HB 192

The Honorable Kay Poland

March 1, 1977

The agreements with Texaco and Chevron together represent roughly 85 per cent of the Kachemak Bay leases issued on the basis of percentage of the original bonuses paid. We recently sent out letters to the remaining lessees in an effort to conclude agreements with them as well.

Sincerely,

Dear Senator:

You will soon be considering House Bill 192, which, if approved, will appropriate $12 million for the re-purchase by the State of Chevron's oil and gas leases in Kachemak Bay, Lower Cook Inlet. The total acquisition cost will actually be about $21 million. Further, we assume that you will soon be asked to appropriate another $3.5 million to re-acquire the leases of Texaco.

We have been asked to inform you of Shell Oil Company's position concerning our leases in Kachemak Bay which we acquired for $5.4 million in the 1973 sale.

We are not seeking negotiations with the State at this time in hopes that the State will not see fit to complete the execution of its option to re-acquire the leases.

Our hopes in this respect are derived from the language in the Act which imposed the moratorium. The Act provides that the Commissioner of Natural Resources "may" enter into negotiations to reacquire the leases. Also, in reference to possible condemnation action after the moratorium expires, the word "may" is again used.

We interpret the language to mean that there is a reasonable chance that the State will not find it necessary or appropriate to reacquire the leases, and that drilling could proceed if and when the validity of the leases is established by the pending court proceedings. In fact, the 1976 Act establishing the drilling moratorium states that one purpose of the moratorium is to "permit the Department of Fish and Game a reasonable time to develop plans to insure protection for the living resources of the bay from possible pollution incidental to drilling activities." Perhaps this has now been done.

We are convinced that we can operate in Kacherak Bay without significant harmful effects on the environment and without detriment to the fishing industry. We further believe that the development of the hydrocarbon resources under the Bay will inure to the benefit of all of the citizens of Alaska, as well as the nation.

Yours very truly,

Dear Ms Manley:

Thank you for your letter of February 28 stating your reasons for opposing the buy-back of the Kachemak Bay leases.

The Supreme Court has declared the Kachemak Bay leases invalid. The only decision I can make based on the decision of the Supreme Court is compensation to the firms and individuals for the initial cost as well as out-of-pocket expenses.

Again, thank you for your concern.

Dear Senator Poland:

I would like to ask for your earnest consideration of SB 192, and any future buy-back bills for Kachemak Bay oil leases.

Last year the legislature, in its wisdom, officially recognized the extreme value of the Bay in terms of marine and other biologic, scenic, and aesthetic resources, when it voted to repeal the leases so inadvisedly sold by the Egan administration. I am aware that you opposed that action, but I hope that you are not too proud to consider reversing that stand.

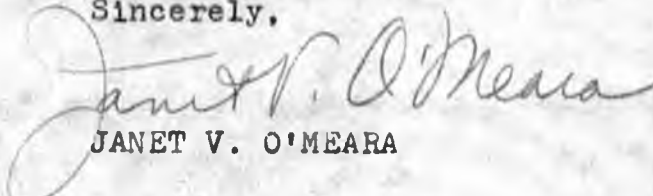

The Bay is of critical importance to residents of this area. In a recent public survey conducted by members of the University of Alaska, Anchorage (known unofficially as the Baring-Gould study), it was revealed that some 98% of Homer area residents favor encouragement of the local fishing industry, and that at least 75% were opposed to petrochemical development of any kind in this area. We need the Bay. It provides our physical and spiritual livelihood.

If you have read the Dept. of Interior's Environmental Impact Statement regarding social and environmental impact upon local residents should the federal government proceed with OCS development of lower Cook Inlet, you know what a black picture is presented. The picture is at least as bleak should oil development occur within the Bay itself: massive destruction of Bay environs and of a way of life for area residents.

If you have not read that Statement, I request that you at least review Section III.E.5 (Impact on Community Social Structure) and Section V (Adverse Environmental Effects Which Cannot be Avoided). Once you have seen the alternative proposed, I am sure you will, in good conscience, be able to lend your full support to this and later similar buy-back bills.

Thank you for your consideration in this matter.

Sincerely,

JANET V. O'MEARA

Dear Senator Colletta:

Your letter of March 2, 1977 in which you state: "The Supreme Court has declared the Kachemak Bay leases invalid.", reflects your lack of discernible judgment ability in making your decision concerning the Kachemak Bay leases. Your statement is totally erroneous as per the Supreme Court Opinion 1284, July 9, 1976.

In the event that your time has not permitted you to give attention to the copy of the Supreme Court Opinion 1284 sent to you on March 14, 1977 from the office of Chief Justice Robert Boochever, extracts from that Opinion are attached.

Although I am not a constituent from your district, you are one of the twenty senators who will vote on enacting a bill that will affect me, my family, my livelihood, my community, my state and my nation.

It disturbs me that you state you have made your decision on House Bill 192, based on a false statement. I cannot believe that you are generally uninformed on issues requiring your decision to, or not to, enact laws which will affect the lives of all Alaska residents. Rather, I suspect that in this instance, you have relied upon information that the Administration, and for personal reasons, some legislators, have promulgated.

In view of the TRUE fact of the Supreme Court Opinion, I implore you to please reconsider your position on paying the oil companies twice the original amount paid to the state for the leases. Please consider:

a. The majority of Kachemak Bay residents were opposed to HCS CSSB 720. It was passed only after the legislators' emotions were plied with the prejudiced news media and half truths, assisted by the special interest groups, over the George F. Ferris incident in Kachemak Bay, May 1976.

b. The purchase price for only Chevron leases, 21.1 million dollars, combined with Federal matching funds..a total 211 million dollars, could do a lot for Alaskans. How many of the badly needed roads, docks, airports, would this amount construct?

c. I am sure that the over seven thousand residents on the Chain would appreciate a few small airstrips, docks, so that they could load their fish, get their supplies and air-evac their sick and injured. The 12 million dollars cash requested for Chevron could provide medical personnel to that same area where they now have none, not even a public health nurse. This could save paying $2400.00 or so, after boating for hours to the nearest airfield, for a charter flight into Anchorage. It could also save a life.

d. There are many other bush areas, the interior and rural areas that could be benefitted by these millions of tax dollars that are to be paid to buy back the leases. Yet none of the people who are being deprived of these benefits are being consulted for their opinions.

e. The Kenai Peninsula desperately needs energy. It costs 1¢ p/KW electricity generated by natural gas; 5¢ p/KW electricity generated by oil. Is it right that all Kenai Peninsula residents be further penalized economically?

Again, I ask that you will give consideration to the justice for ALL Alaskans. Please abide by the opinion of the Supreme Court: "We have no desire in this area, to upset settled transactions which were entered into in good faith."

Please support the repeal of HCS CSSB 720. Let the Superior Court make its decision; let our Judicial Branch perform its distinct assigned function in our democratic government. Thank you for your consideration.

Sincerely,

BARBARA C. MANLEY

O P I N I O N

[No. 1284 - July 9, 1976]

Appeal from the Superior Court of the State of Alaska, Third Judicial District, Anchorage,
Thomas L. Schulz, Judge.

that the trial court erred in granting summary judgment on laches, we now turn to the other arguments presented to the trial court on the cross-motions for summary judgment to see if grounds exist for upholding its judgment. The issues we must consider include the claims advanced by plaintiffs below, comprising the merits of their case.

III.

The first such question we will consider is whether the Division of Lands complied with legal requirements concerning the publication of notice. Plaintiffs asserted below that the sale was invalid on the ground that the publication of notice of the sale in the Anchorage Times and the Kenai Cheechako News failed to satisfy the relevant constitutional and statutory mandates. As noted above the trial court did not rule on the issue.

Article VIII, § 10, of the Alaska Constitution provides:

"No disposals or leases of state lands, or interests therein, shall be made without prior notice and other safeguards of the public interest as may be prescribed by law."

Pursuant to this constitutional provision, the legislature enacted the Alaska Land Act, the provisions of which are now found in AS 38.05.005-.370. AS 38.05.345 provides in pertinent part:

"(a) Public notice of a sale, lease or disposal of land or interest in it, except grants under § 330 of this chapter and preference right grazing leases under §§ 75 and 80 of this chapter, when required, shall be substantially as follows.

(b) Notice shall be published once a week for three consecutive weeks preceding the time of sale stated in the

At the time the notice was published, the population of the Homer area was approximately 3,500. The circulation of the Anchorage Times in the area was approximately 130. The number of readers, albeit small, ^{21/} was not so insignificant that the newspaper would fail to reach a diverse group of people in the community. Therefore, it must be said that the Anchorage Times was a newspaper of "general circulation" in the Homer area.

The foregoing determination precludes plaintiffs from successfully arguing that the Division of Lands failed to give adequate notice of the 28th Competitive Oil and Gas Sale as required by AS 38.05.345.

IV.

Plaintiffs' second claim on the merits was that the sale was unlawful because it was not preceded by a reasoned finding made by the Director of the Division of Lands that the sale would best serve the interests of the state.

^{21/} The plaintiffs contend that this small percentage of readership mandates a finding that the Anchorage Times does not comply with the statutory requirements. However, Times Printing Co. v. Star Publishing Co., 99 P. 1040, 1041-43 (Wash. 1909), is distinguishable. Indeed, a statistical analysis for the issue at hand would be most inappropriate because size of readership is only one factor which must be considered in determining whether a particular newspaper is one of general circulation.

AS 38.05.035(a) (14) provides:

"The director shall . . .

(14) when he finds that the interests of the state will be best served, he may, with the consent of the commissioner, approve contracts for the sale, lease, or other disposal of available lands, resources, property or interest in them"

A majority of this court believes that no formal, written finding is necessary under this statutory language.
However, a majority of the court also believes that the determination of the director should be judicially reviewable.^{22/}
Accordingly, this case must be remanded to the superior court for appropriate further proceedings on this question.^{23/}

22/ This subject is treated in the separate opinion filed herein by Justice Rabinowitz.

23/ I must dissent from the court's remand of this case.

I find nothing in this statute requiring a public hearing or formal written finding in order to determine that state lands shall be leased. I am not unmindful of the dangers in assuming that a general award or finding implies a finding of all the specific facts needed to support it. However,

"Implying ultimate findings from the action taken is quite different. If a statute provides that the agency shall grant the certificate if it finds that the grant is in the public interest, and if the agency grants the certificate without saying anything about the public interest, good sense requires that the reviewing court should imply the ultimate finding of public interest. The courts usually so hold." 2 K. Davis, Administrative Law Treatise § 16.07, at 456 (1958).

Here, the statute makes no mention of a formal, written "finding." It merely says that when the director "finds" it to be in the best interests of the state, he may issue leases. The statute could, to the same effect, have read "when the director believes" or "when the director is of the opinion" that the state's interest is best served, he may lease the lands.

First, to be applied prospectively, the decision "must establish a new principle of law, either by overruling clear past precedent on which litigants may have relied, or by deciding an issue of first impression whose resolution was not clearly foreshadowed."^{44/} Second, we must evaluate the merits of retroactive or prospective application of the rule in light of its prior history, purpose and effect. Third, we must weigh the hardship and injustice of applying the rule to the litigants in the instant case.

In applying these standards to the case at bar, we are persuaded that our holding should be applied solely prospectively. The issue before us represents a question of first impression in an area of statutory law which was admittedly not as clear as it might have been.^{45/} A primary purpose underlying the statute is to give members of the public who will be affected by a particular disposal of state lands a voice in the disposition of those lands. However, once the disposition has occurred, the new owners or lessors also have a paramount interest in maintaining their rights to the land. We have no desire in this area, to upset settled transactions which were entered into in good faith. The title conflicts which would be engendered if every mineral lease or sale which was executed in the past became vulnerable to attack under the rule we have announced today would be enormous. If allowed, this would create insurmountable problems for the state and numerous individuals. Finally, we believe the oil company defendants in this case were entitled to rely on the Division of Lands' long-standing interpretation of § 305. Unlike our dissenting colleagues, we do not believe that the state's interpretation of the statute was implausible. Ultimately the question of prospectivity must be decided upon a broad basis. In this regard the United States Supreme Court per Cardozo, J., observed:

^{45/} See State v. Aleut Corp., 541 P.2d at 740 n.25.

"The choice for any state may be determined by the juristic philosophy of the judges of her courts, their conceptions of law, its origin and nature." Great N. Ry. v. Sunburst Oil & Refining Co., supra, at 365.

In order to avoid any injustice, the rule we state in this case shall apply only to actions arising out of occurrences after the date of this opinion.^{46/}

Dear Kay:

We enclosed an informational copy of a recent Chamber of Commerce news release regarding positions adopted by the Chamber on several pending legislative issues.

We would particularly like to draw your attention to our position on HB 192 relating to the repurchase by the State of certain Kachemak Bay leases. As you will note, we recommend opposition to any appropriation of State funds to repurchase leases, not because we object to proper reimbursement of the oil companies involved but because we oppose any State action designed to cancel the leases at all. Our position was developed in the hope that the leaseholders will eventually be able to produce; this in view of the existing serious energy shortages in the nation.

Press Release: Chamber of Commerce States Positions on Several
Legislative Issues 3-21-77

During it's regular meeting on March 18, The Anchorage Chamber of Commerce Board of Directors adopted positions on several issues now pending before The Alaska State Legislature, according to Chamber President Bob Hartig.

One of the most controversial of these was a proposal which, as now amended, would provide that the State Government pay 90% of the principal and interest on bonds or other indebtedness incurred by organized local governments to pay costs of school construction. Under present law, organized local governments pay 50% of their costs while unorganized areas receive 100% funding from the state.

After a great deal of study and deliberation, The Chamber Board voted to adopt a position in opposition to increased state funding of school construction. During discussion prior to this action, it was stated that, while such state aid for local school construction appears attractive at first glance, it was doubtful as to whether Anchorage taxpayers would benefit in the long run. It is likely that State taxes might very well increase eventually and local governments could lose much of the control over their school construction programs. Opponents of increased state funding also pointed out the possibility that unnecessary construction might be encouraged.

The Chamber Board also adopted a general position opposing any appropriation of state funds to repurchase Kachemak Bay Oil Leases; and instead, recommended that the Legislature take action to eliminate the eminent domain clause contained in the 1976 action originally cancelling the leases. A spokesman for the Chamber emphasized the Board's action was because of the Chamber's opposition to the State's attempt to cancel the leases and not because it opposes reimbursement for the oil companies involved in Kachemak Bay. It is hoped by the Chamber that exploration and production will eventually be allowed to proceed on the leases in question.

NEWS/MEDIA RELEASE

CHAMBER of COMMERCE

Crossroads of the Air World

In other action, The Chamber expressed it's support of a measure (HB 302) which would prohibit attorneys from representing parties in civil actions before the small claims courts. The Chamber supports the concept that small claims court was originally designed to settle uncomplicated civil disputes between private citizens in an atmosphere of informality and at the least possible expense to the parties involved. More complicated matters may be heard in regular District Court or in Superior Court where formal rules of evidence would apply.

The present small claims dollar limit is $1,000. The Chamber is already on record in support of a measure (SB 137) which would raise that limit to $2,000. That bill recently passed the State Senate by a vote of 20-0.

The positions taken by the Chamber on these and other legislative matters were developed after research and study by The Chamber's State Legislative Affairs Committee. Presenting recommendations to the Board on behalf of the Committee was Committee Vice Chairman Walt Bonnett.

Dear Senator Poland:

Due to unforeseen circumstances Philip Daniel, Executive Secretary of the United Fishermen of Alaska, is unable to testify before the Senate Resources Committee on House Bill 192. For this reason I am writing to express the views of the UFA.

The United Fishermen of Alaska strongly support the passage of House Bill 192. As there are areas in which the possibility of damage and head-on conflict are low, there are areas where they are high. We feel that Kachemak Bay is one of the latter.

We expect that had the State investigated as provided by law, assessed the fishery of the Bay and taken into account the biological importance of the fishery, the leases would never have been let. Kachemak Bay is one of the cases where mere amount of surface area and location of the fisheries point to head-on conflict.

In short, by asking for passage of this bill, we are also asking that a precedent be set, that fisheries and other renewable resources be given careful study and consideration before decisions are made to lease.

Re: HB 192 - Supplemental Appropriation for Kachemak Bay

Dear Senator Poland:

In a previous letter to you dated March 1, 1977, the administration outlined the status of negotiations for repurchase of the outstanding oil and gas leases in Kachemak Bay. Briefly, the letter said we had concluded agreements with Chevron, U.S.A and with Texaco, Inc. for roughly 85% of the leases in the Bay. The total cost to the state for these leases would be about $24.6 million; however, using tax credit procedures authorized by ch. 113 SLA 1976, as outlined in the letter, the actual appropriation would be only $14.5 million.

Yesterday, we concluded a third repurchase agreement with Lorna Call, Brian Burglin and Nina Burglin for their six tracts in Kachemak Bay. These lessees owned six of the less expensive tracts close to shore. The total purchase price for these tracts would be approximately $36,500 to be paid in cash. The agreement, concluded a day ago, has not yet been reduced to writing, but I am attaching to this letter a breakdown of the price. I respectfully request that the Senate Resource Committee amend HB 192 to include additional sums to cover the agreements with Texaco and with Lorna Call and her associates. I have attached to this letter a proposed Committee Substitute which would accomplish that end.

Sincerely,

Avrum M. Gross

New group Homer's a

A new community based alcoholism and drug abuse program has begun in Homer which will serve the lower Kenai Peninsula area. The program, called Lifeline, is run by local volunteers, and will provide counseling, referral, and information on drug and alcohol related problems, as well as crisis-intervention.

The establishment of the center in Homer, which in the past has had to rely on services from the Kenai branch of the Cook Inlet Council on Alcoholism, reflects a growing awareness here, and in the state, of the magnitude of the alcoholism problem in Alaska. In 1976 the Governor's Advisory Board on Alcoholism said alcoholism was the number one health problem in Alaska.

Last week Governor Hammond asked the legislature to make major reforms in state liquor laws, aimed at reducing per capita consumption of alcohol. The proposals would forbid certain kinds of liquor advertising, strengthen anti-bootlegging laws, give communities under 12,000 people the right to outlaw all but community operated retail liquor stores, and establish limits on the amount of alcohol a person

Baring-Gould study out

The final report on a attitudinal and demographic survey of Homer has been released to the public. The report, "Homer Area Survey: Attitudes Toward Growth and Deveopment" was officially presented to the Homer City Council at their February 14 meeting by one of the surver's authors, Dr. Michael Baring-Gould of the University of Alaska.

Parts of the study have appeared in another recently released survey of the five first class cities on the Kenai Peninsula, Homer, Kenai, Soldotna, Seward and Seldovia. The study supervised by Dr. Baring-Gould, and conducted with the help of Homer high school students, concerned itself only with Homer and the immediate surrounding area.

The survey questioned about 40% of the households in and about 25% of the households in the Homer area outside the city limits. According to the report the results are accurate within 5 percentage points, plus or minus.

The study gives a profile of the persons it interviewed as being 98% white, with an average age of 35 years and an average education of one year of college. More than half had resided in Homer five years or longer. The average family income for the total area was $13,400 which broke down to averages of $17,100 Homer and $11,300 outside the city.

Residents compensated their income through relying on subsistence to varying degrees, more so outside the city than within it. Those who obtained at least half their meat and fish supply through subsistence fishing and hunting amounted to 38% of Homer residents and 65% of those outside Homer, for a combined Homer area average of 54%.

In further profiling the respondents to the survey, the report shows that the attraction of living in Homer is predominately the lifestyle found here. More than twice as many people chose that option than chose employment or job reasons, and as many people came for the aesthetic qualities of the area as came for job opportunities. When asked what they like best about Homer, lifestyle and aesthetic values were the overwhelming choice.

The study says, "These same values are expressed in a variety of other questions. For a majority of residents all considered very important living in a quiet community, having aged friends, participating in subsistence activities, and being able to make or fix many of the things needed by a family, while holding a high paying job was rated as only somewhat important. The importance of these values is indicated by the fact that less than 10% of the area residents planned on moving away from Homer within the next seven years, and majorities in both city and rural areas plan to remain permanently. Another 10% stated that they would remain permanently unless the community underwent significant growth and change."

The survey also questioned people on their attitudes toward Homer's size, growth, and development activities.

When asked what size they would like to see Homer in the next 10-15 years, nearly half of those asked picked the town's present size. Those within the city limits favored more growth than those outside. Still, 65% of city residents wanted to see a Flushing hydrants will bring. . .

Muddy water here

For the next week or two Homer residents may start their days with an unappetizing morning sight. Muddy tap water. Beginning next Monday or Tuesday the city will begin flushing fire hydrants in order to clear sediment out of the city's water mains.

The flushing will be done in the late evening hours, beginning around 11:00 p.m. and continuing for several hours. Most of the work will be down in the central area of town covered by the original town water system.

Charles Mortimer, Director of Public Works, explained that the flushing at night will probably cause the muddy morning water, although they will try to flush hydrants until the water becomes clear.

The original water source for the water system was wells, which had a high organic iron content. The only treatment this water received was chlorination. The non-treated residue in the pipes precipitate out to settle along the bottoms of water pipes. Mr. Mortimer said there have been some complaints this winter of muddy water, and that flushing the mains should clear the water eventually.

The water tank by the hospital will also be emptied and cleaned, but that should not affect the quality of city water.

Flushing the mains causes muddy water because the hydrants draw much more water faster through the pipes than does residential use, and stirs up the sediment in the pipes. The idea is to get that water full of dirt out through the hydrants, but it's not always possible to be 100 percent effective.

size of less than 3,000, or double the city's present population.

When asked what types of industrial development was most desirable to them, more than 75% of city residents chose commercial fishing and fish processing, light manufacturing, and education and research, between 75% and 50% chose transportation and storage facilities and tourism, 37% chose on shore oil facilities, and less than 25% chose heavy industry or petrochemical industries.

The study also asked four questions about onshore oil development assuming development does occur in Lower Cook Inlet. (see accompanying chart). The study also found that the older the respondent was, and the longer his or her residency in Homer was, the more favorably that person viewed on shore oil facilities. Groups that tended to favor onshore oil development were managers/owners and retired and unemployed people. Those who wanted to discourage onshore oil development were professionals, technical workers, craftsmen and laborers, fishermen, cannery workers, and farmers and homesteaders.

The study also noted, with surprise, that, "among those who would discourage oil are the craftsmen and laborers who might anticipate the most direct economic benefits, whereas the favorably inclined retired people are most likely to experience the negative effects from an inflationary local economy."

In a telephone interview, Dr. Baring Gould cautioned against looking only at the question of oil development in Homer.

"People shouldn't look at the study exclusively from an oil standpoint," he said. "That's one of my fears. There are a lot of areas in the study not dealing with oil."

"Homer can use the study to help establish priorities and plan the types of projects to be developed in the city. I hope and street improvements, harbor and port facilities, recreation facilities, sewer system, and tourist and camper facilities. Residents favor first a sales tax, then service charges for financing any expansion in city services.

Finally the survey asked several questions related to zoning and land use. It found that 87% of the people in the Homer area felt the beauty of the surrounding open lands was very important to them and wanted state parks, or some other means to protect these lands in their undeveloped states.

Those surveyed expressed their feelings about zoning within the city limits. About half of the city's residents favored moderate zoning, and a quarter favored strong zoning. Respondents were strongly in favor of zoning industrial and multiple unit dwellings, evenly divided on commercial zoning, and strongly opposed to residential zoning.

Residents also wanted to see oil facilities be developed outside the city limits on publicly leased land, if development occurs.

On the question of oil facilities questions indicate that

The Honorable Kay Poland, Chairman

Dear Senator Poland:

Due to unforeseen circumstances Philip Daniel, Executive Secretary of the United Fishermen of Alaska, is unable to testify before the Senate Resources Committee on House Bill 192. For this reason I am writing to express the views of the UFA.

The United Fishermen of Alaska strongly support the passage of House Bill 192. As there are areas in which the possibility of damage and head-on conflict are low, there are areas where they are high. We feel that Kachemak Bay is one of the latter.

We expect that had the State investigated as provided by law, assessed the fishery of the Bay and taken into account the biological importance of the fishery, the leases would never have been let. Kachemak Bay is one of the cases where mere amount of surface area and location of the fisheries point to head-on conflict.

In short, by asking for passage of this bill, we are also asking that a precedent be set, that fisheries and other renewable resources be given careful study and consideration before decisions are made to lease.

Sincerely,

Kenneth Moore

Hon. Kay Poland

Dear Senator Poland:

I would like to ask for your earnest consideration of SB 192, and any future buy-back bills for Kachemak Bay oil leases.

Last year the legislature, in its wisdom, officially recognized the extreme value of the Bay in terms of marine and other biologic, scenic, and aesthetic resources, when it voted to repeal the leases so inadviesedly sold by the Egan administration. I am aware that you opposed that action, but I hope that you are not too proud to consider reversing that stand.

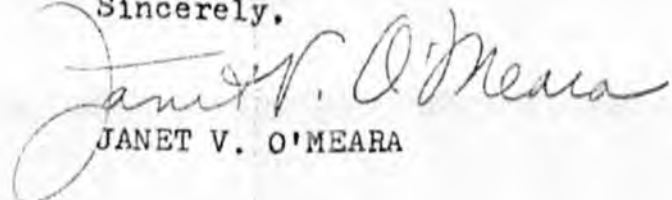

The Bay is of critical importance to residents of this area. In a recent public survey conducted by members of the University of Alaska, Anchorage (known unofficially as the Baring-Gould study), it was revealed that some 98% of Homer area residents favor encouragement of the local fishing industry, and that at least 75% were opposed to petrochemical development of any kind in this area. We need the Bay. It provides our physical and spiritual livelihood.

If you have read the Dept. of Interior's Environmental Impact Statement regarding social and environmental impact upon local residents should the federal government proceed with OCS development of lower Cook Inlet, you know what a black picture is presented. The picture is at least as bleak should oil development occur within the Bay itself: massive destruction of Bay environs and of a way of life for area residents.

If you have not read that Statement, I request that you at least review Section III.E.5 (Impact on Community Social Structure) and Section V (Adverse Environmental Effects Which Cannot be Avoided). Once you have seen the alternative proposed, I am sure you will, in good conscience, be able to lend your full support to this and later similar buy-back bills.

Thank you for your consideration in this matter.

Sincerely,

JANET V. O'MEARA

Dear Senator:

You will soon be considering House Bill 192, which, if approved, will appropriate $12 million for the re-purchase by the State of Chevron's oil and gas leases in Kachemak Bay, Lower Cook Inlet. The total acquisition cost will actually be about $21 million. Further, we assume that you will soon be asked to appropriate another $3.5 million to re-acquire the leases of Texaco.

We have been asked to inform you of Shell Oil Company's position concerning our leases in Kachemak Bay which we acquired for $5.4 million in the 1973 sale.

We are not seeking negotiations with the State at this time in hopes that the State will not see fit to complete the execution of its option to re-acquire the leases.

Our hopes in this respect are derived from the language in the Act which imposed the moratorium. The Act provides that the Commissioner of Natural Resources "may" enter into negotiations to reacquire the leases. Also, in reference to possible condemnation action after the moratorium expires, the word "may" is again used.

We interpret the language to mean that there is a reasonable chance that the State will not find it necessary or appropriate to reacquire the leases, and that drilling could proceed if and when the validity of the leases is established by the pending court proceedings. In fact, the 1976 Act establishing the drilling moratorium states that one purpose of the moratorium is to "permit the Department of Fish and Game a reasonable time to develop plans to insure protection for the living resources of the bay from possible pollution incidental to drilling activities." Perhaps this has now been done.

Our prime objective remains to drill under our Kachemak Bay leases. These leases were purchased in good faith after expending considerable sums in preparation for the lease sale. Thereafter, additional sizeable expenditures were invested in preparing to drill and in assisting in the defense of the court attack on the leases.

We are convinced that we can operate in Kachemak Bay without significant harmful effects on the environment and without detriment to the fishing industry. We further believe that the development of the hydrocarbon resources under the Bay will inure to the benefit of all of the citizens of Alaska, as well as the nation.

Yours very truly,

Dear Kay:

We enclosed an informational copy of a recent Chamber of Commerce news release regarding positions adopted by the Chamber on several pending legislative issues.

We would particularly like to draw your attention to our position on HB 192 relating to the repurchase by the State of certain Kachemak Bay leases. As you will note, we recommend opposition to any appropriation of State funds to repurchase leases, not because we object to proper reimbursement of the oil companies involved but because we oppose any State action designed to cancel the leases at all. Our position was developed in the hope that the leaseholders will eventually be able to produce; this in view of the existing serious energy shortages in the nation.

Press Release: Chamber of Commerce States Positions on Several
Legislative Issues 3-21-77

During its regular meeting on March 18, The Anchorage Chamber of Commerce Board of Directors adopted positions on several issues now pending before The Alaska State Legislature, according to Chamber President Bob Hartig.

One of the most controversial of these was a proposal which, as now amended, would provide that the State Government pay 90% of the principal and interest on bonds or other indebtedness incurred by organized local governments to pay costs of school construction. Under present law, organized local governments pay 50% of their costs while unorganized areas receive 100% funding from the state.

After a great deal of study and deliberation, The Chamber Board voted to adopt a position in opposition to increased state funding of school construction. During discussion prior to this action, it was stated that, while such state aid for local school construction appears attractive at first glance, it was doubtful as to whether Anchorage taxpayers would benefit in the long run. It is likely that State taxes might very well increase eventually and local governments could lose much of the control over their school construction programs. Opponents of increased state funding also pointed out the possibility that unnecessary construction might be encouraged.

The Chamber Board also adopted a general position opposing any appropriation of state funds to repurchase Kachemak Bay Oil Leases; and instead, recommended that the Legislature take action to eliminate the eminent domain clause contained in the 1976 action originally cancelling the leases. A spokesman for the Chamber emphasized the Board's action was because of the Chamber's opposition to the State's attempt to cancel the leases and not because it opposes reimbursement for the oil companies involved in Kachemak Bay. It is hoped by the Chamber that exploration and production will eventually be allowed to proceed on the leases in question.

In other action, The Chamber expressed it's support of a measure (HB 302) which would prohibit attorneys from representing parties in civil actions before the small claims courts. The Chamber supports the concept that small claims court was originally designed to settle uncomplicated civil disputes between private citizens in an atmosphere of informality and at the least possible expense to the parties involved. More complicated matters may be heard in regular District Court or in Superior Court where formal rules of evidence would apply.

The present small claims dollar limit is $1,000. The Chamber is already on record in support of a measure (SB 137) which would raise that limit to $2,000. That bill recently passed the State Senate by a vote of 20-0.

The positions taken by the Chamber on these and other legislative matters were developed after research and study by The Chamber's State Legislative Affairs Committee. Presenting recommendations to the Board on behalf of the Committee was Committee Vice Chairman Walt Bonnett.

Dear Senator Poland:

Reference HB 192

I respectfully ask that you will vote to oppose the appropriation of 12 million dollars, the cash portion of the total 21.1 million dollars to be paid to buy back the Chevron, USA oil leases in Kachemak Bay, for these reasons:

1. The legislative authority for the buy-back of these leases, HOUSE CS FOR CS FOR SENATE BILL NO 720, was passed under emotional duress. No legislation based on emotionalism (i.e. misinformation and half-truths reported on the GEORGE F. FERRIS, drilling rig, incident in Kachemak Bay May-June, 1976) can be good legislation; nor can it be in the best interest of the state nor the people whom you represent.

2. The close proximity of the Kachemak Bay leases to federal lease jurisdiction. The Kachemak Bay area will be exposed to virtually the same calculated risks from federal lease exploration, but without producing revenue to the State of Alaska.

3. The 1973 sale was slightly under 25 million dollars in lease bonus for 64 tracts, 32 of which are located in Kachemak Bay. The purchase price to buy back the Chevron, USA leases (15 tracts) is 21.1 million dollars. Presumably, Texaco will agree to the sale price of 3.5 million dollars. This is 24.6 million dollars to buy back leases from two companies.

Shell Oil Company paid 5.3 million dollars for their tracts. They will have this amount due them, plus unknown millions of dollars in interest, exploration expense and a drilling rig contract. Also, leases are owned by Union Oil Company, Texas International Petroleum, Simasko Production Company and a number of private individuals.

These millions of dollars are not "refunds" from the original approximately 25 million dollars bonus money as the administration and many legislators would have the taxpayers be dupes enough to believe.

These are millions of tax dollars to be taken from the general fund; they are dollars that will become a deficit for the taxpayers to pay. These are tax dollars to be spent for the benefit of a few privileged elitists and selfish, special interest groups. It is money that should be spent to benefit Alaskans of all classes and all interests.

4. It is millions of tax dollars that could:
- (a) Provide docks and airports on the Alaska Peninsula,

the Aleutian Islands, to handle fish products, the groceries and general supplies needed for sheer survival for the residents in those outlying communities.

- (b) Provide judicial facilities in our remote areas.
- (c) Provide facilities to offer a little comfort for our senior citizens; permit them a little pride and dignity in their few remaining years.
- (d) Provide means for a better quality education for our children.
- (e) Provide means to meet health needs of many of our Alaskan residents.
- (f) Provide means to help re-new our renewable resources, especially the salmon fisheries.
- (g) Deny spending these tax dollars and help provide a divers viable economy in the Kachemak Bay communities so that many can be employed. Help them to maintain pride and self reliance.

Thank you for your consideration. Please oppose HB 192 and use these millions of dollars to truly make Alaska a better place to live for many Alaskans.

Sincerely,

BARBARA C. MANLEY

P.S. It has been recommended by many people in this area that HCS CSSB 720 should be repealed.

The Honorable Mike Colletta
Senator
Alaska State Legislature
Pouch V.
Juneau, Alaska 99801

Dear Senator Colletta:

Your letter of March 2, 1977 in which you state: "The Supreme Court has declared the Kachemak Bay leases invalid.", reflects your lack of discernible judgment in making your decision concerning the Kachemak Bay leases. Your statement is totally erroneous as per the Supreme Court Opinion 1284, July 9, 1976.

In the event that your time has not permitted you to give attention to the copy of the Supreme Court Opinion 1284 sent to you on March 14, 1977 from the office of Chief Justice Robert Boochever, extracts from that Opinion are attached.

Although I am not a constituent from your district, you are one of the twenty senators who will vote on enacting a bill that will affect me, my family, my livelihood, my community, my state and my nation.

It disturbs me that you state you have made your decision on House Bill 192, based on a false statement. I cannot believe that you are generally uninformed on issues requiring your decision to, or not to, enact laws which will affect the lives of all Alaska residents. Rather, I suspect that in this instance, you have relied upon information that the Administration, and for personal reasons, some legislators, have promulgated.

In view of the TRUE fact of the Supreme Court Opinion, I implore you to please reconsider your position on paying the oil companies twice the original amount paid to the state for the leases. Please consider:

a. The majority of Kachemak Bay residents were opposed to HCS CSSR 720. It was passed only after the legislators' emotions were plied with the prejudiced news media and half truths, assisted by the special interest groups, over the George F. Ferris incident in Kachemak Bay, May 1976.

b. The purchase price for only Chevron leases, 21.1 million dollars, combined with Federal matching funds..a total 211 million dollars, could do a lot for Alaskans. How many of the badly needed roads, docks, airports, would this amount construct?

c. I am sure that the over seven thousand residents on the Chain would appreciate a few small airstrips, docks, so that they could load their fish, get their supplies and air-evac their sick and injured. The 12 million dollars cash requested for Chevron could provide medical personnel to that same area where they now have none, not even a public health nurse. This could save paying $2400.00 or so, after boating for hours to the nearest airfield, for a charter flight into Anchorage. It could also save a life.

d. There are many other bush areas, the interior and rural areas that could be benefitted by these millions of tax dollars that are to be paid to buy back the leases. Yet none of the people who are being deprived of these benefits are being consulted for their opinions.

e. The Kenai Peninsula desperately needs energy. It costs 1¢ p/KW electricity generated by natural gas; 5¢ p/KW electricity generated by oil. Is it right that all Kenai Peninsula residents be further penalized economically?

Again, I ask that you will give consideration to the justice for ALL Alaskans. Please abide by the opinion of the Supreme Court: "We have no desire in this area, to upset settled transactions which were entered into in good faith."

Please support the repeal of HCS CSSB 720. Let the Superior Court make its decision; let our Judicial Branch perform its distinct assigned function in our democratic government. Thank you for your consideration.

Sincerely,

BARBARA C. MANLEY

Dear Ms Manley:

Thank you for your letter of February 28 stating your reasons for opposing the buy-back of the Kachemak Bay leases.

The Supreme Court has declared the Kachemak Bay leases invalid. The only decision I can make based on the decision of the Supreme Court is compensation to the firms and individuals for the initial cost as well as out-of-pocket expenses.

Again, thank you for your concern.

OPINION

[No. 1284 - July 9, 1976]

Cross-Appellees.)

Appeal from the Superior Court of the State of Alaska, Third Judicial District, Anchorage,
Thomas B. Schulz, Judge.

that the trial court erred in granting summary judgment on laches, we now turn to the other arguments presented to the trial court on the cross-motions for summary judgment to see if grounds exist for upholding its judgment. The issues we must consider include the claims advanced by plaintiffs below, comprising the merits of their case.

III.

The first such question we will consider is whether the Division of Lands complied with legal requirements concerning the publication of notice. Plaintiffs asserted below that the sale was invalid on the ground that the publication of notice of the sale in the Anchorage Times and the Kenai Cheechako News failed to satisfy the relevant constitutional and statutory mandates. As noted above the trial court did not rule on the issue.

Article VIII, § 10, of the Alaska Constitution provides:

Pursuant to this constitutional provision, the legislature enacted the Alaska Land Act, the provisions of which are now found in AS 38.05.005-.370. AS 38.05.345 provides in pertinent part:

"(a) Public notice of a sale, lease or disposal of land or interest in it, except grants under § 330 of this chapter and preference right grazing leases under §§ 75 and 80 of this chapter, when required, shall be substantially as follows.

(b) Notice shall be published once a week for three consecutive weeks preceding the time of sale stated in the

At the time the notice was published, the population of the Homer area was approximately 3,500. The circulation of the Anchorage Times in the area was approximately 130. The number of readers, albeit small, ^{21/} was not so insignificant that the newspaper would fail to reach a diverse group of people in the community. Therefore, it must be said that the Anchorage Times was a newspaper of "general circulation" in the Homer area.

The foregoing determination precludes plaintiffs from successfully arguing that the Division of Lands failed to give adequate notice of the 28th Competitive Oil and Gas Sale as required by AS-38:05:345.

IV.

Plaintiffs' second claim on the merits was that the sale was unlawful because it was not preceded by a reasoned finding made by the Director of the Division of Lands that the sale would best serve the interests of the state.

^{21/} The plaintiffs contend that this small percentage of readership mandates a finding that the Anchorage Times does not comply with the statutory requirements. However, Times Printing Co. v. Star Publishing Co., 99 P. 1040, 1041-43 (Wash. 1909), is distinguishable. Indeed, a statistical analysis for the issue at hand would be most inappropriate because size of readership is only one factor which must be considered in determining whether a particular newspaper is one of general circulation.

AS 38.05.035(a) (14) provides:

"The director shall . . .

A majority of this court believes that no formal, written finding is necessary under this statutory language. However, a majority of the court also believes that the determination of the director should be judicially reviewable.^{22/}
Accordingly, this case must be remanded to the superior court for appropriate further proceedings on this question.^{23/}

22/ This subject is treated in the separate opinion filed herein by Justice Rabinowitz.

23/ I must dissent from the court's remand of this case.

I find nothing in this statute requiring a public hearing or formal written finding in order to determine that state lands shall be leased. I am not unmindful of the dangers in assuming that a general award or finding implies a finding of all the specific facts needed to support it. However,

"Implying ultimate findings from the action taken is quite different. If a statute provides that the agency shall grant the certificate if it finds that the grant is in the public interest, and if the agency grants the certificate without saying anything about the public interest, good sense requires that the reviewing court should imply the ultimate finding of public interest. The courts usually so hold." 2 K. Davis, Administrative Law Treatise § 16.07, at 456 (1958).

Here, the statute makes no mention of a formal, written "finding." It merely says that when the director "finds" it to be in the best interests of the state, he may issue leases. The statute could, to the same effect, have read "when the director believes" or "when the director is of the opinion" that the state's interest is best served, he may lease the lands.

First, to be applied prospectively, the decision "must establish a new principle of law, either by overruling clear past precedent on which litigants may have relied, or by deciding an issue of first impression whose resolution was not clearly foreshadowed."^{44/}

Second, we must evaluate the merits of retroactive or prospective application of the rule in light of its prior history, purpose and effect. Third, we must weigh the hardship and injustice of applying the rule to the litigants in the instant case.

In applying these standards to the case at bar, we are persuaded that our holding should be applied solely prospectively. The issue before us represents a question of first impression in an area of statutory law which was admittedly not as clear as it might have been.^{45/} A primary purpose underlying the statute is to give members of the public who will be affected by a particular disposal of state lands a voice in the disposition of those lands. However, once the disposition has occurred, the new owners or lessors also have a paramount interest in maintaining their rights to the land. We have no desire in this area, to upset settled transactions which were entered into in good faith. The title conflicts which would be engendered if every mineral lease or sale which was executed in the past became vulnerable to attack under the rule we have announced today would be enormous. If allowed, this would create insurmountable problems for the state and numerous individuals. Finally, we believe the oil company defendants in this case were entitled to rely on the Division of Lands' long-standing interpretation of § 305. Unlike our dissenting colleagues, we do not believe that the state's interpretation of the statute was implausible. Ultimately the question of prospectivity must be decided upon a broad basis. In this regard the United States Supreme Court per Cardozo, J., observed:

^{45/} See State v. Aleut Corp., 541 P.2d at 740 n.25.

"The choice for any state may be determined by the juristic philosophy of the judges of her courts, their conceptions of law, its origin and nature." Great N. Ry. v. Sunburst Oil & Refining Co., supra, at 365.

In order to avoid any injustice, the rule we state in this case shall apply only to actions arising out of occurrences after the date of this opinion.^{46/}

The Honorable John Rader
President

Dear Senator Rader:

We would like to compliment you on your wise decision to appoint a committee to fight the high rate of unemployment in our state. Senator Summers and his committee, Senators Sackett, Ziegler, Poland and Ferguson, have a hard road ahead, but it is a great step forward. We hope there will be many beneficial and positive results.

We, as well as others, are deeply concerned over the extremely high rate of unemployment in the Homer area. More people are coming to Homer looking for employment adding to the number of unemployed, long-time residents. The unemployment lines and food stamp lines are out in the street, and there is no immediate hope in sight for employment.

The fish processing plants are shut down for lack of raw products, or closed seasons. One plant is buying some Tanner crab, which has helped a few boats. The area has been so overfished that few fishermen can make a full-time living from fishing. The Limited Entry Law precludes newcomers from entering the salmon fishing business, and it is only a matter of time before all fish come under the Limited Entry program, thus restricting any other people from working in the fishing industry.

Except for a few government, power company, fish processing, and school teaching jobs there is no other sizeable pay roll. In essence the employment situation in this area is "sick".

We own and operate a transportation company that handles 90% of all freight coming in or going out of Homer. The amount of cargo processed through our terminal has been the lowest in years. If you catch fish or have a job, you have money to buy things from lumber to groceries. The cargo movement at this time indicates a horribly depressed economic condition. This cargo index is an excellent indicator at this time. Our company has more unpaid accounts receivable and we have received more bad checks than ever before. We are also holding more undeliverable freight collect and C.O.D. shipments than in the past.

A day doesn't pass that people come to our office seeking employment. Our work force is down 50%. This is the first time since we started in business that we have had to lay off employees.

Last year was a good employment year, based mainly on work generated by the drilling barge Ferris, which spent over $14,000,000 on employment and purchasing of supplies in Alaska. Everyone benefited from this activity. Many of those employed were fishermen who fortunately made enough to help carry them through part of this bad winter.

Your passage of SB 720 to reacquire the Kachemak Bay Leases, killed one big employment possibility for this town. As you certainly must recall, this bill was pushed through based on half truths and emotionalism; plus inaccurate press releases: "The Ferris Has Sunk in Kachemak Bay" and "Worst Oil Spill in Alaska's History". The fact being that the Coast Guard environmental protection office issued a final official statement that less than 300 gallons of fuel were spilled overboard. Most of this was actually grease and oil from the equipment.

The best way for your committee to increase employment in Homer is to oppose HB 192. Save this 21.1 million dollars and use it for public projects. Homer alone needs docks, sewers, water lines, roads, and school buildings. Certainly this same situation exists throughout Alaska. This money, the 21.1 million dollars plus all of the additional buy-back millions, should be used for the benefit of all of the people of Alaska, not just a few local commercial fishermen and conservationists.

It has never been proven by the state that oil development in the area would hurt the fishing industry. The same few individuals and organizations that sued the state over the Kachemak Bay Leases have now sued the Federal Government over the Lower Cook Inlet Lease Sale. However, now the Alaska Conservation Society has openly become a plaintiff in the suit where previously they, and the Sierra Club, had donated funds to the Kachemak Bay Defense Fund.

You must keep in mind, HB 192 to buy back Chevron's leases is only the first, piece-meal step by the administration. Then comes Texaco, for about four million, then the others if they can be forced to sell. Think what you could do with 40 or 50 million dollars worth of public projects which would benefit all of us, not just a select few.

We are sure you have received many wires and letters opposing HB 192. You also must recognize that many of us in Homer are going to fight the administration's attempt to put us on a food stamp economy. We want to work for a living and maintain our dignity, which can only be done by increasing the local employment and giving people jobs.

In addition to opposing HB 192, the best thing you and your committee can do is to submit a Senate Bill to repeal CSESSB 220 in it's entirety. This is the most unjust legislation ever forced upon a segment of the Alaskan Society—the working man.

The Honorable John Rader

We would like to recommend that you take time to call any, or all of the following cross section of individuals from Homer to find out first hand the factors about the economic conditions in Homer and their opposition to HB 192:

Mr. Dave Derry, President of Homer Chamber of Commerce, member of Hillas Real Estate Appraisal Company, and former Manager of National Bank of Alaska, Homer Branch 235-8545

Mr. W. C. Rhodes, Manager of Homer Electric Association 235-8552

Mr. Jim Saling, Fisherman, tender boat and barge owner 235-8775

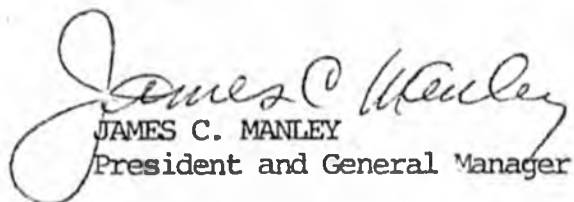

Mr. Larry Farnen, City Manager 235-8767

Mr. John Pate, City Councilman 235-8575

We appreciate the opportunity to present this information and sincerely hope that you oppose HB 192 and give favorable consideration to submitting a bill to repeal CSCSSB 220.
