejected coverage in order to adopt its own local procedures. Probably, a Category IV containing miscellaneous and general matter would also be necessary.

It should be noted that, in addition to favoring a simplified organization for Title 29, there seemed to be considerable initial support for increasing local government autonomy. One of the Policy Group's next tasks will probably be a section-by-section analysis of the present statutes to determine which laws might either be eliminated or placed in a "directory" category to be used at the option of municipalities.

The Policy Group is tentatively looking at a second meeting on or about September 22nd. At this time, it is hoped that the technical group, together with staff, will have prepared an outline of a proposed new organization showing all of the present statutes organized into the three or four categories described above. Additionally, I know many of you submitted specific written comments on the present statutes, and I suggest that we explore a division of labor to begin preparing specific recommended statutory changes for consideration by the Policy Group.

Since time is uncomfortably short, I would like to propose an initial meeting for 9:00 a.m., Monday, September 8, 1980, at the Legislative Information Office, 1024 W. 6th Avenue, Anchorage. At this meeting, the committee would attempt to respond to the requests of the Policy Group and to discuss its future role in the review of Title 29. Hopefully, everyone will be able to consider in advance of September 8, a proposed reorganization along the lines described above and begin our individual grouping of present statutes. Recognizing all of our busy schedules, I am hopeful that a one day meeting on the 8th will be sufficient. However, if necessary, you may wish to allow for some time on your calendar for the morning of the 9th.

It is my understanding that travel and per diem expenses will be reimbursed. Please contact Ms. Tamara Cook, Legislative Counsel, 465-4996 for details. I look forward to seeing you in Anchorage. Please feel free to contact my office at 264-4236 with any questions.

Enclosed is a list of people who have volunteered or who have been recommended to serve on the Title 29 Revision Committee. I have sent the same list to Clem Tillion.

I had originally intended to offer a limited number of names for consideration. I believe, however, it is very important that the committee represent a broad spectrum of Alaska local government interests and without knowing what areas were being covered by other nominations, I found it very difficult to cut down my list.

If I can be of any assistance once all the names have been submitted, I will be happy to do so.

Re: Title 29 Revision Committee

Dear Ms. Chitwood:

In reference to the announcement from the Alaska Municipal League concerning nominees for a policy committee to study proposed changes in Alaska Title 29, I would like to submit my name for consideration as a member of the committee. I believe that you are already familiar with my background in municipal law. However, for the benefit of other members of the selection team, I would like to offer a brief synopsis. I have been engaged in the practice of municipal law in Alaska for over four years. I am currently serving as Municipal Attorney for the Municipality of Anchorage, and have held my present position for approximatley two and one-half years. As Municipal Attorney, I have been involved in all phases of municipal law, and have served as past president of the Alaska Municipal Attorney's Association. Additionaly, I have spent considerable time during two past legislative sessions as a lobbyist for the Municipality. Included among my duties was substantial responsiblity for drafting state legislation on behalf of the Municipality of Anchorage. A further description of my academic background and other credentials could be provided upon request.

I believe that I am quite familiar with the provisions of the present AS Title 29 with respect to both home rule and general law of municipalities in Alaska. Although I believe the present code is quite adequate in many respects, I'm sure that others share my concern over many ambiguities in the present law involving such critical aspects of municipal government as service area functions, distinctions between home rule and non-home rule powers, and a variety of other concerns. I have been assured by Mayor Sullivan that he has no objection to my making the necessary time available to serve as a member of the commitee.

PROFESSIONAL EXPERIENCE

Present February 1979 — City Manager, Whittier, Alaska. With a summer population of 1,200 and winter population of 300, this diversified community requires a full range of municipal services. The city employs fifteen people, has a budget of approximately $600,000, and occupies 20 square miles. Significant management accomplishments include complete rehabilitation of the city's financial and budgeting procedures; overhaul of financial records of more than $50,000; construction of water system improvements; development and planning for a major recreation area, including road access funds through lobbying; execution of a property tax passed but not levied in prior years; and establishment of an updated and workable personnel system. Anchorage, the state's largest city, is approximately 1900 square miles and offers more than the full range of municipal services with its ownership of power and telephone utilities. It has approximately 2,400 employees and an operating budget of $140,000,000. Major management accomplishments as senior administrative assistant were setting up an effective intergovernmental program; assisting in merger of the former City of Anchorage and Greater Anchorage Area Borough and concurrent organizational development concerns; writing and coordinating the execution of over fifteen million dollars in capital improvement grants and participating as the municipality's first liaison with Anchorage's seventeen community councils.

This outpost community, while not only requiring a full range of municipal services, had tremendous logistics problems which affected every facet of municipal management. The city of forty square miles and operating budget of $700,000 required extreme diligence and planning to accomplish the ordinary. Major management accomplishments were the operation of a city-owned fish cold storage plant; expansion and development of an ocean-going barge facility; construction of a sewage treatment plant and establishment of program budgeting and idle cash balance program.

April 1973
September 1972 — Acting Borough Manager, Administrative Assistant, and Administrative Intern of Forest Hills, Pennsylvania (pop. 10,000). MILITARY EXPERIENCE — U.S. Army, Army Security Agency, September, 1963-August, 1967.

BACKGROUND SUMMARY — A professional municipal management background in managing two cities; significant contribution to the merger and operation of Anchorage and extensive lobbying on intergovernmental relations for that city. Success in developing municipal infrastructure and encouraging economic development and growth. Proven ability to work with elected officials, the public, business and municipal employees on a cooperative and positive basis.

PROFESSIONAL ACCOMPLISHMENT — Secretary for three years of Alaska Municipal Management Association; membership in the ICMA Academy for Professional Development; university instructor in public administration; participant in research programs in state revenue sharing analysis and labor relations seminars.

State of Alaska
Pouch B
Juneau, Alaska 99811

Dear Commissioner McAnerney:

We recommend that you select for the Title 29 revision committee Mr. Gene Moore, City Manager of Kotzebue.

Mr. Moore has had experience in trying to operate under Title 29 in a bush community, and has ideas on how to revise the statutes. He brings experience from other states which could be useful.

The City of Kotzebue has had to deal with most of the problems endemic to bush communities, including facility development and maintenance on a restricted revenue base.

In addition, he has been involved in discussions at the Municipal League on the unorganized borough, and has been more exposed than others in the State to the combination of Coastal Management, Regional Strategy, and the problems they seek to solve jointly.

While his perspective may be different than the region as a whole, and Kotzebue's problems may not be exactly the same as small villages, he could articulate the problems, and suggest appropriate language for the statutes.

A background resume' is attached. Thank you.

Dear Ginny:

I would like to nominate Andrew Sarisky, Borough Attorney for the Kenai Peninsula Borough, to be appointed to the Policy Committee for the revision of the Alaska Municipal Code.

Andy has an extensive background in utility and municipal law, having practiced in and for the City of Cleveland, Ohio, for many years before coming to Alaska as the first general counsel for RCA-Alascom.

He has some definite ideas and suggestions on how to streamline and consolidate many of the provisions which are overlapping after the consolidation of Title 29 and Title 7 in 1972.

I feel he would be a definite asset to any Policy Committee.

Dear Ginny:

In response to your letter of June 27, 1980, regarding the appointment of a policy committee for the revision of Title 29, I would like to submit for your review the name of JoAnne Shanley.

JoAnne has been the City Clerk for Seward for the past four years and, in that position, works with Title 29 on almost a daily basis. Although Seward is a Home Rule city, the Clerk refers to Title 29 on a regular basis to make sure the provisions of the Seward City Code are in compliance with the State Statutes; and, furthermore, she makes recommendations for revisions to the Seward Code based on Title 29 provisions. She has proven very knowledgeable in her basic understanding and applicability of the Alaska Municipal Government Code and I am sure she would be an asset to the committee.

Enclosed is JoAnne's resume' for your perusal. Thank you for your consideration of her name as an appointee to the committee.

Dear Ginny:

In response to an inquiry requesting names for consideration to the Title 29, Policy Review Committee, the Borough Assembly is submitting the name of Russ Walker, Municipal Attorney. The Office of Municipal Attorney does all the legal work for the City of Ketchikan and Ketchikan Public Utilities, as well as the Borough, therefore, Mr. Walker is very knowledgable about the functions and authorities of not only a second-class borough, but also a home-rule first-class city which operates a public utility. You will find a resume from Mr. Walker attached.

In addition to the Assembly's endorsement of Mr. Walker for consideration to the policy committee, I would personally offer my own. Russ Walker is one of the most qualified and knowledgable person concerning municipal government with whom I have been associated. Even though he has not been in Alaska long, he has a thorough working knowledge of Title 29, is familiar with the previous codes, 29 & 7, and brings a wealth of previous municipal knowledge to Alaska. This assignment is going to require persons with the capacity of seeking out and understanding all sides of complex issues. Russ is uniquely capable in this regard.

Please do not hesitate to contact me for further information.

Dear Ms. Chitwood:

I wish to thank you for your recent letter of inquiry regarding the formation of the Policy Advisory Group on Title 29 Code Revision. In response to that letter, I would like to recommend Michael Walleri as a candidate for nomination to this group. I feel Mike is highly qualified to sit on this policy committee. He is a member of the Alaska Bar with an extensive background in local government in rural Alaska. For the last year and a half, he has served as TCC's Village Government Specialist rendering technical assistance to TCC villages and staff on local government matters. He is currently working under a grant from the Department of Community & Regional Affairs on a legal research project dealing with the relationships between various local governments in rural Alaska. In this capacity, he has gained a working familiarity with the history, operation and problems of rural Alaskan local government.

During the last legislature, the issues of local government in rural Alaska were addressed in various bills. The Title 29 revision is an appropriate and timely mechanism for addressing this issue in a coordinated fashion. Mike's background, experience, and knowledge will greatly assist the group as it addresses those issues.

Tillion has affirmed selection of eight of the nine appointees to the Title 29 committee. Arliss's instruction is to call the eight and invite their participation at the upcoming meeting. Then follow up by letter with the mail out.

The problem surrounds Tillion's insistence that Ron Larson replace Jim Eckstedt. Please call Terry Gardiner in Ketchikan and confirm with him this replacement. If Terry is agreeable, contact Larson and advise him of the meeting.

Your letters and phone calls should also make contact with the four legislative members: Sturgulewski, Mulcahy, Parr and Branson.

Dear Representative Gardiner:

CSSCR 66, Legislative Resolve 39 of the recent legislative session, directs the Alaska Legislative Council to revise AS 29, the municipal government code. A policy advisory group is authorized to assist in that task. Together with two members of each house of the legislature appointed by the respective presiding officers, the resolution also authorizes selection by the presiding officers of an unstated number of public members, drawn from recommendations submitted by legislative members, the Departments of Community and Regional Affairs and Law, the Alaska Municipal League, the Rural Alaska Community Action Program, and the legal services division of this Agency.

At my direction, Jack Chenoweth of this office met today with Ginny Chitwood of the Municipal League, Palmer McCarter (speaking for the administration) and, by phone, Bob Lohr, the deputy director of RuralCAP. It is their suggestion, and my recommendation, that nine public members be appointed to serve with the four legislators previously designated for the policy advisory group for the Title 29 revision. Their suggestion included the following recommended nominations:

Ted Berns, municipal attorney
Municipality of Anchorage

The policy advisory group provided for by the resolution will have direct and continuing support and assistance from Palmer McCarter of the Department of Community and Regional Affairs, Ginny Chitwood of the Alaska Municipal League, Phil Smith of RuralCAP, Rod Pegues from the Department of Law, and Tamara Brandt Cook, whom I have assigned from the staff of this division.

Dear Billy:

On June 27, 1980, I sent out to the mailing list which is enclosed a letter alerting various attorneys in the state to the formation of the policy group under the provisions of CSSCR 66 and of the possibility that a working group might also be formed. The enclosed letter to Gary Thurlow sets forth the content of the letter.

Enclosed are copies of the responses. Please note that Gary Thurlow's response is hand-written at the end of my letter to him. If a working group is formed, please do not take the non-response of anyone on the list as an indication of non-interest. I believe Jim Nordale and probably Russ Walker (Ketchikan City and Borough) and others may be willing to serve on such a group.

I have been nominated by the assembly for the policy group. Obviously, if not chosen to serve on the policy group, I would certainly like to be considered for a position on the working group if one is formed. Although I would certainly appreciate some assistance in the way of travel and per diem if travel is involved, I believe I can probably manage some travel and per diem from the budget.

SUBJECT: Title 29 (Municipal Code) Revision

Dear Gary:

Enclosed is the material which I have just received from the Alaska Municipal League. Please review it and take whatever action you believe is appropriate. Note that nominations to the policy committee must be in by July 10, 1980.

There is some possibility that a working group will be formed of municipal attorneys and perhaps others who are intimately involved in the administration of Title 29. If you have the time available and would be interested in serving on such a working group, I suggest that you let me know as soon as possible. If such a group is formed, we will be able to submit the names of those who are interested to those who will be selecting such a group. It appears that the funding for the Title 29 revision is sufficient to cover the per diem and travel expenses of the policy group and perhaps also similar expenses for a working group. If you are willing to serve on the working group you should state whether or not your serving on the group is contingent upon reimbursement for all, some or none of your travel and per diem expenses.

Whether you are interested in serving on either the policy or working group, please note the request in paragraph 3 of the joint RuralCAP, Alaska Municipal League and Department of Community and Regional Affairs letter. Please take time right now, if you have not already done so, to begin a list of Title 29 problems. Any inconsistencies, ambiguities, restrictions, inadequate delegations or other problems which you have encountered in Title 29 should be briefly described and forwarded to Ginny Chitwood whose address is on the attached letters. Please note the July 30, 1980, deadline for this list.

4 NO. CBJ 7

There are many inadequacies in Title 29 which have resulted from oversights when the code was revised in 1972, the passage of time and the expansion of municipal functions, court decisions and legislative modifications in response to special interests. We now have an opportunity to straighten out many of these problems. Even if you are unable to participate as a full-time member in a working group (if one is formed) please let both groups have the benefit of your experience and thoughts regarding needed changes.

Sincerely,

Re: Title 29 Revision Committee

Dear Ms. Chitwood:

In reference to the announcement from the Alaska Municipal League concerning nominees for a policy committee to study proposed changes in Alaska Title 29, I would like to submit my name for consideration as a member of the committee. I believe that you are already familiar with my background in municipal law. However, for the benefit of other members of the selection team, I would like to offer a brief synopsis. I have been engaged in the practice of municipal law in Alaska for over four years. I am currently serving as Municipal Attorney for the Municipality of Anchorage, and have held my present position for approximatley two and one-half years. As Municipal Attorney, I have been involved in all phases of municipal law, and have served as past president of the Alaska Municipal Attorney's Association. Additionaly, I have spent considerable time during two past legislative sessions as a lobbyist for the Municipality. Included among my duties was substantial responsiblity for drafting state legislation on behalf of the Municipality of Anchorage. A further description of my academic background and other credentials could be provided upon request.

I believe that I am quite familiar with the provisions of the present AS Title 29 with respect to both home rule and general law of municipalities in Alaska. Although I believe the present code is quite adequate in many respects, I'm sure that others share my concern over many ambiguities in the present law involving such critical aspects of municipal government as service area functions, distinctions between home rule and non-home rule powers, and a variety of other concerns. I have been assured by Mayor Sullivan that he has no objection to my making the necessary time available to serve as a member of the commitee.

If you have any other questions concerning my interests or qualifications, please do not hesitate to contact me at 264-4236.

Sincerely yours,

Ms. Lee McAnerney

Dear Commissioner McAnerney:

It is our understanding that through passage of CSSCR 66 that the State Legislature has directed formation of a policy advisory group consisting of two members of each house and four members of the public to assist the Legislative Affairs Agency in presenting a revision of Title 29 of the Alaska Statutes to the First Session of the Twelth Legislature. The purpose of this letter is to place a nomination in the name of Allan E. Tesche, Borough Attorney, for the Matanuska-Susitna Borough for appointment to that policy advisory group.

As the attached resume of Mr. Tesche's qualifications will demonstrate, Mr. Tesche has had substantial experience in municipal government in the State of Alaska, having assisted two Alaskan municipalities in their legal affairs for the past six years. Mr. Tesche is also active in the Alaska Municipal Attorneys' Association and is currently serving as the Secretary-Treasurer of that group. Moreover, Mr. Tesche has represented the AMAA in important Constitutional litigation relating to municipal problems for the Supreme Court of this state and has actively assisted the Board of Directors and Legislative Committee of the Alaska Municipal League in legislation affecting municipalities in Alaska.

If I can answer further questions regarding Mr. Tesche's qualifications for service as a member of the policy advisory group, please do not hesitate to contact me at 745-4801.

RE: Title 29 Revision

Dear Lee:

I would be glad to serve on a work group, policy group, or otherwise in the Title 29 Revision effort. I could donate a fair amount of time, but would need reimbursement for travel.

I have not yet produced a comprehensive listing of needed revisions, but the following came to mind:

29.28.070 (b) - Service area initiatives are potential problems; could lead to Balkanization" of municipalities.

same - Standardize use of "general" and " regular" as to elections to avoid uncertainty as to required number of signatures.

29.28.090 (b) - Not specifically provided that assembly may not immediately repeal ordinance enacted under threat of initiative.

29.28..40 - More specificity as to whether recall may be based on "political" factors.

29.48.130 (5) - No need to require ordinance for routine fund transfers.

29.48.150 (a) - Majority required to set ordinance for hearing. Should be less to give minority a chance to make it's case.

29.48.170 - Maybe need some procedure for enacting municipal regulations.

29.48.260 - Vote on sale of all property over $25,000 may be unduly burdensome.

29.53.010 - Why not permit exemption of all personalty or various classes.

29.53.025 (b) (1) - Special treatment for boats.

29.63.090 (e) - Reference to "delegation" of powers to service areas needs clarificaton.

29.78.101 (16)- Definition of "subdivision"; consider application to division for leasing, as by holders of oil leases.

Public Records - Clarify application of public records law, section 09.25.110. to municipality.

Home Rule - More clear criteria for application of non-title 29 provisions to home rule. (Maybe require inclusion in AS 29.13.10 laundry list).

APUC - Consider need for APUC regulation of municipality owned utilities.

29.18 - Clarify rights to VUU land vis a vis state classification under AS 38.

29.41 - Consider need for third class borough.

I look forward to your ideas.

Very truly yours,

Richard W. Garnett III

Re: Title 29 Revision

Dear Lee:

Last Wednesday I brought to the attention of the City Council the combination letter from Ginny Chitwood and others as well as your letter. Several nominations are being made by the Mayor with Council approval for the policy committee which will be forwarded.

I would like very much to serve on either of these committees, but as I told Council I have too many things that I cannot get to on my desk without taking several weeks off to do this work.

I have run into so many road blocks to efficient government in my years with the Borough, the home-rule City of Fairbanks, and City of Kenai that I would certainly like to stir the pot if I only had the time. I expect that you will probably be able to serve on one of these committees - I hope so. If so, I would note that when I was with the Borough several million dollars were saved the Borough by issuance of refunding bonds, but this was complicated because in order to take advantage of differentiation of interest rates, the banks had to have a prompt response. This is hardly the type of thing that I consider appropriate under an emergency ordinance (AS 29.48.160), and it really should not be as difficult to pass as an emergency ordinance. The indebtedness has already been approved by the voters and incurred, and the only question is refunding at a proper time to take advantage of market conditions to lower cost to the taxpayer. I would suggest a new section in AS 29.58 authorizing that an ordinance for refunding bonds be passed on one hearing, at either a regular or special meeting, and with only the normal majority vote.

I believe the chapter on service areas, (AS 29.63) could also stand a lot of clarification. My experience in this Borough would indicate that section has many unwise provisions that should be modified - there is too much authority in the Assembly to handle the decisions in the service area which should be made by those in the service area paying the taxes.

I am sorry that I will not be able to serve with you on one of these committees.

Sincerely,

Ben T. Delahay

RE: Policy Advisory Group established in CSSCR 66

As you know the Legislative Council has been directed to revise Title 29 of the Alaska Statutes (Municipal Government) with the help of a policy advisory group composed of persons appointed by the presiding officer of each house. Dear Senator Ziegler:

According to CSSCR 66, the presiding officer of each house is to appoint two members of each legislative body to the policy advisory group involved with the revision to Title 29, the municipal code. In addition, public members shall be selected from among persons recommended by legislators and various organizations. Since Senator Mulcahy and myself are the only members who have been appointed to the policy advisory group so far, I am taking the liberty of contacting you to ask for your recommendations of other persons who ought to be considered for appointment to the group. I am also enclosing a copy of a letter which was sent to approximately 400 interested organizations and persons in an effort to insure that as many qualified individuals as possible are considered for nomination to the group.

As the policy advisory group will be working under considerable time pressure, please send your recommendations for nominations to the group as soon as possible to the Legal Services Division of Legislative Affairs to be forwarded to the presiding officer of your house. For your information, the home address of Senator Clem V. Tillion, President of the Senate, is Halibut Cove 99603.

I would also like to take this opportunity to ask you for any suggestions which you may have concerning changes to Title 29 or issues which you would like the policy advisory group to consider. If you are interested in being kept informed of the progress made in revising the municipal code during the interim, please contact Tamara Brandt Cook, Legal Services Division, Legislative Affairs Agency, Pouch Y, Juneau 99811. Re: Municipal Recall Statutes

Dear Senator Sturgulewski,

It is my understanding that you are reviewing the problems associated with recalling municipal officials. I believe that due to my recent intimate knowledge of the recall of two officials in the City of Petersburg, that some of the problems found there (and elsewhere in Alaska) could prove illuminating in your efforts to revise the municipal recall statutues.

A list of the problems includes:

1. Sec. 130 of AS 29.28 is unclear as to whether an official is re-callable within six months of being re-elected. It would seem that the original intent of this section was to protect rookie mayors and councilmembers, rather than the official that is re-elected. In any event the language should be clarified to either include or exlude re-elected officials. My personal inclination is to allow a municipal official to be recalled any time after the initial six months have been served, and when that person is re-elected, then he or she may be recalled at any time, and the six months grace period would not apply.

2. The grounds for recall as listed in section 140 are a constant source of argument since the three allowable reasons seem rather narrow in scope. Typically, recall petitions are thrown out based on this section. Many people feel that the three reasons are just legalisms craftily used by municipal attorneys to save their clients political hide. There is no necessity for proving that the stated grounds are in fact true, therefore, the usual scheme of things is to "hang a reason" on one of the three allowable terms. From a practical standpoint, the issue is whether you want to permit recall not based on th three statutory reasons.

3. Section 150 should make clear that a petition must be separate from from other petitions. In other words, a petition may contain only one name on it.Also, the petition should contain the mailing address of each person signing the petition.

4. Section 180 should be clarified to state that a new petition may not be filed sooner than six months after a petition is rejected based on insufficiency(and not lack of signatures).

5. There has been a fear that once a sufficient petition has been submitted and accepted, that members of the council could resign and then be re-appointed to the council. The statutues should preclude such an effort once the petition is sufficient.

6. The problem with the number of signatures required is well known. It is my opinion that a local recall effort should be based on the last regular municipal election, not the state election.

7. Some people have interpreted that once the election has been certified, that a person recalled is at once removed from the seat. This causes a disruption in local government, and if this is the correct method, then a provision should be included to clarify such, and to allow some means to permit a minicipal government to continue to operate when a majority has been recalled from office.

Thanks for listening, and I hope this helps.

Bruce

The Second Session of the Eleventh Legislature passed Senate Concurrent Resolution 66 directing the Alaska Legislative Council to revise Alaska Municipal Government Code -- Title 29. A copy of this resolution is enclosed for your information.

A policy committee, consisting of four legislators and eight public members, will play a key role in determining what changes are made in Title 29, the Municipal Government Code. Therefore, it is important that interested, knowledgable persons be nominated to sit on this committee Other than demands on committee members' time, costs for transportation and per diem will be paid by the State. Our three agencies have been given the responsibility of nominating persons to fill the eight seats reserved for public members. We would like for you to send to one, or all, of our organizations any recommendations you may have for candidates you feel are qualified to serve on the policy committee. A resume or background sketch of qualifications for each of your nominees will assist us in selecting the best persons to submit as nominees to the President of the Senate and the Speaker of the House of Representatives. Time is critical and we need to receive your recommendations by July 10, 1980.

We would also urge you to make any comments or suggestions which might improve Title 29. If you have problems or concerns about sections of Title 29 we want to know about them; it would be even more helpful if you can suggest specific remedies in the form of deletions, rewritten or additional language, or restructuring of the Municipal Government Code. We need to receive these comments by July 30, 1980.

The Legislature has given all of us a rare opportunity to make needed revisions in Title 29 so that Alaska may have a meaningful, responsive municipal government statute. To make the most of this opportunity for change, we need thorough, well thought-out recommendations and comments. We look forward to hearing from you.

Dear Palmer:

Please accept this letter as a formal request to serve on either the Title 29 review policy committee or working committee.

I have served as the City Manager in Yakutat since February, 1979. Prior to that time I held planning positions with the State of Nebraska and the City of Lincoln, Nebraska.

My experience with Alaskan local government has been tempered strongly with issues ranging from OCS oil exploration to annexation, planning for both corporate and non corporate areas, overseeing the transition of a 1st class municipality from a Mayor/Council form of government to a City Manager form of administration and developing local capital infrastructures to encourage economic growth, specifically fisheries development.

In the process I have daily witnessed the strengths and weakness of Title 29 provisions.

I also bring experience from other systems of local government including a large municipality, a small rural community which I served as Chairman of their Planning and Zoning Commission and a State that was served by a unicameral legislature.

My graduate training is in Anthropology with concentration on systems and the dynamics of systems change.

I can serve the review committee significally and offer the following references for both personal and professional skills and capabilities in this area:

Although a simple meshing of the supplement with the original Title 29 would help those of us who work daily with the municipal provisions, it would be better to have a comprehensive review of the Title 29 - Municipal Code provisions in order to assure resolution of the conflicts created by amendments over the years.

Re: HCR 70

The Alaska Municipal League supports HCR 70 which directs the Alaska Legislative Council to revise AS 29 (Municipal Government).

Attached is a copy of the priority list for 1980 developed by the Board of Directors of the League following the 29th Local Government Conference in Sitka in November of 1979. You will note item "I" refers to a revision of Title 29 and reads as follows: "The League supports the initiation of a complete review of Title 29 as outlined by the Local Government Study recently conducted by the Legislature."

The League feels this is of paramount importance to the municipalities of Alaska and urges this committee to pass out HCR 70 with a do pass recommendation.

The following are the legislative priorities for the Alaska Municipal League for 1980. All of these proposals are of paramount importance to the municipalities of Alaska. They are the highlights of the policy statement which was adopted at the League's 29th annual conference which was held in Sitka on November 2, 1979.

A. State Shared Revenues

1. The League strongly supports increased funding of the State Shared Revenue Sharing Program to a level at least three times the 1979 funding level, including any new programs to foster economic development, and continues to support the philosophy of HB 192 as introduced in the 1st Session of the 11th Legislature.

2. The League supports legitimate and reasonable changes in the amount of money requested for the municipal services shared revenue program and remains adamant in the belief that each Legislature has the obligation to fund the program 100% annually.

— Also, transfer hospital construction outside / rev. sharing

B. Municipal Lands

1. The League feels strongly that laws pertaining to the powers of local planning and zoning must allow for the greatest flexibility at the local level.

2. The League supports legislation which would require legal access to all state land disposals; and that, except for state subdivisions in remote areas or for dispersed entry, local subdivision improvement requirements be honored by the state by either installing such improvements or by acquiescing in the formation of service areas and local improvement districts containing such property and honoring the obligation to pay LID assessments on such property while it is in state ownership.

3. The League supports the concept of an Enterprise Fund as a means for the state to provide required improvements in state land disposals.

4. The League supports legislation which mandates land use capability and resource inventory findings for each tract of land included in the disposal bank.

C. Income Tax

1. The League strongly supports the development and implementation of a tax credit program which would allow state income tax payers to use as a tax credit on their state income tax return that portion of Alaska local taxes they pay for local school support.

2. The League supports tax credit programs being installed to reduce the net income tax paid by Alaskan residents and property owners through the existing state income tax system.

D. Economic Development

1. The League supports and urges the state legislature to establish and provide immediate funding of programs which will create, assist, or aid both public and private enterprises to plan, finance, and develop job related industries, businesses, and facilities that are compatible with the desires of local government.

E. Energy

1. The League supports uninterrupted continuance of loan funds from the state for feasible hydroelectric projects within the state and further supports that long-term, low interest loans for these projects be funded from non-renewable resource revenues such as those presently being generated by oil and gas receipts.

F. Apportionment

1. The League is addressing the question of local apportionment. As Legislation is developed, the League will make recommendations regarding a specific bill.

G. School Support

1. The League further encourages the Legislature to continue to support school capital projects at 80% construction level or higher (as defined by the rules and regulations established by the Department of Education) and calls upon the Legislature and the Governor to fund this amount annually. The League strongly supports legislation that will provide for a supplemental appropriation to fully fund the 1979 fiscal year school capital project fund at the legislated 80% level. The League also supports legislation under which the state will provide the 80% funding for all approved school capital projects to the local district at the time of approval.

H. Public Safety

1. The demand for trained competent local police and fire departments is accelerating throughout Alaska. It is urged that the Legislature, at an early date, assure that police, fire and emergency medical personnel training programs throughout the state have adequate facilities and program resources for training of local safety people, and provide financial support to assist the communities who participate.

I. Revision of Title 29

1. The League supports the initiation of a complete review of Title 29 as outlined by the Local Government Study recently conducted by the Legislature.

J. Civic Centers

1. While legislation has been enacted into law to enable the state to assist local communities in the construction, maintenance and operation of cultural, civic, convention and community recreation centers, only minimal funding has been available for this purpose. The League, therefore, urges the Legislature to authorize the issuance of bonds for this or any similar legislation in an amount sufficient to meet the construction requirements in Alaska comminities.

K. Alaska '84

1. The League supports the concept of Alaska '84. We urge the state (1) to provide adequate feasibility funding to determine the viability of the proposal and (2) to provide construction money in accordance with the recommendation of the feasibilty study when completed.

RE: Revision of AS 29

It is generally recognized, especially by those who work most closely with it, that AS 29 is in need of revision. Since the time of original enactment, changes in the title, problems in its application, and policy questions of importance have been noted by municipal attorneys, city managers and clerks, and such other municipal officials as assessors. The Legislative Revisor has indicated that AS 29 should be next approached in terms of needed revision.

The work of revision is complicated and, at times, highly technical. I have received numerous inquiries and requests for a process by which to revise AS 29. I have discussed this problem with many people, including Mr. Berrier, and Ms. Chitwood of the Alaska Municipal League.

I would like to suggest the following as an approach to the revision of AS 29 during the period of time between this session and the 1981 session. Funds and responsibility for this project would be directed by the Legislative Council to Mr. Billy Berrier, Legislative Legal Services, to conduct the revision. I foresee the project as follows: two groups would be selected by Mr. Berrier from recommendations provided by the Department of Community and Regional Affairs, Alaska Municipal League and other interested and affected parties. The first group would be a policy advisory group composed of a variety of perspectives and interests, representing the diversity of local governments across the state, and would include a representative of the legislature. The second, a much smaller group, would be a working group, composed of people who have had experience in the application of AS 29. The work group should consist of municipal attorneys, representatives of the Department of Community and Regional Affairs and the Department of Law, as well as a staff member of Legislative Legal Services; other municipal staff functions should also be represented, such as managers or clerks. While the actual technical work would be conducted by the working group, the policy group would provide overall guidance and assistance on policy questions.

Administrative and secretarial responsbility would rest in Legal Services. In order to support this project funds would be required for travel and per diem. Most local governments will be glad to contribute staff time to this project. However, for both the policy and the working group it will be necessary to provide travel funds. As often as possible, teleconferencing will be used to reduce travel needs and to expedite the project. A draft bill will be ready for January 1981.

It is anticipated that $20,000 should cover the cost of this project. Any funds remaining would be returned.

Thank you for your attention to this matter.

I'm also attaching a copy of my March 31 memo to Senator Clem Tillion which spoke to this issue. The Senate Concurrent Resolution was drawn as a result of that memorandum. Re: Municipal Code Revisions

Dear Arliss:

Both because of Alan Teshe's letter of March 18 to you and a recent conversation with Ginny Chitwood, I would urge you to make every effort to provide for the interim review of AS 29. I would urge that the Alaska Municipal League be a participant in the review process either as a contractor, a co-sponsor or in some other capacity. Based upon the discussions at the Local Government Symposium as well as comments received by the Joint House-Senate C & RA hearings, I think that participation from the unorganized borough is desirable.

A good deal of the criticism of and antagonism toward local government stems from inflexibility in portions of the code and vagueness in other parts. The writers of the Constitution were wise in their recognition that strong and flexible local government could best meet the needs of the diverse areas of this state. Too often local governments are unable to respond effectively because of unrealistic restrictions imposed by the state.

I hope that there is something that you can do to accomplish this review, and if I can be of any assistance, please let me know.

Mr. Dave Walsh, President
Alaska Municipal League
c/o Pouch 6-650

Dear Dave:

The ability for municipalities to have a fair and equitable tax base is absolutely critical to healthy local government. I would like to urge the Alaska Municipal League, possibly in conjunction with the Alaska Native Foundation, RuralCap and others, to undertake, prior to next session, a major review of the kind and amount of taxes that the various classes of municipalities can levy and collect. The current Legislature is addressing House Bill 192, dealing with municipal revenue sharing, and Senate Bill 199, dealing with the school foundation program. These two areas provide major cornerstones for municipal school revenues. A third cornerstone, real and personal property tax, is currently faced with possible erosion and decreased credibility.

The Senate Community and Regional Affairs Committee has some twelve bills pending which impact the municipal property tax by allowing certain classes of exemptions, imposing restrictions, etc. Some, but not all, of these bills allow the municipalities to be reimbursed for the changes in their ability to levy and collect real and personal property taxes. Certainly the bills carry a major fiscal impact. I am enclosing a summary of the bills currently before my Committee. Many other tax bills affecting municipalities are before the Legislature, such as changes in the amount of sales tax which can be levied in certain municipalities and elimination of the business inventory tax.

Relating specificially to real and property taxes, it seems to me that policies must be established regarding possible exemption. If such policies are not developed, we will create a hodgepodge of a program that will serve no one well. For example, should we consider exemptions on a need basis rather than exemptions for special groups of people? Should there be equality for a whole group, rather than special interest exemptions within a group? What kind of things would be better left to grant and aid programs as opposed to exemptions in the property tax approach?

The Department of Community and Regional Affairs recently completed a study of the exemption problem. Their study gives a synopsis of information developed that deals with major exemption problems, and in some cases, suggests several options that might be taken. Their broad policy statement favors few, if any, additional exemptions, and they feel that any exemption program should meet the following criteria: "any exemption granted should be either for public property or for sufficient public good to justify a transfer of burden to the balance of the community." They recognize that the credibility of property tax has been questioned continually and with increasing intensity these past few years, and that many taxpayers feel that they are paying more than their fair share.

The state has recognized certain senior citizens' exemptions, as a matter of public policy. These exemptions support a policy of encouraging age diversity in Alaskan society, show esteem for and gratitude to the pioneers of the state and give a method of helping many to afford to stay in our state, rather than have to leave family, and friends to begin a life in another state, where it might be cheaper to live. The senior citizens who are on a fixed income and cannot absorb property taxes increased by inflation certainly are in need of assistance. However, some bills are now reaching into special groups within the senior citizens; for example, allowing for surviving spouses 55 and older of those senior citizens who qualified for real property exemption to continue to benefit from the exemption. But, what about other senior citizens within that same age group who might have just as much, or a greater need for exemptions? Disabled veterans are another group being suggested for special exemptions, but what about the equity question of all other disabled people in our State? Other questions of equity need to be considered.

Each piece of proposed legislation offers a shift in public policy -- new groups which deserve special treatment, new funding approaches, and so forth. However, sound public policy decisions can be made only within the context of effects or impacts on local governments and the general public. How can we create a new special exemption, for example, unless we are certain of municipalities fiscal needs, alternative revenue sources and the impact of using those other sources?

Again, I would urge the Alaska Municipal League to take a leadership position in review of the municipal property tax, as well as the broader impact of local municipalities being able to raise adequate revenues to fund needed municipal services. I would be most pleased to have your response as to whether you feel the Alaska Municipal League finds merit in this proposal, and if so, I sincerely hope the league will analyze the kind and amount of taxes that the various classes of municipalities can and should levy and collect.

Sincerely yours,

Arliss Sturgulewski

Dear Jay:

Re: Senior Citizens Tax Exemption from Municipal Property Tax

The legislature has under consideration, SB 328, which would establish an Older Alaskans Commission. In the event this legislation is adopted, I would like to bring to them, through you, a matter for their review and, hopefully, recommendations to the next session of the legislature. I am bringing this matter to the attention of your Advisory Committee on Aging.

The Senate Regional and Community Affairs Committee has had over twelve bills pending which impact the municipal property tax by allowing certain classes of exemptions, imposing restrictions, etc. Some, but not all, of these bills allow the municipalities to be reimbursed for the changes in their ability to levy and collect real and personal property taxes. Since real and property taxes create such a major corner stone of tax revenue source for municipalities, I have asked the Alaska Municipal League to look into the matter of establishing policies regarding possible exemptions. We will create a hodgepodge of a program in the absence of such policy. Dave Walsh, Chairman of the Alaska Municipal League, has indicated to me that the League will undertake such a study. However, I feel it would be important that a commission, dealing particularly with older Alaskans' needs, undertake a study of that part of the real and personal property tax which deals with older Alaskans.

The state has recognized certain senior citizens' exemptions as a matter of public policy. These exemptions support a policy of encouraging age diversity in Alaskan society, they show esteem for and gratitude to the pioneers of the state, and give a method of helping many to afford to stay in the state, rather than to leave family and friends to begin a life in another state where it might be cheaper to live. The senior citizens who are on a fixed income and cannot absorb property taxes increased by inflation certainly are in need of assistance. However, some bills are now reaching into special groups within the senior citizens; for example, allowing for surviving spouses 55 and older of those citizens who qualified for real property exemption to continue to benefit from the exemption. But, what about other senior citizens with the same age group who might have just as much, or a greater need for exemptions?

Disabled veterans are another group being suggested for special exemptions, but what about the equity question of all other disabled people in our state? Other questions of equity need to be considered. Each piece of proposed legislation that we have considered offers a shift in public policy. New groups which deserve special treatment, new funding approaches, etc. However, sound public policy decisions can be made only within the context of effects or impacts on the general public, and certainly on local governments.

The Department of Community and Regional Affairs recently completed a study of the exemption problem. Their study gives a synopsis of information developed that deals with major exemption problems, and in some cases, suggests several options that might be taken. Their broad policy statement favors few, if any, additional exemptions, and they feel that any exemption program should meet the following criteria: "any exemption granted should be either for public property or for sufficient public good to justify a transfer of burden to the balance of the community." They recognize that the credibility of property tax has been questioned continually and with increasing intensity these past few years, and that many taxpayers feel that they are paying more than their fair share.

Again, I think the matter of senior citizens exemptions merits consideration by the Older Alaskans Commission. If such a commission is established by the legislature I would appreciate it if you would approach them on this subject.

Sincerely,

Dear Betty:

Enclosed are copies of letters I recently sent to Dave Walsh, President of the Alaska Municipal League, and to Governor Jay Hammond regarding tax exemptions from the municipal property tax. It seems to me that your Committee on Aging would have interest in taking a good look at the issue raised in my letters, particularly as they relate to older Alaskans.

With the pending change before the legislature, regarding the continuation of your Committee on Aging and the possible Older Alaskans Commission, I wanted to be sure to touch all bases. If you feel the issues raised have merit for consideration by your committee, I would be very delighted to have whatever follow-up information you might develop. You might wish to contact Dave Walsh to give input to the work that the Municipal League will be doing over the next year.

Thank you for your consideration of this material, and I do look forward to hearing from you.

Dear Arliss:

Re. Municipal code revisions.

Attached with this letter is a list of examples of various provisions of Title 29 which should be clarified through revision of that title. This list is by no means exhaustive and I am sure that other attorneys and municipal officials throughout the state could add additional examples and support a thorough revision of Title 29.

As we discussed some time ago in Juneau, I recommend that the Legislature form an interim committee to review AS 29 during the next two years and that the committee be empowered to seek assistance from municipal attorneys throughout the state, hold hearings as it deems appropriate, and present a new municipal code to the Legislature in 1981 or 1982. I have received expressions of support from attorneys representing several municipalities throughout the state and am confident they will assist the Legislature in preparing a revised municipal code.

Thank you very much for your continued attention to this matter. If there are additional questions I can answer regarding Title 29 or if the Legislature is prepared to take action in this matter, please do not hesitate to contact me.

Cordially,

Allan E. Tesche

AS 29: Revisions Needed

29.08

Although an attempt has been made in this Chapter to classify the various kinds of Alaskan municipalities, more recent amendments to Title 29 and unification of several cities and boroughs have resulted in confusion over definitions of "cities", "boroughs", and "municipalities". It is not clear, for instance, whether the unified Municipality of Anchorage is a city, a borough, or unified municipality or all three forms of government within existing provisions of AS 29.

29.13.100

The Code should contain a uniform system for designating statutes that expressly apply to home rule municipalities and all such statutes should be consistently cross referenced.

29.23.050

The statutory residence requirement prescribed in this section is probably invalid. It is suggested that such residence requirements throughout AS 29 be reduced to a maximum of one year.

29.23.060(d)

Circumstances, other than financial interests, which allow a member to abstain should be better defined.

29.23.080

The procedure for determining vacancies under this section conflicts with the procedure established under AS 29.23.570.

29.23.130(B)

Once again, the three residency requirement in this section should probably be reduced to one year to assure its constitutional validity.

29.23.150 and AS 29.23.470

Both require assembly appointmet of an acting borough manager in the absence of or disability of the manager. If these sections address different policy questions, they are unclear; if they do not, one should be eliminated as redundant.

29.23.170

This provision does not specify when a veto becomes effective or specify any time limit for the overriding of the veto. Moreover, it does not indicate what is the status of an ordinance between the time its veto is announced and the time the Assembly first has an opportunity to override the veto. For instance, if the mayor vetos a line item in the budget, may expenditures be made under that item until the mayor announces the veto at the next regular assembly meeting, or does the veto immediately strike the item until the veto is overridden?

29.23.200

The three year residency requirement here is also probably invalid.

29.23.210

As with the provisions for boroughs, this section should provide more definite standards for abstention on other than conflict of interest grounds.

29.23.250

Another probably invalid three year residency requirement.

29.23.270

This provision has the same ambiguities with regard to the effectiveness of a veto and a veto override as the provision applying to boroughs.

29.23.555

This section has been superceded by AS 39.50.

29.33.070-245

Serious thought should be given to the purpose of the planning, platting and zoning provisions in this code. Should they only prescribe minimum due process standards for rezonings and other land use decisions or should they detail all of the administrative procedures to be followed by local governments in this area. This article presently tries to do little of both and does neither very well.

29.33.190

This section makes it unlawful for any person to sell or attempt to sell land located within a subdivision which has not yet been approved by the borough platting authority and subjects violators to certain criminal sanctions. But AS 29.53.100 requires that the borough assessor assess real property to "the owner of record as shown on the records of the district recorder" even though that person may be the owner of record only by virtue of an illegal subdivision in violation of AS 29.33.190. Moreover, AS 29.53.310 allows persons holding security interest in illegally subdivided lands to obtain release for portions of lots or tracts originally subdivided even though such lands were illegally subdivided in violation of AS 29.33.190.

29.33.070

It is unlear whether platting powers can be delegated to a second class borough or a city within the borough under this section.

29.33

The current language of this chapter, as it incoprorates a traditional definition of zoning and makes zoning along with platting the principal means of land use regulations, is unduly restrictive and should be revised to allow more innovative forms of land use regulation by borroughs and municipalities.

29.33.250

Presumably the transfer required is one from all cities exercising the power rather than from a city.

29.33 and 29.38

Should there be a provision for a borough to exercise a power in some but not all cities (for example in second class cities but not in first class cities)?

29.48.030(b) AS 29.48.035(b) and (c)

These provisions are redundant. The limitations on the powers of second class boroughs should be stated in a more concise fashion in one easily accessible part of the code.

Moreover, AS 29.48.030 and .035, insomuch as those sections distinguish between "regulation" and provision of "municipal facilities and services", are at the very least confusing and perhaps unnecessary.

29.48.030(a)(12)

The term transportation "system" used in this section should be defined.

29.48.260

Provisions of this section governing disposal of municipal properties should be clarified and revised to reflect increased land values throughout the state, to state who makes determinations of the value of land offered for sale and the date upon which such valuations must be based. Moreover, the statute should be clarified to either include or exclude rights-of-way or easements from its provisions.

29.53.135

The language regarding the composition of the Board of Equalization is unclear. The statute presently requires "at least that number of members of the assembly over and above the number required for a quorum to transact business"; the statute is unclear when applied to a lay board to whom the equalization function is delegated.

29.53

Should be amended to require payment of all taxes, even those due for more recent assessments on properties whose owners have requested issue of a quitclaim repurchase deed. Present law mandates issue of a quitclaim repurchase deed to the owner of record upon payment of those taxes assessed for the tax year stated in the clerk's deed even though the same property is the subject of other foreclosure proceedings brought in subsequent years. An amendment to AS 29.53 which would require payment of all taxes owing on a parcel before a quitclaim repurchase deed can be issued would eliminate substantial confusion in the minds of taxpayers, and would reduce administrative complexity for borough finance departments presently confronted with multiple foreclosure actions on the same parcels.

29.63.090

The present statute governing service areas does not adequately address the question of whether a service area may be used for exercise of a governmental regulatory power rather than for provision of municipal or services.

8.60.050-100

Regulation of junk yards in this section should be cross-referenced to those sections of Title 29. relating to areawide planning, platting and zoning powers.

9.25.110-120

It is unclear whether public records statutes apply at all to municipal government. If it is the intention of the Legislature to apply the public records laws of AS 9.25.110-120 to cities and boroughs, then those sections should be amended accordingly with an appropriate cross references to Title 29.

Dear Tom:

Thank you very much for your comments regarding the Local Government Study. Our final report is due out very soon and I will see that you are added to this mailing list. Overall, I am pleased with the results of this study. Although the proposals may seem modest, they seem to follow well the constitional directions set for local governments and certainly can bring some cohesiveness and coordination to the delivery of services to rural Alaska. Your indepth comments and support can certainly help in seeing that this needed legislation is adopted by this session of the Legislature.

Your voice adds to a growing chorus speaking to the need for thorough technical revision of Title 29 of the Alaskan Statutes. When a certain number of amendments have been made to the Statutes, a recommendation is made for a revision of the Title. This is the case, as I understand it, with Title 29 and the recommendation is being made that Title 29 be the next title to be revised. I have had preliminary discussions with Representative Bill Parker regarding this and with several other interested parties, such as the Alaska Municipal League. One possible approach might be the establishment of a short-term committee composed of chairs of the Senate and House Community and Regional Affairs, Mr. Jack Chenoweth, from the Legislative Legal Department, other attorneys who are familiar with working on the Statutes, and other interested persons. I would see this as a working group that would produce revisions to Title 29 for introduction to the next Legislature. It seems to me there needs to be a careful delineation of the so-called housekeeping aspects and other issues that may be of major policy impact. For example, issues dealing with service areas, annexation procedures, etc., may take some special review and consideration.

I will discuss this matter further with Mrs. Ginny Chitwood, Alaska Municipal League, and with Representative Bill Parker as to possible methods for best proceeding with the revision of Title 29. I am sending copies of this letter to a number of people in hopes that both you, Tom, and the ones receiving copies will send me their thoughts and comments as to how best to proceed. It would be very helpful to have some input as to the number of policy issues, in addition to overall revisions that may well need to be addressed. Again, thank you for your interest and I will look forward to hearing from you further on this.

Dear Arliss:

I appreciated the opportunity to attend your discussion group on local government in rural Alaska, and thank you for sending me a copy of the report resulting from that session. I regret that I have not responded sooner to your request for implementation proposals.

While it certainly is not an essential prerequisite to the program you propose, I suggest that you consider as a complementary project a thorough technical revision of Title 29 of the Alaska Statutes. As an attorney for general law municipalities who has had substantial experience working with Title 29, I frequently am exposed to its legal inadequacies as a charter for the operation of small municipalities. Title 29 is at once too vague to be helpful in some areas and too restrictive in others. A new rural municipality can ill afford the added expense of developing a home rule charter and detailed municipal code merely to avoid the deficiencies of Title 29. While the structure of local government organization under Title 29 is basically sound, many of its procedural and administrative provisions do not provide the support and instruction that those who administer small, rural municipalities require.

I believe that if there were support for the project in the legislature it would not be difficult to assemble a committee of attorneys and others with day to day experience in the operation of general law municipalities to undertake a revision of Title 29 to make it more useful to those who operate under it-generally the smaller, more rural municipalities in the state.

DEVELOPMENT CITY - Title 29

Senate Community and Regional Affairs
Arliss Sturgulewski

February 1979

Notes by Ann Shook - F

It must be remembered that this statute was written for the Lost River project located near Nome in an unorganized borough containing no inhabitants. When Community and Regional Affairs received the petition for a development city on Afognak Island from the Afognak Island Native Association, they were given the impression that this area was devoid of inhabitants and proceded on this assumption. Most of the inhabitants are, in fact, transient cannery workers and may not wish for a voice in the development stage of a development city. It is not clear if all of the land is owned by the Native Corp. and if so, on whose land are the remaining inhabitants residing. If these inhabitants do not own land, they will not be subject to property tax even when it becomes a first class city. (they must pay tax only on improvements on the land).

29-18-050 (8) Provision for a first class city incorporation

This should be changed if there are inhabitants in the area. This section of the statute does not follow the standard incorporation procedures because it was assumed that a development city would result in an uninhabited area.

29-18-340 Development City Council

Change statute to "the Governor shall appoint no fewer that two public members from a list of nominees designated by the major developer providing the industrial base of the city as measured by employment and capital investment; and two members who are state residents preferably residing in the surrounding area or borough if the development city is located in a borough".

29-18-360 Powers and Duties of the Council

Considerable controversy has arisen over this provision as it gives planning & zoning powers to the division of planning and research and the Dept. of Environmental Conservation during the development stage. The original project for which this was written (Lost River) was located in an unorganized borough whereas Afognak is located within a borough which may want some control over development within its confines. An addition which may alleviate this problem is "except within an organized borough unless the borough waives DPD powers over development, planning, and zoning".

Actually, according to 29-18-290, the petition for a development city may be rejected

Actually, according to 29-18-290, the petition for a development city may be rejected under (4) if the organized borough is capable and willing to carry out the program and activities being considered or if the borough wishes to promote a development city within its area (5) (a) the assembly may "present to the Local Boundary Commission a contractual agreement outlining responsibilities assumed by the borough and the industrial developer to implement the proposed development program."

29-18-380 Procedures

Add "meetings shall be made public".

29-18-390 Development City Capital Improvements

Regulations presently being written by Community and Regional Affairs will clarify this.

29-18-430 Revenue Bonds

Mr. Shey is incorrect in his assumption that issance of Revenue Bonds would result in the 85 residents becoming 1/85 of the taxable base. Revenue bonds are issued from a coporation or bank based on the value of the project or facility thereby placing no liability on the tax payers. In the development stage, the inhabitants will not be taxed,and unless they own property, they will be taxed only on improvements on land when the development city is incorporated. The state may support the area with funds for certain capital improvement projects thereby represently the use of general tax monies. Mr. Shey gives an example of the building of a dock for which he says his concern is "the tax liability of the bond on the city should the industry fail to be profitable. . ." The facility would be liable in the case of Revenue bonds not the city.

Therefore, there are four alternatives before us:

1. Change the law to apply to locations which include a population; providing for a more democratic process in the development state of the project.

2. Repeal the law and in the process disallow certain developments that may be needed and beneficial to Alaska in uninhabited areas of the state.

3. Limit the law to only those areas in unorganized boroughs that have no inhabitants.

4. Leave the statute as is, counting on the regulations from Community and Regional Affairs to clarify the less definitive and confusing aspects of the law.

TITLE 29 REVISION COMMISSION
Policy Advisory Group Meeting

Minutes of November 10 & 11, 1980

The third meeting of the Policy Advisory Group - Title 29 Revision Commission was held November 10 and 11, 1980 in the East Gold Room of the Traveler's Inn, Fairbanks, Alaska. The meeting was called to order by Senator Arliss Sturgulewski, Chairman, at 10:45 a.m.

Present as members of the Policy Advisory Group were: Senator Arliss Sturgulewski, Senator Bob Mulcahy, Senator-elect Charles Parr, Representative Margaret Branson, Ted Berns, Terry Cook, Marilyn Dimmick, Ronald Larson, Gene Moore, Donna Sherby, and Russell Walker. Present as Ex-Offico Members were Palmer McCarter, and Bonnie Hedley from RuralCAP substituting for Phil Smith. The Technical Committee was represented by Ted Berns and Russell Walker as members of both groups, and by Allan Tesche. Present from the staff of Legal Services were Billy G. Berrier, Director and Tamara Brandt Cook, Legislative Counsel.

Guests and members of the public attending were: Stephanie Scott, Haines Borough; Cris Fowler, AOGA; Bob Walker, Exxon; Mike Walleri, Tanana Chiefs; John Arney, Haines Borough; Bob Juettner, City of McGrath; Michael Tavoliero, City of Saxman; Marie Matsuno, Department of Community and Regional Affairs; Ivan Widom, City of Nome; Lisa Buskirk, Tanana Chiefs; John Halliwill, City of Haines; Tommy Nebel, Ketchikan Borough; Kathy Carssow, Ketchikan Borough; Marvin Yoder, Ketchikan Borough; Tom Blanton, Haines Borough; Jerry Clifton, Haines Borough Assembly; Dan Ogt, Kodiak Island Borough; Shirley Collins, Haines; Jack Carpenter, Sitnasuak Native Corporation; Edward A. Stahla, City of Wrangell; Richard Careaga, City of Unalaska; Robert Flint, Wohlforth & Flint; Jack P. Van Leuven, RainierBank.

There were no presentations by guests or members of the public.

Under Old Business, Palmer McCarter reported on ways of getting materials and information to the public. He said the Department of Community and Regional Affairs was planning newsletter inserts and coordinating with the University of Alaska for a special issue of their newsletter to include an insert concerning the revision of Title 29. Chairman Sturgulewski directed Bonnie Hedley to coordinate information activities with Mr. McCarter and Tamara Cook.

Bonnie Hedley gave a report from RuralCAP on special problems of rural communities. She stated that rural communities have little "hook-up" with state agencies and therefore have little access to programs and money. The legislature never meets as the assembly for the Unorganized Borough. It is felt that there are not enough people in small communities to perform all the required municipal functions as well as the functions of existing forms of government, such as IRA councils. RuralCAP recommends the recognition of IRA councils. Chairman Sturgulewski directed staff to prepare a memo on these issues.

Mike Walleri presented a new draft of his report entitled "Tribal-State Relations, A New Paradigm for Local Government in Alaska". The chair directed staff to review it.

Chairman Sturgulewski reported attending a meeting of the AVCP in Bethel, and said they were getting funds to do a regional government study. She also reported on attending the AFN convention in Anchorage. The people she talked to questioned parallel governments and duplication of functions in the communities where there were municipal governments as well as traditional governments.

Ginny Chitwood of the Municipal League was stranded in Juneau due to weather and her report was postponed.

Billy Berrier reported what the Commission had done to date. Ted Berns said the Technical Committee planned to present final recommendations to the Policy Group by the 15th of December, 1980.

The Technical Committee presented their proposed drafts for consideration to the Policy Group. Representative Branson moved that the Policy Group accept all recommended changes except those requiring more discussion. The motion was seconded and carried. The following sections were accepted. (Note: There were wording changes in some in the following) Sec. 29.06.010, Sec. 29.06.050, Sec. 29.12.260, 29.15.020, 29.15.050, 29.15.110, 29.65.050, 29.30.010, 29.30.020, 29.30.030, 29.30.050, 29.30.095, 29.30.110, 29.30.120, 29.30.130, 29.30.140, 29.30.150, 29.30.160, 29.30.170, 29.30.180. Sections 29.09.180 and 29.30.040 were sent to subcommittees for study.

The meeting was recessed until 9:00 a.m. 11 November 1980.

At 9:00 a.m. 11 November 1980 the meeting was again called to order in the East Gold Room of the Traveler's Inn, Fairbanks, Alaska. All members of the Policy Advisory Group were in attendance. Members of the public and guests who attended the day before were present and the following people attended as well: Ginny Chitwood, Ex-Officio Member; Gerald Lee Sharp, Title 29 Technical Committee; Richard Garnett, III, Title 29 Technical Committee, David Dye, Department of Community and Regional Affairs; Leo Rasmussen, City of Nome; L.C. Farnen, City of Homer; Kathy Herold, City of Homer; Carol Maser, Anchorage Assembly; Jenny Files, Fort Yukon; and former Mayor Bill Wood, Fairbanks.

Mayor Wood gave the first presentation. He spoke on the need for municipalities to have developmental authority in order to encourage investments within the cities and boroughs. He submitted a letter from the City of Fairbanks regarding tax incentive programs and referred to Fairbanks ordinance 3906. The Technical Committee was directed to review AS 29.53.025.

John Halliwill, Mayor of Haines spoke in favor of the elimination of Third Class Boroughs.

Bob Juettener, City Manager of McGrath spoke on the problems of communities with small populations supporting the large number of organizations making up municipal government. He recommended an evaluation of second class cities and abolishing those that are not functioning. He suggests that the group providing the best service delivery be chosen as the governing body of a community. He feels the different classifications of cities should be abolished and provisions made for local options con erning the assumption of powers and form of government. He sees a need in the bush for a means of dealing with the executive branch of government, perhaps a regional or sub-regional elected body in the Unorganized Borough.

Ivan Widom, City Manager of Nome said there was a need to regionalize concepts in order to see what is happening in specific areas. He recommends giving communities mechanisms for reaching the state in order to benefit from services offered. Mr. Widom also recommended giving communities the option of choosing their own form of government, such as home rule.

Michael Tavoleiro, City Manager of Saxman spoke next, saying there was no definition of local government, i.e , no expressed definition of eligibility characteristics. He feels that second class cities within an organized borough are disenfranchised from planning powers. He stated also that second class cities should have direct access to federal and state programs instead of being required to go through the borough. Mr. Tavoliero cited the Historical Districts program as an example. He feels that local communities should be allowed more self-sufficiency.

Larry Farnen, City Manager of Homer spoke in reference to 29.48.260. He recommended raising the dollar amount in that section from $25,000 to $250,000. He wants cities to have the authority to lease land to beneficial new industry. In reference to planning and zoning powers, Mr. Farnen recommended the statutory language be changed to allow boroughs to assume planning and zoning powers if the cities are not willing to exercise them.

Dan Ogt, Mayor of the Kodiak Island Borough cited AS 29.30.160 saying there was no provision for special elections, and recommended special elections be mandated in the statutues.

Richard Careaga, Planning Director for the City of Unalaska wants more definition/clarification of mandatory powers and duties.

Leo Rasmussen, Mayor of Nome said small government feels that it has lost control of its own destiny. Planning is being taken over by REAAs and SRAAs. He said Nome feels threatened by the possible organization of the Unorganized Borough and he asked for more local automony.

Returning to Old Business, the Policy Group continued its review of the recommended drafting changes submitted by the Technical Committee. Sec. 29.30.210 was reviewed. James Kohler moved to not accept the drafted change but to retain the current language. Charles Parr amended the motion, and it carried. The chair directed staff to clarify the wording of the current statute and resubmit it at the next meeting of the Policy Group. Secs. 29.30.220, 29.30.225, 20.30.230, 29.30.240, 29.30.250, 29.30.260, 29.30.270,29.30.280, 29.30.290, 29.30.300, 29.30.310, 29.30.320, were accepted with no changes or some wording changes. 29.30.330 was sent back to the Technical Committee for redrafting.

Two subcommittees were formed and are to give reports at the next meeting on AS 29.09.180 Organization Grants (Chair-McCarter) and AS 29.30.040 Voter Qualifications (Chair-Dimmick).

Two sections of Title 29 considered obsolete were discussed. The Policy Group will recommend the repeal of the sections on Involvement of Young People in Local Government and the repeal of the sections on Development Cities.

The dates of the next meeting of the Policy Advisory Group were set for 15, 16, and 17 December, 1980 in Anchorage.

Staff is to review the definition of "petitioner".

The meeting was adjourned at 4:30 p.m.

Respectfully submitted,

Melissa Aber Fouse

TITLE 29 REVISION COMMISSION
Policy Advisory Group Meeting

Minutes of September 29 & 30, 1980

The second meeting of the Policy Advisory Group of the Title 29 Revision Commission was held September 29, 1980 in Courtroom K of the Alaska Court System Building, 303 K Street, Anchorage, Alaska. The meeting was called to order by Senator Arliss Sturgulewski, Chairman, at 9:00 a.m.

Present as members of the Policy Group were: Senator Arliss Sturgulewski, Representative Charles H. Parr, Ronald Larson, Russell W. Walker, Marilyn Dimmick, Donna Sherby, Jonathan Solomon, James Kohler, Ted Berns, and Dennis Sheldon representing Terry Cook. Ex-Officio members present were Ginny Chitwood and Phil Smith. Richard Garnett, III was there as a member of the Technical Committee. Ted Berns and Russell Walker are members of both the Policy Group and the Technical Group. Present from the staff of Legal Services were Jack Chenowith and Tamara Cook.

There to make presentations to the Policy Group were C. Demming Cowles, Deputy Commissioner of the Department of Environmental Conservation; David Dye, Planner for the Department of Community and Regional Affairs; Dr. Fred McGinnis, Deputy Commissioner of the Department of Health and Social Services; Stephanie Scott, representing the Haines Borough Assembly; and Mike Walleri representing Tanana Chiefs, Inc.

Guests and members of the public attending were: Stuart Bowdoin, Bristol Bay Borough; Gary Bradford, Bristol Bay Borough, Glen Svendsen, Administrative Assistant, Senate Community and Regional Affairs Committee; Cris Fowler, AOGA Regulatory Reform Committee; Ray Menninger from Haines; Jim Bennett, researcher for AVCP (Calista Corporation); Ellen Greenburg, and Emily Larson.

After the meeting was called to order and guests introduced themselves, Commissioner Cowles began the presentations. He spoke regarding the functions of the Department of Environmental Conservation which could be locally done and raised policy questions about whether state or local government should be in charge of the following functions:

1. Water system and sewage disposal inspections.
2. Subdivision review of on-site sanitation capabilities.
3. Basic sanitation inspections of restaurants, hotels, etc.

4. Clean up of small oil spills.

5. The issuing of oily waste burn permits and surface oiling permits.

6. Litter control.

7. Vehicular emmissions control.

Changes to Title 29 would have to be made to allow for delegation of these powers. Commissioner Cowles suggested that the statutes could make it optional for small communities to assume these powers and provide for state reimbursement, because money for communities to perform these services is a problem.

Stephanie Scott representing the Haines Borough Assembly spoke next. The borough of Haines would like a clarification of the powers of third class boroughs. She reported that the Borough Chairman had the following recommendations to make:

1. Rewrite 29.48.260(e) to relieve procedural requirements under Libby vs. Dillingham.

2. Include inventories as optional exemptions from personal property taxation.

Ms. Scott stated there would be teleconference facilities available in Haines December 1, and there was a great deal of local interest in participating in a teleconference with the Policy Group.

David Dye, Planner III for the Department of Community and Regional Affairs made these recommendations from his division:

1. The law should be amended to allow municipal land exchanges with individuals. Municipal expansion land in some cases is located too far from the community to be used for municipal expansion. The definition of "municipal purpose" should be clarifed.

2. Subsection (c) of 29.48.260 sets out two procedural requirements for land disposal. Mr. Dye reccommends that lottery be added as an equitable way of disposing of land which is not based on wealth.

3. The provision for voter ratification of disposal of land valued at more than $25,000.00 should be changed to reflect current land values. A more realistic figure would be 50,000.00 to 100,000.00 dollars.

4. Subsection (d) of 29.48.260 exempts lands derived from the state from procedural requirements. C&RA suggests that exemption turn on the purpose of disposal, not the source of the land.

5. Under ANCSA, people who have occupied land after December 18, 1971 do not receive title to that land. C&RA would like a preference right for occupiers of land after that date to allow them to purchase land without having to bid.

6. Mr. Dye would like a definition of "official map".

7. The wording of AS 29.23.090 should be changed to substitute "land use regulation" for "zoning".

8. C&RA suggests that rather than a platting waiver provision, the section include a "short plat" provision to allow for additional platting requirements if the land were subsequently re-subdivided.

9. AS 29.33.070(b)(2) allows boroughs to delegate planning and zoning to cities. The Department of Community and Regional Affairs believes in consistent area-wide planning and wants only the delegation of enforcement and administration of planning.

10. The sections regarding Development Cities should be deleted.

Mike Walleri of Tanana Chiefs, Inc. spoke regarding municipal lands disposal and the need for preference to occupiers of land regarding purchasing rights. This should, however, be subject to the municipality's sanction of the use of the land. Mr. Walleri recommends a waiver of the requirements for land payments to the municipality, or that the state assist buyers in paying for the land. Tanana Chiefs would support a lottery system if the preference rights and waiver of payments to municipalities were included. Mr. Walleri spoke in favor of integrating traditional native governments into the municipal system, possibly through recognition by the state of the status of native governments as local state governments.

Dr. Fred McGinnis of the Department of Health and Social services told us that his department recommends the delegation of health powers to municipalities. If municipalities were to take over the providing of services, the DHSS would still receive federal funding, would disburse the funds, would audit programs, supervise, and be responsible to the federal government for the administration of the programs. He emphasized that these powers should be optional rather than mandatory, and that in the absence of local government being able to take over the function of health services, a local contractor could provide them.

After the presentations, the committee considered Old Business. Phil Smith gave a report on the conclusions of the Information Dissemination Committee. Their recommendations are: take advantage of scheduled meetings and conventions being held by interested groups; put inserts in newsletters; buy space in newspapers; and use the teleconference network. Mr. Smith reported that the Alaska Federation of Natives Convention will be making a room available for us at the Sheraton. Chairman Sturgulewski said a member of each group should be available to attend the AFN Convention. She also directed the Department of Community and Regional Affairs to prepare an article on the Title 29 revision project for newsletters.

Ted Berns gave a report from the Technical Committee. He explained the draft index of Title 29, saying the reorganization had been done by subject matter. Mr. Berns told the Policy Group that the Technical Group was now ready to start drafting and the group had broken up into smaller groups to work on specific changes.

Chairman Sturgulewski said the Policy Group would like justification of all drafted changes in the form of memos pointing out the pluses and minuses of each change.

Ted Berns suggested that the Policy Group go through the index section by section and determine policy questions.

The Policy Group reviewed the index until recessing at 4:30.

The meeting was called to order 30 September 1980 at 9:00 a.m. by Chairman Sturgulewski. With the exception of Bob Lohr sitting in for Phil Smith, the same members were present. Guests were: Bob Walker of Exxon; Cris Fowler of the AOGA Regulatory Reform Committee; David Dye from the Department of Community and Regional Affairs; Stephanie Scott, Ray Menninger, and Vivian Menniger from the Haines Borough; Glen Svendsen, Administrative Assistant to the Senate Community and Regional Affairs Committee; and Mike Walleri, Tanana Chiefs, Inc.

The Policy Group continued their review of the Title 29 index and the Technical Group was directed to make recommendations regarding the following:

1. AS 29.13.100. Review and make recommendations as to the limitations of home rule powers.

2. Edit the whole of Title 29 so that definitions are consistent.

3. List those procedures which can be handled by ordinances.

4. Prepare drafts to change prohibitions on powers.

5. Draft changes to the statute regarding initiative and referendum.

6. Draft provisions for emergency situations arising from the lack of a quorum.

7. Redraft statute enabling budget actions to take place other than by ordinance. Enable an individual municipality to set it's own limits.

8. Make recommendations regarding whether first class boroughs should be eliminated and consider the impact of this step.

9. Find out whether second class boroughs would still be able to implement a similar program if the statute about the Involvement of Young People in Local Government were to be deleted.

Chairman Sturgulewski directed that the Local Boundary Commission and Alan Tesche be invited to make a presentation in defense of retaining the statutes regarding Development Cities.

Ron Larson moved the Policy Group retain the 3-year residency requirement for candidates for municipal office. The motion was seconded, Jim Kohler raised a point of order. The motion carried.

Marilyn Dimmick moved that the wording of the grounds for recall be deleted. The motion was seconded. Ron Larson moved to table the motion. Larson's motion failed. Ted Berns moved to postpone the motion until the next meeting. The motion for postponement passed.

Bob Lohr of RuralCAP was directed to come back with specific recommendations for the Technical Group regarding small communities and their problems.

The meeting was adjourned at 4:00 p.m.

TITLE 29 REVISION COMMISSION
Policy Advisory Group Meeting

Minutes of September 29 & 30, 1980

The second meeting of the Policy Advisory Group of the Title 29 Revision Commission was held September 29, 1980 in Courtroom K of the Alaska Court System Building, 303 K Street, Anchorage, Alaska. The meeting was called to order by Senator Arliss Sturgulewski, Chairman, at 9:00 a.m.

Present as members of the Policy Group were: Senator Arliss Sturgulewski, Representative Charles H. Parr, Ronald Larson, Russell W. Walker, Marilyn Dimmick, Donna Sherby, Jonathan Solomon, James Kohler, Ted Berns, and Dennis Sheldon representing Terry Cook. Ex-Officio members present were Ginny Chitwood and Phil Smith. Richard Garnett, III was there as a member of the Technical Committee. Ted Berns and Russell Walker are members of both the Policy Group and the Technical Group. Present from the staff of Legal Services were Jack Chenowith and Tamara Cook.

There to make presentations to the Policy Group were C. Demming Cowles, Deputy Commissioner of the Department of Environmental Conservation; David Dye, Planner for the Department of Community and Regional Affairs; Dr. Fred McGinnis, Deputy Commissioner of the Department of Health and Social Services; Stephanie Scott, representing the Haines Borough Assembly; and Mike Walleri representing Tanana Chiefs, Inc.

Guests and members of the public attending were: Stuart Bowdoin, Bristol Bay Borough; Gary Bradford, Bristol Bay Borough, Glen Svendsen, Administrative Assistant, Senate Community and Regional Affairs Committee; Cris Fowler, AOGA Regulatory Reform Committee; Ray Menninger from Haines; Jim Bennett, researcher for AVCP (Calista Corporation); Ellen Greenburg, and Emily Larson.

After the meeting was called to order and guests introduced themselves, Commissioner Cowles began the presentations. He spoke regarding the functions of the Department of Environmental Conservation which could be locally done and raised policy questions about whether state or local government should be in charge of the following functions:

1. Water system and sewage disposal inspections.
2. Subdivision review of on-site sanitation capabilities.
3. Basic sanitation inspections of restaurants, hotels, etc.

4. Clean up of small oil spills.

5. The issuing of oily waste burn permits and surface oiling permits.

6. Litter control.

7. Vehicular emmissions control.

Changes to Title 29 would have to be made to allow for delegation of these powers. Commissioner Cowles suggested that the statutes could make it optional for small communities to assume these powers and provide for state reimbursement, because money for communities to perform these services is a problem.

Stephanie Scott representing the Haines Borough Assembly spoke next. The borough of Haines would like a clarification of the powers of third class boroughs. She reported that the Borough Chairman had the following recommendations to make:

1. Rewrite 29.48.260(e) to relieve procedural requirements under Libby vs. Dillingham.

2. Include inventories as optional exemptions from personal property taxation.

Ms. Scott stated there would be teleconference facilities available in Haines December 1, and there was a great deal of local interest in participating in a teleconference with the Policy Group.

David Dye, Planner III for the Department of Community and Regional Affairs made these recommendations from his division:

1. The law should be amended to allow municipal land exchanges with individuals. Municipal expansion land in some cases is located too far from the community to be used for municipal expansion. The definition of "municipal purpose" should be clarifed.

2. Subsection (c) of 29.48.260 sets out two procedural requirements for land disposal. Mr. Dye reccommends that lottery be added as an equitable way of disposing of land which is not based on wealth.

3. The provision for voter ratification of disposal of land valued at more than $25,000.00 should be changed to reflect current land values. A more realistic figure would be 50,000.00 to 100,000.00 dollars.

4. Subsection (d) of 29.48.260 exempts lands derived from the state from procedural requirements. C&RA suggests that exemption turn on the purpose of disposal, not the source of the land.

5. Under ANCSA, people who have occupied land after December 18, 1971 do not receive title to that land. C&RA would like a preference right for occupiers of land after that date to allow them to purchase land without having to bid.

6. Mr. Dye would like a definition of "official map".

7. The wording of AS 29.23.090 should be changed to substitute "land use regulation" for "zoning".

8. C&RA suggests that rather than a platting waiver provision, the section include a "short plat" provision to allow for additional platting requirements if the land were subsequently re-subdivided.

9. AS 29.33.070(b)(2) allows boroughs to delegate planning and zoning to cities. The Department of Community and Regional Affairs believes in consistent area-wide planning and wants only the delegation of enforcement and administration of planning.

10. The sections regarding Development Cities should be deleted.

Mike Walleri of Tanana Chiefs, Inc. spoke regarding municipal lands disposal and the need for preference to occupiers of land regarding purchasing rights. This should, however, be subject to the municipality's sanction of the use of the land. Mr. Walleri recommends a waiver of the requirements for land payments to the municipality, or that the state assist buyers in paying for the land. Tanana Chiefs would support a lottery system if the preference rights and waiver of payments to municipalities were included. Mr. Walleri spoke in favor of integrating traditional native governments into the municipal system, possibly through recognition by the state of the status of native governments as local state governments.

Dr. Fred McGinnis of the Department of Health and Social services told us that his department recommends the delegation of health powers to municipalities. If municipalities were to take over the providing of services, the DHSS would still receive federal funding, would disburse the funds, would audit programs, supervise, and be responsible to the federal government for the administration of the programs. He emphasized that these powers should be optional rather than mandatory, and that in the absence of local government being able to take over the function of health services, a local contractor could provide them.

After the presentations, the committee considered Old Business. Phil Smith gave a report on the conclusions of the Information Dissemination Committee. Their recommendations are: take advantage of scheduled meetings and conventions being held by interested groups; put inserts in newsletters; buy space in newspapers; and use the teleconference network. Mr. Smith reported that the Alaska Federation of Natives Convention will be making a room available for us at the Sheraton. Chairman Sturgulewski said a member of each group should be available to attend the AFN Convention. She also directed the Department of Community and Regional Affairs to prepare an article on the Title 29 revision project for newsletters.

Ted Berns gave a report from the Technical Committee. He explained the draft index of Title 29, saying the reorganization had been done by subject matter. Mr. Berns told the Policy Group that the Technical Group was now ready to start drafting and the group had broken up into smaller groups to work on specific changes.

Chairman Sturgulewski said the Policy Group would like justification of all drafted changes in the form of memos pointing out the pluses and minuses of each change.

Ted Berns suggested that the Policy Group go through the index section by section and determine policy questions.

The Policy Group reviewed the index until recessing at 4:30.

The meeting was called to order 30 September 1980 at 9:00 a.m. by Chairman Sturgulewski. With the exception of Bob Lohr sitting in for Phil Smith, the same members were present. TITLE 29 REVISION COMMISSION
Policy Advisory Group Meeting

Minutes of November 10 & 11, 1980

The third meeting of the Policy Advisory Group - Title 29 Revision Commission was held November 10 and 11, 1980 in the East Gold Room of the Traveler's Inn, Fairbanks, Alaska. The meeting was called to order by Senator Arliss Sturgulewski, Chairman, at 10:45 a.m.

Present as members of the Policy Advisory Group were: Senator Arliss Sturgulewski, Senator Bob Mulcahy, Senator-elect Charles Parr, Representative Margaret Branson, Ted Berns, Terry Cook, Marilyn Dimmick, Ronald Larson, Gene Moore, Donna Sherby, and Russell Walker. Present as Ex-Offico Members were Palmer McCarter, and Bonnie Hedley from RuralCAP substituting for Phil Smith. The Technical Committee was represented by Ted Berns and Russell Walker as members of both groups, and by Allan Tesche. Present from the staff of Legal Services were Billy G. Berrier, Director and Tamara Brandt Cook, Legislative Counsel.

Guests and members of the public attending were: Stephanie Scott, Haines Borough; Cris Fowler, AOGA; Bob Walker, Exxon; Mike Walleri, Tanana Chiefs; John Arney, Haines Borough; Bob Juettner, City of McGrath; Michael Tavoliero, City of Saxman; Marie Matsuno, Department of Community and Regional Affairs; Ivan Widom, City of Nome; Lisa Buskirk, Tanana Chiefs; John Halliwill, City of Haines; Tommy Nebel, Ketchikan Borough; Kathy Carssow, Ketchikan Borough; Marvin Yoder, Ketchikan Borough; Tom Blanton, Haines Borough; Jerry Clifton, Haines Borough Assembly; Dan Ogt, Kodiak Island Borough; Shirley Collins, Haines; Jack Carpenter, Sitnasuak Native Corporation; Edward A. Stahla, City of Wrangell; Richard Careaga, City of Unalaska; Robert Flint, Wohlforth & Flint; Jack P. Van Leuven, RainierBank.

There were no presentations by guests or members of the public.

Under Old Business, Palmer McCarter reported on ways of getting materials and information to the public. He said the Department of Community and Regional Affairs was planning newsletter inserts and coordinating with the University of Alaska for a special issue of their newsletter to include an insert concerning the revision of Title 29. Chairman Sturgulewski directed Bonnie Hedley to coordinate information activities with Mr. McCarter and Tamara Cook.

Bonnie Hedley gave a report from RuralCAP on special problems of rural communities. She stated that rural communities have little "hook-up" with state agencies and therefore have little access to programs and money. The legislature never meets as the assembly for the Unorganized Borough. It is felt that there are not enough people in small communities to perform all the required municipal functions as well as the functions of existing forms of government, such as IRA councils. RuralCAP recommends the recognition of IRA councils. Chairman Sturgulewski directed staff to prepare a memo on these issues.

Mike Walleri presented a new draft of his report entitled "Tribal-State Relations, A New Paradigm for Local Government in Alaska". The chair directed staff to review it.

Chairman Sturgulewski reported attending a meeting of the AVCP in Bethel, and said they were getting funds to do a regional government study. She also reported on attending the AFN convention in Anchorage. The people she talked to questioned parallel governments and duplication of functions in the communities where there were municipal governments as well as traditional governments.

Ginny Chitwood of the Municipal League was stranded in Juneau due to weather and her report was postponed.

Billy Berrier reported what the Commission had done to date. Ted Berns said the Technical Committee planned to present final recommendations to the Policy Group by the 15th of December, 1980.

The Technical Committee presented their proposed drafts for consideration to the Policy Group. Representative Branson moved that the Policy Group accept all recommended changes except those requiring more discussion. The motion was seconded and carried. The following sections were accepted. (Note: There were wording changes in some in the following) Sec. 29.06.010, Sec. 29.06.050, Sec. 29.12.260, 29.15.020, 29.15.050, 29.15.110, 29.65.050, 29.30.010, 29.30.020, 29.30.030, 29.30.050, 29.30.095, 29.30.110, 29.30.120, 29.30.130, 29.30.140, 29.30.150, 29.30.160, 29.30.170, 29.30.180. Sections 29.09.180 and 29.30.040 were sent to subcommittees for study.

The meeting was recessed until 9:00 a.m. 11 November 1980.

At 9:00 a.m. 11 November 1980 the meeting was again called to order in the East Gold Room of the Traveler's Inn, Fairbanks, Alaska. All members of the Policy Advisory Group were in attendance. Members of the public and guests who attended the day before were present and the following people attended as well: Ginny Chitwood, Ex-Oificio Member; Gerald Lee Sharp, Title 29 Technical Committee; Richard Garnett, III, Title 29 Technical Committee, David Dye, Department of Community and Regional Affairs; Leo Rasmussen, City of Nome; L.C. Farnen, City of Homer; Kathy Herold, City of Homer; Carol Maser, Anchorage Assembly; Jenny Files, Fort Yukon; and former Mayor Bill Wood, Fairbanks.

Mayor Wood gave the first presentation. He spoke on the need for municipalities to have developmental authority in order to encourage investments within the cities and boroughs. He submitted a letter from the City of Fairbanks regarding tax incentive programs and referred to Fairbanks ordinance 3906. The Technical Committee was directed to review AS 29.53.025.

John Halliwill, Mayor of Haines spoke in favor of the elimination of Third Class Boroughs.

Bob Juettener, City Manager of McGrath spoke on the problems of communities with small populations supporting the large number of organizations making up municipal government. He recommended an evaluation of second class cities and abolishing those that are not functioning. He suggests that the group providing the best service delivery be chosen as the governing body of a community. He feels the different classifications of cities should be abolished and provisions made for local options concerning the assumption of powers and form of government. He sees a need in the bush for a means of dealing with the executive branch of government, perhaps a regional or sub-regional elected body in the Unorganized Borough.

Ivan Widom, City Manager of Nome said there was a need to regionalize concepts in order to see what is happening in specific areas. He recommends giving communities mechanisms for reaching the state in order to benefit from services offered. Mr. Widom also recommended giving communities the option of choosing their own form of government, such as home rule.

Michael Tavoleiro, City Manager of Saxman spoke next, saying there was no definition of local government, i.e., no expressed definition of eligibility characteristics. He feels that second class cities within an organized borough are disenfranchised from planning powers. He stated also that second class cities should have direct access to federal and state programs instead of being required to go through the borough. Mr. Tavoliero cited the Historical Districts program as an example. He feels that local communities should be allowed more self-sufficiency.

Larry Farnen, City Manager of Homer spoke in reference to 29.48.260. He recommended raising the dollar amount in that section from $25,000 to $250,000. He wants cities to have the authority to lease land to beneficial new industry. In reference to planning and zoning powers, Mr. Farnen recommended the statutory language be changed to allow boroughs to assume planning and zoning powers if the cities are not willing to exercise them.

Dan Ogt, Mayor of the Kodiak Island Borough cited AS 29.30.160 saying there was no provision for special elections, and recommended special elections be mandated in the statutues.

Richard Careaga, Planning Director for the City of Unalaska wants more definition/clarification of mandatory powers and duties.

Stephanie Scott representing the Haines Borough spoke in defense of third class boroughs. The Haines Borough objects to the recommendation that third class boroughs be eliminated. She distributed a letter from the mayor of the Haines Borough asking what the basis for the recommendation was. The Haines borough wants a list of the reasons for the elimination of the third class borough. Marilyn Miller said that the Alaska Municipal League concurred with the elimination of third class boroughs, or at least opposed the formation of any more third class boroughs. The City of Haines also concurs with the elimination of third class boroughs. Ted Berns made a motion that the Policy Group go on the record as concuring with the Alaska Municipal League's position that third class boroughs be eliminated. The motion carried. The chair directed the Technical Committee to draft language which eliminates the formation of third class boroughs but which does not alter the status of the Haines Borough.

The question of Organization Grants is to be held for the next meeting of the Policy Group.

The chair directed the Department of Community and Regional Affairs to look into dissemination of information regarding non-taxable property to state assessors.

Tim Troll says the 14c3 negotiations are affected by the current municipal properties statute and approves of the recommended change.

The dates of the next Policy Advisory Group meeting were set for the 17th and 18th of January, 1981 in Juneau. The Technical Group will have one more meeting as well.

The meeting was adjourned at 4:30 p.m. 17 December 1980.

Present as members of the Policy Advisory Group were: Senator Arliss Sturgulewski, Senator Charles Parr, Senator Bob Mulcahy, Ted Berns, Margaret Branson, Tim Troll substituting for Terry Cook, Marilyn Dimmick, Ronald Larson, Gene Moore, Russell Walker, James Kohler and Jonathan Solomon. Present as Ex-Officio members were Palmer McCarter, Ginny Chitwood, and Phil Smith. Present representing the Technical Committee were Lee Sharp and Jim Nordale. Ted Berns and Russell Walker are members of both groups. Present from the staff of Legal Services were Tamara Brandt Cook, Legislative Counsel, and Bernie Tuggle, Legal Extern.

Guests and members of the public attending were: Senator Don Gilman, Chairman, Senate Community and Regional Affairs Committee; David Dye, Legislative Assistant; Stephanie Scott, Haines Borough; Glen Svendsen, Legislative Assistant to Senator Sturgulewski.

Larry Kimball of the Division of Community Planning, Department of Community and Regional Affairs gave a presentation concerning planning for small communities.

Under Old Business, the approval of the minutes was postponed until copies of the minutes could be distributed and read by all the members present.

The report by the subcommittee chairman on AS 29.09.180 was postponed due to the Technical Committee resubmitting a recommendation and the Department of Community and Regional Affairs having drafted a bill changing the current statute.

The subcommittee report on AS 29.30.040 Voter Qualification resulted in the section being changed to require voters to be registered to vote 30 days before the municipal election in which they are seeking to vote. Municipalities may require, by ordinance, that voters be registered within their own precincts.

Presentations of recommendations by the Technical Group followed the subcommittee reports. The Policy Group adopted the recommended changes to Sections 29.06.010, 29.06.040, 29.06.050, 29.12.390, 29.24.170, 29.24.590, 29.27.050, 29.27.080, 29.30.160, 29.30.300, 29.30.330, 29.42.180, 29.33.200. Sections adopted by the Policy Group with wording changes were: 20.30.030. Recommendations not adopted were: 29.09.180, 29.24.010, 29.24.430, 29.27.010.

The minutes for the December Policy Group meeting were approved as corrected.

Senator Parr asked if minority reports would be part of the submission of the bill. The Chair said it would be individual repsonsibility to make available.

The meeting recessed at 5:00 p.m.

The meeting was called to order at 9:00 a.m. 18 January 1981 in the House Finance Committee Room. With the exception of Marilyn Miller substituting for Ginny Chitwood and the absence of Phil Smith the members attending were the same as the previous day. Guests and members attending were Stephanie Scott, Haines Borough; David Dye, Legislative Assistant, Senate Community and Regional Affairs Committee, and Glen Svendsen, Administrative Assistant to Senator Sturgulewski.

There were no presentations by guests or members of the public.

Tim Troll of St. Mary's had questions to ask on behalf of Terry Cook, Policy Group member from Alakanuk. All of the questions had been satisfied during the revision process with the exception of the post audit requirement for second class cities. The Chair directed Palmer McCarter to check into the audit requirement and respond to Tim Troll.

Ted Berns submitted a reorganized Municipal Powers and Duties section. The recommendation was accepted with the following exceptions: 29.33.010, 29.33.050(b), 29.33.070, 29.33.140, 29.33.150 wording changes. Sections 29.33.130 and 29.33.160 were accepted with substantive changes. (NOTE: These numbers are those used in Mr. Berns draft.)

Under policy issues discussed by the group: The chair will investigate wording and the issue of including unified municipalities in the mandatory powers sections. Land use being a specific problem. The Chair will also oversee the issue of municipalities having the power to accept grant monies. The Chair directed staff to clarify the wording of sections 29.33.160(c) and 29.36.130(c). Section 29.33.080 has been affected by legislation changing Title 42 and needs to be changed to conform.

The issue of differing rates of taxation for real and personal property was discussed. Palmer McCarter says the current interpretation used by C&RA is that the rates must be the same. Staff was directed to draft a provision clarifying that real and personal property must be taxed at the same rate.

Staff was directed to draft language to allow the Third class borough to go directly to Home Rule status. The issue of including language guiding the existing third class borough in the current statute was discussed. Ms. Cook said it would be inconsistent with previous "grandfathered" provisions. Palmer McCarter said the Department of Community and Regional Affairs would be willing to put out a handbook for Haines to follow.

Ronald Larson made a motion allowing staff and the Chair to review and clarify inconsistencies in the final draft.

The revised Title 29 was adopted unanimously and the meeting was adjourned at 4:00 p.m.

The Chair will also oversee the issue of municipalities having the power to accept grant monies. The Chair directed staff to clarify the wording of sections 29.33.160(c) and 29.36.130(c). Section 29.33.080 has been affected by legislation changing Title 42 and needs to be changed to conform.

The issue of differing rates of taxation for real and personal property was discussed. Palmer McCarter says the current interpretation used by C&RA is that the rates must be the same. Staff was directed to draft a provision clarifying that real and personal property must be taxed at the same rate.

Staff was directed to draft language to allow the Third class borough to go directly to Home Rule status. The issue of including language guiding the existing third class borough in the current statute was discussed. Ms. Cook said it would be inconsistent with previous "grandfathered" provisions. Palmer McCarter said the Department of Community and Regional Affairs would be willing to put out a handbook for Haines to follow.

Ronald Larson made a motion allowing staff and the Chair to review and clarify inconsistencies in the final draft.

The revised Title 29 was adopted unanimously and the meeting was adjournted at 4:00 p.m.

Respectfully submitted,

Melissa Aber Fouse

Audience introduced themselves

Running Coales - Dept. of Environmental Conservation

Functions of DEC which might be locally done.

1) On lot inspections of lots for sewage disposal, ck water supply system - These done for banks. If DEC does not do this, banks indicate that loans would be difficult to appraise. Issue: Is DEC the appropriate group to review this or should a local intity do this?

- I missed one

2) Basic sanitation inspections, restraunts, hotels, etc. Should this be done on a local level? Some communities (Anchorage, Ketchican, Fairbanks) are assuming some of these functions already. Problem: financing for local entities

3) Small oil spills. DEC suggests that small communities should do more of the clean up because it is hard to get staff there. Are working on developing a program to allow communities to develope their own clean up plans and capability.

5) Oily waste haven permit. and surface oiling permits.

6) Litter control.

7) Vehicular emmissions - Anch/Fairbanks are the only communities with air pol. problems (carbon emmissions) Would like to see communities assume responsibility for emmissions.

Changes to Title 29 would have to be made to allow for this delegation

* - Will present change to Tech. Committee

1) optional

2) State reimbursement

Problems

1) Money for communities to perform these functions

II Speaker - Stephanus Scott - 3rd class Borough

1) Clarification of Gen. Powers of third class boroughs Are third class boroughs prohibited, except on a service are basis, from exercising the general powers? S.S. argues that the general powers must apply to third class borough.

- Tech. changes 29.41.020 weighted voting
29. 23.021 (c)

"The borough executive is president of the school board..."

Recommendations

1) Support adoption of 29.48.260(e) to relieve procedural requirements under Libby v Dillingham

2) Inventories be exempted from personal ppty tax as optional exemption.

Oct 26 - teleconference system will be operative & request that they be kept involved with Title 29 revision.

III Speaker - David Dye, D of C & RA

Problems

1) 29.48.~~46~~ 260 - "Land no longer required of municipal purposes..."

A) Allow municipal land exchanges w/ individuals. Municipal expansion land in some cases is located too far from the community to be used for expansion.

B) Refine "municipal purpose" Disposal of land for beneficial industry has been held not to be "municipal purpose."

C) Subsection (c) mentions 2 procedures for land disposals. Would like to add "lottery" as an equitable way of spreading land not based on wealth – i.e. no "higher bidder."

D) Voter ratification for any disposal of land valued at $25,000 – raise 2 to 4 times present figure.

E) Subsection (d) exempts state land from procedural requirements. Suggests that exemption turn on purpose of disposal, not source of land.

F) Subsection (e) disposal of land for "beneficial industries" – should this type of disposal be excused from procedural requirements?

2) Sec. 14(c) of ANCSA – preference in ~~for~~ right of person using land ended Dec. 18, 1971. People who have occupied land after that date are not entitled to the land. Would like a preference right in users to purchase land without having to bid.

3) Wants definition of "official map"

4) Wants change in wording 29.23.090 – change "zoning" to land use regulation"

5) 29.23.170 – platting waiver – rather than waiver provision, would like "short plat" provision.

6) 29.33.070(b)(2) – allows boroughs to delegate planning/zoning to cities. Dept. believes in consistent areawide planning – wants only delegation of enforcement/admin. of planning

7) Dev. cities – Eliminate

IV - Speakers - Mike Walleri - Tanana Chiefs

1) Problems re getting title to people who have moved onto lands after 1971 - Supports a preference right for these people under approval of local governing body. Blanket preference would sanction squatters on municipal land.

2) 14(c) ANCSA - provision for waiver of payment to municipal land. Assessed value of in town lots is beyond the means of current residents. State should assist rural residents by encouraging waiver of payment on part of city council. Question should be left to local community, to view as revenue lands if desired.

3) Evolving native governments into state system.

- Hard for state to delegate performance of function to local gov., if they don't exist.
- Parallel systems of gov. - native/city are lines of jurisdiction are unclear & expensive to operate 2 gov.
- Enactment of Tribal State Compact Act eminent dlt would provide authorization for state/tribal gov. to enter into agreements for performance of services + fed. funds when state operates programs thru tribal gov.

Solutions

1) Incorporate under state law problem tribal character is lost, fed. gov. does not recognize them as tribal gov.

II - Speaker Fred McGinnis, Dept of HESS.

Dept. is decentralizing the provision of services.

1) If authority were statutorily delegated to local governments to administer provision of services - HESS would still receive Fed funds & disperse them, contract audits, & be subject to audit. Would like local administration of Fed. programs

18 states are state supervised, administered by local gov.

- Note: failure to provide for ~~administration~~ delegation which complies w/ fed requirements will jeopardize Fed funds.

Recess - Noon

Article 1. Regular and Special Elections

OK

Sec. 29.28.010. Administration.

(a) The borough assembly or city council shall prescribe the general rules for conducting municipal elections and [APPOINT AT LEAST THREE JUDGES FOR EACH POLLING PLACE.] shall appoint election boards, composed of at least three judges, for each precinct. The judges shall, to the extent possible, be appointed from among the qualified voters of each of the precincts for which they are appointed. [See AK 15.10.120] [The municipality may not alter voter qualification requirements of this title.]

(b) This section applies to home rule and general law municipalities.

Attempted to clarify election board appointment and referenced '80 revised AK 15.10.120 for consistency. Deleted "The municipality may not alter . . ." because issue is addressed at Sec. 29.28.030.

29.28 ELECTIONS

Sec. 29.28.015. Nominations.

(a) The assembly or council shall provide by ordinance the procedure for the nomination of elected officers by [PROVIDING FOR] declaration of candidacy, or petition requiring the signatures of not more than 10 [VOTERS] ~~qualified electors~~ voters, or both. Motion to delete "qualified" passed.

(b) A person may be nominated for and occupy more than one office, but he may not serve simultaneously as borough mayor and as a member of the borough assembly or as mayor and as a member of the council of a first class city.

Lee Sharp suggests that it should be left to local option as to whether the mayor in a manager-type municipality should be permitted to be a member of the legislative body so long as he does not have the veto power. If the Committee supports this suggestion, (b) should be amended.

Sec. 29.28.020. Election dates.

(a) [THE DATE OF A] Regular municipal elections [IS THE] shall be held on the first Tuesday of October annually [, OR ON A DATE OF ELECTION] or at an interval of years as provided by ordinance. Leave & clarify

(b) The assembly or council may call a special election upon at least 20 days' notice.

29.28 ELECTIONS

Sec. 29.28.030 Voter qualification.

(a) A person may vote at any election who meets the requirements of AS 15.05.010 - .040, who is registered to vote in State elections and is not disqual'fied under Article V of the State Constitution, who has been a resident of the municipality for 30 days immediately preceding the election, (added: 00 is registered in ~~and whose name appears on the official registration list for~~ the precinct in which he presents himself to vote.) (See AS 15.07.010 - '80)

(b) Voter registration by the municipality may not be required, and a municipality may not alter voter qualification requirements.

(c) This section applies to home rule and general law municipalities.

Incorporates Municipal League recommendation.

29.28 ELECTIONS Alternate A

Sec. 29.28.040 Majority elections

(a) An assembly or council may by ordinance provide the requirement for a runoff election if no one candidate receives in excess of 40 percent of the votes cast for a respective office.

(b) An assembly or council may by ordinance require a majority vote for the election of officials. A runoff election or other means of obtaining a majority may be used.

This amendment would require municipalities to enact an ordinance providing for runoffs; otherwise, all municipalities would be exempt from this present requirement

---

Alternate B

Sec. 29.28.040 Majority elections

(a) If in a municipal election no candidate receives in excess of 40 percent of the votes cast for his respective office, the assembly or council shall hold a runoff election between the two candidates receiving the greatest number of votes for the office. The runoff election shall be held within three weeks from the date of certification of the election for which the runoff is required and notice of the runoff election shall be published at least five days prior to the election date. An assembly or council may by ordinance exempt its elections from the requirements of this section.

(b) An assembly or council may by ordinance require a majority vote for the election of officials. A runoff election or other means of obtaining a majority may be used.

Sec. 29.28.040 cont'd
Alternate B

This amendment would allow municipalities to enact an ordinance which would exempt them from the runoff requirement. The change to three weeks (from two weeks) for the date of the runoff allows the additional time necessary so cities within boroughs can coordinate their runoffs and hold them at the same time.

Sec. 29.28.040 Majority elections Alternate C

(a) If in a municipal election no candidate receives in excess of 40 percent of the votes cast for his respective office, the assembly or council shall hold a runoff election between the two candidates receiving the greatest number of votes for the office. The runoff election shall be held within three weeks from the date of certification of the election for which the runoff is required and notice of the runoff election shall be published at least five days prior to the election date. A municipality may exempt itself from the requirement of this section if a majority of the voters voting on the question at any regular election or a special municipality-wide election called for that purpose, vote to exempt its municipal elections from the requirements of this section.

(b) An assembly or council may by ordinance require a majority vote for the election of officials. A runoff election or other means of obtaining a majority may be used.

This amendment would allow municipalities to exempt itself from the runoff requirement by means of voter ratification. Incorporates Municipal League recommendation.

If no such action is commenced within the 10-day period, the election and election results shall be conclusive, final and valid in all respects. (§ 2 ch 118 SLA 1972)

TITLE 29 REVISION

PROPOSAL FOR INITIATIVE AND REFERENDUM
(Formerly AS 29.28.060-110)

October 20, 1980

29.30.090 Reservation of Powers. The powers of initiative and referendum are reserved to the residents of municipalities except the powers do not extend to matters restricted by §7, art. XI of the State Constitution.

(Unchanged.)

29.30.095 Application. An initiative or referendum is proposed by an application containing the legislative matter to be initiated or referred. The application shall be signed by not less than ten qualified voters as sponsors, shall contain the address to which all correspondence relating to the application may be sent, and shall be filed with the clerk. The clerk shall certify the application if he finds that the application is in proper form, and in addition, if the application is for an initiative, that the matter to be initiated is not restricted by §90, embraces only a single subject, and as to each part, would not be unenforceable as a matter of law. The clerk's certification or denial of certification shall be subject to judicial review.

(This section is new. The first part is modeled after §2 of the initiative article in the state constitution. As drafted, this section would also make it clear that the clerk is to review initiatives for substantive legality and that the clerk's decision is subject to appeal. This procedure will allow for a judicial determination of the legality of an initiative prior to the expense of an election.)

NOT THE ITEM 2 WKS AGO

29.30.110 Petition. After certification of the application, a petition containing a summary of the subject matter shall be prepared by the clerk for circulation by the sponsors. The petition shall

(1) set out fully the ordinance or resolution sought to be initiated or referred by the petition;

(2) state upon the petition the date first issued by by the clerk;

(3) contain the statement, when circulated, that the signatures on the petition must be secured within 60 days of the date first issued;

(4) contain spaces for the required signatures, the printed name of each person signing the petition, the date of each signature, and both the resident and the mailing address of each signer;

(5) contain a statement to be signed and sworn to by the circulator stating the number of signatures on the petition page or pages, that ~~the~~ each circulator personally circulated the page or pages, that all signatures were affixed in his presence, that he believes them to be genuine signatures of the persons whose names they purport to be, that each signer had an opportunity before signing to read the full text of the proposed initiative or referred measure, and that he believes each signer to be a qualified municipal voter.

(This section would require the clerk to provide the petition forms to the petitioners. This is similar to the requirement levied upon the Lieutenant Governor in state initiative proceedings. The petition contents are essentially the same as present law (AS 29.28.065) with a shortening of the petition circulation time from 90 to 60 days, some expansion of the information the petition signers must provide, and the addition of the circulator's affidavit in (5) of the section.)

29.30.120 Required Signatures. (a) The necessary signatures on a petition shall be secured within ~~60~~ 90 days of the date the clerk first issues the petition. The petition shall be signed in ink or indelible pencil.

(b) Every petition, whether dealing with an areawide or a non-areawide matter, shall be signed by a number of registered voters residing within the territorial limits of the municipality equal to 25 percent of the number of votes cast at the last regular municipal election in the municipality which was held on or prior to the date of the first issuance of the petition.

(c) Illegible signatures shall be rejected by the clerk unless accompanied by a legible printed name. Signatures not accompanied by a legible residence address shall be rejected.

(d) A petition signer may withdraw his signature upon written application to the clerk at any time prior to certification of the petition by the clerk.

(e) The petition pages shall be assembled and filed as a single instrument.

(This section carries forward the 60 day signature gathering period. Although it does not eliminate the possibility of an initiative or referendum on a matter which affects only a service area, it does require that such petitions contain the same number of signatures as a petition on an areawise matter. Permitting a service area to initiate and vote upon a matter on a service area basis is contrary to the concept of the service area being under the control of the entire legislative body. If service areas are permitted to initiate and vote upon service area only initiatives, service areas will have the authority to become essentially autonomous units of government without a governing body. Other minor changes were made to require rejection of signatures which were illegible or failed to have additional legible information accompanying the signature.)

29.30.130 Sufficiency of Petition. (a) Within ten days of the date the petition is filed, the municipal clerk shall certify on the petition whether or not it is sufficient.

(b) If the petition is insufficient, it may be amended or supplemented with additional signatures which are obtained within ten days after the date on which the petition is rejected as insufficient.

(c) Within ten days after the supplementary filing, the clerk shall recertify the petition. If the petition is still insufficient, the petition is rejected and filed as a public record.

(The only significant change is to make it clear that in providing supplementary signatures, the petitioners have only ten days to gather the signatures and may not use petition signatures which were gathered prior to the first filing but not submitted, and that they may not use signatures gathered during the period in which the clerk is checking the petition.)

29.30.140 Protest. If the clerk certifies the petition is insufficient, a signer of the petition may file a protest with the municipal executive within seven days after the certification and the municipal executive shall present the protest at the next regular meeting of the assembly or council which shall hear and decide the protest.

(No change.)

29.30.150 New Petition. Failure to secure sufficient signatures does not preclude the filing of a new application for an initiative or referendum petition. However, a new application for a petition may not be filed sooner than six months after the petition is rejected by the clerk.

(This section was changed slightly to take into account the application procedure and to indicate that the rejection from which the six months is counted is a rejection by the clerk, not a rejection which might be deemed to have occurred if the matter is appealed to the assembly and the assembly sustains the clerk's rejection.)

29.30.160 Presentation of Initiative. (a) When a petition seeks enactment of an ordinance or resolution ~~within the powers of the assembly or council and not otherwise restricted by §90 of this chapter~~, the clerk shall present it to the assembly or council at its next meeting or spec. mtg called for that purp. after certification. The assembly or council may reject the petition if it determines the subject matter of the initiative or referendum is within the restrictions of §90 of this chapter or is unlawful.

make consistent w/ ↑

(b) An initative measure presented to the assembly or council and not rejected under section (a) shall be submitted to all the voters of the municipality at the next regular municipal election held more than 45 days after submission of the petition to the assembly or council, unless the assembly or council adopts substantially the same measure. If the assembly or council adopts substantially the same measure, the petition shall be void and the question shall not be submitted to the voters.

VETOS

(c) The ordinance or resolution shall be published in full in the notice of the election but may be summarized on the ballot to indicate clearly the proposal submitted.

(The changes here allow for the submission of an initiative measure at any time during the year, but it would be placed before the voters at the first regular municipal election occuring 45 days after submission to the assembly or council, unless rejected for cause or adopted in substantially the same form as presented. It also requires an areawide vote whether the matter is areawide or non-areawide for reasons outlined above.)

29.30.170 Presentation of referendum. (a) When a petition seeks a referendum vote on a legislative ordinance or resolution, the clerk shall submit the ordinance or resolution to all the voters of the municipality at the next regular or special election unless the assembly or council repeals the ordinance or resolution to be referred. If no regular or special election occurs within 75 days of the certification of a sufficient petition by the clerk, the assembly or council shall hold a special election within 75 days of filing.

(b) If a sufficient petition for referendum is certified before the effective date of the ordinance or resolution, the ordinance or resolution against which the petition is filed shall be suspended pending the referendum on the matter. During the period of suspension, the assembly or council may not enact an ordinance or resolution substantially similar to the suspended measure but may repeal the suspended ordinance or resolution.

(c) If the assembly repeals the ordinance or resolution before the election, the petition shall be void and the referred measure shall not be placed before the voters.

(d) If a majority of those voting favor the repeal of the referred measure, it is repealed; otherwise, it remains in effect or, if suspended under section (b), it shall become effective upon certification of the election results by the assembly or council.

(The ability to suspend an ordinance or resolution which had taken effect if a referendum petition was filed within 30 days of the passage of the ordinance or resolution has been deleted to avoid the apparent ability of a part of the voters to be able to exercise a temporary repeal of the measure. The reference to amending a charter by initiative or referendum was deleted as it is already covered under AS 29.13.080. This also requires submission of the question to the areawide voters for reasons outlined above.)

29.30.180 Effect. (a) The assembly or council may not, within two years of its effective date, repeal an ~~ordinance or resolution~~ adopted through the initiative process nor may it amend such an ordinance or resolution in a way to substantially modify or negate the effect of the successful initiative.

(b) If an ~~ordinance or resolution~~ against which a referendum is directed has been repealed by the assembly or council after a petition has been filed but before the referendum election, or if an ~~ordinance or resolution~~ is repealed by the voters in a referendum election, the council or assembly may not enact substantially similar legislation for a period of one year after the repeal. A measure which is repealed in a referendum election shall be repealed effective upon the certification of the election results by the assembly or council.

(c) An unsuccessful initiative or referendum precludes the filing of a new application for the same or substantially the same purpose sooner than six months after the initiative or referendum election results are certified by the assembly or council.

(Minor changes to make dates more certain and to accommodate the petition application process.)

(Alternate section suggested by Joanne Shannley)

Sec. 29.42.010. Planning, platting and land use regulation. (a) First and second class boroughs shall provide for planning, platting and land use regulation on an areawide basis.

(b) the assembly by ordinance may delegate any of its powers and responsibilities under (a) of this section (except as otherwise provided in this chapter) to the council of a city of any class within the borough or a subordinate board or commission of a city, provided the city first consents by ordinance to that delegation. The assembly, with or without the consent of the council may at any time revoke any or all powers or responsibilities delegated to a city council or subordinate body under this section.

(c) Notwithstanding the provisions of (b) of this section the functions of planning, platting, and land use regulation within a first class or home rule city located more than 25 miles from the boundary of the Borough seat may be assumed and exercised exclusively by that city upon ratification by the qualified voters residing in the city of an ordinance of the city council proposing exercise of those powers by the city.

[adapted from AS 29.33.070]

Sec. 29.42.020. Planning commission. (a) By ordinance the assembly shall establish a planning commission consisting of not less than five persons appointed and confirmed as provided by law. The assembly by ordinance shall also prescribe the qualifications, terms, and compensation of planning commissioners.

(b) In addition to those responsibilities prescribed by law, the planning commission shall:

(1) Prepare and recommend to the assembly a comprehensive plan for the systematic and organized development of the borough, as defined in .030 of this chapter.

(2) Prepare, recommend, and as required by law to administer those measures necessary to implement the comprehensive plan.

[adapted from AS 29.33.080]

Sec. 29.42.030. Comprehensive plan. (a) The comprehensive plan is a compilation of policy statements, goals, standards and maps for guiding the physical, social and economic development, both private and public, of the borough, and may include, but is not limited to, the following: statements of policies, goals, standards, a land use plan, a community facilities plan, a transportation plan, and recommendations for plan implementation.

(b) The assembly shall adopt a comprehensive plan based upon the recommendations of the planning commission. The assembly shall, with the advice and recommendations of the planning commission, undertake an overall review of the plan and update the plan as necessary to ensure the continued validity and effectiveness of the plan.

[adapted from AS 29.33.085]

Sec. 29.42.040. Land use regulation. In accordance with a comprehensive plan adopted under Section .030 of this chapter and in order to implement that plan, the assembly by ordinance and as a legislative act, may enact or amend regulatory measures governing the use and occupancy of land, including but not limited to:

(1) Zoning regulations which restrict or govern use of land and improvements by geographic districts;

(2) Construction, fire and life safety codes governing placement, erection and occupancy of structures;

(3) Land use permit systems designed to encourage specified uses and structures and to discourage others, or to minimize unfavorable externalaties of certain uses and structures.

(4) Other regulatory measures reasonably necessary to further the goals and objectives of the comprehensive plan.

(5) Measures defining and regulating public nuisances.

[adapted from AS 29.33.090]

Sec. 29.42.050. Appeals from administrative decisions. (a) By ordinance the assembly shall provide for appeals from administrative decisions of borough employees or boards and commissions made in the enforcement, administration, or application of land use regulations adopted by the borough under this chapter to a board of adjustment, hearing officer, or other independent quasi-judicial body established by the borough.

(b) By ordinance the assembly shall provide for appointment of hearing officers, or the composition, appointment and terms of office of a board of adjustment or other quasi judicial body established to hear appeals from administrative actions specified in (a) of this section and the assembly may define proper parties, prescribe evidentiary rules and standards of review and define remedies available to such bodies or hearing officers. [adapted from AS 29.33.110 and .120]

Sec. 29.42.060. Judicial review. (a) The assembly shall provide by ordinance for appeals from decisions of the board of adjustment, hearing officer or other quais-judicial board established under Sec. 050 of this chapter to the Superior Court by a municipal officer or person jointly or severally aggrieved.

(b) Appeals to the Superior Court under this section are administrative appeals and shall be governed by Rules of Court applicable to appeals from decisions of administrative agencies.

(c) Appeals are heard on the record established by the administrative agency, and the court may affirm, reverse, wholly or partly, the decision appealed from. Issues in proceedings under this section have preference over all other civil actions and proceedings.

[adapted from AS 29.33.130]

Sec. 29.42.070. Platting jurisdiction and power. (a) First and second class boroughs shall exercise the power to regulate platting and the subdivision of land on an areawide basis. By ordinance the assembly shall enact subdivision regulations:

(1) governing the form, size and other aspects of subdivision, dedications, and vacations of land;

(2) regulating dimensions and design features of lots or tracts;

(3) establishing strict width, arrangement, and right of way, including allowance for public access to lots and installation of street paving, curbs, gutters, sidewalks, sewers, water lines, drainage and other public utility facilities and improvements.

(4) requiring dedication of streets, rights of way, public utility easements and other areas deemed by the platting authority necessary for future public use.

(b) The assembly by ordinance shall establish a platting board to administer subdivision regulations adopted by the borough and perform other duties prescribed by law. The platting board may, in whole or in part, consist of members of the planning commission or of other municipal bodies, boards and commissions.

[adapted from AS 29.33.150]

Sec. 29.42.080. Application to state and political subdivisions. All subdivisions of land made by the state, its agencies, instrumentalities and political subdivisions are subject to the provisions of this chapter and AS 29.42.080 -- 29.42.170, or home rule ordinances or regulations governing subdivisions, and shall comply with ordinances and other local regulations adopted under this chapter and AS 29.42.080 -- 29.42.170, or under home rule authority, in the same manner and to the same extent as subdivisions made by private landowners.

[AS 40.15.200]

Sec. 29.42.090. Waiver in certain cases. (a) The platting authority shall, in individual cases, waive the preparation, submission for approval, and recording of a plat upon satisfactory evidence that:

(1) each tract or parcel of land will have adequate legal and physical access by the public to a public highway or street;

(2) each parcel created is five acres in size or larger and that the land is divided into four or fewer parcels;

(3) the conveyance is not made for the purpose of, or in connection with, a present or projected subdivision development;

(4) no dedication of a street, alley, thoroughfare or other public area is involved or required.

(b) In other cases the platting authority may waive the preparation, submission for approval, and recording of a plat, if the transaction involved does not fall within the general intent of 29.42.080 -- 29.42.170 of this chapter and AS 40.15 if it is not made for the purpose of, or in connection with, a present or projected subdivision development which constitutes an isolated transaction and no dedication of a street, alley, thoroughfare, park or other public area is involved or required.

[AS 29.33.170]

Sec. 29.42.100. Procedure. (a) The platting board shall within 60 days of filing approve or disapprove the plat or shall return it to the applicant for modification or correction. If the board fails to act, the plat is considered approved and a certificate of approval shall be issued by the board on demand. The applicant for plat approval may consent to the extension of the period for action by the board. The board shall state on its record and in writing to the applicant its reason for disapproval of a plat.

(b) The platting board shall submit an approved plat to the district recorder in compliance with AS 40.15.010 -- 40.15.020.

[AS 29.33.160]

Sec. 29.42.110. Information required. A plat shall show initial point of survey, original or reestablished corners and their descriptions, and actual traverse showing area of closure and all distances, angles and calculations required to determine initial point, corners and distances of the plat, as well as other information which may be required by ordinance.

[AS 29.33.180]

Sec. 29.42.120. Alteration of replat petition. No recorded plat may be altered or replatted except upon petition of the owners of a majority of the land affected by the application or replat or by the platting board. No platted street may be vacated, except upon petition of the municipality or owners of the majority of the front feet of the land fronting the part of the street sought to be vacated. The petition shall be filed with the platting board. It shall be accompanied by a copy of the existing plat showing the proposed alteration or replat.

[AS 29.33.200]

Sec. 29.42.130. Notice of hearing. The platting board shall fix a time for a hearing on the petition which shall not be more than 60 days after the filing. The board shall publish a notice stating when and by whom the petition was filed, its purpose, and the time and place of the hearing. The notice shall generally describe the alteration or replat sought. The notice shall be published once a week for two consecutive weeks in a newspaper of general circulation in the area. The board shall also mail a copy of the notice to each affected property owner not signing the petition.

[AS 29.33.210]

Sec. 29.42.140. Hearing and determination. At the hearing the platting board shall consider the alteration or replat and make its decision on the merits of the proposal. No vacation of a city street may be made without the consent of the city council. No vacation of a street in the borough area outside cities may be made without the consent of the borough assembly. The assembly or council shall have 30 days from the decision in which to veto the board decision. If no veto is received by the board within the 30-day period, the consent of the city or borough shall be considered to have been given to the vacation.

[AS 29.33.220]

Sec. 29.42.150. Recording. If the alteration or replat is approved, the revised plat must be recorded by the platting board and is thereafter the lawful plat.

[AS 29.33.240]

Sec. 29.42.160. Title to vacated area. (a) The title to the street or other public area vacated on a plat attaches to the lot or lands bordering on the area in equal proportions, except that if the area was originally dedicated by different persons, original boundary lines shall be adhered to so that the street area which lies on one side of the boundary line shall attach to the abutting property on that side and the street area which lies on the other side of the boundary line shall attach to the property on that side. The portion of a vacated street which lies within the limits of a platted addition attaches to the lots of the platted addition bordering on the area. If a public square is vacated, the title to it vests in the city if it lies within the city and to the borough if it lies within the borough outside a city. If the property vacated is a lot or tract, title vests in the rightful owner.

(b) If the borough or city acquired the street or other public area vacated for legal consideration or by express dedication to and acceptance by the borough or city other than required subdivision platting, before the final act of vacation the fair market value of the street or public area shall be deposited with the platting authority to be paid over to the borough or city on final vacation.

(c) Provisions of (a) of this section notwithstanding, the council of a second class city located outside an organized borough may vacate those streets, alleys, crossings, sidewalks or other public ways that may have been previously dedicated or established when the council, in its discretion, finds that the streets, alleys, crossings, sidewalks or other public ways are no longer necessary for the public welfare, or when the public welfare will be enhanced by the vacation. If the council determines that all or a portion of the area vacated under this subsection should be devoted to another public purpose, title to the area vacated and held for another public purpose does not vest as provided in (a) of this section but remains in the city.

[AS 29.33.240]

Sec. 29.42.170. Remedies. (a) It shall be unlawful for the owner or agent of the owner of land located within a subdivision to transfer, sell, offer to sell, or to enter into a contract to sell land in a subdivision before a plat of the subdivision has been prepared, approved and recorded in accordance with applicable municipal subdivision regulations enacted under this chapter. It shall be unlawful for any person to file or record a subdivision plat or other instrument depicting subdivided land in any public recorder's office unless that plat or document bears the approval of the municipal platting authority. Every act prohibited by this chapter or the maintenance of any condition prohibited by municipal subdivision regulations adopted in accordance with this chapter is unlawful and the willful commission of such act or maintenance of such condition is a misdemeanor. Every person convicted of a violation of any provision of this title or any municipal subdivision regulation adopted under this title or the terms, conditions, or limitations imposed by a municipal platting authority in the exercise of its powers under this title is guilty of a misdemeanor and may be punished by a fine not to exceed $500.

(b) If there is a violation of the terms of this chapter, municipal subidivision regulations adopted under this chapter, or any terms, conditions, or limitations imposed by a platting authority in the exercise of its powers under this chapter, the Borough or any aggrieved citizen may institute or cause to be instituted any appropriate civil action to prevent, abate, enjoin, estop, remove or punish such violation and to obtain monetary damages suffered by that party. In addition to injunctive and compensatory relief each violation shall be subject to a civil penalty not to exceed $1,000. An action to enjoin any violation to this title may be brought notwithstanding the availability of any other remedy. Upon application for injunctive relief and a finding of an existing or threatened violation, the Superior Court shall grant injunctive relief to restrain that violation.

(c) Every day upon which an unlawful act or condition shall occur shall constitute a separate violation.

(d) The platting authority may enjoin any partition, lease, transfer, or sale of land which would result in an unlawful subdivision. Following an unlawful petition, transfer, lease or sale, the platting authority may enjoin any further transfer, sale of all unlawfully subdivided parcels until such time as the parcels are dully subdivided or returned to common ownership.

Sec. 29.23.010. General legislative power. The legislative power of a Borough is vested in the assembly, and of a city, in the council.

[AS 29.23.021]

Sec. 29.23.015. Assembly composition and apportionment. (a) Assembly composition and apportionment shall be consistent with the equal representation standards of the Constitution of the United States.

(b) The Assembly of a newly incorporated borough is, after incorporation and until the adoption of an ordinance providing for a change in composition or apportionment, composed of the number of members and apportioned as set out in the incorporation petition approved by voters. If the borough is already incorporated, the assembly shall be composed and apportioned in a manner that is consistent with the requirements of this section and prescribed by charter or ordinance.

(c) An assembly may not provide for weighted voting.

(d) A member of the assembly of a borough may not be elected or appointed by and from the council of a city in the borough.

[AS 29.23.015]

Sec. 29.23.020. Composition and form of representation. (a) The borough assembly shall provide for its composition and for the form of its representation.

(b) Not later than the first regular election which occurs after the report of a federal decennial census, the assembly shall propose and submit to the voters of the borough, at that regular election or at a special election called for the purpose, one or more forms of borough assembly representation. The forms of representation which the assembly may submit to the voters are:

(1) election of members of the borough assembly at large by the qualified voters throughout the borough;

(2) election of members of the borough assembly by district including

(A) election at large by the qualified voters throughout the borough, but with a requirement that a candidate live within an election district established by the borough for elections of assembly members; or

(B) election from election districts established by the borough for the election of assembly members by the qualified voters of a district;

(3) election of members of the borough assembly both at large and by district.

(c) A form of borough assembly representation which includes election of borough assembly members under (b)(2) or (b)(3) of this section shall be submitted to the voters of the borough with a plan of apportionment as required by AS 29.23.025(a).

(d) The borough assembly shall, within 30 days of certification of the results of the election held on a proposed form of representation under this section, adopt an ordinance providing for its composition and the form of assembly representation, and, if applicable, the apportionment of assembly seats which corresponds to the proposed form of representation which receives the most votes at the elction.

(e) This section does not apply

(1) to a unified municipality incorporated under AS 29.68.240 - 29.68.440;

(2) to a home rule borough if the borough charter contains procedures for changing assembly composition and form of representation. [AS 29.23.021]

Sec. 29.23.025. Assembly recomposition and reapportionment. (a) Not later than two months after the official report of a federal decennial census, the borough assembly shall determine and declare by resolution whether the existing apportionment of the borough assembly meets the standards of AS 29.23.015. If the borough assembly submits to the voters a form of representation which includes election of borough assembly members under AS 29.23.020(b)(2) or (b)(3), the assembly shall submit with the proposition a proposed plan of apportionment which corresponds to the form of representation proposed. The assembly shall describe the plan of apportionment in the ballot proposition, and may present the plan in any manner which it believes accurately describes the apportionment which is proposed under the form of representation. If the borough assembly determines that its existing apportionment meets the standards of AS 29.23.015, the assembly may include the existing apportionment as a proposed plan of apportionment of assembly seats which corresponds to a form of representation which is proposed.

(b) The Borough assembly shall provide, by ordinance, for a change in an existing apportionment of the borough assembly whenever it determines that the apportionment does not meet the standards of AS 29.23.015. At the same time, the borough assembly may, by ordinance, change the composition of the assembly.

(c) If a petition signed by not less than 50 registered voters who are residents of the borough requests the borough assembly to determine whether the existing apportionment meets the standards for apportionment in AS 29.23.015, and the petition contains evidence that the existing apportionment does not meet those standards, the assembly may make the determination requested. The borough assembly shall make a determination required by this subsection within two months of receipt of a petition which meets the requirements of this subsection.

(d) An ordinance adopted by the assembly under (b) or (c) of this section shall be submitted to the voters for approval. In order for the ordinance to be approved it must receive the approval of a majority of the votes cast.

(e) Within six months of a determination by the borough assembly under (b) or (c) of this section that the current apportionment does not meet the standards of AS 29.23.015, the borough assembly shall adopt an ordinance providing for reapportionment, and submit the ordinance to the voters. If, at the end of the six month time period, an ordinance providing for reapportionment has not been approved by the voters, the commissioner of the Department of Community and Regional Affairs shall provide for the reapportionment in accordance with the standards of AS 29.23.015 by preparing an order of reapportionment and delivering the order to the borough mayor. [AS 29.23.025]

Sec. 29.23.030. Apportionment appeals. (a) A reapportionment ordinance approved by the voters, or a decision of the borough assembly that the standards of AS 29.23.015 do not require a change in apportionment, may be appealed to the commissioner of the Department of Community and Regional Affairs. Fifty registered voters who are residents of the borough may submit a petition to the commissioner of the Department of Community and Regional Affairs requesting the commissioner to determine whether the proposed reapportionment ordinance approved by the voters meets the standards of AS 2.23.015, or whether a decision of the borough assembly that the standards of AS 29.23.015 do not require a change of apportionment is correct. If the petition asks the commissioner of the Department of Community and Regional Affairs to review an ordinance approved by the voters under AS 29.23.025(e), the petition shall be delivered to the commissioner not later than 20 days after certification of the election. If the petition asks the commissioner of the Department of Community and Regional Affairs to review a decision of the borough assembly under AS 29.23.025(c), the petition shall be delivered to the commissioner within 20 days of the decision of the borough assembly.

(b) The commissioner of the Department of Community and Regional Affairs shall review the petition and may make the determination requested. The commissioner shall provide copies of his determination to the persons petitioning for appeal and to borough officials not later than 60 days after he receives the petition.

(c) If the commissioner of the Department of Community and Regional Affairs determines that the proposed reapportionment ordinance approved by the voters does not meet the standards of AS 29.23.015, or if he determines that the decision of the borough assembly that the standards of AS 29.23.015 do not require a change of reapportionment is not correct, the commissioner shall, by order, direct the borough assembly to prepare a reapportionment ordinance which meets the standards of AS 29.23.021 and submit the ordinance to the voters.

(d) When the borough assembly has been directed by the commissioner of the Department of Community and Regional Affairs to prepare a reapportionment ordinance under (c) of this section, the borough assembly shall, within two months of its receipt of the commissioner's order, adopt an ordinance providing for reapportionment. The borough assembly shall submit an ordinance adopted under this subsection to the voters at a regular election or special election held within 60 days of the date of adoption of the reapportionment ordinance.
