MEMORANDUM

May 6, 1986

SUBJECT: HCS CSSB 468 (Loans)
(Creating the Railbelt Energy Council)

TO: Representative John Sund
Chairman, House Special Committee on State
Loans

FROM: Teresa B. Cramer ABC
Legislative Counsel

You have asked whether the Railbelt energy council created by HCS CSSB 468 (Loans) would violate the separation of powers doctrine of the state constitution because its membership includes members of the legislative and executive branches of state government. Because the council's powers are limited to recommending and reporting, in my opinion there is no constitutional problem.

The Alaska Supreme Court has held that the state constitution recognizes the separation of powers doctrine. Bradner v. Hammond 553, P.2d 1, 5 (1976). Accordingly, the legislature is prohibited from intervening in an executive function. Conversely, the executive branch may not exercise legislative functions. The issue is whether the Railbelt energy council is empowered to exercise legislative or executive functions. Since the council is not assigned power to administer the laws or to enact laws, it is neither executing nor legislating.

The legislature has established other groups that included members of the executive and legislative branches as well as public members to consider matters and make recommendations, though typically these groups have been established by resolution rather than by a bill. The Alaska Railroad Transfer Advisory Commission, consisting of members from the executive branch, legislative branch and public members, was created by ch. 128, SLA 1982 to advise the legislature and the governor about issues concerning the transfer of the Alaska Railroad to non-federal ownership.

If I may be of further assistance, please advise.

18 state;
