Re: Child Support and Child Custody Matters

Dear Susan:

Attached is an order from the Court Trustee to mothers seeking child support payment, dated February 20, 1976.

I do not know what the consequences of this order are, or what the background to it is. However, I do know that our legal system is hopelessly inadequate with respect to protecting rights of mothers who are entitled to child support payments and who are not receiving them.

In most cases, it is uneconomic for an attorney to represent a mother who is having difficulty receiving child support payments. The result is the child support orders are not worth the paper they are written on, and the persons to whom they apply lose all respect for the law. It is absolutely essential that the State of Alaska play a major role in child support matters where the mother does not see fit to rely exclusively upon the services of a private attorney. In most cases, it does not make sense for a mother to seek the assistance of a private attorney, if there are any other alternative means available to her.

Generally, I think it is very important that the State of Alaska provide sufficient services of this kind - counseling, investigating, and similar followup services - where child support payments, child custody matters, child abuse matters and similar family matters are at stake, since the courtroom is the worst possible forum in the world for resolution of issues of this kind. In many cases, there is no way of keeping the matter from final resolution in the courtroom, but it is critical that without any regard to the parties' financial resources that all of the information needed to make a good decision be obtained in a professional and non-adversary manner and that there be followup of any decision made without regard to the financial resources of the parties.

ERASABLE FINISH

I do not have any specific suggestion, but I do know that this whole matter of child support payments, child custody and child abuse is a very important thing in the State of Alaska and there is a great deal of damage being done to people's lives every day because of the deficiencies in the system.

I think it would be desirable for your Committee to look into this matter without any preconceived ideas with respect to the proper approaches or solutions, and without any preconceived assumptions as to which branch of government is responsible for certain results, the prerogatives of different branches of government, etc.

As far as I am concerned, the only interests of consequence here are the interests of the children and the convenience of others must take second place.

Maybe you have already done all these things. If not, I would certainly encourage your Committee to look at the matter with the purpose of arriving at a comprehensive solution to a very serious problem.

Very truly yours,

CROFT & THURLOW

Gary Thurlow

COURT TRUSTEES and Standing MASTERS
JAMES L. RHOADS
ROBERT D. FRENZ

Dear Madam:

This office wishes to inform you of a substantial change in policy. Administrative Bulletin No. 76-2, promulgated by the Administrative Director, Arthur Snowden, prohibits the Court Trustee or other court employees "from exercising prosecutorial functions in the enforcement of Child Support Orders." This means that our function is limited to merely recording payments made, modifying the computer where there has been, for example, emancipation or change of custody of the children, and notification to a delinquent payor of his arrearages. No longer is the Court Trustee able to move the court for an Order to Show Cause or otherwise coerce a father who ignores his responsibility to his children. No longer may the Court Trustee enforce child-support orders.

If you need assistance in enforcing a court's order for child support, I suggest you consult with private counsel, or if you reside outside the state of Alaska, you may petition your Attorney General or District Attorney pursuant to the Uniform Reciprocal Enforcement of Support Act. In addition, you should be advised that Governor Hammond's administration and the state legislature is considering a child-support agency outside the court system which could effectively prosecute irresponsible fathers. You may wish to advise the governor or the legislature of your position and need for child-support monies.

If we can be of assistance, please do not hesitate to contact us; however, please understand that we can in no way threaten, persuade, or in any way appear to "prosecute" the father of your children regarding child-support monies you feel he may owe you.

Sincerely,

James Lane Rhoads
Court Trustee

MEMORANDUM

TO: Senator Chancy Croft
FROM: Don Clocksin, ALSC DC
SUBJECT: CSSB 659 - Child support enforcement

I. Background.

The present system of collecting child support is divided among three separate agencies. First, the court trustee, who is an officer of the court, keeps a record of all child support orders entered by judges in this state, keeps a record of all payments made and all delinquencies, and, until recently, went into court on behalf of the person supposed to receive the child support to force the absent parent to pay. See AS 09.55.210(5) and Civil Rule 67. Second, the state district attorneys have the responsibility for collecting child support for persons residing outside the state under the Uniform Reciprocal Enforcement of Support Act (URESA). See A 25.25.100. Some people also thought that the district attorney had an obligation to prosecute nonsupport actions on behalf of people in this state since they were obliged to enforce state law under AS 44.23.020(b)(3). Third, the Department of Health and Social Services has the responsibility under federal law to obtain cooperation from welfare recipients in locating absent fathers and bringing paternity or support actions against them.

However, the Alaska Supreme Court has recently issued a decision which rules the system described above illegal and unconstitutional. Public Defender Agency v. Superior Court 534 P.2d 947 (Alaska 1975). The court ruled that (1) the attorney general has the authority to prosecute nonsupport actions, but is not obligated to do so, (2) the court trustee may not prosecute such nonsupport actions because he/she is an officer of the court, and (3) the public defender is required to represent the defendant. In these nonsupport prosecutions,

The court recognized that its decision would create difficulties, since the district attorney's office did not have a sufficient budget to prosecute all nonsupport cases in existence. It suggested a legislative solution as follows:

"An effective resolution of the problems present in the area of child support can only be made by the legislature through the appropriation of additional funds to the Department of Law for prosecution of contempt proceeding or through the establishment of an independent office charged with the enforcement of support orders."

It is primarily in response to that court's decision, which wiped out the present system for collecting support, which brought about this bill.

Another reason for this bill is the recent enactment of federal legislation which requires the creation of a state agency to coordinate child support collection activities on behalf of recipients of Aid to Families with Dependent Children. The adoption of this bill would satisfy those federal requirements.

II. What this Bill Would Do.

This bill creates a new agency in the Department of Health and Social Services which would have all the responsibilities now fulfilled by the court trustees, the district attorney, and the Department of Health and Social Services. This new Child Support Enforcement Agency would coordinate all of these responsibilities and handle the AFDC and private nonsupport activities as well as the out-of-state (URESA) responsibilities.

With regard to AFDC cases, the agency would comply with these recent federal laws. The bill would also transfer from the recipient of AFDC to the state the right to sue for child support. The purpose of this is to obtain reimbursement for state welfare payments made to the family.

The bill also authorizes this agency to represent private individuals who are unable to collect support from the absent parent. The agency may charge for that service and have the authority to assist in executing judgments and obtaining assignments of wages, etc.

III. Section by Section Analysis.

Section 1. This section creates the new Child

Support Enforcement Agency.

Sec. 47.23.010.-creates the agency in the Department of Health and Social Services.

Sec. 47.23.020.-sets out the responsibilities of that agency.

Sec. 47.23.030.-authorizes the state to sue in place of the recipients of AFDC to collect support for the child. This section contains protections which are required by the new federal laws, and assures that the absent parent will be required to pay only the amount they are capable of paying.

Sec. 47.23.040.-authorizes the agency to bring law suits to establish the paternity of children born out of wedlock.

Sec. 47.23.050.-authorizes the Department of Law to contract with the agency to provide attorneys where needed.

Sec. 47.23.060.-authorizes the court to enter support orders, modify orders where necessary, and require that the parents give a bond or other security to assure that support is paid.

Sec. 47.23.070.-this section authorizes the court to assign the wages of a nonsupporting parent. The assignment would be binding upon that person's employer, and the nonsupporting parent cannot be fired because of this assignment. Under (c) an assignment for child support is given a high priority among other creditors of the nonsupporting parent.

Sec. 47.23.080.-states that the child support payments which are made pursuant to this statute will be made through the new agency unless there is good cause to have them paid directly to the custodian of the children.

Sec. 47.23.090.-once a child support obligation is due and not paid an execution or attachment may be made after the unpaid portion is reduced to judgment. The agency is authorized to execute orders on behalf of children.

Sec. 47.23.100.-this section requires the agency to provide its collection services to any person who has the right to collect child support. If the person is able to pay, the cost of collecting that child support will be charged to them.

Sec. 47.23.110.-these are the definitions.

Section 2. This section amends a section of the URESA statute to authorize the agency to collect past due support by means of execution for arrearages as well as contempt.

Section 3. This section amends the URESA statute to transfer the administrative responsibility from the Department of Law to the Department of Health and Social Services.

Section 4. This section adds four new sections to the URESA statute. In general these new sections adjust to amendments to the Uniform Act which were made in 1968 but never adopted in Alaska.

Section 25.25.171-sets out the procedure for deciding whether or not the defenses raised by the nonsupporting parent are valid. ?

Section 25.25.173-this section incorporates the civil rules of evidence in URESA hearings, authorizes the modification of support orders from other states, and provides that even if the nonsupporting parent is denied visitation the duty to pay support remains.

Section 25.25.175-this section forces the nonsupporting parent to testify in a URESA hearing by giving that person immunity from criminal prosecution for their testimony.

Section 25.25.177-if the nonsupporting parent alleges that he is not the father of the child, the court must either decide the paternity issue or postpone the URESA hearing until that issue is decided.

Section 5. This section repeals the present statute giving the court trustee the responsibility for child support collection. Civil Rule 67, which also sets out the functions of the court trustee, is presumably repealed by implication because of the Supreme Court case mentioned above.

Section 6. The bill would have a July 1, 1976 effective date.
