SENATE BILL NO. 305

IN THE LEGISLATURE OF THE STATE OF ALASKA
TWENTY-FIFTH LEGISLATURE - SECOND SESSION

BY THE SENATE LABOR AND COMMERCE COMMITTEE

Introduced: 3/21/08
Referred: Labor and Commerce

A BILL

FOR AN ACT ENTITLED

1 "An Act relating to recorking, sealing, or packaging of wine served with a meal and
2 removal of recorked, sealed, or packaged wine from licensed premises."

3 BE IT ENACTED BY THE LEGISLATURE OF THE STATE OF ALASKA:

4 * Section 1. AS 04.16.120 is amended by adding a new subsection to read:

5 (c) Notwithstanding (a) of this section, a person may remove from licensed
6 premises the unconsumed portion of one or more bottles of wine that were partially
7 consumed with a meal if (1) the original or a similar type of cork is reinserted in each
8 bottle by the licensee and the cork can only be removed by a corkscrew or other
9 similar device, or (2) each bottle is sealed or packaged by the licensee in a manner set
10 by the board. Notwithstanding another provision of law, each bottle of wine that is 11 recorked, sealed, or packaged as provided in this subsection is not an open container if 12 the cork reinserted by the licensee or the seal made by the licensee has not been 13 disturbed.

34 states

| State              | Rules on taking wine home from restaurants  |
|--------------------|---|
| Arizona     | Patrons may re-cork and removed a partially consumed bottle of wine as long as it was purchased with a meal and the cork is replaced flush with the bottle.   |
| Arkansas    | Arkansas ABC Reg. 1.79(27) does provide that those establishments which hold an on premise permit that would allow the service of wine may allow a consumer who purchases an unsealed package of wine in conjunction with a food service and consumes a portion of the wine on the premises with the meal, to replace the cork and remove the partially filled package from the premise. Contact enforcement agency for compliance details. |
| California  | Patrons are allowed to take wine home when purchased with a meal. Contact enforcement agency for compliance details.  |
| Colorado    | Patrons may take one 1 partially consumed bottle of wine up to 750 ml purchased from an establishment with a hotel/restaurant liquor license. Restaurants are not required to do so. Those restaurants who do extend this option to customers is urged to reseal and package the wine to protect against any open container violation. (enacted 2005)  |
| Connecticut | Patrons are allowed to take wine home when purchased with a meal. Regulations pertaining to transportation of unsealed container apply.   |
| Delaware    | Patrons are allowed to take wine home when purchased with a meal. Contact enforcement agency for additional compliance details.   |
| Florida     | Patrons are allowed to take wine home when purchased with a meal. Contact enforcement agency for additional compliance details. (enacted 2005)   |
| Georgia     | Patrons are allowed to take wine home when purchased with a meal. Contact enforcement agency for additional compliance details.   |
| Hawaii      | Legislation enacted in 2002 allows county liquor commissions to permit many licensees (incl. restaurants) to allow patrons to remove re-corked/re-sealed wine from premises. Contact enforcement agency for compliance details.   |
| Idaho       | Patrons are allowed to take wine home when purchased with a meal. Regulations pertaining to transportation of unsealed container apply.   |
| Indiana     | Patrons are allowed re-cork and take home wine purchased with a meal. The cautionary statement is to avoid any violation of the open container laws in the area that the wine will be transported in. Local law enforcement can provide that information.   |
| Iowa        | Patrons are allowed to take wine home when purchased with a meal if the restaurant or bar has the appropriate licensing in place.   |

|-----------------------|--|
| Louisiana      | Patrons are allowed to take wine home when purchased with a meal. Contact enforcement agency for compliance details.   |
| Maine          | Patrons are allowed to take wine home when purchased with a meal. Contact enforcement agency for compliance details.   |
| Michigan       | Patrons are allowed to take wine home when purchased with a meal. Contact enforcement agency for compliance details. (enacted 2005)   |
| Minnesota      | A restaurant with an on-sale or wine license may permit a person purchasing a full bottle of wine in conjunction with the purchase of a meal, to remove the bottle when leaving the license premises provided that the bottle has been opened and the contents partially consumed.   |
| Montana        | Re-corking is permitted in businesses with all-beverage licenses or beer/wine licenses. A restaurant beer/wine license may not sell alcohol to go. Contact enforcement agency for compliance details.   |
| Nebraska       | Patrons are allowed to take wine home when purchased with a meal. Contact enforcement agency for compliance details.   |
| New Hampshire  | Unconsumed wine purchased with a full meal may be taken from premises, provided patron is not intoxicated, bottle is properly sealed/bagged, and transported in vehicle area inaccessible to the driver.   |
| New Jersey     | Patrons are allowed to remove partially consumed wine from the premise as long as it is re-corked and placed in the trunk of the car. Not having direct access to the wine would remove the chance of receiving an open container citation.  |
| New York       | State law does allow patrons to take home one bottle of wine purchased with full meal. Please contact enforcement agency for compliance details.  |
| North Carolina | If the establishment has an off-premises permit, then they customer can take an opened botde of wine home by corking it. If the establishment does not have an off-premises license, the customer cannot. Re-corked wine must be transported in a vehicle compartment inaccessible to the driver.  |
| Oklahoma       | Patrons are allowed to take wine home when purchased with a meal. Contact enforcement agency for compliance details.   |
| Oregon         | Patrons are allowed to take wine home when purchased with a meal. Contact enforcement agency for compliance details.   |
| Pennsylvania   | All hotel (H) and restaurant (R) licensees may now allow patrons who have purchased a bottle of wine in conjunction with a meal, to take the unconsumed portion of the bottle with them when they leave. The bottle must be resealed before leaving the premises. A "meal" is defined as food prepared on the premises sufficient to constitute breakfast, lunch, or dinner; a "meal" does not include snacks such as pretzels, popcorn, chips, or similar items. This does not apply to retail dispenser (beer only or E), club, (C) or catering club (CC) licenses. |
| South Carolina | Nothing in the S.C. law prevents a patron from removing the open container from the restaurant. It is also legal to have the open container in a car as long as it is in the trunk or luggage compartment. Contact enforcement agency for compliance details.  |
| Tennessee      | Patrons are allowed to take wine home when purchased with a meal. Contact enforcement agency for compliance details.   |

|-------------------|---|
| Texas      | Patrons who order wine with food and have a portion of the open container remaining may remove the open container of wine from the premises. Contact enforcement agency for compliance details.             |
| Utah       | Patrons are allowed to take wine home when purchased with a meal. Contact enforcement agency for compliance details.  |
| Vermont    | Vermont allows restaurants the discretion of allowing patrons to take home opened, bagged bottles of wine. only in accordance with T 7 VSA § 222(1)Contact enforcement agency for compliance details. |
| Virginia   | Patrons are allowed to take wine home when purchased with a meal. While it is not required to be in the trunk it is recommended that the bottle is inaccessible to the driver and passengers.               |

** All states not mentioned do not allow the re-corking and removal of partially consumed wine that was purchased with a meal.

2005 02 18: Michigan Considers a Wine Re-corking Bill

by Joseph McConnell

There's an old piece of internet humor that contrasts the Martha Stewart personality type with the attitudes and reactions of "the real woman." In one of its entries, it has the Martha-type saying that freezing in ice cube trays is a wonderful way of preserving leftover wine. The real woman's reaction is, "Leftover wine?"

We react in somewhat the same way to a bill introduced recently in the Michigan Senate by Sen. Jud Gilbert, which would permit restaurants and restaurant patrons to "re-cork" and take home wine left over at the end of a meal. Not a problem we often have. But although CII management will probably seldom take advantage of this capability, we still support it, for several reasons.

First, we applaud anything that encourages diners to order and restaurants to offer higher quality wines. The theory is, if you know that you'll be able to take home (and perhaps freeze in ice cube trays) the remains of that Chateaufort or Howell Mountain, you're more likely to order it instead of the Bonny Doon or even the Diet Slurpee. This is of particular interest when you consider people who often dine out alone; without a recorking law, dinner for one means a choice between the by-the-glass offerings, getting sloshed, or leaving good wine to the tender mercies of the kitchen staff.

And it's also argued that the bill will have some impact on drunken driving -- you won't feel economically pressured to finish your bottle, and therefore will drive more sensibly and safely on the way home. We admit that this is not the most convincing argument -- no statistics are collected here or anywhere else to show what an intoxicated driver was drinking, and consequently there's no basis to say that people pushing themselves to drain the last drop from a bottle of 1995 Brunello are subsequently laying waste the countryside. But if it makes the values voters happy, we're willing to play along, since the other benefits for the industry and the consumers are real enough.

The mechanics of it are not specified in the current bill's language -- presumably it would be necessary to do more than just pounding in the cork again. There's likely to be some kind of official re-seal process or something similar, letting Officer Friendly know that you're a fine upstanding oenophile who simply practices moderation, and not some Ripple-swilling Beatnik, cruising for babes with an open bottle of alcohol in your car.

In fact, if it becomes law, it might not be a bad idea for restaurants to provide a hang tag of some kind, citing the actual bill. And of course, there might be some incremental revenue to be made by selling preservation gear along with the re-corked bottle. A basic VacuVin kit, perhaps with the restaurant's label, might be a nice thing to stock and sell as an add-on.

Anyway, if you're a Michigan voter and you'd like to see the state follow the 30 other states that have similar laws, drop your Senator a line and encourage him or her to support Senate Bill 0199 2005.

93RD LEGISLATURE
REGULAR SESSION OF 2005

Introduced by Senators Gilbert, Hammerstrom, Sanborn, McManus, Jelinek, Goschka, Bishop, George, Barcia and Switalski

ENROLLED SENATE BILL No. 199

AN ACT to amend 1998 PA 58, entitled "An act to create a commission for the control of the alcoholic beverage traffic within this state, and to prescribe its powers, duties, and limitations; to provide for powers and duties for certain state departments and agencies; to impose certain taxes for certain purposes; to provide for the control of the alcoholic liquor traffic within this state and to provide for the power to establish state liquor stores; to provide for the care and treatment of alcoholics; to provide for the incorporation of farmer cooperative wineries and the granting of certain rights and privileges to those cooperatives; to provide for the licensing and taxation of activities regulated under this act and the disposition of the money received under this act; to prescribe liability for retail licensees under certain circumstances and to require security for that liability; to provide procedures, defenses, and remedies regarding violations of this act; to provide for the enforcement and to prescribe penalties for violations of this act; to provide for allocation of certain funds for certain purposes; to provide for the confiscation and disposition of property seized under this act; to provide referenda under certain circumstances; and to repeal acts and parts of acts," by amending section 1021 (MCL 436.2021), as amended by 2002 PA 725.

The People of the State of Michigan enact:

Sec. 1021. (1) The commission shall not require a licensee to sell or serve food to a purchaser of alcoholic liquor. The commission shall not require a class A hotel or class B hotel to provide food services to registered guests or to the public.

(2) Except as otherwise provided in subsection (3), a purchaser shall not remove alcoholic liquor sold by a vendor for consumption on the premises from those premises.

(3) A vendor licensed to sell wine on the premises may allow an individual who has purchased a meal and who has purchased and partially consumed a bottle of wine with the meal, to remove the partially consumed bottle from the premises upon departure. This subsection does not allow the removal of any additional unopened bottles of wine unless the vendor is licensed as a specially designated merchant. The licensee or the licensee's clerk, agent, or employee shall reinsert a cork so that the top of the cork is level with the lip of the bottle. The transportation or possession of the partially consumed bottle of wine shall be in compliance with section 624a of the Michigan vehicle code, 1949 PA 300, MCL 257.624a.

(4) This act and rules promulgated under this act do not prevent a class A or B hotel designed to attract and accommodate tourists and visitors in a resort area from allowing its invitees or guests to possess or consume, or both, on or about its premises, alcoholic liquor purchased by the invitee or guest from an off-premises retailer, and does not prevent a guest or invitee from entering and exiting the licensed premises with alcoholic liquor purchased from an off-premises retailer.

This act is ordered to take immediate effect.

Quality Wine and Ale Supply and Nomacorc® have joined forces to bring you the #1 synthetic cork on the market! "What's so special about these? The answer is the manufacturing process. Other types of synthetic corks are injection molded which is a batch process that produces corks with inconsistent density and cell structure size resulting in inconsistent protection. Nomacorc® are made by a unique, patented, co-extrusion process that provides a very consistent quality, and an exact match to the natural cork. Nomacorc® is simply a better closure because the closed cell structure creates a better barrier from oxygen and protects your wine. They have made for us a 9 x 1 1/2 cork, printed with the Nomacorc logo. We've tested the corks and they work best with floor corks and hand corks too. These corks seal instantly and the bottle can be stored directly after corking. You can also use any common corker on your wine bottles. This is modern technology that preserves your wine and also for twin lever corks. These corks will provide at least 1 year of protection during aging.

Restaurateurs toast wine 'doggie-bagging' laws

By Leeann Cannon

When it comes to promoting alcoholic beverage sales, restaurateurs sometimes are forced to choose between making a profit and making sure their customers are acting responsibly.

With an increasing number of states passing "recorking" bills on partially consumed bottles of wine, many restaurateurs around the country are singing the praises of the law that they see as a blessing to their businesses. There are approximately 30 states at present, including Colorado, Connecticut, Louisiana, Michigan, New York and Texas, which allow restaurants to reseal wine for customers to take home.

While the National Restaurant Association has "not paid a great deal of attention" to the so-called wine doggie-bagging measures, according to NRA spokesman Brad Dayspring, several state-level groups have shown a devoted interest.

Andy Deloney, director of public affairs for the Michigan Restaurant Association, said the MRA believes that recorking wine will encourage sales of bottles of wine at restaurants, adding, "That's something our members are interested in." The MRA represents more than 4,500 foodservice establishments.

In May Michigan became the latest state to pass the recorking ordinance. Dubbed the "Merlot-to-go" bill by the MRA, the bill passed through the state's Senate and House on a unanimous vote.

"We really believe the law is going to have a positive impact on drunk driving," Deloney said. "Some people go into a restaurant and can't finish a whole bottle. But if they spend $50 on it, they're going to want to get their money's worth. This is where we've created a problem. Now, rather than risking impairing oneself, customers can take the bottle home."

Although the passage of the Merlot-to-go bill was unanimous, the Michigan Legislature employed a nonpartisan Senate staff called the Senate Fiscal Agency to analyze the proposed recorking law before the final decision was made.

The bill analysis committee noted that any recorking of partially consumed bottles of wine would have to comply with Michigan's Vehicle Code, which prohibits drivers and passengers from transporting open containers of alcohol unless they're in the trunk or a separate compartment. Open container laws proved to be a concern for many states when they were considering whether or not to pass similar recorking measures.

According to Michigan legislative analyst Suzanne Lowe: "Michigan has an open container law on the books for a reason: to discourage drinking and driving. ... Reportedly 41 percent of fatal car accidents involve alcohol. The bill might contribute to this problem by creating an opportunity for people to transport opened bottles of wine."

In response to Lowe's concerns, Michigan legislature made sure the bill required that the top of the cork was even with the lip of the bottle when it was resealed, therefore making a corkscrew necessary to reopen the bottle.

In support of the bill, Lowe said that "diners who ordered a bottle instead of a glass would have a selection that was both wider and of higher quality, since most restaurants offer only limited choices by the glass, and those tend not to be the finest wines."

Many restaurateurs agree with Lowe and are counting on the bill to increase not only bottle sales in general, but also sales of more expensive wines.

Chuck Hunt, executive vice president of the New York State Restaurant Association, said that without a doubt the recorking laws would help promote more expensive purchases of wine. "If you know you're not going to finish a bottle, you're not going to order it," Hunt added. "Now that customers can keep whatever they don't drink, they have nothing stopping them from ordering a $40 bottle."

The New York State Legislature, which passed a recorking bill in September 2004, requires that establishments put the resealed wine bottle in a tamper-proof bag to ensure that the open container law is obeyed, according to Hunt.

"One of the big problems that arose when the law was first passed was that no one knew where to get a suitable bag," he said. "We actually got our hands on one here at the New York State Restaurant Association and sent it on to the state liquor authority. Once we got it approved, I ordered about 10,000 of them for our members."

The NYSRA boasts the membership of approximately 7,000 restaurants.

Hunt also pointed out that with the tamper-proof bags, liquor liability for restaurants is no longer a concern. "Once a restaurant seals the bag, they are not responsible," he said. "As long as the standards of proper alcohol service are met, there is no issue [with liquor liability]."

Cindy Wlending, executive vice president of the Colorado Restaurant Association, said Colorado in May 2004 passed its "cork-and-carry" law pertaining only to restaurants with a hotel/restaurant liquor license. In April of this year, the state expanded the bill to other types of liquor licenses including brewpubs.

"We lobbied to pass the cork-and-carry law in conjunction with the state's lowering of its blood alcohol concentration standard for defining drunkenness to 0.08 percent from 0.10 percent," Wlending said. "Our major concern with the lower BAC was that customers — especially couples — wouldn't want to order a whole bottle of wine out of fear that they might not be able to drive home safely. The recorking law mitigated some of that concern."

In addition, the CRA offers recommendations to restaurants and consumers to ensure that taking home resealed bottles of wine doesn't conflict with the Colorado statewide open container law that was passed earlier this year. The open container law does provide that recorked bottles of wine are acceptable in vehicles as long as the bottles are in the trunk or in a sealed compartment, according to Wlending.

"The CRA suggests that restaurateurs not only recork the partially consumed bottles of wine so that the cork is even with the lip of the bottle but also apply tap to the seal and place the bottle inside a bag or box," Wlending added. "The Colorado liquor association said that by following our recommendations, even if the driver of a vehicle didn't put the wrapped bottle in the trunk, he or she would still have a strong defense against the open container law."

According to a published report, Colorado police thus far have not reported a great increase of open-container arrests.

Restaurants Applaud State "Recorking" Laws

With recent Supreme Court decisions helping to improve sales in the wine industry, it may not be long before lawmakers tackle another issue important to both wine producers and restaurateurs: wine recorking in restaurants.

A Michigan law passed last month now allows restaurant patrons to take home unfinished bottles of wine they have purchased, provided that the wine has been recorked. Michigan joins approximately 30 other states, including California, New York, Texas and Washington, that also allow opened bottles of wine to be taken home from restaurants. The Michigan Restaurant Association, which lobbied heavily for the measure, said that recorking laws would be a boost for the restaurant industry's wine sales, since customers would be inclined to purchase entire bottles of wine instead of individual glasses.

Some lawmakers, however, are worried that recorking laws might interfere with states' drinking and driving policies, especially with open-container policies. Even the states that allow wine recorking have strict policies on transporting open containers of alcohol. Most often, wine must be completely recorked, with the cork's edge touching the lip of the bottle, or the wine bottle must be placed in a tamper-proof container. In some states, the wine must be placed in an area of the car inaccessible to the driver, such as the trunk.

Despite these concerns, many restaurants have applauded recorking measures, saying that these laws have increased sales of wine bottles—especially for their higher-priced wines. Restaurant owners say customers are more inclined to buy expensive wines if they know they can take them home.

Even so, recorking laws are not meant to supersede responsibility. Restaurant owners, who still have liability in preventing patrons from abusing alcohol, have the final say in whether opened wine bottles may be taken home.
